Pentagon Backs Canada's Stand On Auto Parts

U.S. May Seek Redress For Magazine Controls

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. defence department has thrown its support behind Canada rejecting the contention of Senator Vance Hartke that Canada is engaging in unfair competition through encouragement of domestic production of automobiles and parts.

The Indiana Democrat wrote President Johnson last month claiming Canada's automotive tariff-rebate plan has led to heavy layoffs in U.S. auto parts plants while the Pentagon continued to place large defence contracts in Canadian factories.

Hartke appealed to Johnson to slash Pentagon orders in Canada. The president promptly turned over the senator's letter to Defence Secretary Robert McNamara.

The defence department has not made a public announcement of its position. However, a copy of a department letter, now on its way to the Senate, has come to the attention of The Canadian Press.

In this letter, the department says it found no evidence that Canada's automotive plan is having any perceptible effect on cross-border trade in military supplies.

Moreover, its estimated Canada imported about $550,000,000 worth of automotive supplies and equipment from the U.S. last year.

With Canadian shipments to the U.S. amounting to less than $33,000,000, "the fact remains that Canada incurred a deficit in this trade of anywhere from $400,000,000 to more than $500,000,000 in 1963," the department says.

Canadian importation of vehicles and automotive parts from the U.S. continues to be the largest single item in Canada's bilateral trade with the U.S. and the largest factor in the imbalance in Canada's current account, the department adds.

Hartke maintained that Canada was using its automobile

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon suggested Thursday the U.S. may decide to seek "equivalent concessions" if Canada goes ahead with its proposed tariff measures designed to protect Canadian magazines from American competition.

Meanwhile, he said the American import quotas on Canadian lead and zinc — against which Canada has protested for several years—are to be re-studied and, while he could not forecast the result, he was "hopeful there could be some change in the present situation."

Mr. Dillon made the remarks at a press conference following the two-day Joint Canada-U.S. cabinet committee meeting on trade and economic affairs. It was the ninth such meeting since the committee was set up in 1953 and another is to be held within a year, though no date has yet been set.

The meeting apparently produced a stand-off on what now has become the most troublesome economic issue between the two countries: the Canadian scheme under which domestic sales manufacturers, by increasing exports to the U.S., can earn tariff rebates on an equivalent volume of imported American cars and parts.

BUSINESS DAMAGED

Mr. Dillon told reporters that 14, or 15 U.S. auto-parts manufacturers feel their business has been damaged by this measure and it could result in unemployment in their plants. Hence the concern of the U.S. administration.

However, he declined under questioning to say whether he felt the Canadian program amounted to an export subsidy, a step which some feel would be a breach of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and could open the way for the U.S. to impose countervailing duties on Canadian auto parts.

Mr. Dillon said this question will be decided by the U.S. com-

Expect Peaceful Weekend

By CLARE McDERMOTT

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Cyprus today was hopeful of a peaceful Easter weekend as President Makarios, a Greek Orthodox archbishop, prepared to lead the country's Greek-Cypriots in prayer at Easter masses.

A United Nations spokesman said sporadic fire was exchanged overnight between Greek - Cypriots and Turkish - Cypriots on mountain tops around St. Hilarion Castle, Turkish - Cypriot stronghold in the Kyrenia Mountains.

In the south coast village of Aylos Theodoros three shots were fired late Thursday night and some movement was observed among Greek-Cypriots who have been on hilltops around the village since shooting broke out three last week.

FEW SHOTS FIRED

The shots were reported in Nicosia, Famagusta and at Chatos, about 15 miles northeast of the capital, and there were four unexplained explosions at Kuma in southwest Cyprus.

Vice - president Turkish-Cypriot vice - president, Fadil Kuchuk, issued separate statements expressing satisfaction at UN Secretary General U Thant's report to the UN Security Council Wednesday night.

In his program of "reasonable objectives", Thant urged a general amnesty, disarming of all irregulars, removing fortified positions and freedom of movement, establishing joint UN-Greek-Turkish patrols, reinstatement of the police force, and return of Turkish-Cypriot refugees to their homes in affected areas under UN protection.

The two leaders of the hostile Cypriot communities said they found the report contained a basis for lasting peace.

(A total of 160 policemen from New Zealand have volunteered requested UN police force, it was reported in Wellington, New Zealand.

CP from AP-Reuters

"It's marvelous news," said Lord Snowdon—former society photographer Antony Armstrong - Jones, husband of the princess.

"She looks a super baby."

The Queen's sister and Snowdon already are parents of a son, Viscount Linley, born in November, 1961.

Snowdon said both mother and child are doing well.

The baby was the fourth royal birth this year. Earlier, Princess Alexandra, the Queen's cousin, had a boy, the Queen herself had a boy and the Duchess of Kent, wife of Alexandra's brother, had a girl Tuesday night.

Margaret's baby takes seventh place in the line of succession to the throne, displacing the Duke of Gloucester, an uncle of the 33-year-old princess.

The birth was announced in an official bulletin from Kensington Palace, where Margaret and Snowdon live. The bulletin said:

"The Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon, was safely delivered of a daughter at 8:20 a.m. today. Her Royal Highness and her child are both

Civil Liberties and Human Rights to Be Investigated

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts announced today he has appointed a royal commission to undertake "an exhaustive inquiry" into civil liberties and human rights in Ontario.

Mr. Robarts said the single commissioner will be Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Supreme Court of Ontario. The premier described the chief justice as "eminently being equipped" to conduct the inquiry.

In his statement to the legislature Mr. Robarts indicated that the establishment of the royal commission emanates from the public controversy caused by the government's Bill 99. He said:

"In the debates of recent weeks concerning amendments to the Police Act, I assured the legislature and the people of Ontario that I personally, and the government which I have the honor to head, will not for one moment tolerate legislation which infringes upon or jeopardizes in any way the rights and freedoms of the individual."

Section 14 of Bill 99, which would have empowered the Ontario Police Commission to imprison persons who refused to testify in secret about crime, was killed by the legislature

News Media Blamed For Killing Bill

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Wishart unexpectedly made a statement to the legislature Thursday in defence of portions of Section 14 of Bill 99 —the legislation which cost former attorney-general Frederick Cass his job.

Mr. Wishart blamed news media for reports about Bill 99 which he said "created a great fear and apprehension in the mind of the public" about infringement upon individual rights.

Section 14, which became known as Ontario's "police state" legislation, would have given the Ontario Police Commission the power to imprison persons who refused to testify before it in secret about their knowledge of crime.

Bill 99 was introduced in the legislature March 19 by Mr. Cass. March 23 the legislature killed Section 14 of the bill. Last Thursday Mr. Wishart presented a substitute for it to the legislature and a bills committee. It was approved Tuesday.

When the bill came up for second reading in the house Thursday, Mr. Wishart said he wanted to remove "any great misapprehension" which he said had been built up because of public ignorance of what was in Section 14.

TCA And CPA Cannot Compete Except At Home

Competition in Canada Must Not Injure TCA

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's two major airlines have been asked to cut out their duplication in the international field and operate under a single, integrated plan.

The orders came from a new government air policy, handed to the heads of Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines Monday and publicly announced Thursday night by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

The result could mean complete amalgamation of the overseas services of publicly-owned TCA and privately-owned CPA, or they might maintain their present identities and co-operate under their existing colors.

How they do it, said Mr. Pickersgill, has been left up to them. What they decide to do under the basic government principles "is almost certain to be agreeable to the govern-

No deadline for the agreement was set, but the transport minister thought the "very considerable clarification" could be expected by the end of May.

Mr. Pickersgill was to have announced the new air policy in the Commons during the ad-

Banks Guilty

BULLETIN

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, deposed president of the Seafarers International Union of Canada Ind., today was found guilty of conspiring to wound, maim or disfigure Capt. Henry Francis Gosbee, another union official, in 1957.

Judge Claude Wagner fixed May 5 as the date for sentence.

Pipal Rates Debated

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's plan to raise $8,500,000 more for the post office by charging an extra cent for locally-delivered letters is running into rough weather in the Commons.

New Democratic members, supported by the post office department, said small circulation magazines, which now enjoy a special low rate, served notice Thursday they plan to put up a strong fight.

Conservative members were critical too, though their opposition was milder.

Most of the attack was a resolution paving the way for legislation which would abolish the special four-cent rate for local delivery of first-class letters. It would be replaced by a uniform five-cent rate now levied on inter-city mail.

Postmaster General Nicholson said the extra burden will fall mainly on commercial firms whose mailings account for 35 to 40 per cent of local delivery letters.

"Those firms are not paying their way. They're being subsidized by the taxpayers."

He said a low local-delivery letter rate had some merit years ago when local letters were handled within a single post office. Now a letter could be carried at local rates for as far as 25 miles in some areas such as Vancouver.

THERE'S DEFICIT

Mr. Nicholson said that though his department's accounts show surpluses are close to being covered by postal revenues, there was in fact a deficit of more than $37,000,000 in the form of services provided

Canadian Student Priest Joins Vigil Before Shrine of Lincoln

WASHINGTON (CP)—In the chilly, rainy darkness of a Washington park, just 500 feet from Abraham Lincoln's shrine, a Canadian student priest silently stood his three-hour vigil, his mind locked in prayer and in reflection on man's inhumanity to man.

"We have a moral obligation to the Negro and I felt that what I was doing was right," said 23-year-old Joseph Lotteridge, son of a Welland, Ont., tire shop owner.

"It was very quiet and I was tired and wet but I felt I was not alone," he added as he recalled his period of vigilance—at 9 a.m. one morning—as part of a theological students' protest against the filibuster by southern senators against legislation to strengthen citizenship rights for Negroes.

Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish theological students have pledged to maintain round-the-clock vigilance near the shrine of the late emancipator until the filibuster is ended and the legislation approved. Among the Catholic students are about a dozen Canadians.

"They are not molested," said Brother Ephraim MacDonald, 23, of Glace Bay, N.S., who acts as one of the marshals for those taking their turn near the shrine. "At one time George Lincoln Rockwell's party paraded showed up in protest against us but they did not try to interfere physically. Park police were watching.

"We have so many volunteers that not all have been called. But probably we will make use of them all before the filibuster is over. What I have seen of the Negro situation makes me realize we must give them our support."

"My turn came up two weeks ago," Lotteridge said. "Our Holy Cross Seminary will probably come up again May 18. I have signed a pledge to continue my witness until the legislation is passed. I shall keep my pledge."

Among others who have either signed or have carried out their pledge are: Scottish-born Harry Stucks, 28, Toronto and Welland, and Ronald Guida, 23, Welland, both of the Holy Cross Seminary.

Her Tongue Once Terror of Commons

Lady Nancy Astor Is Near Death at 84

LONDON (AP)—Nancy Lady Astor, the Virginia beauty whose tongue became the terror of the British House of Commons, was reported near death today. She is 84.

"My mother is sinking fast," said her son, the third Viscount Astor.

Lady Astor in 1919 became the first woman to enter the British Parliament.

"I love politics and I love a fight," she once said.

Churchill, in common with most members, usually refused to speak to her for years after she entered the House. Later she asked him why.

"Madam," he replied, "you make me feel as if a woman had entered my bathroom, and I had nothing to protect myself with except a sponge."

Between the wars she was hostess to the great names of British politics at Cliveden, the Astor family's estate west of London.

Some Britons viewed the Cliveden Set as a government within the government, the real source of policy in the years that led to the Second World War. The group was popularly supposed to favor co-operation with the Axis and oppose collaboration with Russia, but

During the war she turned the immense Thames-side mansion into a 160-bed hospital for Canadian soldiers.

Lady Astor was the daughter of Chiswell Dabney Langhorne of Greenwood, Va. She and her four sisters were known as the "five beautiful Langhorne sisters." One married the artist Charles Dana Gibson and was the model for the Gibson Girl.

MARRIES TWICE

Nancy Langhorne was married at 18 to Robert Gould Shaw of Boston and had a son before they were divorced in 1903. Shaw died in 1930.

She met Waldorf Astor—a British great-grandson of the landlord of New York"—on an Atlantic crossing, married him in London in 1906, then became a British subject. They had four sons and a daughter.

When the death of his father elevated Astor to the House of Lords in 1919, he persuaded Lady Astor to stand for election to the seat he was forced to vacate in Commons.

She served in the House for 28 years, retiring in 1945. Her husband died in 1952.

Four and Twenty Blackbirds Would Be Lost in This Pie

DENBT DALE, England (AP)—The Denby Dale pie-makers are at it again but plan to hold a party in the pie dish first.

This will be the seventh Denby Dale pie, not counting one that went bad and had to be buried in 1887. Three tons of beef and two tons of potatoes will go into it and the pie committee are experimenting with four kinds of seasoning.

The dish already has been made in the nearby Yorkshire town of Otley.

The organizers claim it is the biggest pie dish in the world — 18 feet long, 6 feet wide and 20 inches deep.

The first Denby Dale pie was made in 1788 to celebrate King George III's recovery from madness. The recovery lasted not much longer than the pie.

The second pie celebrated the victory over Napoleon at the Battle of Waterloo in 1815, the third the repeal of the repressive corn laws in 1846.

The pie for Queen Victoria's 1887 Jubilee was inedible and was hastily buried in quicklime. A substitute was quickly made.

More pie celebrated the corn laws jubilee in 1896 and the most recent was made in 1928 to raise funds for a hospital.

Pie day this year is Sept. 5 and charity is again the motive.

The villagers expect the pie to yield 30,000 portions and raise £15,000.

Mr. K at May Day Celebration Warns U. S. to Go Easy in Cuba

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev warned the United States today that threats to Cuba and continued violation of its airspace by reconnaissance flights "can have disastrous consequences."

The premier was speaking at the traditional Kremlin May Day luncheon for foreign guests who had earlier stood with him to watch a massive display of Soviet rockets and armor rumble across Red Square.

He said the Soviet Union is striving for peaceful coexistence between states with different social systems but other states men appear to misunderstand this as being confined to the safeguarding of peace between big nations.

Khrushchev declared they think one could settle their small countries, not respect their sovereignty or interfere in their domestic affairs. Russia would not accept this and "will actively fight" against those who carry out such a policy, he said.

The Communist world held its annual May Day observances with a massive outpourings of workers in Moscow and Peking and the usual tough talk about the invincibility of communism.

But the great schism between the Soviet Union and Red China cast its shadow over the gala celebrations. The Russians refused to attend, the Peking rally and withdrew an invitation to a Chinese labor delegation to view the annual parade in Moscow's Red Square.

Boasting of China's new strength, Chou also lashed out against the United States, declaring:

"A new upsurge has appeared in the struggle of the people of the whole world against the U.S. imperialist policies of aggression and war."

CNR Starts Redevelopment Of Station Parking Area

Major redevelopment of parking facilities to better accommodate travellers at the Canadian National Belleville station has been started, Keith Hunt, Rideau Area Manager, here, said today. The first step, he said, which is expected to be completed shortly, involves provision of employee parking space to the east of the yard office and provides for public parking for 200 automobiles.

This change, Mr. Hunt said, will remove all employee cars from the immediate station area and will be followed by a complete facelifting of curtom-er handling facilities in this area. Work involves, he said, new sidewalks, curbing, paving, directional islands and signs and a re-shaping of the flagpole island to provide customer parking for 55 vehicles, including taxis.

Mr. Hunt said that the new layout will eliminate the present congestion around the station area which prevents vehicles from reaching the platform for the picking up and discharging of passengers. The new directional routing, he said, will permit easier reach to the station platform unimpeded.

George Van de Water, area engineer, said that in connection with the progressive improvement to the CN customer facilities here, work has already commenced on a complete interior modernization program of the station waiting room. The work, he says, involves the opening of the present ticket counter to a width of 12 feet with a suspended overhead 7-foot high canopy.

Also involved, Mr. Van de Water said, is the replacement of the terrazo floors, re-sheathing of walls, installation of a drop ceiling, re-arrangement of facilities and repainting in the new Canadian National visual redesign scheme to provide a modern, attractive place for passengers. Work on the waiting room, he says, is expected to be completed the later part of this month.

Dinner Speaker Challenges Young People

The ninth annual banquet of Belleville Youth for Christ was held on Monday, April 27th. One hundred and fifty sat down to a turkey dinner which was organized and prepared by Mrs. B. Elliott and was served by the men of the local Youth for Christ Board.

Jim Fogarty, local Director, welcomed the local clergy in attendance and also welcomed the Hicks' Sisters' trio and trumpeter Brent Daniels, who were musicians for the evening and the guest speaker Mr. Jim Wilson from Hamilton Youth for Christ.

Mr. Wilson, who has just returned from the Orient with six teenagers and Teen Team, thrilled the audience with challenging slides taken while there. He invited all to journey with him while he visited the different countries. Five points of Mr. Wilson's message were Miracle, Mission, Message, Ministry and You. He explained how Youth for Christ was born of a Miracle, started by Dr. Torry Johnson and Dr. Billy Graham. Youth for Christ is a Mission to teens, has a message to tell them and their World of Unlimited Ministry is an arm of the church in that it encourages teens to attend church. You are a vital part of this organization as you stand behind them. Also you are challenged that 75 per cent of teenage boys and 65 per cent of teenage girls never darken the door of a church after they become teens. Mr. Wilson challenged the audience to stand behind Youth for Christ in an effort to combat this percentage.

In closing Mr. Wilson commended the local Youth for Christ movement in their work throughout the past year, with the teens of Belleville and surrounding area.

Those in attendance represented the area served by Youth for Christ from Madoc, Cobourg, Napanee, Picton and surrounding area.

SCOUT REACHES PINNACLE!

On Monday, April 27th, 1964, a Belleville Scout realized a boyhood ambition when he was presented Queen's Scout by his Scout Badge. The Scout was Bruce Downing of First Belleville (St. Thomas') Group, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Downing of Belleville.

The presentation was made in St. Thomas' Parish House in a colorful ceremony. Preceding the event, Scout Downing was invested as the Troop Leader of First Belleville Scout Troop and this was accompanied with an investiture of Mr. John Stayner as Assistant Scoutmaster of the Troop and Scout John Fort as Assistant Troop Leader. The ceremony was performed by the Belleville District Commissioner, Mr. W. E. Jarvah, and the entire troop gave the new leaders three resounding cheers. Present at the gathering was the Venerable Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, Chaplain of the Group; Mr. T. E. Smith, Chairman of First Belleville Group Committee; Mr. A. S. Lewis, President of the Belleville District Council; Mr. P. J. Lancaster, Vice-President of the District Council; Cubmaster Reg Churcher; Assistant Cubmaster Ken Stone and Group Scout Leader Harold Port, a Queen's Scout himself. David read a letter from the Belleville Rotary Group which traced its beginnings back to 1917 and showed that Rotary and Scouting the Second World War has produced at least 5 Queen's Scouts, 5 Presidents of the District Council and 3 District Commissioners. He presented four badges to Scoutmaster Jack Port, Scout Lowell - woodworker and metal worker; Scout Terry Woodley - woodworker; Scout Ricky Fort - woodworker; Michael Labaron - swimmers.

Scoutmaster Frank Stockwell, the group leader of the Scout Troop, presented Assistant Scoutmaster Jad Poirier with a sheath knife on behalf of himself and the Troop, and warmly commended Bruce Downing on his achievement. Mrs. W. Gordon, the president of the Scout Ladies' Auxiliary, presented Bruce with a Queen's Scout Queen's Scout ring on behalf of the Auxiliary and the First Belleville Group Committee. The ceremony opened with the raising of the "Queen" and closed with the singing of "O Canada" and benediction by the Chaplain.

After everyone had had an opportunity to take pictures the evening was filled with the serving of refreshments by the Auxiliary.

It is hoped in the near future that two more Scouts will have earned their Queen's Scout Badges.

It is also noteworthy that new Queen's Scout, Bruce Downing, has been chosen as the only boy in the Belleville District to represent the Quinte region at the 8th American Jamboree to be held at Valley Forge in July.

Jail Sentences, Stiff Penalties Given Youths

With a stern reminder that his decisions should be taken as a warning against future violence, the magistrate imposed jails terms and stiff penalties on three men — all in their early twenties.

Carl Sinclair, of Tweed, was sentenced to three months in the county jail for assault. Joseph King, also of Tweed, was given two months for resisting arrest and fined $25 and costs on a liquor charge.

A fine of $100 each were imposed against Ross Tyron, of Northbrook, charged with assault, and Bernard Kehoe, of Tweed, arrested for obstruction.

They were charged by police chief Joseph Paquette April 11 — a day in which running fights broke out around the village's main street and on nearby country sideroads.

O.P.P. officers from Madoc were called in at one point to help local police deal with the spate of violence.

'Shotgun Weddings' Doomed To Failure Say Experts

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—A group of British health and social welfare experts met in London today and exchanged some controversial opinions on free love, shotgun marriages and morals in general.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boyd, the senior nursing officer for the London County council, told the Royal Society of Health congress at Torquay that the "moment reason for teen - age marriages in Britain is that the girl is pregnant.

These "shotgun weddings," she said, are doomed to failure and the law should forbid them.

The law should allow the couple to get married only after a given period following the birth of the child—say six months—if they still feel genuinely attracted to each other, thus legitimizing the baby."

URGES LEGAL ABORTION

And, she added, abortion should be legal where the girl does not wish to have the baby.

Dr. Dorothy Rowe, a Scot sight, said he did not think the moral values of the community was a whole had deteriorated but there were new temptations and today's society. The "Achilles heel" of modern civilization, Mr. Sisson is also the chairman of the YMCA physical education committee.

As a result of the banquets being held in the gymnasium Friday and Saturday evenings, all gym activities will be cancelled. The swimming pool, therefore will be the only place of activity although the weight room for those eligible, the basketball courts, the basement recreation room will be available as well as daily.

"In fact, for the last six years we have had imports from Canada of automotive supplies for defence purposes have averaged less than $1,000,000 a year."

In addition, any U.S. imports of Canadian automotive parts for defence purposes had been offset by U.S. automotive defence supplies to Canada.

"Within the last few weeks, for example, our defence exports have been increased as a result of a decision by the Canadian government to purchase 150 armored personnel carrier and to replace with the U.S.-produced M-113. Canada has already placed an order in the U.S. for $16,000,000 worth of M-113s and further orders are expected later."

While some individual U.S. companies might lose out from time to time in competition with Canadian imports, the U.S. companies are obtaining equivalent defence business from Canada, and an overall long-term balance in reciprocal procurement is being maintained between the two countries."

"We believe the net effect is beneficial to the best interests of the U.S. and that continuation of the present policy is clearly indicated," the letter says.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are intrigued by evidence the Soviet Union now would like the United States to give her a hand in Moscow's struggle with Red China.

The view seems to be, on the face of it, what the Russians are aiming at with their lecture to the American press Thursday about printing Communist Chinese charges against Soviet Communism.

Beneath the surface, however, the Russians actually appear to be trying to use their dispute with the Chinese in an effort to wring concessions from the U.S. in fields of disarmament, nuclear arms for NATO or the future of Germany and Berlin.

It is an interesting twist on what U.S. specialists consider one of the most important situations in the world today — the Communist unity-wrecking fight between Moscow and Peking.

The sheer fact the Russians would deal with the situation in such a way as to suggest a greater community of interest with the U.S. than with the Chinese is an indication of how far Premier Nikita Khrushchov and his advisers think the situation has gone.

Pravda published an article Thursday criticizing U.S. newspapers for printing what the paper called "rude, gross, anti-Soviet inventions" of the Chinese. The Chinese Communist party paper said one effect is to perpetuate the "myth about the aggressive nature of the Soviets."

U.S. experts said the Soviet purpose in publishing the story was not clearly developed but it had been brought out in a Moscow broadcast to North America 12 days ago.

This developed two themes: That Soviet Communists are working for world peace and deserve U.S. support for their efforts, and that the Russians disagree with the Communist views of "such men as Senator Goldwater and members of the John Birch Society."

The broadcast claimed the Soviet government under Khrushchov has always worked for peace even to the extent of denying vital weapons to its allies.

The broadcast said:

"When this country developed nuclear weapons, it was asked for some. The Soviet Union refused. It believed such weapons would only add confusion."

Then came the point of the argument. Boiled down, it is: Khrushchov refused nuclear weapons to Red China the United States should be willing to refuse them to West Germany. This in turn is a specific argument against the current U.S. - backed proposal for a NATO nuclear missile fleet that would include West Germany.

The Russians then apparently hoped to drive home their case with another blast at Peking over their denunciation of the Chinese insistence for militant Communist revolution "kills the myth that communism is aggressive." At the same time they implied the U.S. is refusing to make concessions on NATO disarmament or the division of Berlin, thus missing a big opportunity to nail down world peace.

Saying the limited nuclear test-ban treaty last year was a first step toward better east-west relations, the broadcast hammered this point:

"Why is it that the United States and its allies have no wish to go further?"

Doctor's Car Badly Damaged On Highway 401

A doctor, who told police he attempted to pass a tractor on Highway 401, near Brighton today, escaped injury when, instead his car came into collision with two transports.

Police said Dr. Andrew John of Hearst, was heading west behind the trucks when he decided to pass them, about three miles east of Belleville.

Simultaneously, the second truck pulled onto the passing lane and, the doctor drove his car onto the median.

Police say the automobile swerved back on the roadway, struck the passing transport, but the car was hit broadside by the first truck.

Work of Parks Board in Year Is Outlined

TRENTON — In a report read to the Trenton Board of Parks' Management, Wednesday night, board secretary Miss Marion Baker, outlined the board's accomplishments during the 1963 year. The report will be given to town council.

During the year, maintenance of all parks was carried out by the parks' garden crew, hired by the board, Bart Boers.

A sidewalk was installed in Champlain Park, doing away with an unsightly grassless path and providing pre-school-ers with a safe roadway on which to ride their tricycles.

In the library area, a curb was installed and the underground sprinkling system, which serves this area, the Bayshore Park and Fraser Park, re-designed to permit an extension to the library to be built.

The decorative washroom at Hanna Park was built last year, although vandalism in and around this building left the parks' board members wondering if the game was worth the candle when it came to trying to please the public.

The Bayshore parking roads were gravelled and in this park and in the east Trenton McNichol St. was levelling and carried out.

One hundred shade trees were planted on the town boulevards, and lights were installed in the parking lot on the mountain.

Skating rink lights were installed in the park used for this purpose and the board bought flooding hoses for the rinks.

An attendant, Mr. Humphries, was hired to look after the washrooms, who is missing a big opportunity to nail down world peace.

Saying the limited nuclear test-ban treaty last year was a first step toward better east-west relations, the broadcast hammered this point:

"Why is it that the United States and its allies have no wish to go further?"

OPINIONS DIFFER

The broadcast said Western opinion is divided with some "Western politicans" calling for "crystallization of the cold war dogma", while others would like to intensify the cold war. It added:

"One thing they (the others) see in the argument of (Soviet Communists) with Chinese leaders is a chance to turn it to their own anti-Communist ends.

"Western countries will be making a great mistake if they let themselves be used for such men. They will lose a good opportunity to reach agreement with the Soviet Union and its friends for common peace action."

Making the presentations was charter member, John Saylor who also has a 12-year perfect attendance record.

Charter president, Gordon Davis spoke to the members briefly. Mr. Davis said "the heart was still in Kiwanis," even though his official duties as welfare administrator keep him from attending most meetings.

Past presidents Howard Aziz, (1962) and Carl Weese, (1963) were presented with inscribed plaques for "outstanding service" to the club by Mr. Davis.

A new member, John Gimpie was introduced to the club by Cpl. Jim Johnson and inducted into the club by past lieutenant governor Al Weaver. One other lieutenant governor has come out of Trenton club, E. M. (Ted) Parker, Jr.

The guest speaker, Lloyd Starnaman of Kingston, general manager for Hiram Walker Company in this district, was introduced by past president D. R. "Nick" Fraser.

Mr. Starnaman, who is a Lion from Kingston with a nine-year perfect attendance record at his club, showed the members a colored film, "Secret Cargo," the story of the search for underwater treasure.

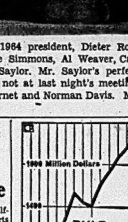
Older Children Using Parks For Golf Course

TRENTON — As the golfing season approaches, reports have been coming in to the Trenton Parks' Board that "older children" have been seen swinging away at "real golf balls," in Cottrell Park.

The parks' board members have no objections to the teen-agers improving their strokes but will they please do it somewhere else?

Small children are playing on swings in the park, and the "swinging junior golfers are liable to find themselves involved with the law if they continue their practice sessions in this park.

COMPLAINTS MADE



Complaints have been relayed to Trenton Parks' Board members from Champlain Heights residents that high school students are spending their noon hours picnicking in Champlain Park. Lunch bags, waxed paper and such things as banana peels have been left in their wake. High school principal John Garrett will be acquainted with the residents' complaints.

Trenton Dispute Brings Change In Labor Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Amendments to the Ontario Labor Relations Act have been announced by Labor Minister Rowntree.

They were given first reading in the legislature Wednesday. One change would speed up the provision of government conciliation services in contract disputes by granting the minister power to distribute the services, now exercised by the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

Another proposal protects the minister and department officials, who may intervene in disputes, from being called as witnesses in OLRB cases. No section of the act provides for this protection.

The recommendation derived from efforts last year to subpoena the minister at a witness in the Trenton Memorial Hospital dispute, which he attempted to settle, before the OLRB.

May Look Into Legitimacy Of Private Schools Offering Cut to Senior Matriculation

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Davis indicated Thursday the government may look into the legitimacy of private schools offering short-cuts to senior matriculation.

Mr. Davis, replying to questions in the legislature, said he knows personally of two or three persons who had been misled by advertisements of correspondence schools. But the department of education had nothing to do with the policing or regulation of such schools.

"Perhaps it is an area that we should take some look at," he told Robert Nixon (L—Brant).

A. B. R. Lawrence (PC—Russell) suggested that Ontario establish a system of community colleges to provide up to three years of education beyond Grade 12.

He told the legislature such colleges would help solve the problem of finding room for students in university and could be used for more technical, vocational and industrial skills.

Education Minister Davis made no comment in the legislature but said later he had been to California and Florida to investigate similar systems in those states.

WANTS DEPARTMENT

Mr. Lawrence said the government should establish a department of senior education to handle the proposed new colleges.

Their courses would provide Grade 13, and in some cases up to second-year university equivalent, for students who wanted to continue on in university. Also included would be commercial, vocational, industrial, technical and home economics training and general liberal arts courses.

Mr. Davis said that a special committee is considering the idea of doing away with present once-wide departmental examinations for Grade 13 students, except for those applying for scholarships.

Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) said the majority of students could either pass into university or not on the strength of their year's work and examinations set by individual schools.

Stephen Lewis (NDP — Toronto Scarborough West) said the Ontario Royal Commission on Education in Toronto is dominated by an anti-intellectual atmosphere and a spirit of "paternalistic knuckle-rapping."

Teacher training in Ontario is hostile to research and is overly preoccupied with methods rather than the content of what is being taught.

WANTS NEW PLAN

He maintained teacher training should be largely taken out of university in a defined post-graduate faculty, rather than an isolated unity of the department of education.

"The OCE building is a study in depression," he said. "It is bleak, over-crowded, desolate and cell-like. The student's greatest instinct is flight."

"There has been a change," Education Minister Davis interjected.

Too Many Fish

It so happens that we heard a lecture on the same subject on Sunday, from a commercial fisherman and tourist camp operator.

Both lectures were basically interested in the same thing, the proper utilization of our fish resources and the differences between the commercial and game species.

There though, they went their separate ways. On a beautiful spring afternoon, looking out over the waters of West Lake, our lecturer, aided, abetted and interrupted by his wife, expounded on the mental deficiencies of some of Mr. Christie's colleagues in the Department of Lands and Forests.

His main complaint was the earlier opening of the pickerel season in certain Quinte waters, including West Lake. He contended in a classic pincer movement against this decision, encircled the advocates of this policy and pounded them to pieces, hammering at them both as a commercial fisherman and as a tourist operator concerned with providing his customers with good sport fishing.

As a commercial fisherman, he was bemoaning the fact that he would have to lift his hoop nets just as the sunfish and perch were starting to move under the influence of the warming spring sun. Not only would this deprive him of considerable revenue, but, it would also prevent him from thinning the coarse fish in the lake, he pointed out, with an abundance of coarse fish, he maintained, provided such a constant banquet for the lake's big pike and pickerel that sport fishermen, when they moved in on May 1, would find their quarry fed and satisfied. This year, he said, he had seen more big pike and pickerel than ever before. This, he said, was because they were not being caught by game fishermen. What was needed, he argued, was something to make it worth the while for commercial fishermen to take sunfish and other coarse fish below commercial size, so that the pike and pickerel would have to work harder for their dinners, dinner and supper and between-meal snacks, thereby making them more likely to snap at the sport fisherman's lure.

This argument sounds rather familiar—we seem to have heard or read of similar suggestions from personnel of the Department—but if this is true the Department has done nothing to encourage the practice of what it preaches. Indeed, the earlier opening date, set at May 15—has had the opposite effect. The commercial fisherman must lift their nets just at the time when their take of coarse fish would be heavy—not because they are required by law to do so but because some sport fishermen, detesting nets, take an axe to them.

At the very least, one would think that the powers that be should provide commercial fishermen with protection, so that they can exercise the privilege of fishing for which they pay substantial licence fees.

Name to Conjure With

Samarkand! What a name to conjure with. It belongs with Cathay and the times of Marco Polo.

But Cathay has disappeared into the mists of the past, while Samarkand is still with us. Where Genghis Khan once ruled, commissars now hold sway.

What a strange quirk of fate that Samarkand should have survived all these centuries of history without any mountain moving against it until this day, when man has at last achieved the power to rescue the ancient city from what, in any earlier age, would have been certain destruction.

While the communists blast away at the landslide which has dammed a river and is storing up tons of water to threaten the old Mongol capital a hundred miles away, the ghost of Genghis Khan must be musing about the new worlds his Golden Horde could have conquered, had it possessed such power.

Powerful

The Associated Press reports that a plant at Newport, Indiana, is working night and day turning out a nerve gas which is odorless, virtually invisible and so deadly that a drop can kill.

The gas attacks a body substance which transmits nerve signals to muscles telling them to expand. When this substance is rendered ineffective, muscles continue to constrict and the body strangles its own vital organs.

Just reading about it chokes us up.

Strictly Personal
Vast Sums Are Being Donated For Research

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Recently I was in Bombay, Dr. Alan Gregg saw a placard on a wall, proclaiming: "If fast cheetah power, mais pas pour trouver ce qu'on cherche. Pour trouver il faut search to find, but not to find what you are searching for."

Our religion today in the modern world has become Research. Most of us seem to believe that if we can go out, as a nation, and buy the discoveries we want. We fail to understand the nature of discovery, and the purpose of research.

The French maxim reminds us that the best, and most basic, research is that which does not know precisely what it will find. The beneficent effects of penicillin were discovered by Fleming as a mere accident in a quest for something else. The first tranquillizing drugs were made to relieve lower back pain — and only later did it learned that they were more effective for diminishing anxiety.

The first sulfa drugs were synthesized a generation before they were put to no successful use in years later — for other kinds of research into something which would have given them practical application.

It is not unlikely that a breakthrough on cancer will come not from any of the current projects being undertaken to this disease, but from some collateral research on another disease, or on a totally different problem entirely. All the scientific disciplines overlap to some extent; and often a discovery in one area cannot go forward until the way has been cleared by another. Sometimes we have to wait for the microscope.

You can't have imagined that Einstein, scribbling his equations on time and space in an obscure patent office in Berne in 1905, would have provided the basic theorem for releasing atomic energy? He was not trying to; he had no laboratory, he dealt with nothing physical or tangible, and he had no idea what the conception of where his speculations were leading.

In his brilliant and thoughtful collection of medical papers, Sir William Osler, one of the great physicians of the early 20th, quoted the remark Cromwell gave to Belleview: "No one rides so high as he who knows not whither he is going." This is almost the motto of the basic researcher—the only kind of those who think they know where they are going usually come to a dead end.

We are giving vast sums, both of government and private, for research in many areas today. It is worth remembering that no sum can ever guarantee success, that the modesty of investigators must be matched by our own modesty of expectations and humility toward the future.

Hard to Tell
Good From Bad

Washington Post

It is becoming increasingly more troublesome to tell the good guys from the bad guys. Take the matter of worker freedom, supposedly one of the key areas of difference between the Western democracies and the countries under communism. As the accepted view holds, the former boast of free trade unions, with the right to bargain and strike, while the latter have captive unions, under the state thumb.

Yet last year the United States imposed compulsory bargaining on the railroads, the first such action in peacetime, and Canada put four maritime unions under government trusteeship. And now Communist Yugoslavia is allowing certain kinds of worker strikes, known euphemistically as "stoppage of work." Their limits were indicated by the official who said they were "neither politically motivated nor of a hostile nature" but were rather sparked by low or withheld wages inadequately explained to the workers. All the same, certain strikes now have the sanction of a Communist state.

No single event such as compulsory arbitration for American railroads or strikes by Yugoslav workers means the end of the system in which these things take place. They come a point, however, where the easy old associations of free-democratic and unfree-Communist are misleading, if not irrelevant. This is particularly so in the case of Yugoslavia, whose liberalization has been aided by enlightened American support.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Robbers broke and entered the Brewers' Warehouse on Front Street and stole nearly $1200 from the office safe, over the weekend. Entrance was gained through a roof ventilator, that gave the marauders access to the rear part of the building where the safe was located. Mr. Thomas Harris, proprietor of the warehouse, told police today that he estimated at nearly $1,200 which consisted of Saturday's receipts. The Brewers' Warehouse safe was situated along the south wall of the office within a foot or two of the refrigerator. The robbers battered the safe into the cooler, where they demolished the door of the safe in a sound proof room. "They could have battered away there for hours and no person could have heard them through the thick insulation," the police investigating the robbery.

Although ten years of age seems like quite a tender age to be engaged a motor car, Provincial police are apprehended a ten-year-old lad driving an automobile on Saturday, but the machine had been stolen by the sub-teen aged lad. Bruce Sherman, third concession of Tyendinaga township, reported his 1928 model Chevrolet sedan stolen early Saturday. Late Saturday night Provincial police apprehended the ten-year-old youth, driving the above car near Shannonville.

Taste Better, Views Uglier

Christian Science Monitor

The United States is growing ugly while the taste of Americans is growing better. A rash generalization, perhaps, but it comes to mind when one drives through the garish center of a suburban highway — and drops in on a young couple with a house or apartment decorated by themselves.

Now the paradox has been dramatized by connecting the two men who would go along with Thoreau when he says, "The perception of beauty is a moral test."

"In 50 years — we do everything rapidly — we've converted this country from one of the most beautiful on earth to one of the ugliest," said architect Edward Durell Stone. Lamenting the disappearing forests and the "jerry - built dinners," he said that "we can afford everything but beauty."

At almost the same time, designer Raymond F. Loewy said that, despite all the appearance of bad taste, there is less to criticize today than there ever was. The Americans are going through a revolution of good taste: "If you want a cross section of good taste, just glance at a mail-order catalogue from a good department store. Even the packaging looks good enough to frame."

Mr. Loewy is concerned with, among bigger things, the sharing of tooth - paste tubes and milk bottles. People may not set them on the mantel, but they contribute to a country's atmosphere.

Perhaps a nation that becomes used to good design in small matters will eventually resist the uglification of its surroundings. Mr. Stone noted "significant straws in the wind that we may be on the eve of a spiritual and artistic renaissance." It is "just a matter of time" to share and provide beauty to feed men's souls as it is to give food and shelter to care for their bodies."

We agree, but we wouldn't want our renaissance to be at the expense of a widening circle of the poor, with more and more beauty available to fewer and fewer. Thoreau combined enduring truth with relative cold comfort when he said, the sentire sun is reflected from the windows of the almshouse as brightly as from the rich man's abode."

Experience

Two Flashes From Ethiopia

Detroit Free Press

We live in an age of practically instantaneous world communication, and a good thing it is. If it took more than a moment to get the news from remote localities nobody could be abreast of what's going on.

Take the squabble between Somalia and Ethiopia, a couple of the African mercurials.

The other night we got through our City and State editions with the headline "Border Warfare Halts in Africa." Its first paragraph ran "Ethiopia and Somalia agreed [that] day to enforce a cease-fire during their disputed frontier and pull back their troops 10 to 15 miles by April 6."

But for the Metro Final and Sports the lead for "Somalia-Ethiopian Fighting Renewed," and the opening paragraph said, "Thousands of Somalia soldiers and tribesmen, supported by tanks and heavy weapons, Monday launched surprise attacks on four disputed border points."

It used to be that you could get through a whole day's press run without an international situation developing around itself. In fact once upon a time you could count on either peace or war lasting at least a week's duration—or nearly that much.

Now, among many governments, a given state of affairs can be considered static if it last for an hour.

So isn't it lucky that we have all these electronic marvels that let us know about things the instant they happen—or it is?

In cases such as that of Somalia and Ethiopia, does it really matter? Maybe a month-end report on many of those sovereignties would serve better than the daily newspaper.

You could dismiss the case of many a country with one short startling announcement, for instance: "Cease-five five days. Fighting with neighbors 26 days. American property seized two days. Government overthrown by junta once. Reds offer aid. Ten days. United States offers aid 31 days. Times indicate total minutes and hours, not necessarily consecutive periods."

Chaplin Rich And Sombre

Cape Breton Post

Charlie Chaplin, whose film impersonation of the little tramp made him fame, fortune and the gratitude of delighted millions, now wonders what has become of the little tramp himself.

The query should be addressed not to us but to himself, for we have long been becoming very rich account for dancing the role of the little fellow who blows kisses away the cares of the world?

Chaplin was in a serious mood when we interviewed him recently while on a fishing holiday in County Kerry, Ireland. In the misty background were delicately blue mountains. The scene might have been Switzerland but had the dreamlike quality that makes Ireland seem distant from other lands.

"A sombre, brooding air clings to the world," he said, "and it is as if we are losing the gift of laughter. Mankind has allowed itself to be robbed of its humor. As a result it is looking straight into the face of disaster." The Cape Breton Post of course left was "to sit down at the conference table and discuss common sense."

There you have it: The man who once was content to make people smile by exercising satiry talent was dedicated to making people forget their troubles, has himself subsided into solemnity.

To Your Good Health
To Stop Swallowing Air Don't 'Slurp-Slurp' Food

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Doctors at a clinic say I have stomach air bubbles from swallowing air while eating. They gave me a prescription but it helps very little.

Do you think there is any such ailment? And if so, what's your way of relief? I have had stomach distress for 40 years. — C. H.

Certainly there can be air bubbles in the stomachs of adults as well as babies. That's why we burp babies after feeding, so the bubbles won't give them colic, or stomach distress.

It's easy to burp babies. There isn't much you can do for adults except teach them not to swallow air.

Medication can't do very much, as you have found out. The best answer is to stop swallowing air.

But that isn't easy, either, because air-swallowers don't realize that they are doing it, and most of them are unwilling to accept the evidence.

When do you do this air-swallowing? Mainly while eating and drinking, just as a baby does while feeding from a bottle! The baby sucks and gets a mouthful of milk, mixed with bubbles and swallows. The bubbles go along, too.

Some air-swallowers sort of slurp-slurp their food, eat, drink and swallow. Others don't noticeably do that, but get the same bad results without any sound effects.

The real answer is to eat more slowly, whether you do it or don't eat (or drink) noisily. Take smaller bits of food, smaller sips of liquid. Learn to slow down. This won't be easy, because you have spent your lifetime so far gulping rapidly.

When you drink, take the liquid in your mouth and instead of swallowing immediately, let it a split second and then let it slide down easily. Never swallow until you have chewed the mouth again. This is not because the open mouth lets more air get into the mouth. That's really, isn't what matters.

What does matter is that if you will take the split second to make sure that your mouth is closed, you'll slow down your "swallow" down a bit.

If you can follow these simple instructions for a week, you will find that the air bubbles are subsiding. If you can follow them for a month, consistently, you will be on the way to a new swallowing habit.

Frankly, I doubt if, in the beginning, you can do it that consistently. You can do it while you are thinking about it, but you'll get your mind fixed on something or other of interest, and forget the rules, at first, and slide back into the old habit.

But if you keep trying, pretty soon you'll have a new habit established, and start getting rid of your stomach distress of 40 years.

Dear Dr. Molner: I'd like your booklet on pinworms, and enclose the necessary 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope. My children and I are both. I've tried these remedies over two or three months. We had a prescription from the doctor but it was quite expensive so I have been using pinworm pills. Could these harm us? — Mr. J. B.

In my opinion, anything strong enough to do a dependable job on pinworms is too strong to use unless you know exactly how much to give.

But — and the booklet will explain all about this — no treatment, however successful, will prevent you from getting pinworms again. So have your doctor treat all of you again, and then use the various methods outlined to prevent getting pinworms. You can get rid of pinworms, but you have to understand how they spread. In a case like this where the pinworms recur there must be a source that is not being treated. It may be outside your family.

Russia Now Conservative

Montreal Gazette

The split between Russian and Chinese Communism is one of the major events of recent history. It means that within the world, of Communism, nationalism has triumphed over internationalism, and that both Russians and Chinese have chosen to put their national interests first, their dedication to a common cause second.

Although both countries are hostile to Western liberty, the Soviet Union has become the lesser danger. They have become, for the time at least, a conservative force in world affairs. They are seeking to preserve as much of the status quo as they can, to consolidate their position relative to the dynamic West and the revolutionary East.

The Soviet Union will not risk a nuclear conflict for the sake of a local adventure. This was shown by the Cuban crisis. They have too much to preserve, in industry and resources, a large sphere of influence, an educated population and a strong national interest system. It has taken the Russians a generation 40 years to reach their present position. They will not sacrifice it for impulsive gestures.

The Russian political system could conceivably produce a madman. Hitler was almost mad things. But the present Soviet Union appears to be aggressive if little risk is involved, are too realistic to endanger their position with a fanatic goal. If they have any real hopes of winning world domination it is through economic power, not through nuclear catastrophe.

The Chinese position is different. The government in Peking does not have a sea of economic advances have been few. It will need decades to achieve the industrialization society. The Peking regime is based on the slow pace of economic development of Russian selfishness is providing little time and scornful of Soviet timidity.

China today is a mixture of pride and nonsense. And of weakness and backwardness of power intensifies the pride and aggressiveness of the latter. If they can successfully promote international crises abroad they can humiliate the Russians as the Russians have humiliated them in domestic matters. The Chinese have no wish to preserve the status quo, for it is only by change that they can achieve the power they seek.

In spite of their common ideology, Russia and China are in conflict because they want different interests. Russia is already in the seats of power, as are the nations of the Western world. The Chinese are knocking at the door and demanding entrance. If they had been prepared to wait the So. Viet Union might have helped them to enter. But by displaying their pride and ambition too soon they have put Russia on guard.

The Russian attitude to China today, is very much what the Western attitude was yesterday. They see a dangerous and ambitious nation trying to extend its power. And the Soviet Union is just as interested in preventing this as are the nations of the West.

Cured Patients Homeless, Stay In Hospitals

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Dymond said in the legislature Thursday the overcrowding at the Ontario Hospital in Toronto is due to the residence there of 34 persons who are no longer patients but have no homes of their own.

He said about 15 per cent of residents of Ontario hospitals throughout the province are well enough to go home, but have no homes to go to.

There is a bill before the legislature to end this accommodation problem by setting up homes outside the hospitals.

Ah Yes! We Remember It Well

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Memory is the only kind of an afterlife we know on earth.

Through the magic of remembrance the past can be born and reborn as often as we like.

There's no doubt that you've been through quite a few cycles of sunshine and storm if you can remember when—

Many a young man aspired to own his own livery stable, because after all what other business offered a more secure future?

A fellow who preferred cigarettes to chewing tobacco or cigars was a sissy.

The average pawn shop displayed brass knuckles in its window.

A working man thought he had a swell job if he only had to put in half a day on Saturday.

Getting a baby sitter was no big worry, because practically every family had a grandpa, a grandma or an unmarried uncle or aunt living with them.

HAD MORE FUN

People had more fun entertaining each other than they now do watching and listening to million-dollar-a-year performers on television. There wasn't enough leisure to be bored.

The first piece of jewelry you ever gave a girl was one you bought at the five-and-ten cent store—and the purchase left you broke for a week.

A prize cake lady going to an ice cream social never felt properly dressed unless she had on at least three petticoats — and rustled as she walked.

These were among the most burning moral issues: (1) Should women bob their hair, and (2) Should they smoke in public?

William S. Hart became Hollywood's most famous cowboy without being able to play the guitar or sing a note.

There were more families that owned two horses than owned two cars.

Those were the days. Remember?

GIVE LOW AVERAGE

LONDON (CP)—The average age for unmarried mothers in Salvation Army homes throughout Canada is 13, Lieutenant-Commissioner Mrs. Thomas Laurie of Toronto told some 300 delegates from 14 home league corps in the army's western Ontario division Thursday. She told the division's annual rally: "In our day and age we didn't think such a thing possible. They are not only poor girls but from wealthy homes also."

about peace in Cyprus.

He told the Commons that under terms of the United Nations Security Council resolution on Cyprus the secretary - general has authority to implement the plan immediately.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Mr. Martin became involved in a brief exchange in which Mr. Diefenbaker argued that the secretary-general's recommendation that civilians be disarmed was the course the opposition leader had been pressing on the government in recent days.

Mr. Martin told New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas that the plan's six points "do bear the endorsement of the Canadian government."

The points "represent substantially" the points discussed among the UN peace - keeping force members and the secretary - general since new outbreaks on the troubled island, he said.

Mr. Douglas renewed pressure that the directives given the UN force be made public but Mr. Martin said it is not the intention to do so. The instructions given the force had already been made public in part.

Naturalists Hold Meeting

The April meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists was held Monday evening, at the Entomological Building, Dundas Street. There was a good turn out. Miss Joy Nicholls occupied the chair. Arrangements were made for a May outing at Presqu'ile.

Mr. Irwin Knight then gave a splendid report of the annual meeting of the Federation in Hamilton, in the photographic section Mr. Harold Codrington, a member of the local club, was second prize.

Three films, Treasures of the Earth, Wilderness Treasures and the Flower and the Hive were shown. The first showed the minerals contained in the earth's crust and the formation of coal. The wilderness holds many treasures and these were shown in the second film. In the third, bees were shown at work.

This was the last indoor meeting of the club until the fall.

Ousted Russian Reaches Paris

Tarasov, 36, who works for the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, had his visa cancelled Tuesday after Canadian authorities said he was caught trying to get a federal civil servant to give him details of undisclosed industrial processes.

Airline officials in Paris said they booked passages for Moscow for Tarasov, his wife and daughter, on a flight leaving here at noon Saturday.

Tarasov left Canada with a weak smile and a half-hearted wave as he boarded a regularly-scheduled Air France jetliner for Paris at Montreal's Dorval International Airport. He was to transfer to a Russian jet in Paris for the trip to Moscow.

SEES ACCEPTANCE

TORONTO (CP) — John T. Monkhouse, executive secretary of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, says Canadian milk producers will generally accept the federal government's dairy policy for 1964. Agriculture Minister Hays told the Commons Wednesday the government will continue to pay farmers—as it has since 1958—a floor price of 66 cents a pound for top grades of butter and shift the basis of its cheese support price of 32½ cents a pound.

Lord Thomson Turns Weeklies Into Dailies

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — After more than a decade in Britain, Baron Thomson of Fleet is all set to start applying his favorite technique to British newspapers.

His pet project is to turn weeklies into dailies, following his Canadian practice and the announcement Wednesday that he is to start an evening paper in the bustling Berkshire community of Reading may mark the start of a chain.

"I've had this idea in mind ever since I came to Britain," Lord Thomson said in an interview. "We've been so busy that this is my first chance to follow it up."

He said there is no difference between Britain and Canada—the "operation" here is much bigger because of larger populations in main centres. Reading, a thriving industrial city, has a population of about 130,000 and the publisher sees it going up to 200,000 in a decade or so.

In Canada, Lord Thomson turned nine weekly papers into dailies—in the Ontario centres of Timmins, Kirkland Lake, Barrie, Oakville, Orillia and Pembroke, and in Kamloops, Kelowna and Penticton, all in British Columbia.

SAME PATTERN LIKELY

Those who know Thomson predict that he will follow the Canadian pattern in a dozen or so British towns. Britain's press generally is more "national" than in Canada, with daily papers concentred in big centres and circulating widely.

The big emphasis in any new Thomson dailies will be on local news.

"I propose to follow our Canadian practice to a considerable extent. Our solid strength will reside in local news. Brought to the people every day, news of the community will be as important as it is in Canada."

Thomson forecast an initial circulation of 50,000, "fairly large by Canadian standards, when the Reading paper starts in about a year.

The paper will start from scratch, with new buildings and equipment including the web offset method of printing, which affords scope for color.

CALLED FOR SURVEY

Before deciding to launch the daily, Thomson called for a thorough survey by his marketing and research organization, which spends nearly $1,000,000 a year and which he regards as the best of its kind in the world.

Interviewed in his Rolls-Royce between official engagements and a luncheon engagement—the only time he could spare a moment—Thomson was in his usual ebullient form as he ranged over latest developments in a constantly-growing empire spreading from Barrie to Bangkok.

"Things are really moving all the time," he said delightedly, discussing plans for a "very large business empire" in India, with headquarters in New Delhi, and of plans for developments in Pakistan.

A Thomson financial report, to be issued this week, will show a profit for the 1963 calendar year of about $16,000,000. This does not include North America.

Judy LaMarsh Away From Desk a Week

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, undergoing hospital treatment here for a back ailment, is expected to be away from her desk for at least another week, it was reported Thursday night.

Miss LaMarsh, 39, had been in pain for two weeks when she entered the Civic Hospital on Wednesday for observation and treatment.

Officials said Thursday night the exact nature of the ailment still was not known.

Earlier Thursday, speaker Alan Macnaughton intervened as the Opposition sought to learn from Prime Minister Pearson in the Commons whether Miss LaMarsh had offered her resignation.

No person close to the minister later denied that she had offered her resignation, or had even thought of resigning.

RETRIEVED COINS

An 11-year-old boy in hospital in 1958 reported extracting 424 coins by accident at about 25 and 27 pieces of wire from the stomach of a 54-year-old man.

tario Police Commission to give testimony.

"That was not in the section," he said, "and yet it was broadcast and rebroadcast, repeated and repeated, without any honorable member taking the trouble to deny it."

"I say it was not there, and I say I heard no one deny it."

(At a press conference March 19 after Bill 99 had been introduced in the legislature, Mr. Cass told reporters that witnesses appearing before the commission would not have the benefit of counsel.

(However, on March 23, Premier Robarts said in the legislature he had been told by his legal advisers that in their opinion the section would not prohibit the right of the witness to counsel.

(When the bill was discussed in the legal bills committee Tuesday, Allan Lawrence, Conservative member of the legislature for Toronto St. George, pointed out that witnesses are not entitled to counsel in the civil courts of Ontario.)

GUARANTEED RIGHTS

Mr. Wishart also told the legislature that Section 14 guaranteed the protection of witnesses through other legal safeguards.

"The rights of the witness to habeas corpus and certiorari were not taken away," he said, "and I heard no one take the trouble to deny it."

Mr. Wishart's statement did little to clarify the muggery of how and why the bill was approved for introduction, and why Premier Robarts gave it a mild defence in the legislature only hours before he deleted Section 14.

(In his statement March 23, Mr. Robarts also mentioned certiorari and habeas corpus, besides making reference to the rights of witness to legal counsel. He said:

("I have had further consultations with the law officers of the Crown and they have reaffirmed to me that at the time this legislation was drawn it was their opinion that it did not prohibit the right to counsel, that it did not interfere with the individual's rights to habeas corpus, certiorari and the other prerogative writs . . ."

(Mr. Robarts made this statement in the afternoon. In the evening, he agreed to a New Democratic motion to delete Section 14 from Bill 99. He then read Mr. Cass's letter of resignation.)

GIVES REASON

Mr. Wishart, appointed to succeed Mr. Cass March 25, said he was making his statement about Section 14 "to correct a wrongful impression which went abroad and created a great fear and apprehension in the mind of the public."

One of the things about Section 14 played up by news media was the reference in it to secret hearings, Mr. Wishart said. The police commission would have the right to force witnesses to testify in camera, under threat of imprisonment.

"This was one of the great things which was played up—the 'in camera,' the 'secret hearing,' the 'star chamber'."

"There was an impression abroad across the country that one would almost think that the witnesses could be brought in chains and pulled up by their thumbs and tortured to give evidence."

Mr. Wishart added it should be said now "that this was just so fantastic that it was entirely unbelievable that this could happen."

(In his comments, Mr. Wishart made reference to the portion of Section 14 which would have empowered the police commission to imprison a reluctant witness for eight days at a time, indefinitely, until he relented and agreed to testify.)

The attorney-general said it was feared such as he had referred to, "built up by various means," which the government had attempted to allay by introducing a substitute for Section 14 that spelled out individual rights.

"It became necessary, and I think, very advisable to spell out the rights which the witness would have and always enjoy, many of which he enjoyed under the Section (14) as it stood."

REPORTS DOCTOR LOSS

LONDON (CP) — Dr. John Seale of Surrey says in an article in the British Medical Journal that he estimates nearly 4,000 United Kingdom doctors left the country during the 10 years up to 1963. His figures indicate more went to Canada than to any other country. He estimates 161 British and 73 Irish doctors went to Canada in 1963 and 95 British and eight Irish the year before.

Nurses Seek Compulsory Arbitration

TORONTO (CP) — A resolution seeking compulsory arbitration for nurses was presented Thursday at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

The resolution by the 32,000-member RNAO calls for legislation to give nurses the right to bargain collectively with their employers and to compel employers to bargain with them.

In the case of a deadlock, the parties would be bound to accept the decision of a mediator, the resolution states.

Appointed members among the 3,000 delegates attending the meeting will vote on the resolution as the conference ends on Saturday.

The resolution recommends that the RNAO be made the bargaining agent for Ontario nurses and it be empowered to launch a public information campaign to tell nurses and the public when employers are imposing unsatisfactory salaries and working conditions on nurses.

Copies of a survey of 500 RNAO members to determine how nurses feel about their profession and about the RNAO brought mixed feelings among the delegates.

CRITICIZE RNAO

The poll disclosed a large number of nurses felt the RNAO does not do enough to raise salaries and improve working conditions. It also disclosed that the staid nurse feels she has no voice in association affairs and that the association is dominated by nursing directors and supervisors.

Ruth Le Roux, chairman of the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses, said that 14,000 Ontario nurses do not belong to the RNAO partly because of their dissatisfaction with it. She said they have not been included in the survey.

Officers elected for the coming year included: Margaret E. Page, Fort William, president.

Ian Hunter, who has completed a 30,000-mile Commonwealth journey, said he detected a "certain resentment" that Britain tend to be patronizing about the attainments of Canada and the other older Dominions whose cultures are close to that of Britain.

journment debates. But a procedural wrangle broke out and ate up all the time alloted for the discussions. The transport minister later read the statement to reporters in his office.

"In the international field, air services provided by Canadian airlines should serve the Canadian interest as a whole; these services should not be competitive or conflicting, but should represent a single integrated plan, which could be achieved by amalgamation, by partnership or by a clear division of fields of operation."

They he announced the domestic policy:

"In the domestic mainline field, while the principle of competition is not rejected, any development of competition should not compromise or seriously injure the economic viability of TCA's mainline domestic operations which represent the essential framework of its network of domestic services.

"In other words, there must not be the kind of competition which would put TCA into the red; and I am sure that competition continues, the Air Transport Board should ensure an opportunity for each to do both lines above this basic minimum."

He went on:

"In formulation of policy based upon the foregoing principles a reasonable role for regional air carriers providing scheduled and regular air services must be established; this role must provide for a relationship between the regional air carriers and TCA (and any other licensed mainline trans-continental carrier) which will give the regional air carriers a reasonable chance to operate without government subsidies."

Negotiations between the two airlines began immediately.

A government source said that the Monday meeting made it clear that if the two airlines failed to work out a plan, the government would impose such a scheme. No time limit was set for this, the source said.

WON'T BE CHANGE

OTTAWA (CP)—There will be no change this year in the amount of duty-free goods Canadian tourists can bring back from the United States, Finance Minister Gordon indicated Thursday. The present limit of $25 worth of duty-free goods every four months — provided Canadians stay in the U.S. at least 48 hours each trip—was imposed during the 1962 exchange crisis.

Postal

free by other departments of government.

Reld Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) said the real deficit occurs from low second-class rates for newspapers and magazines, which were "well able to pay the freight."

He said first-class mail—letters—already yields a profit of $35,000,000.

"We can't understand why the users of first-class mail should bear the load of second-class mail on their backs."

Mr. Scott said the NDP would oppose the increase in local-delivery rates "as vigorously as possible." Several other party members would join the debate later.

One of them, Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur), said, the increase will give Canadians "the wonderful chance to pay to help disseminate Time and Reader's Digest around the country."

REFERS TO FIGURES

He was referring to figures quoted by Rod Webb (PC—Hastings - Frontenac) estimating that the Canadian editions of these two U.S. magazines receive annual postal subsidies through low rates of between $600,000 and $900,000 each.

Mr. Scott said the government was ignoring the recommendation of the Glassco royal commission on government organization—that the postal subsidy to newspapers and periodicals be voted by Parliament instead of carried by other users of the mails.

Mr. Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) said these figures had been supplied by lobbyists for Canadian newspapers such as the Montreal Standard, The Family Herald and the Toronto Star.

The lobbyists were battling to have Liberal backbenchers "put some spine in the government's backbone."

The first-class mail was "the gravy train" of the post office, yet the government was again whacking the newspapers, was helping "the barefoot boys like Roy Thomson, now Baron Thomson of Fleet," and added: "Everybody knows how hard up are the Sifton's."

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said his group was prepared for an extra week-end-down, drag-'em-out fight."

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the rate increase is "an attempt to gouge one part of the people of Canada to subsidize them in keeping with Liberal tradition." He said old age pensioners would be prepared to write a letter to write to a friend on the other side of town, "all to protect the profits of the government who protect it editorially."

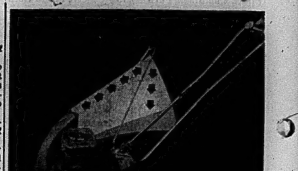
J. J. McBain (PC—Elgin) said local delivery mail should continue to have a preference over inter-city postal rates. The increase would add to the costs for individuals and small businesses.

Both Maurice Cote (SC—Chicoutimi) and Charles - Arthur Gauthier (PC—Roberval) criticized the increase in local delivery rates as a new tax.

The Commons took time out from the postal debate for an hour Thursday to outline the government's plan to have independent commissioners carry out redistribution of Commons constituencies.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamingue) called for the production of preliminary drawings of new constituency boundaries to be prepared by the redistribution commissioner, Nelson Castonguay.

Mr. Pick's motion was talked out by Liberal, NDP and Social Credit members who said it would indirectly put politics into the redistribution issue when Parliament was trying to get it out of politics.



IT'S THIRD INCREASE

During the postal debate, opposition members pointed out the rate increase would be the third in seven months. By cabinet order, rates on registered mail, special delivery, parcel post and "pick-up and householder" advertising mail were boosted to bring in some $8,140,000 in added revenue yearly.

Another change would abolish a special local delivery rate on publications issued less frequently than once a week. Mr. Nicholson said this would result in some copies being charged as much as one-fortieth of a cent each. It would be raised by a minimum rate of one-half cent for each mailing to a separate address.

In the spring Lawn-Boy's grasscatcher lets you tidy up the lawn without tedious raking. In the fall it collects leaves. In the summer, of course, it gathers grass so efficiently the neighbours will think you spent hours raking. The grasscatcher is no trouble to use because it comes on and off in seconds and empties in a shake or two. Even wet grass and leaves can't clog it.

Lawn-Boy's Finger-Tip-Start engine is the easiest to start in the world. Pushing is easy because Lawn-Boy is made from ultra-light magnesium. And, to be easy on the ears, Lawn-Boy is extra quiet. Its muffler is the largest on any mower.

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Real estate transactions are based on an ethical-legal framework designed to protect all parties as simply as possible. Complexities often require professional assistance from lawyers or brokers. One of the most sensitive elements of the real estate transaction is the Agreement of Sale and the validity of the commitment that results. This is illustrated in the following two letters.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am the real estate victim of an unscrupulous Johnny come lately to our town. No one (including my attorney) feels I have any recourse, but since you purport to be a real estate expert, perhaps you can help me fight fire with fire and find a loophole.

For years I held on to a piece of family property — an old mansion on a main street with three acres of ground in what was the fashionable part of town 50 years ago. No one (including me) can use such a house any longer.

I shut it down and it remained vacant for 10 years. Last month this fellow came to my home and offered to buy it at a price that seemed very adequate. I signed an agreement of sale.

A few days ago there was an announcement in the paper that this fellow was tearing down my family mansion and building an apartment house. Even worse, the entire block was rezoned for apartments. He knew about it, although I didn't, and his offer was for less than it should have been. Is there any way you know of that I can turn the tables on this scoundrel? — E. C. T.

Answer: As a "purported" real estate expert, I can tell you that you have a firm and binding agreement. Ignorance is not fraud. That you did not acquaint yourself with all of the facts, or enlist the services of a real estate broker in the area who could have advised you as to trends and fair market value, does not excuse you from the bonds of your commitment.

Apparently, the neighborhood is not all that has changed in the past 50 years. The grandfather who built that house lived in a time when a man's word was his bond. Your signature on an agreement of sale is your equivalent — like it or not.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I need an answer in a hurry. My wife and I are separated (but not divorced) and our home is in both our names. We agreed to sell it some time ago, but nothing definite was set.

Now I was notified she has already signed an agreement of sale for a ridiculously low price and they want me to sign, too. I don't want to sell at that price. Can they go ahead anyway and complete the sale without my consent? — F. L. W.

Answer: When a husband and wife own real estate in most states, their ownership is in the form of "tenants by the entireties"; in other states in the form of ownership in common. In either case the signatures of both are required for a valid agreement. My experience in similar situations indicates that unless you did not sign the Agreement of Sale, the contract is not valid or enforceable.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I don't have a problem, but as a faithful reader of your wonderful column, I would be grateful if you would give me a little information. In a few months, after a long sometimes hard 20 years, we will have paid off our mortgage. Could you explain what procedures must be followed to satisfy our mortgage, including the costs, and whether you recommend we engage an attorney. — R. G. H.

Answer: Shortly after you have made the last payment on your mortgage, an authorized representative of your lending institution will appear at the Recorder of Deeds office in your county and mark the mortgage record as "satisfied." There may be a nominal charge of $5 to $10 but some lending institutions provide this service free. In normal situations the services of an attorney are not required.

Later the bank will send you the mortgage bond and other papers you signed and you will be all set for a "mortgage-burning party."

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We are considering air conditioning our house this summer and have been making inquiries. The salesmen are really anxious to get our business, apparently, and have promised every imaginable benefit from the installation of air conditioning from better health in cleaner drapes. We don't know how much of this is just hot air about cold air. Could you advise us just what are the benefits, if any? — J. H. M.

Answer: A proper air conditioning installation provides three general benefits: (1) It will maintain a comfortable room temperature; (2) It will control the humidity; (3) It will filter and clean the air. So you see, the salesmen's pitch is not too far fetched. There are a wide variety of benefits including cleaner drapes and (especially for the allergy prone) better health.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Helene Curtis Skin Lotion Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration announced Thursday seizure of a quantity of "Helene Curtis magic secret wrinkle smoothing skin lotion" on charges that it is a new drug not covered by an approved application and is being marketed under false claims.

The agency said the product is a drug rather than a cosmetic and moved against it in federal court under provisions of drug regulatory laws.

The FDA announcement said papers were filed in U.S. District Court in Baltimore.

The labelling, the papers said, gives middle-aged women the impression that "this is a newly discovered article produced after years of research which will immediately and dramatically eliminate all her wrinkles. . . ."

The government charged that the product has only a temporary effect on wrinkles, that regular applications do not provide any permanent benefits, that the drug has no astringent action adequate to draw the skin and eradicate wrinkles or provide the other claimed effects, including making the skin youthful again.

Maple Trees Given Pills!

By DON GUY

WEST SPRINGFIELD, N.H. (AP)—Maple trees are taking pills for spring fever these days.

Even as you and I, sugar maples get tired of working when hit by the first warm breezes.

The farmers aren't taking pills. They feel fine. A bumper cash crop of maple syrup seems certain from the annual rite of "sugarin' off" in New England this season.

The pill makes the watery sap flow later in the season assuring a longer "run"—as long as the combination of warm days and snappy nights lasts.

"I'm sure they help," says Kirk Heath. "I tested several hundred trees, marked them with paint. The trees with pills give more sap over a longer season." His sugar house is on land farmed by his family since before the U.S. revolution.

DRYNESS PUZZLES

Farmers always have been puzzled when certain trees hundred trees, marked them state agriculture experts studied the problem. They found that the flow of sap was slowed by the growth of micro-organisms in the wound caused by the drill hole.

The pills act as germicides over the length of the "sugarin' off" season which in New England runs from late February through March and April, depending on the locality.

Any residue of the pill is boiled away in making syrup.

Modern maple farmers such as the 54-year-old Heath have been able to stay in business only by abandoning most of the quaint and traditional ways of harvesting sap.

Manpower costs too much to unload individual buckets from several thousand trees every morning. Heath uses about six miles of plastic tubing to connect 3,000 hillside trees, so that the sap flows downhill to big collecting tanks.

USES RADIO

Certain trees flow earlier from parts of the hillside first, warmed by the morning sun. Heath uses a walkie-talkie radio to talk to his men in the woods and route the flow of sap downhill like a freight dispatcher.

The Indians taught the settlers how to make maple syrup. Despite all the modern paraphernalia the system essentially is the same today. You boil and boil and boil until 35 to 50 gallons of watery sap becomes a gallon of delicious syrup worth $7 to $10.

You never forget the fragrance of a sugar house "boiling off" with clouds of steam escaping through vents in the roof.

Heath expects to make about 1,000 gallons this season and the demand for good syrup always exceeds the supply.

SWALLOWED KEY

LONDON (CP) — A motorist taken to court for not paying the excess charge when his parking meter ran out claimed that it "went berserk" when he touched it. It touched the meter slot with my ignition key and it swallowed the key." The magistrate, dismissing the charge, said: "You were lucky it did not swallow you."

SEEK ORGAN MONEY

RCHESTER, England (CP) Members of the Vines Congregational Church are trying to raise $350 to restore their church organ. The organ was built for the personal use of a King George III in 1789 and was used in the Royal Chapel at Windsor until it was presented to the church at the end of the last century.

we've put a stop to highway robbery

Here's an arresting fact: Now, more than 591,000 Canadian automobile owners can stop paying too much for gasoline!

Their cars are designed for premium grade fuel, but not for the full power in the top-octane premiums they have been buying. These motorists pay for extra octane their cars can't use.

Up to now, Now, BP has added two new medium-octane, medium-price Super gasolines. With four great BP gasolines... one Regular and three Supers...you can exactly match the power requirement of your car at the lowest possible cost.

Think about that. Maybe you're one of the thousands of premium gasoline buyers who can use one of the new BP Supers and save 2¢, even 4¢ per gallon.

Mechanical Love-Making Complaint of Female Sex

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You told Bill, who complained that his 37-year-old wife was no longer interested in sex, that her problem was probably mental. Well, I disagree with you.

That letter could have been written by my husband because I'm 37, too, and not interested in sex. Don't tell me I need a psychiatrist. I just want my husband to treat me like a woman instead of an appliance.

If a man wents his wife to be romantic he should be willing to turn off the TV once in a while and put down the newspaper. Why doesn't he give her a few lines from that super sales talk he used during courtship — when he was trying so hard to break down her virtue?

ANN LANDERS

Too many husbands treat their wives as if they are doing them a favor by coming home nights instead of going elsewhere. They talk endlessly about the cute chicks in the office.

Please, Ann, tell these complaining husbands to stop blaming their wives. Most women would be delighted, flattered, even thrilled, if their husbands would make an honest-to-goodness pass at them. Like old times. — RUSTY HINGE.

DEAR RUSTY — Many women (like hundreds) wrote to say the same thing, and I'm happy to print this point of view, which is $ valid one.

The original letter from Bill, however, made it clear that he was romantic and made many "honest to goodness passes . . . like old times." His wife was a cold tomato who thought 37 was too old for sex. Have you all got it straight, now?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a boy, 17, who finds life a complete bore, except on weekends. On Monday morning, when I am faced with five days of school, the only thing that keeps me going is the thought of the weekend.

I don't hate school, I just find it awfully hard to knuckle down. I let assignments go until the last minute because I'd rather day-dream.

With finals in sight I wonder if you can help me conquer my problem so I can make some half-way respectable grades. I've been able bluff my way through high school by last minute cramming but I don't think I can get away with it in college. Help. — DENNIS.

DEAR DENNIS — A person who spends five days out of seven dreaming needs professional help. This is too long a time to be out of this world. Dream castles are fun to visit, but anyone who tries to establish a permanent residence in a dream castle is likely to find himself in deep trouble. —

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Everything was fine in our family until dad lost a lot of money in a business my mother told him not to go into. Mom took the financial loss hard and talked of nothing else for months. Dad began to stay out later and later. Some nights he doesn't come home at all.

To get even, mom has started to go out too. A friend of mom's who is divorced seems to know a lot of single men who are short of company.

I'm afraid ours is going to be a broken home if something isn't done soon. My folks have hardly speak to each other and we haven't had a family meal in ages. I'm 17 and will be in college soon, but my two sisters need both mom and dad. What can I do? — PANIC BUTTON.

DEAR PANIC — You probably have a clearer notion of what has happened to your parents — and why — than they have. Ask each of them in turn to come together to a clergyman and air their problems. Communications have broken down completely and unless they are restored there will be nothing but agony for everybody.

Cancer Victims Are Aided By Diversional Program

By MARILYN BOLTON
Kitchener-Waterloo Record

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—A young Kitchener housewife faced despair a year ago when the doctor told her she had cancer for almost five years.

Since then she has undergone one operation and has found friends who want to help her defeat fear. As a start they have helped her make the dress her daughter will wear to receive her first communion.

"If you more than all the money in the world can repay to the women's service committee of the North Waterloo Cancer Unit and to its diversional program and the visitors who managed to lift me out of my morbid mood," she says.

"That mood was more of a load to me than the cancer itself. Once I had shaken it, I was able to realize that having cancer was not the worst thing in the world because some cancer is curable by surgery, drugs or radiation."

The Cancer Society's diversional program is designed to help cancer victims find new skills and to create new interests for themselves which will take their minds off their physical condition.

A pilot program was conducted by the Cancer Society in Sudbury, Ont., two years ago, and results were reported to other Ontario units and now there are established programs in eight areas.

PLANS TO EXPAND

"Many other areas—about 25 are just starting diversional programs," says Mrs. Frank Rostance of Stratford, provincial convener of diversional programs. "It is hard to say how big this program will get yet because it is so young."

"We don't want it to get too big because if it gets too big that will mean cancer is on the increase and we don't want that," says Mrs. William Gilbert, Kitchener program chairman. "However, we don't want to have the program available to all those who can and need to take advantage of it."

The Cancer Society's home economics committee assists for the diversional program, as do doctors and Victorian Order of Nurses.

Some patients simply need to be reinterested in old hobbies such as crocheting, knitting or sewing. Others need to learn new skills to substitute for their former activities when they can return to normal, and to keep them busy while they are convalescing.

The program is ready to supply materials and instruction for almost any interest. Program workers or co-operative therapists are able to teach most of the handicraft skills. Many patients first come into contact with the program through the hospital therapist.

VISITS HELP

Diversion isnt always a matter of handicrafts. It may take the form of providing a television set for a lonely shut-in or regular visits from someone who cares.

"We continue visiting for about two years after the person has been rehabilited," says Mrs. Langdon Ball, service committee chairman. "Sometimes it just means poking your head in the door to say hello when you are in the patient's town. Other times it means sitting down and listening, even if

Anglican W. A. Plans Annual Diocesan Meet

The service of Holy Communion in St. Thomas' Church will open the 78th annual meeting of the Anglican Women's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Ontario on May 5. The Right Rev. K. C. Evans will be the celebrant and special preacher. The rector, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, and the clergy of Belleville will assist.

Registration of delegates will take place before the service, and after the luncheon.

During the afternoon session on the first day, the Dominion W.A. president, Mrs. J. Robertson of Kitchener, will give an address. The diocesan president, Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell of Kingston, will make her report following Mrs. Robertson's address.

The Missionary Rally will take place on Tuesday evening. Mrs. H. E. Taylor of Punnichey Indian Reserve, Saskatchewan, who is the new editor of "Our Living Message" is to be the speaker. Mrs. Taylor spent some time in the diocese of Moosonee while her husband served there. Her experience in the mission work of the church and as editor of the "Living Message" should make her a most interesting speaker.

Reports from diocesan officers and the deaneries' presidents will be presented during the second day. This will include a report of Dorcas work which is one of the most interesting to members of the Woman's Auxiliary.

"My honest opinion is that you're a very nosy young man!"

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I would appreciate any salad-type recipes for macaroni that are like the delicatessen stores sell . . . Doreen F.

ANSWER:

Since we are receiving increasing numbers of requests for macaroni salad I decided to give the following. It is just right for buffet type meals or smorgasbords.

Dinner Menu

FRIDAY
(Guests)

FAVORITE MACARONI SALAD (serves 6 to 8):

1 lb. tiny macaroni shells or bows, 1 green pepper, 1 cup chopped tender inner celery, 4 radishes, ½ mild Spanish onion, 10 ripe or green olives stoned and chopped, ¼ cup chopped blanched almonds, ½ to ¾ cups mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper (preferably white).

Cook the macaroni shells or bows in a very large amount of salted water until tender, then drain and chill. Slice or shred all of the vegetables and gently stir into the macaroni with the nuts, mayonnaise and seasonings. Chill. This is lovely in a lettuce-lined bowl garnished with tomato wedges and sliced stuffed olives, or as a filling for scooped-out tomatoes.

QUESTION:

. . . Please send me recipe for authentic Chinese Fried Rice . . . Mrs. F. F.

ANSWER:

Please note that in following recipe you can substitute bean sprouts for the 1½ cups cooked pork or chicken, if desired.

CHINESE FRIED RICE (Chow Fan):

4 cups cooked and drained fluffy white rice, 4 tablespoons oil (preferably peanut), 1½ cups julienne-cut roast pork or cooked chicken, ¾ cup chopped scallions or green onions, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs, beaten, ⅓ cup cup finely chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons soy sauce.

Cook the rice the day before you want to use it and refrigerate overnight. Heat the oil in a deep frying pan. Cook the rice in it, stirring steadily with a fork until lightly browned. Add the pork or chicken, scallions, salt and pepper. Cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Make a hollow in the centre and pour beaten eggs into it. Stir until they begin to set, then mix into the rice mixture. Blend in the parsley and soy sauce. Serves 6 to 8.

NOTE:

Cooked shrimp, ham, lobster, or bean sprouts may be used in place of the pork or chicken.

Bonnie Roberts Making Go of Two Positions

TORONTO (CP)—If Bonnie Roberts had a choice, she says she would live in the 1800s for the clothes and the 1920s for the songs.

She manages to do a bit of both and still enjoy life as a 1964-style housewife and mother in Burlington, Ont.

Every evening but Sunday, between 5 and 9 o'clock, Mrs. Roberts is the singer in Toronto's Last Chance Saloon. She works in its frontier-town setting with honky-tonk accompanist John Arpin, re-creating in song the atmosphere of the Gay '90s and Roaring '20s.

She began building her act in libraries three years ago, doing research on songs and clothes of the two eras. She found some of her original gowns and jewelry in antique shops. Now she has 20 outfits, a collection of jewelry and ostrich plumes, a ivory-handled fan that is supposed to have belonged to actress Sarah Bernhardt.

Her husband, businessman Floyd Roberts, plays trombone in a dance band on Saturday night. They have three children, Wayne, 17, Debra, 15, and Craig, 11.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

If you have a wedding on your calendar for the traditional bridal month of June, perhaps you also have a problem about sending a wedding gift. These questions have been asked most frequently of late:

1. Where are wedding gifts sent?

2. How should a gift be wrapped?

3. What sort of card is enclosed?

4. How should a card be signed?

5. Should a gift be sent when one of the couple has been married before?

6. Is it necessary to send a gift when one is invited only to the ceremony?

7. If one is invited to the ceremony and reception, but cannot attend, should a gift be sent anyway?

8. Are gifts sent before or after the wedding?

9. If a gift is sent after the wedding, to whom is it addressed?

10. Is a gift of money appropriate?

Answers:

1. Wedding gifts are addressed to the bride, and sent to her home.

2. The box should be gift-wrapped and packed carefully so it won't be damaged en route. The sender's return address should appear on the outer wrappings so the bride-to-be can send a thank-you note.

3. The sender's personal card, or a small white card with a hand-written signature are the best taste. A short message may be written on each.

4. If the signature is written, a gift from a couple about the same age as the bride and groom would be signed "Jane and Jack Jones." An older couple would sign "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones." Relatives, as well as close personal friends, of course, may sign only their first names.

5. It's not obligatory, but often a gift is sent anyway.

6. No, but a gift may be sent if one desires to do so.

7. It's customary.

8. They should be sent before the wedding, if possible.

9. It then is addressed to both the bride and groom, and sent to their new address.

10. Usually only relatives of the bride and groom give a gift of money.

Successful Living

Neighbor Distracts Mother With Her Daily Gossip

DEAR DORIS — I am a busy mother of two young children. My next door neighbor is an elderly woman living alone, with tenants occupying the upstairs of her house. She keeps dropping in on me unexpectedly, mostly in the mornings for a couple of hours, when I am busy doing a wash.

She comes mainly to gossip about her tenant. I have made it very plain to her that I am not interested about what her tenant does, but while I am trying to get my wash done and caring for the baby, she keeps this up about her tenant. Then she surmises to people that I said certain things about her tenant which I have not said at all.

I do not want to fight with my neighbor or insult such an elderly woman, but still I don't like to be condemned for saying things about others when I don't deserve this sort of thing. — TOUCHY PROBLEM.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR PROBLEM — If you were an office worker no one would presume to sit and chat with you over the noise and busy-ness of your typewriter. Your work is just as deserving of respect.

Next time she comes, meet her at the door and say you wonder if she could have tea with you some evening, instead. That your work piles up and it distracts you when you talk. Say it with a smile.

Remember that people come to recognize a gossip for just that — and that her tales about you aren't going to impress anybody very much.

DEAR DORIS — What are your views on a husband and wife having a joint or separate bank account? — MONEY MANAGER.

DEAR MANAGER — It's a matter of mutual agreement. Some husbands bring home an uncashed pay cheque for Wifey to administer. In other set-ups Daddy arrives home Friday night laden with groceries from the list given him by the Chief Cook that morning. And an agreed upon amount goes in the bank from each pay.

If husband and wife share the spending for family needs, a joint account can be a great convenience, provided both avoid overdrawing.

Even with a joint account, there is much to be said for separate accounts as well. Whatever the set-up, there should be some free money for each partner to use as he or she pleases.

DEAR DORIS — The son of a dear friend of mine is marrying an Ukranian girl. I would like some information related to Ukranian wedding receptions.

I understand there is a custom by which each male present may dance with the bride, and is expected to deposit money in a dish for the bride. Is this correct? If so, who leads off? — WEDDING GUEST.

DEAR WEDDING GUEST — True. Average donation is about a dollar. The best man is usually the one who gets the dance started.

DEAR DORIS — 1. Would it be correct for a girl (19) to accept a birthday gift of an expensive dress or dressing gown from a boy she is going out with? If they were engaged would circumstances be different?

2. Is it bad form for same girl to go on a motor trip with same boy, along with his mother and father? — A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND — 1. Emphatically no; such gifts are far too valuable and personal to pass between "just friends." An engagement makes it some different — but hardly ideal.

2. Yes, if parents of girl have confidence in parents of boy.

DEAR DORIS — I'm 19 and my father still won't let me drive his precious car even though I learned how when I worked on a farm last summer, and have a licence.

He says I'll just get into an accident like all the other crazy teen-agers. Please say a word or two about this. — J. FOR JUSTICE.

DEAR J. — Teen-agers could be the best drivers in the world, if they were just a bit more careful and a lot more considerate. Telling oneself that "it will never happen to me," is a sure way to ask for trouble.

We can't laugh off the statistics, which tell us that two classes of people are largely responsible for serious accidents: (1) young drivers and (2) elderly pedestrians.

Personally I know some fine, careful teen-age drivers; but these are chiefly boys and girls whose fathers have devoted their own time and patience to teaching them to drive; then put some confidence in them.

(Longer, fuller replies were sent privately when those writing in enclosed a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

First Class Male Nursing Assistants

TORONTO (CP) — The first all-male class of nursing assistants has graduated from the Toronto Training Centre of the Ontario health department.

The experimental group has convinced the department that the next class can be trained alongside women instead of in a separate class, a spokesman says.

The 24 men in the class range in age from 18 to 61. In addition to jobs in hospitals, they are expected to be hired for bush and mining camps and industry.

Most of the trainees hold full-time jobs during the first eight months of their year - long course, training in the evening. In the last four months they trained eight hours a day, most of them getting by on $60 a month given as training allowance by the government.

The course is open to anyone over 17 with a Grade 10 Ontario education equivalent.

Has Population Density 1.5 Times Holland's

Canada's Dynamic "Golden Horseshoe"

Six-lane super-highways interconnect Golden Horseshoe population centres, provide high-speed links with other important parts of Ontario and nearby United States.

Concentrated around the western end of Lake Ontario from Oshawa through Toronto and Hamilton to the cascading Niagara Falls is a rich Golden Horseshoe of heavy industry, manufacturing, agriculture, world trade and nearly 3,000,000 hard-working Canadians. In this energetic part of a busy province, wrapped around the lakeshore in a 15-mile-wide band, there are 1,300 Canadians for each of its 2,000 square miles, a density of population 50 per cent greater than the Netherlands—the world's most densely populated country. Iron and steel, automobiles, finance, construction, shipping, rubber goods, heavy electrical and communications equipment, food-packing—these are some of the dominating features of the vibrant Golden Horseshoe glowing on the map of booming Ontario. Interspaced between the churning segments of industry stretch lush vistas of vineyards, peach orchards, apples, pears and other productive pastoral scenes. Ontario's Golden Horseshoe is a solid foundation for overall prospects of the eventual development of an industrial-residential complex as big as any on the eastern part of North America.

NATIONAL FILM BOARD PHOTOSTORY

Crowds of shoppers throng new $40,000,000 Yorkdale shopping centre in metropolitan Toronto. Well over a third of Ontario's $7 billion retail sales are made within 30 miles of Toronto.

Nearly 3,000,000 Canadians live in this 2,000 sq. mile area.

Industrial workers leave their factory in St. Catharines. Ontario as a whole accounts for half Canada's manufacturing industries.

Civil

last month. Attorney - General Cass, who introduced the bill, resigned.

Premier Robarts said it seems "timely" to examine the whole relationship between the government and the people, and the guarantees of civil liberties which are inherent in citizenship.

The government must concern itself with the authority it gives to various boards and commission, he said, "both in their administrative functions and in their investigative powers."

Mr. Robarts said he wanted a close study of means that can be devised, or strengthened, to guarantee no infringement on civil rights.

STUDY PUBLIC DEFENDER

The royal commission would study the desirability of creating a public defender or of developing a comprehensive civil rights code.

Another alternative might be "the adaptation of the Canadian Bill of Rights in relation to the powers of our province," the premier said.

"In short, we may require a Magna Carta of our own based upon the principles of the original Great Charter."

Premier Robarts said the questions he had outlined were far above partisan politics. Any action that resulted from the royal commission could have far-reaching effects on the people of Ontario.

"They are not matters to be dealt with in the heat of political partisanship but should be brought under the close scrutiny and cool judgment of the judicial mind," he said.

"From Chief Justice McRuer's studies and recommendations, it will be our hope and purpose to be able to draft, and to present to this House at as early a date as possible, the necessary legislation to ensure that, within the statutory powers of the province, the rights, freedoms and liberties of our people will be protected for all time."

TEACHES LESSON

The Conservative premier said this was not a job which could be done quickly. He indicated that the government had been taught a lesson by Bill 99 not to move too fast.

"One of the important lessons we have all learned in recent weeks is the unwisdom of doing things in a hurry," Mr. Robarts said.

Despite good intentions, the government at times had "fallen into the error of haste in our zeal to solve a pressing problem."

Section 14 of Bill 99 was drafted on the recommendation of the Ontario Police Commission to give it what it considered to be the necessary powers to investigate organized or syndicated crime in the province.

Mr. Robarts said it was not the criminal element alone which the legislature had to be concerned with. Citizens had to be protected "from a host of other practices and procedures that have grown up in our increasingly complex society."

The government was under increasing pressure to assume a larger role in the life of the people.

"As our province grows and social change takes place, we must in our wisdom proceed in such a fashion that we do not impose limitations upon, or interfere with, the inherent rights of the individual citizen with whose welfare we are entrusted."

missioner of customs in dealing with already-filed applications seeking relief. Alternatively, the commissioner could request more information.

A course which Mr. Dillon felt was "the more likely."

External Affairs Minister Martin, meanwhile, told the press conference he knows of no plan to change the Canadian scheme in view of U.S. objections.

The post-conference communique expressed both U.S. concern over the rebate operation and Canadian views that the program "is designed to promote increased specialization and lower production costs in the Canadian automotive industry."

WILL CORRECT TARIFF

Mr. Dillon also noted that a congressional committee is preparing to correct last fall's full-scale reclassification of U.S. tariffs, which inadvertently resulted in increases on some imports of Canadian auto parts. No increases were intended, he said.

In connection with the proposed legislation on periodicals, the communique said the U.S. ministers "expressed their concern over possible Canadian measures which might adversely affect certain United States publications."

The proposal, as it now stands, would ban the entry to Canada of foreign periodicals with more than five per cent of their advertising space aimed specially at the Canadian market, and also would make non-deductible for tax purposes the advertising space bought by Canadian firms in foreign periodicals. Time and Reader's Digest would be exempt.

Mr. Dillon said he was glad to note that the two last-named periodicals were not to be covered in the present legislation, but said the tariff aspects of the proposed measure could "make problems" under GATT and possibly be adjudged not in accordance with the binding of Canadian and U.S. tariffs against increase.

"It might be that we would feel we would have to ask for some equivalent concession, though I don't know what that concession would be," Mr. Dillon said.

He agreed with Mr. Martin that the matter "stands by itself" and could not be viewed in a strict dollars - and - cents trade sense.

END INQUIRY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A U.S. congressional inquiry into possible Communist subversion in the Buffalo area ended Thursday with the investigators getting from witnesses little more than their names. Fifteen persons, among them an undercover agent for the FBI, testified at a two-day hearing of a House of Representatives subcommittee on un-American activities.

MODELS STAGE STRIKE

ROME (AP)—The models at the Fine Arts Academy in Rome, who pose nude for the students, refused to work Wednesday and said they would stage further strikes if they do not win their demands for a new labor contract.

Remember when Bonded Stock Whisky came in that plain old bottle?

Well it doesn't anymore. That fine old bottle has launched its last slip. We've designed a new container for Gooderham's Bonded Stock. Tall and refined with classic lines. (Our whisky's now in the best shape ever). And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well. To make every drop just a little more mellow. One thing though. Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it. Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock Whisky, so does the rest of the country.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832

"Colonel Stingo"

In Hotel Dixie He Takes His Stand!

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YORK (CP) — The evidence makes this much clear: When Col. John R. Stingo, as a middle-aged man in his 70s, slipped gambrian amber with ice cubes in a worthy saloon, he could be sure he was holding with ample tease in his pocket to buy a round when his turn came.

When the tease was short and he was scrounding, he'd spend much of his time in the public library away from the villains who might tempt him to ride the magic carpet.

He's older now—perhaps 84 as one acquaintance guesses, maybe 89 as another says and possibly it as the colonel himself claims—and from all accounts he's generally holding with no threat of the plug in the door.

Those who read the column Tease, Verily, Verily, carried until late 1961 in the weekly National Enquirer, will recognize Col. John R. Stingo as the author of the phrases quoted above.

They'll probably understand, too, that the colonel loves his gambrian amber (beer) that he was holding (financially prevent) when he had plenty of tease (money) and now waiting when he hadn't; that the villains were those who talked him into drinking Scotch liquor instead of the gambrian; and that reading the magic carpet was a night of wide drinking.

TIMES SQUARE HOME

Col. Stingo has lived since 1940 in the Hotel Dixie, just off Times Square, and in his stellar years there he was nonholding enough friends to develop a fear of the plug in the door—a means by which hotels prevented guests of the (beer) that room if your bill needed adjustment.

All this terminology is the creation of the imaginative mind of the colonel—as are the military rank and the pseudonym.

Col. Stingo was born James A. Macdonald, and it will probably be news to most fans at the Dixie. Few know him by anything other than Col. Stingo, however, during his more than 30 years as an Enquirer columnist.

He became a genuine character for whom editor Generose Grothman of The Enquirer, who handled the colonel's copy for several years, said the other day:

"When they'd made the colonel, they must have thrown away the mould. You'll never find another one like him."

The colonel's name you've an old acquaintance and in luck, you're sure either to find the colonel himself these days. He never answers his telephone in the one-room-with-bath suite in the Dixie—one he prefers for which he has been noted for years. The hotel staff says he comes down once or twice a day, picks up his mail now and then and, goes walking somewhere.

MAIL PILES UP

Grothman recalls that when he wanted to reach Col. Stingo to question him about something in the column in earlier years, he'd have to send a wire to the colonel saying it was urgent that they talk about money. "The next day, he'd usually call me," Grothman said.

Even this type of approach seldom brings response now and the colonel lets his mail pile up to where it becomes too much to answer it all, so he doesn't answer any.

He's a nice old gentleman," confessed clerk said when a reporter asked about the colonel at the Dixie. "He's getting old and he's forgetful now, but he's always very polite.

"What's the interest anyway?" the clerk asked. "Somebody said he was written up in the New Yorker magazine a while ago. How come? He's certainly not a character around here—just a nice old gentleman."

The colonel is something more than that, however, to those who read Ves Verily, first in the New York Enquirer and then in its successor the National Enquirer, and especially to men like Grothman and the late Joe Liebling of the New Yorker, who knew Col. Stingo more intimately.

Grothman, whose knowledge of the colonel goes back only to 1955 when Grothman joined the Enquirer and edited the Stingo columns, recalled that Col. Stingo wrote mostly reminiscences with a heavy racing flavor.

RACE REPORTER

This came naturally since he was only a race track reporter early in his newspaper career and his income from The Enquirer came from commissions on horse-racing advertisements he attracted to the weekly newspaper's sports pages.

A small man who stands about four feet eight inches tall, he has always walked erect with a military jauntiness about him. Throughout his working career he dressed immaculately in a fashion of 50 years ago with spats, pointed shoes, bow tie and a white carnation in his button hole.

He wrote in a style of at least that long ago.

Liebling probably knew the colonel better than anyone else during the last 20 years. He first sought out the colonel in 1943, subsequently writing several New Yorker articles about him and, in 1953, a book entitled The Honest Rainmaker, the Life and Times of Colonel John R. Stingo.

Liebling's writings seem to be the only printed record of Col. Stingo's past — and Liebling made it clear that these were based on Col. Stingo's own telling and therefore subject to the colonel's belief that "reminiscences are not to be authenticated, but enjoyed."

JOINED HEARST

In any case, from Liebling's writings, the colonel was born in New Orleans, began his newspaper career there writing obituaries for a Catholic weekly, became a horse-racing writer for the New Orleans Item and then came to New York with the Hearst organization.

Writing under his real name of Macdonald, he was a race track reporter for the New York Evening Journal until 1906 when abolition of betting at New York tracks resulted in his moving to Los Angeles as sports editor of The Examiner.

During the next 25 years—by his own accounting to Liebling —the colonel roamed widely and was involved in many enterprises — from boxing and horse racing to religious revival meetings and promotion of Hatfield the Rainmaker, the latter the central theme of Liebling's book.

It was during his time away from New York that he commissioned himself a colonel and took the name Stingo and it was from this that he drew many of his reminiscences when he returned here and joined The Enquirer.

The colonel wasn't paid for writing his column. His income came as a solicitor of racing advertising and he got a sizable commission on the ads he attracted.

BIG IMAGINATION

His writings often were concerned with racing and the winnings of various individuals who had followed the advice of those who advertised in The Enquirer — but they went much further afield. His range was limited only by the colonel's imagination.

Liebling related that a competitor once became outraged by the publication in support of a projected $100,000 match race between Irish Lad and a Kentucky horse owned by wealthy Australian. When the competitor wrote that the colonel never permitted facts to interfere with the exercise of his imagination," the colonel happily consented to have the report to his mastery of his material."

But in most of his tales," Liebling wrote, "there is an element of truth. . . ."

Grothman agreed. He recounted that in one column submitted, Col. Stingo told in detail of the death of a prominent race horse trainer in a boating accident. Liebling checked out, the report proved true—but the event had occurred eight years before the column was run, the week-end as the colonel implied.

Liebling loved Col. Stingo's writing style and cited as a prime example the following from one column: "May be lot of people living dead in old Quaker city, but it's surprising how quick come to life when Philadelphia bugle Col darn doth blow."

TIDBITS OF HISTORY

The colonel's trips to the public library served a dual purpose—keeping him out of circulation while he was non-holding and giving him tidbits of history with which to regale his favorite bartenders and his readers as he'd been to some foreign land on a vacation.

He took great liberties with dateliness on his columns, holding, Liebling said, that a writer is entitled to use in perpetuity the dateline of any place he has ever been. Grothman said Col. Stingo also felt he could use a year to which he'd never been.

There's no evidence to indicate the colonel was ever in Canada—beyond his occasional use of Canadian dateliners and frequent references to various areas of Canada.

One placeline that frequently popped up was "Yellowknife (Ont.)," the scene of what he termed the last Indian uprising and which he placed within the Arctic circle.

In one of the last columns he wrote—it was one of several submitted to The Enquirer after the paper ceased publishing it—he recalled the Fenian raid of 1866-67 by Irishmen who tried to invade Canada from the U.S.

His account of this historic incident included the commandeering by some of the Irish force of "some 200 race horses, stabled at St. Catherine, Ontario International Jockey Club racing course and parkway," using which to send Canadian forces into retreat.

FORMER COLUMNIST—Col. John R. Stingo started the newspaper career writing colu-mns for a New Orleans Catholic weekly and worked his way through various newspapers as a horse-racing writer and column in the weekly National Enquirer. His Enquirer column was carried until he retired in late 1961. Born James A. Macdonald, he adopted the fictious name, Col. Stingo, and the military rank. This picture shows him as he was 20 years ago.

Van Doos in Cyprus:

'We Don't Take Any Chances!'

By DAVE McINTOSH

TRAKHONAS, Cyprus (CP)—Lieut. Yvon Blanchard of Montreal, commander of No. 4 Platoon, B Company, Royal 22nd Regiment, picked his way with a flashlight up Cote Sal (Dirty Hill), the name the Van Doos have given to the promontory they man between Greek and Turk guerrillas on the cease-fire line in this Nicosia suburb.

It was a black midnight as Blanchard stepped over the barbed wire on the rocky knoll.

"Halt!"

Blanchard stopped in his tracks and identified himself to Cpl Leon Girard of Loretteville, Que., loomed out of the dark with his Stirling sub-machine-gun.

"We don't take any chances even though anybody would be crazy to try to rush this position," Cpl. Girard said.

"What worries me is a terrorist sneaking up on one of our weapon pits, killing the men in it and then turning our own weapon on us."

Blanchard and Girard went to each of the three pits dug out of the scrabble. Each time they were challenged.

"Our boys are on their toes all the time," Blanchard said with pride.

SHOTS OVERHEAD

The pits, covered with a tin roof to keep off the fierce sunshine, contained machine-guns, Heller rocket-launchers, rifles, cases of ammunition, hand grenades and flares. The machine-guns are kept trained on Greek and Turkish positions. At the top of the knoll was the central observation post.

"We can handle anything," Girard said.

There was some scattered firing in the distance where the British hold the cease-fire or so-called Green Line. Some stray shots have whizzed over the Canadian positions.

Across the nearly dry river from the nearby sandbagged British where Blanchard has his platoon headquarters, the Turks keep lights on all night to try to destroy the night vision of the Van Doos watchers on Cote Sal.

There were pools of stagnant water in the river bed. "We'll have to keep that sprayed this summer to keep down disease," Blanchard said in summer, the temperature goes to 110 — and Girard already had sun blisters.

Rubbish litters Cote Sal. There is a pig farm on one side of the knoll—the British called it Porkchop Hill—and the stench in summer will be much worse.

DOGS ARE NUISANCE

"What bothers us most is the dogs," Blanchard said. "They bark all day and night and it makes it difficult to sleep."

He has his 30 men on eight-hour shift on the hill and after six days they have 32 hours off. They have been permitted to walk downtown, a few at a time, between 1 and 5 p.m.

The rest of the time is spent in the house, in the tent across the street where some men have to sleep, on patrol in nearby streets which form the cease-fire line and on Cote Sal.

"We hope to get another house," Blanchard said. "There is no protection for the men in the tents." They are sitting ducks. If we are attacked we will shoot back. My men must be protected and have confidence.

"But," he added, "I don't think it will be necessary for us to shoot; things have been more normal since we took over Good Friday."

"The people seem friendly on both sides. None of my men has been cursed or insulted."

There is only one bath for the members of the platoon, which will become a bigger problem in the summer, Blanchard said. The men make their own breakfast in the house but other meals are delivered from company kitchens in a nearby flour mill.

'ALL MEN'

Blanchard mounted a wooden ladder against the house to the roof where his radio man, Pte. Real Murray of Baie St. Paul, Que., and Pte Robert Knight of Hull, Que., were on night watch. While Knight walked the roof, Murray remained in the sandbagged lining position, grenades close at hand.

In the front room of the house, with hatchard sleeps, some of his men were having a beer after coming off shift while Cpl. Gilles Lafontaine of Trois-Rivieres, Pte. Denis Baillergeon of Riviere du Loup and Pte. Jacques Cyr of Edmundston N.B.

"They are all men—and good men," said Platoon Sgt. Marcric Sibourin of Lorettville.

Start Laying First 2,000 Miles of Cable

MONTREAL (CP) — Douglas F. Bowie, president and general manager of Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation, said Friday that cableships will begin laying the first 2,000 miles of the southeast Asia section of the Commonwealth multi-purpose cable network next month linking Malaysia, Singapore and Hong Kong.

The cable already connects Britain, Canada, New Zealand and Australia.

The new line will have a capacity of 80 telephone channels and will also provide stable circuits for telex and public telegraph services, data, picture and program transmissions, he said.

Three cable ships are expected to complete the laying of the cable by November and the cable is to be ready for public service by the beginning of the new year, Mr. Bowie said.

Jack Ryan's Family Pad Among Gloriest of All

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In the Bel Air district, where the wealthy dwell in homes of glory, Jack Ryan's family pad is among the gloriest of all.

That's not so far - fetched, either. Ryan's 40-acre estate, draped over a steep, green hillside, is enough to send a maharjah supplying for extra renewal.

The estate's whirrs, clicks and jiggles its switches, making daily life a waking dream. Everything is automated, down to the little hillside rills and waterfalls—that tumble into a pluer lagoon beside the velvet-couched grotto and the cave with the beer-stocked refrigerator.

The estate, crisscrossed by switchback trails and dotted by caves, was once a private park and picnic spot.

ROOMS UNCOUNTED

Film star Warner Baxter built the main house when the 16,000 square feet—in the 1930s, and it will probably never be known how many rooms it has. Estimates range from 30 to 54, but how do you count rooms in a house where the closet is as big as most people's living rooms and where bathrooms are subdivided? Baxter, inspired by early spook films, added a secret room and panels, so you can play hide-and-seek all over the house.

Tennis star Glenn Austin later bought the estate and added a tennis house and tennis courts, still considered among the country's finest.

Enter Jack Ryan.

Ryan, 37, bought the Tudor-style house in 1962, moved his family (wife, Barbara; daughters, Ann, 9, Diana, 7) into it and then bought undeveloped parcels on either side.

He didn't realize the enormity of what he'd done, he says, until his wife and daughters began disappearing. Whenever they let each other out of sight they couldn't find each other again for hours. "It was terrible," Ryan says. "We should have had bloodhounds."

This house was not a home, he decided, thereupon taking steps to make it private.

Ryan is an electrical engineering and industrial administration graduate from the east and his enthusiasm for fun and games on a grand scale, plus adequate money, led to the restoration of Ryan's Repose.

One project was the installation of telephones—more than 60 of them.

LIKE ANT HILL

A walk through the estate is like walking through an ant hill.

Here, under a wide lawn, Ryan plans a subterranean ballroom, with high ceiling and sweeping staircase. The lawn? Oh, Ryan will raise that by two feet. Can't bear to ruin a good lawn.

There — a new driveway, winding through the trees, arching the brook and rounding the swimming pool and cabana, ending in a large parking lot.

There — a shallow, circular pool, just to reflect the city lights.

There—where the lagoon is being deepened for swimming, a grotto lined with couches and carpeted wall - to - wall. Only steps away, in a tiny cave, a refrigerator offers beer, soft drinks and hors d'oeuvres at sustenance for the trek back up the hill.

Back on the summit, after a tour of the house and its secret panels, Ryan points out the way to the great den and bar, where the friendly bartender mixes a round of martinis and serves them, eyes agleam with pride in his work.

CHEAP LAWN SEED?

THERE'S NO SUCH THING

It's a popular fallacy that low-priced lawn seed is tougher and easier to grow than high-priced seed, but this is far from the truth.

Only one lawn seed ingredient is fast growing, and that is Annual Rye Grass. However, Perennial Rye Grass is only an annual seed it will not winter over. We sell Rye Grass at 45c per pound.

For a good lawn we recommend lots of Kentucky Blue Grass and Creeping Red Fescue. Mixtures containing enough of these ingredients must sell for 75c to $1.00 per lb. pound. . . .

BUT THEY'RE WORTH IT!

HOUSE HOME IMPROVEMENT GARDEN

PLANK FRAMING — Typical of the Province of Quebec, plank framing is an excellent form of construction. A few municipalities insist on plank framing for houses to the exclusion of other types of lumber framing. It is somewhat similar to post and beam construction which is popular in British Columbia.

Cedar-Lining a Closet Becomes Easy Project

One of the easiest home improvement projects for Dad is lining a closet with aromatic red cedar. This is an ideal week-end project, and it provides moth - repellent storage space for less than it would cost to replace a coat ruined by moths.

The whole project can be done in several hours because the pieces of red cedar are nailed right over the walls, ceiling and floor. Tongue and groove edges and sides simplify the fitting of the pieces. Joints need not occur over studs, since the tongue and groove design forms a strong "weld."

Simple steps at the bottom of one wall, in a corner, and work across the wall to the other corner. Use the same technique for each succeeding row until you complete the entire wall.

No finishing is necessary, which is a welcome note for the busy handyman. Paint or varnish would tend to seal in the cedar's natural fragrance, which drives away moths.

Aromatic red cedar closet lining comes in pre-packaged bundles, which are easy to handle. Local lumber dealers stock this material, as well as special cedar shelving and molding.

Put a 'Ceiling' On Old Cracks

Cracked, peeling bathroom ceilings are an eyesore to any homeowner, but especially to one who has recently completed a remodeling job. Heat and moisture from the tub-shower area cause this aggravating condition.

Many homeowners are taking steps to eliminate this problem in the future by installing plastic surfaced hardboard blocks. The blocks, which come in colors and patterns, can be damp-wiped clean. They are factory - treated to withstand high heat and humidity conditions and never require painting or refinishing.

Easy to handle, the 16" square blocks can be put up right over old, cracked ceilings. Tongue-and-groove edges simplify installation. Wallboard adhesive is used to secure a strong bond.

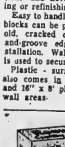
Plastic - surfaced hardboard also comes in four-foot panels and 16" x 8' planks for use on wall areas.

Well Assembled Plank Frame Provides Solid Structure

Plank frame construction, a popular form of framing in the eastern part of Canada, provides a sound and durable house. As with stud or open framing, plank framing has vertical and horizontal structural members. But in plank framing heavier lumber is used and the broad side of upright structural members is set parallel to the wall instead of at right angles to it. The space between the structural members is blocked off with filler pieces, sawed so that they fit closely between the verticals.

Structural uprights must rest directly on the foundation, on the sole plate, or on another vertical member if extra height is required. There is a good reason for this. Most of the shrinkage in lumber takes place across the grain, not along its length. If the vertical structural members are supported by the joists instead of resting directly on the foundation, differences in shrinkage may cause the house to settle unevenly. This in turn may cause considerable distortion in the frame. Cracks in brick veneer and plaster have been traced to this type of failure.

To make the building weathertight and reduce the heating bill it is a good practice to caulk the joints between the planks with tar or other mastic compound. This measure is optional under "Housing Standards", in NHA.



Structural members may be made of solid lumber or may be laminated. The laminations may be either spiked, bolted or glued with a moisture-proof adhesive. Metal ties or toenailing are the usual methods of tying the beams to the posts, although where a truly rustic effect is required a mortice and tenon joint may be made, using wood dowels as a tie.

Beam ends exposed to the weather should be treated with paint or other acceptable preservative to prevent excessive moisture - absorption and consequent splitting when the wood dries out.

NO FINGERPRINTS

A thin coat of wax, well buffed with a soft cloth, on the edges of doors will keep fingerprints from showing.

Modern Outdoor Living Begins Right at Home

A good fence has many values — it will give you protection while adding to the appearance of your house. But, it can do other things as well; your fence can mark the boundary of your lot, keep children and pets in or out and protect you from dust and wind.

More important than these, however, your fence can give your home and garden that sacred quality — privacy.

Privacy is a wonderful thing: with it, a one-room shack becomes a castle; without it, the most palatial house is no better than a goldfish bowl. Modern living demands privacy; the garden and lawn surrounding the house have taken on a new measure of importance. Besides providing a safe play area for the children, they also offer a welcome retreat for the neighborly coffee break. It is here, also, that on special occasions, exquisite steaks are produced and dispensed with grace and hospitality. Modern outdoor living begins at home.

Such an area demands extra privacy and there is no less expensive way of obtaining that privacy than by means of a fence. Depending on the style and design, a fence can add indoor privacy to outdoor living. It can be a luxurious back-drop for the private world of your garden.

A just-right fence demands care in its selection and strict attention to details. Since there are certain laws and regulations which you, the landowner, should be aware of before starting to build, close attention must be given to any provincial laws and local ordinances or restrictions contained within the deed and covenants. A careful look at these documents will disclose any restrictions that have been placed on the land by former owners. A good local fence contractor is an excellent source for information on local and other ordinances.

Fence designs are many and various; care in selecting yours will be time well spent. The style of the fence selected should blend with the general architecture of your house to achieve harmony. Observe the styles of fences used in your neighborhood and elsewhere, to fence homes of similar design, and take a snapshot of them. You will find it much easier to make a suitable selection if you have several from which to choose.

Having made the final design selection, you are ready to build it. This can be done by a local fencing contractor or by you. In either case, the materials used in the construction will be of prime importance if a full 5 grade white pine will be obtained. Of the Eastern species of lumber, White Pine stands at the top of the list of materials tested by time to give the best results. It has also been proven that the top grades are not always necessary to give satisfactory performance. Fences built with No. 3 grade white pine give excellent service and will continue to do so for many years.

Match Your Cooling Unit With Needs

What size is the right size room air conditioner for a specific cooling area? Don't guess. One that's too large will cost more than necessary to buy, and operate, and may not provide all the dehumidification needed. One that's too low in capacity, just won't give enough cool comfort.

The best way to match cooling capacity to needs is to drop the problem in the hands of a reputable appliance dealer. But before you drop it there, be ready to answer a few questions he's sure to ask.

According to a room air conditioner buying guide published by National Better Business Bureau, Inc., the dealer will want to know the size and use of the area to be cooled, its orientation, number and direction of windows and if insulation is used.

In addition, he'll need to know if electrical circuits are 115 or 230 volts. The NBBB suggests that a rough sketch of the area might be an added aid.

With this information, the dealer can determine the cooling capacity needed in terms of British thermal units per hour (BTU-hr.) This is the most accurate way to rate it.

Selecting a room air conditioner that will provide this needed cooling capacity has been made virtually fool-proof by a program of room air conditioner certification initiated in 1962 by the National Electrical Manufacturers Association.

Under this program, room air conditioners are tested by an independent laboratory to verify city amps and watts ratings. Each approved unit carries a NEMA seal, three million of which have been awarded since the program started.

About 94 percent of the room air conditioners sold in this country are now under the NEMA certification program.

Teen-Age Canada

There is no age limit to talent and art, Teen-Age Canada suggests today. Chopin, for example, wrote his first great composition when he was only nine years of age.

There Is No Age Limit For Talent in the Arts

By JACK HUTTON

"He's got talent, of course. But he's far too young to accomplish anything worthwhile."

How many times have you heard that from patronizing adults? You're familiar with those who believe that no one has an original thought before the age of 21?

Well, be prepared for the next time. I've rounded up in this column examples of famous people who not only carved out careers during their teen years but in some cases accomplished little once they'd become "mature."

There was the 8-year-old Polish boy whose parents wondered whether people would laugh when he sat down to play for the first time in public. That was in 1818, one year after he'd composed his first piece — a G minor polonaise.

No one laughed. Eleven years later the young pianist went to Vienna, Austria, and astounded musicians twice and three times his own age. His name: Frederick Francois Chopin.

CHURCHILL'S TRIBUTE

When Rupert Brooke died as a soldier April 23, 1915 — Shakespeare's birthday — Winston Churchill wrote: "Rupert Brooke is dead. . A voice had become audible, a note had been struck, more true, more thrilling, more able to do justice to the nobility of our youth in arms engaged in this present war, than any other."

Brooke was a few weeks away from his 28th birthday when he died. (Anyone who hasn't read "Red Wine of Youth", Brooke's biography written by Arthur Stringer, has missed a great deal.

No one who discusses the upheavals underway in our traditional mathematics courses can talk for long without mentioning Carl Friedrich Gauss, a German mathematician called one of the three greatest mathematicians of all time.

Recognition of his theories didn't come until years after his death in 1855 when his works were published. But Gauss is known as the founder of modern mathematics.

What many forget is that Gauss made almost all his basic in tween the ages of 14 and 17. When he was 14 he so dazzled a local duke with his skill that the duke sent him money until his death.

The field of music offers endless examples of young adults who were famous long before their 20th birthday — Mozart, Mendelssohn, List. Many adults wouldn't sit down beside 13-year-old Mozart at the piano.

When you have time, read the poem "Renascance" by Edna St. Fincent Millay. She submitted it to a national contest in 1912, and astounded American editors who found it hard to believe the poem came from a 17-year-old.

There are thousands of other examples, but we haven't space to describe them all.

Just remember the next time an adult says you're too young to understand something, he may not mean what he says.

Could it be that he feels uncomfortable when challenged by an unorthodox mind that does not fit his own paterns?

ELEPHANTS VANISH

The trumpeting has died away. The last creature (gray, purple or red and blue) has lumbered around the corner, taking Tarzan and other friends with him.

The elephants have gone.

It's been six months since I heard an elephant joke of any kind, including those I'd heard before.

When I asked for elephant jokes through this column, the response overwhelmed me. I'm probably the only fellow in Canada with a private collection of 200 elephant jokes — but they're all at least one-year-old.

What happened to the elephants?

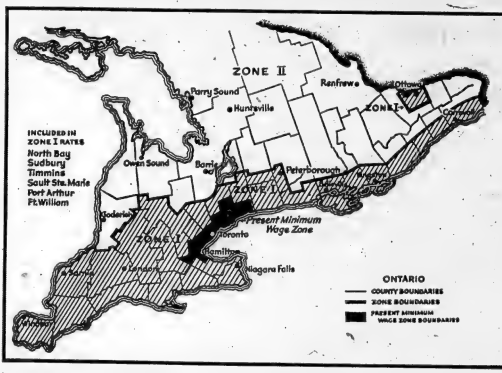
Minimum Wage Extended Throughout Ontario

Last year, Minimum Wage legislation was introduced in the Toronto-Hamilton-Oshawa industrial area. It proved highly successful, and as a result, I am pleased to announce an early extension of it throughout the entire Province beginning on June 29. I ask you now to read the following highlights carefully to establish exactly how this vital and progressive piece of legislation will benefit you.

HON. H. L. ROWNTREE, Q.C.
Minister of Labour



Reduced to its simplest terms, the new Minimum Wage Orders, implemented and enforced by your Ontario Department of Labour, are designed to protect every working man and woman in the Province from exploitation, and set a minimum wage of $1.00 an hour ($1.25 in the construction industry).

The Orders, now in effect in the Toronto-Hamilton-Oshawa "horseshoe", will be extended throughout the entire Province on June 29. However, so that employers will have sufficient time to adjust to and absorb the higher rates, the Orders must be carried out in stages.

Briefly, here's how your Ontario Department of Labour plans to go about it. The Province will be divided into two Zones. Zone I takes in the more heavily populated and industrialized areas and centres. In this Zone, the $1.00 Minimum Wage will be achieved not later than March of next year. In Zone 2, covering the remainder of the Province, the wage will be achieved by December of next year.

In the Construction Industry, the Minimum Wage of $1.25 an hour will be reached in the same manner in both Zones.

SPECIAL GROUPS

The General Minimum Wage Order does not apply to: Registered apprentices; camp counsellors or students employed in certain recreational programs; apartment house janitors who live in; real estate and insurance salesmen and salesmen who determine their own hours; professional persons and teachers; domestic servants; farm labourers.

Special rates (80¢ in Zone 1 and 75¢ in Zone 2) apply in the following cases: A student who does not work more than 28 hours a week; a seasonal worker processing perishable fruits and vegetables who does not work more than 16 weeks in a year.*

Special rates (60¢ in Zone 1 and 50¢ in Zone 2) apply in the following cases: Delivery boys, messengers, newsvendors, pinsetters, caddies who are under 18 years of age.*

*In both special rates categories, the Zone I rates will apply in Zone 2 on December 27, 1965.

EMPLOYERS NOTE

Where employees are being paid on a piece-work basis, if at least four-fifths of them are earning at least the minimum wage, you will be considered as complying with the Orders.

Learner Rates are as follows: Where employees are on a piece-work basis, learners may be paid 20¢ less than the prescribed minimum rate for the first three months of employment, and 10¢ less for the second three months. In all other cases, learners may be paid 10¢ less than the prescribed minimum for first four months of employment. The Hotel and Restaurant Order establishes a special learner rate 10¢ lower than the prescribed minimum rate for the first month of employment.

Your Ontario Department of Labour stresses the fact that these are just the highlights of the new Minimum Wage Orders. To find out exactly what the Orders mean to you, please write: THE LABOUR STANDARDS BRANCH, THE ONTARIO DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR, 74 VICTORIA STREET, TORONTO 1, ONTARIO, or telephone 365-5251

Lands 12-Pound Pickerel From Bay

Jack Wardaugh Hooks Beauty

He was cruising around the bay some 150 yards south of the CPR bridge unaware that today he became legal game and that two "Walleye Derbies" were under way.

He took another look at the shining silver flatfish that wiggled in a tantalizing manner a few yards away.

Then he made the break. He hit and he hard.

At the other end fishing buff Jack Wardhaugh was nearly yanked out of the boat.

Then began a tough battle that lasted some twenty-minutes.

A few minutes prior to the big strike Jack first saw what looked like an eight-pounder slip off the hook.

This time he meant business.

Finally he boated the beauty, took it to Bobs Sporta Shop where it tipped the scales at 12 pounds three ounces.

Later he took it to Picton where he entered it in the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce Fishing Derby.

Taking into consideration that last year's first prize went to a fourteen-pounder, it seems Jack's entry should be well up in the money.

The Belleville Fish and Game Pickerel Derby also starts today through Sunday. This is restricted to the bay and mouth of the Moira waters.

Plan to Boost Seaway Tolls Now Under Way

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority is seeking cabinet backing for a plan to boost seaway tolls by about 10 per cent, reliable sources say.

If the cabinet gives the go-ahead, the stage will be set for.

1. A resumption of toll talks between the Canadian seaway authority and its United States counterpart, the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

2. Public hearings on the toll question in Washington and Ottawa, at which all interested parties would submit their views.

3. A formal proposal by the two seaway agencies to their respective governments on the future level of tolls on the international waterway.

Although cabinet approval is not necessary at this stage, the Canadian seaway authority is understood to want the government's views before pressing its position in its talks with its U.S. partner.

The U.S. seaway body is reported to be opposed to an increase in tolls at this time.

WOULD KEEP TRAFFIC

The Canadian position, based on a detailed economic study of seaway traffic over the last five years, is that an increase is justified to provide extra revenue to meet seaway costs. The studies indicate that a 10-per-cent boost would not force seaway traffic to other routes or to other forms of transport.

The Canadian seaway authority is reported to favor increases in tolls of 15 cents a ton on general cargo and five cents a ton on bulk cargo. This would raise the general cargo rate to $1 from 90 cents and the bulk cargo rate to 45 cents from 40 cents. A charge based on the gross registered tonnage of ships would be raised to nine from six cents.

Canada spent three times as much as the U.S. in building the multi-million-dollar waterway between Montreal and Lake Ontario. It collects about 71 cents of every toll dollar, with the rest going to the United States.

Hal C. Banks, Who Bucked Big People on Waterfront, Now Sees Empire Crumbling

OTTAWA (CP) — Hal C. Banks has bucked some big people in his rumbustious life on the waterfront.

As head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, he thumbed his nose at governments, cowed some of Canada's biggest shipowners and blithely ignored public criticism.

He never pretended to be a patsy. He was big and tough, a movieland version of a waterfront labor czar.

He liked the big time—flashy cars, night clubs, power boats, high living.

Wielding the power to hire and fire seamen on Canadian ships, Banks built himself an empire of affluence and authority that seemed unassailable.

Now his labor empire is crumbling.

It took the censure of organized labor, the condemnation of a public investigation, the weight of public opinion and the authority of Parliament to dislodge him from his throne.

HE'S DEPOSED

An outcast in the Canadian labor movement, he was deposed as SIU president in March. He promptly was given a $20,000-a-year job with the SIU of North America, his old union alma mater.

Another chapter is being written in the saga of Harold Charnberlain Banks, the landlubber from Waterloo, Iowa, who clawed his way to prominence as Canada's most controversial labor leader.

The 55-year-old Banks stood before a court of justice in Montreal Thursday to hear judgment on a charge of conspiracy in connection with a shipboard riot inflicted seven years ago on a rival union leader.

He denied the charge.

"I have been a union official in Canada for 15 years and in the U.S. before that," he testified at his trial.

He found out long ago that violence won't get you anywhere in this type of case. One of my big gifts to him has been to keep violence down, because it.

"That is why I would tell the boys to keep their hands in their pockets."

CALLED VIOLENT

But a federal inquiry into SIU affairs portrayed him as a violent, lawless man who held monopoly control of both seamen and shipowners through gangster tactics.

In the process, he built himself a luxurious home in suburban Montreal, stocked with the finest liquors. For a while, he rented a plush downtown Montreal apartment and used union money to furnish it lavishly, including $1,800, worth of mirrors.

He collected $20,000 a year as sea pay, plus another $20,000 as expense money.

Banks stands taller than six feet and weighs more than 360 pounds. He has a chunky face that can shift swiftly from a frightening scowl to a rather charming smile.

When he smokes a cigarette he grips it between his teeth so that it waggles when he talks.

Due to a back injury, he walks with a swagger.

DECLINE STARTS

The decline of Hal Banks began just before dawn on the morning of Thursday, July 5, 1962.

That was the day workers on the locks of the St. Lawrence Seaway began boycotting ships manned by SIU crews. They wanted a government investigation of the Seafarers' Union and an end to a reign of terror that had swept the shipping industry.

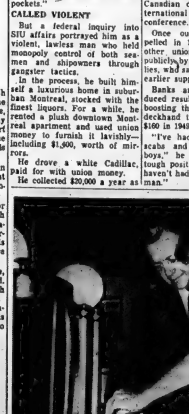
The boycott forced the Conservative government to name Mr Justice T. G. Norris as a one-man commission of inquiry.

After almost a year of public hearings, Judge Norris handed in a sizzling two-volume report that described the SIU as a corrupt organization, used by Banks to "terrorize" seamen into less rule over shipping on the Great Lakes."

The Norris report, in turn, led to parliamentary action to impose government trusteeship on the SIU and four other maritime unions.

Banks came to Canada in 1949 as an agent of organized labor, some prominent shipowners and the Liberal government of that time.

His job was to get rid of the Canadian Seamen's Union, a Communist - run organization that had disrupted shipping in the post-war years.



METHODS DESCRIBED

Judge Norris said Banks "bludgeoned" his way to power, then used lawless and violent means to build himself a dictatorship based on fear and intimidation.

Once outside the CLC—expelled in 1960 for raiding another union—he was attacked publicly by his former labor allies, who said they erred in their earlier support.

Banks argued that he produced results for his members, boosting the monthly pay of a deckhand to $329 in 1962 from $160 in 1949.

"I've had to fight finks and scabs and look out for my own self," he once said. "It's a tough position and sometimes I haven't had time to be a gentleman."

QUINTE HOTEL'S COFFEE SHOP won a "Golden Cup" award from the Coffee Brewing Institute Inc. for the fourth year running, this year. The award is presented by the non-profit organization to coffee shops and restaurants whose coffee meets the Institute's standards. In the picture, Coffee Shop manager Brendan Galvin fills the golden cup for customer Raymond Riley of Belleville.

The canteen in the Federal building on Station Street is in charge of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and has operated successfully for over two years. It is one of about 35 across Canada opened in Federal, Provincial, and Industrial plants for the convenience of the employees.

CNIB Operates Successful Canteen at Federal Building

After two years of operation the canteen run by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has proved a most successful undertaking.

Housed in the basement of the Federal building this canteen is one of about 35 across Canada which the Institute has equipped and put into service in Federal, Provincial and industrial buildings.

These canteens are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Welfare and this department decides what food can be served, it sets the prices that can be charged, and it controls the sizes of the portions of food, even to the measurements of a slice of pie.

The service is used mainly by employees at the Federal building, and about 200 eat there at noon, and besides their coffee breaks there morning and afternoon. Because the prices are kept low to accommodate employees of the civil service the Institute is not charged any rent for the premises. The Institute however furnishes and equips the concessions.

After some initial difficulty finding the place (from the Post Office this reporter was directed to the main building, then was directed downstairs, and came face to face with a door marked "Health of Animals" which seemed to indicate a wrong direction) the coffee shop was finally discovered and it was explained that no signs could be put up in a Federal building, and anyway since the employees were mainly the ones who used it, they knew the way.

There are fourteen tables in use at the canteen and it is self-service. The surroundings are clean and pleasant. It is open from seven in the morning until four in the afternoon. There are three women employees, two full time and one part time, who prepare the food and assist with the serving. All profits are turned over to the C.N.I.B.

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The current hiatus in Commons study of redistribution is expected to continue for another few weeks and be followed by a showdown among contending political forces, informants say.

Redistribution has been pending before Parliament for more than a year. The current plan —to redraw the map of constituency boundaries through an independent commission for each province—struck a major snag last week.

After a three-day effort to get the legislation moving, it was beached tearfully while the Commons turned to other matters.

But informants say the effort will be renewed. For the moment, priority is to be given to such matters as the budget bills, a new draft of the Canada Pension Plan and, possibly, a national labor code.

When the redistribution bill reappears for study, an uninterrupted drive is being planned to decide its fate. Liberals and New Democrats contend the Progressive Conservatives intend to filibuster in hopes of forcing removal of features to which the Conservatives object.

DISCUSS MANNER

The immediate holdup last week was a proposal by the New Democrats on the manner of electing personnel of the 10 redistribution commissions.

Originally it was proposed that two members of each commission be picked by the prime minister and the leader of the opposition. Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay has been designated a member of each commission and the chief justice of each province was to name a chairman from among his fellow judges.

However, the New Democrats proposed that, instead of the prime minister and the opposition leader each selecting a member for each commission, the provincial chief justice should make these selections.

Although the Liberals generally were agreeable to the idea the Conservatives objected at length, effectively stalling the bill.

Nevertheless, this point isn't regarded by most MPs as the only stumbling block. The Conservatives have made it plain their major objection centres on another provision relating to variations in constituency size.

SET BY POPULATION

Under the bill, a target-size constituency for each province is determined by dividing the number of Commons seats into the total population of the province.

The bill would permit a variation of 20 per cent above or below this figure.

The Conservatives want variation of 25 per cent with a greater variation still in special cases of far-flung, sparsely-populated constituencies. They made a similar proposal in a bill placed before Parliament in 1962 but not enacted.

The Liberals are said to be willing to stretch the tolerance to 25 per cent. The New Democrats want a tolerance of less than 20 per cent but are reported willing to go along with a higher figure. Opinion in the Social Credit and Creditiste parties on this point isn't clear.

However, it appears there are enough members on both sides of the House in favor of reaching a final decision to ensure a showdown when the bill comes up for debate again.

No Hospital Bed Available Jury Is Told

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Suresh Anand, resident physician at the New Liskeard District Hospital here, told a coroner's jury Thursday he would have admitted heart victim Kenneth Kirpan, 63, the day before he died but no beds were available.

Dr. Anand said Mr. Kirpan was sent home on two different days after complaining of increasing chest pains.

The doctor said the day prior to Mr. Kirpan's death on March 26 he had tried to have the patient admitted to two other Toronto hospitals but again no beds were available, except for dire emergency.

Mr. Kirpan was sent home, with instructions to rest in bed. He died of aortic stenosis, which often results in sudden death.

Jurors made no recommendations. They found that hospitals were not to blame for failure to find a bed for Mr. Kirpan.

Debate Session Explodes Into Procedural Mess

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid cries of "closure" the Commons' experimental late-night adjournment debate session exploded into a procedural uproar Thursday night.

In spite of vain attempts by Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to maintain order, MPs wrangled over points of order and privilege with the result that only one of the scheduled three 10-minute debates took place.

Transport Minister Pickersgill was precluded from making an expected statement on air policy in the Commons, and Health Macquarrie (PC—Queens) was unable to speak on the proposed Passamaquoddy power project.

B and B Commission Hears Case for English Canada

REGINA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was told over and over Thursday night that French - Canadians should become English-speaking Canadians.

If all Canadians spoke English the problems of national unity would be solved and Quebec would keep up with the rest of North America, agreed the majority of the speakers at a commission meeting attended by 400 persons from all walks of life.

The majority view was that French Canada has condemned itself to an old-fashioned "pastoral economy" and "backward" educational system by thinking of itself as a set, separate language and culture.

Social and technological progress would, come only if the French - speaking majority in Quebec adopted English.

Commission co-chairman Davidson Dunton was moved to remark at one point that English-speaking Canadians cannot ignore the fact that more than 5 000,000 Canadians are determined to "speak French for a long time to come."

His colleague Frank Scott, McGill University constitutional expert, observed that legal guarantees to a distinct French-Canadian group date back to the Utrecht treaty of 1713 and have been strengthened by the British North America Act and other constitutional documents.

CALL FOR RIGHTS

A few speakers called for expanded educational rights for Indians, French-Canadians and children of Ukrainian and other European origins, but the theme running through the date was "One Canada."

A typical comment was made by an unidentified German immigrant amid loud applause:

"Let the French learn English—they're in the minority. It won't do them any harm."

Another well-received comment was: "Why divide up this country by bringing in other official languages? Bilingualism is detrimental to a country. Look at Cyprus and Viet Nam."

Frank L. Bastedo, Conservative appointed lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan from 1958 until last year and a Regina lawyer, said Quebec has fallen far behind in economic and educational terms because French - Canadians "have set their face against learning English."

"French-Canadians who move to the United States become good American citizens and learn English. They can't then do the same thing in Canada?"

He regretted the fact that the federal government had gone far beyond the constitution in adopting bilingualism. The introduction of bilingual currency and government cheques had "irritated" many more than French - Canadians deserved.

WANTS ROUNDUP

Reeve Gabriel Gaschler of Southey, 40 miles north of here, said the RCMP should round up all Quebec residents who are threatening to assassinate Queen Elizabeth before her scheduled visit to Quebec City in October.

He said bilingualism is not a problem in Saskatchewan. Many persons of French origin he knew no longer could speak French. "We never heard about Quebec until six months ago."

Another participant said Quebec is undergoing a social revolution. The values and beliefs of the past were being rejected one by one by French-Canadians.

The exterior manifestations of this revolution were mainly perpetrated by French-Canadians who blew up mailboxes and stole weapons from the army in their spare time, he said.

About 70 community leaders and professional people attended informal group discussions in the morning and afternoon. They generally were receptive to suggestions for voluntary instruction in French, Ukrainian and the languages of other ethnic minorities in elementary schools.

Roland Pinsonneault, a Saskatchewan Wheat Pool official and a spokesman for the French-speaking town of Gravelbourg, 125 miles west of here, called for official recognition of French by the Saskatchewan government.

The 45,000 French-speaking residents of the province wanted to preserve their ethnic identity.

By GUY RONDEAU

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was told Thursday Quebec refuses to converse with the rest of the country and that's perhaps the big factor in the difficulties wedged between Canada's two main ethnic groups.

The opinion was expressed by some of the 250 persons who took part in a regional hearing by the commission. Later they broke into two groups to study some of the issues.

Windsor is an industrial centre of 115,000 population in southwestern Ontario. About 30,000 inhabitants are of French speaking origin, making them the largest minority group.

Participants in the session gave personal experiences to support their statements that Quebecers refuse to meet with their English-speaking countrymen.

A woman who lived in Thetford Mines, Que., for 14 years said the French-speaking Canadians were amiable and hospitable but they simply refused to speak English.

FOUND RESISTANCE

Others said they found a similar resistance in Montreal but in Quebec City the situation was different, probably because the ancient walled provincial capital was an important tourist centre.

They said the two peoples had to find a common meeting ground or else the whole thing will exist. A "true Canadianism" had to be developed. The question was should it be based on one of the two main cultures or on multiculturalism?

Gerald Laurendeau, co-chairman of the commission, said prior to the opening of the session that the main purpose of the commission is to find out if English- and French-speaking Canadians want to—and can—live together.

If they could, under what conditions are they to live as conditions acceptable to both groups?

Mr. Laurendeau said the commission's mandate also extended to another vital area and this includes others than English or French.

QUEBEC BLAMED

The commission was told the French language and cultures would not have suffered so much in this area had Quebec despatched French teachers to keep both alive years ago.

Gerald Potvin, one of the 250 persons attending discussion groups sponsored by the commission and the University of Windsor, said his own family's French roots were withering.

Mr. Potvin said there is no longer a French-language newspaper in Windsor and few of the Roman Catholic churches conduct services in French. At one time, he said, all the churches used both English and French in sermons and announcements.

RECEIVES COMPUTERS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada has taken delivery at its head office of the first of two computers designed to handle all monthly telephone accounts. Along with a Toronto computer centre, they will cover Bell's Ontario and Quebec territory.

Identify Most Of Over 8,000 Flying Objects

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force has investigated more than 8000 reported unidentified flying objects in 16 years "and has yet to discover any evidence that they represent a "threat to U.S. security.

It also said that investigations of such sightings back to 1947 have failed to turn up any evidence that the objects are "alien interplanetary space vehicles under some form of intelligent control."

This report was furnished to The Associated Press as the USAF looked into a new epidemic of strange sightings in Alaskies over New Mexico.

A leading civilian consultant has gone to Socorro, N.M., to investigate the latest reports. He is Dr. J. Allen Hynek, director of the Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern University.

The latest report on Project Bluebook, the congressionally ordered study of unidentified flying objects, extends through 1963.

MOST CLEARED UP

It shows that in that 16-year span 7.7 per cent of the 8,128 reported cases have remained unidentified.

The air force is not conceding that there is anything sinister about the unexplained sightings. It just says, in effect, they can't be correlated with any known objects or phenomena.

It was stressed that a "great majority of the unidentified cases occurred during the first five years of the project," before analysis techniques were sharpened.

Last year there were 382 unidentified flying objects reported and only 13 are still listed as unidentified.

These include "two objects described as an ear of corn and a banana which performed a series of manoeuvres near Vandalia, Ohio" last Sept. 18.

Others involved "an unusual observation of four pink wheels" moving west over New Jersey, an object that exploded into a ball of fire near St. Gen, Scotland, and a recurring series of flashes near Warrenville, Ill.

ARTIST AND SAILOR — Bill Rudolph, 31-year-old artist and sailor, hangs from the bowsprit of his yacht Seawyf which he built. Born in Germany, he came to Canada 10 years ago and went into the boat building business in Vancouver where he built and sold 40 small boats before starting on his yacht. After spending 20 months in the South Pacific he has returned to Vancouver for two months to paint murals of a new cabaret.

Interrupts Sailing Trip To Paint a Few Murals

He doesn't often let painting interfere with sailing but it happens occasionally, right now for example.

After spending 20 months in the South Seas, he has returned to Vancouver for two months of painting. Then it will be back to sea.

Rudolph left here July 18, 1962, intending to sail around the world in his 40-foot ketch schooner Seawyf. He didn't get quite that far but he managed to see 50 Pacific islands.

With him was crew member Virginia Cook, 22, of Alert Bay, B.C., "a natural-born sailor" who took charge of the schooner in Honolulu when Rudolph returned here.

For despite the proportionately great amount of time Rudolph devotes to sailing, his reputation as an artist is rising. And when a new resort here wanted some murals it called on Rudolph.

A native of Germany, Rudolph came to Canada 10 years ago and landed in Toronto with $5. He worked as a boat carrier for a short time before coming here.

BUILT BOATS

He went into the boat-building business and sold 40 small craft before starting on the Seawyf. It took him two years to complete the hull and another two for the rigging.

A handsome, stocky, blond man, Rudolph is an experienced navigator and, if necessary, cook. Of the five yachts that left here for the South Seas in 1962, Seawyf was the only one to reach New Zealand. Some got no farther than San Diego, Calif.

Between Tahiti and New Zealand, where the Seawyf put in last September, Rudolph had two crew members, Miss Cook and a Tahitian girl named Terai Mairaia Mara (Sky Without Clouds). Terai spoke no English and the common language aboard was a mixture of Tahitian and French.

Rudolph, who visited such islands as the Marquesas, Cook Island, Samoa and Fiji, had intended to continue his voyage westward by way of the Orient but changed his mind when the passport commission called.

His travels haven't been without incident—"I've experienced everything the ocean has to offer, including a storm on the edge of the roaring 40s in which a wave carried away the jib, stove in the bulwarks and forced cashing of the ship's seams"—but he says boating yachtsmen shouldn't let things like that worry them.

"Don't let yourself be talked out of it," he says. "If you listen to everyone's advice, you're doomed from the start."

Sunday School Lesson

Honoring God With Work

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

It is said that Thomas Edison's wife once asked her famous husband where he would rather go than any place else in the world, and he replied, "My laboratory," not every one is fortunate enough to like his work as much as did Thomas Edison, but most people have to work, and most people get pleasure, as well as income, from their work.

The work we do, and how we do it, is important in the eyes of God. When the Bible tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, strength, and mind, it is not dividing up up into 4 to 6 parts. It is saying we cannot love God with the mind and not the heart, or with the heart and not the will. We cannot love Him with our prayers and not our pleasures, or with our worship and not our work. Everything we do is important in God who asks us to work, "Establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands, establish thou it." (Psalm 90: 17)

WORK IS IMPORTANT

The Bible sets a high premium on the importance of work. It pokes fun at lazy people. One modern Bible scholar, using a rather free translation, translates Proverbs 26:13 to read, "The lazy man sits idle; he says 'There might be a lion outside'." And Proverbs 26:14, "Like a door swinging on a rusty hinge, the lazy man turns over in bed."

Jesus began life as a worker. When He started to preach, people said, "Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary?" (Mark 6:3) Of His ministry Jesus said: "My Father is working still, and I am working." (John 5:17) When certain Christians got around idle walking for Christ's return, Paul laid down a very blunt rule: "If any man will not work, let him eat not." (II Thessalonians 3:10)

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 3: Earning Living," Luke 12: 13-34; 16:1-13; I Thessalonians 4:9-12.

Most people have to work to earn a living. Jesus knew we must work in this world. He said, "Which of you desiring to build a tower, does not first sit down and count the cost, whether he has enough to complete it?" (Luke 14:28) But how do we earn it? Employment is no longer a simple problem. It is tied in with management-labor problems, mass production, the development of automation and the growth of population. Government is private enterprise must work together to attack such problems as poverty, unemployment, inflation, recession, and old-age insecurity. In addition to all this, there is the age-old problem of man's dishonesty and greed. What does do when he faces an unscrupulous competitor? What does one do when his employer asks him for do something that violates his conscience? How does one remain Christian in to work, and most people get the face of a dishonest employer, employee, or customer?

If anyone thinks Jesus did not know what was going on in the world, that He walked around all the time with His head up in the clouds, let him read Luke 12:13-34 and Luke 16:1-13. The first passage has to do with a successful farmer who spent all his time and energy providing for his material security. When his barns were filled to overflowing, he said, "Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years. Take your ease. . ." But he used the wrong word. He hadn't thought about his soul at all, only about his stomach. And when, that very night, God said to him, "Your soul is required of you," he died without spiritual security. Of what good were his overflowing barns to him after he was dead? Then he discovered he should have been "rich toward God."

IS OUT WORK HONEST?

The second story is harder to understand. A certain owner had an overseer who was dishonest. When he was found out, and of about to be fired, he cleverly ingratiated himself with some of his employer's tenants so they would give him some help after he lost his job. His employer did not commend his ethics in this regard. The man was still a "dishonest steward," and was still fired for his past dishonesty and I am serving." (John 5:17) When certain Christians got around idle walking for Christ's return, Paul laid down a very blunt rule: "If any man will not work, let him eat not." (I Thessalonians 3:10)

The meaning of the story is obvious. Some men are diabolically clever in the way they amass material security. If only men were as realistic, as concerned, as forward-looking in making sure of their eternal security. What we amass in this world, we keep at death. If we use our money, Jesus called it "unrighteous mammon" to help others, some day we will be on the welcoming committee to greet us when we enter the "eternal habitations."

Intelligence and Efficiency In ...

Picton Guards Set 'No-nonsense' New Look for Army

...Bluster, Blind Loyalty Out

By CARL MOLLINS

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — John Hayter is 29, blond and athletic, a dynamic version of TV's Dr. Kildare.

Sitting behind a desk neat with in and out trays, conservatively clothed in grey jacket and slacks, precise when he answers a question or issues an order, he could be the well-trained junior executive of any corporation.

The shoulders - back bearing even when rested and a crisper-than-usual manner hint at the fact that this junior executive is a captain of the Queen rather than a captain of industry.

Capt. Hayter, born in Vegreville, Alta., and veteran of a dozen years in the army, is adjutant of the 1st Canadian Guards, newly designated Canada's standby force for duty anywhere since the 1st Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment went to Cyprus in March.

The young adjutant in some ways typifies the businesslike mood of the army in its developing role of providing air-portable peace-keeping forces.

The emphasis is on intelligence and efficiency. Bluster and blind loyalty are out — along with aging field officers and aimless hours of labor in the spit-and-polish vein.

CO THE SOURCE

The fountainhead of this no-nonsense approach in the 1st Guards—and a pattern that the Capt. Hayters evidently copy—is found fittingly in the commanding officer, Lt.-Col. H. W. (Willie) Mulherin of Grand Falls, N.B.

"Willie Mulherin has done a lot to humanize the Guards," says a fellow officer in another unit in reference to the Mulherin belief that problems of discipline and morale melt amid productive work and achievement.

Col. Mulherin, 42, is a veteran of the Italian and Northwest European campaigns who won the George Medal for rescuing a South African pilot from an explosives-laden Spitfire that crashed and caught fire on the road to Rimini.

Following the war, he took four years out of the regular army—"trying to peddle potatoes in Grand Falls — and rejoined in 1951 to accompany the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion to Germany as a company commander.

He was with the truce commission in Indochina for 14 months in 1954-55 and spent 1958 at the Australian Staff College when he met his wife, the former Margaret McPhee of Melbourne. They have a son and a daughter.

TOOK COMMAND

He was senior major—Guards terminology for second-in-command — for 18 months before taking command for the battalion's tour with NATO in Germany. There the unit distinguished itself by becoming the first Canadian outfit to win the prized Prix Leclerc for small-arms skills over all other NATO forces in Europe.

"Very young, very vigorous, very incisive," says a junior Guards officer in unfeigned admiration of the CO. "He has a fantastically quick mind. He's flexible, too—quick to grasp a changed situation."

Col. Mulherin grasped the changed situation when a telephone call from Ottawa March 16 informed him that 1st Canadian Guards was on standby after three months on routine training following their return from Germany in December.

Thirty commissioned and non-commissioned officers were dispatched that week to the Joint Air Training Centre at Rivers, Man., for a two-week course on how to transport an 800-strong infantry battalion by air.

The CO established liaison with his RCAF neighbors at Air Transport Command in Trenton, 30 miles from this Lake Ontario community, to arrange for use of a Hercules or Yukon aircraft to instruct his men in loading and unloading themselves, their vehicles and weapons.

TAPPED EXPERIENCE

Col. Mulherin found the right experience in his own unit to draft a training program in readiness for the most likely type of assignment — a United Nations peace-keeping mission with emphasis on crowd control, policing duties and political awareness.

Maj. Andrew Maxwell, a former member of the British colonial police and the King's African Rifles in Tanganyika, worked out a training program with Capt. Michael Bowater, a paratrooper with Cyprus experience on an exchange tour of duty from Britain's Scots Guards.

Capt. Bowater, whose father is City of London alderman and whose Uncle Noel is on the board of Bowater Pulp and Paper Corporation, says he is impressed by the high standard of the Canadian Guards. A 10th-anniversary trooping the color parade at Camp Picton last October was "the best ceremonial parade I've seen," including his own regiment's in London.

The Maxwell - Bowater training program will include instruction in the use of riot sticks and shields, tear gas and loud hailers as well as more subtle practices such as how to stop violence before it starts.

The aim of the CO is to be trained, equipped and ready to go within 10 weeks of the standby order—by June 1—and then the battalion will be tested in a full airlift, probably to Camp Gagetown, N.B., and in six weeks or so of manoeuvres.

"We'll be ready for anything anywhere then," says Col. Mulherin.

Fear Outposts Will Be Hit by Food Shortage

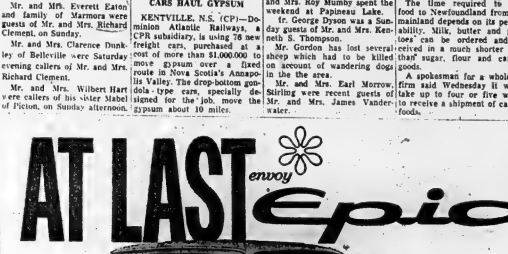
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Transportation officials fear Newfoundland's outports will be hit by a food shortage if a longshoremen's strike here continues into the middle of May. In St. John's there is talk of hoarding.

Many small communities along the coast, serviced only by sea, receive food and supplies by Canadian National Railways coastal ships loaded in St. John's by the longshoremen.

A CNR spokesman said the strike, now in its sixth day, could have an adverse effect on this operation should it continue into May.

The Longshoremen's Protective Union (Ind.) called the strike shortly after the St. John's Employers Association diverted their ship from the harbor last Friday.

The Association, which represents shipping companies, said it must have a greater say in the setting of work hours and positions of work gangs.



The union says this would go against "what we have worked for for years."

The longshoremen are picketing the harbor, preventing the unloading of some ships.

Should the strike continue, it may be impossible for some foodstuffs to be brought into the St. John's area within the next month.

The time required to ship food to Newfoundland from the mainland depends on its perishability. Milk, butter and potatoes can be ordered and received in a much shorter time than sugar, flour and canned goods.

A spokesman for a wholesale firm said Wednesday it would take up to four or five weeks to receive a shipment of canned foods.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

THE CUSTOMERS ALWAYS WRITE

Since this department exercised its Doggerel Licence 9687653428 the other day we have been in receipt of several "doggies", some good, some not so hot.. Here's one of the better ones from Varn Whalen, Point Anne:

GORDIE HOWE
Behind the net he steals the puck,
Now at his start an egg to duck,
Slowely now he's at his line,
Now we see him, Number Nine.

Big "M" and Baun he leaves mid-ice,
Behind the bench Punch" throws his dice;
Stanley's got him? No, he's gone,
Bower's out—the light is on. (Not bad, kid.)

Who on the Leafs is so great;
No one there can lace his skate.
They can take the Cup and bow,
But Gordie's the greatest—and Howe!

From J. M. K. (out of town):
Mr. C. I think you're nuts,
With all your ifs and whys and buts,
You guys are saddled with your griefs,
But us? Yippeee, the Maple Leafs!

Comment:
Mr. K. Thanks for your verse,
It could be better, also worse.
This year—yes—you have no squawks,
But next year, watch 'em; Yep, the Hawks.

From K. L. Y.:
Come, Mr. Carver, use your head.
We know it can't grow hair,
You rant and rave about the Wings
It got you what, nowhere!

Comment:
Mrs. Y.. I've heard you are
A housewife kind and sweet,
But I'll inform you grass won't grow
Upon a busy street.
(Yeah, yeah, I know, it cannot push its way through the concrete).

* * *

From H. E. T.:
Come, come, Carver, quit your squawks,
I know you're sold for the Hawks,
'Ever mention in your blabs
About the "champions"—Yeah—the Habs?

Comment:
Dear Mr. T. I "got" your words.
The playoffs?. Strictly for the birds.
With all your yips, and yaps and yans,
The champions? Les Canadiens.

BASEBALL

George Barr, well known major baseball leagues umpire, will conduct an umpires' clinic at Trenton Station RCAF in the near future, Meanwhile Mr. Barr will be the guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon next Monday.

Speaking of umpires recalls the story of an incident that occurred at Dallas in April, 1940, when the home team was hosting Oklahoma City. It was announced that a "surprise" was awaiting the fans and would they please be quiet in their seats.

Just before game time the park organist began playing "Those Blind Mice." Then out of the clubhouse, marching single file, came a line of umpires—34 of them altogether. They paraded silently on the field, lined up facing the grandstand. The music stopped and then it went to go with a tremendous "boo." It was the first time in history that umpires have had the pleasure of hooing the fans.

The thirty-four umpires were associated with the West Texas-New Mexico League and had been attending a meeting in Dallas for the purpose of working out their season assignments.

Tournament of Champions

Ford Leads Starry Field

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP) — Doug Ford, who strides around the golf course like a man late for a dinner appointment, is one of the best on the professional circuit as well as the fastest.

The 41-year-old Ford, winner of last year's Canadian Open, was in top form Thursday as he put together a five-under-par 67 for the first-round lead in the $65,000 Tournament of Champions.

A stroke behind him was the defending champion and one of the tournament favorites, Jack Nicklaus, who matched Ford's 34 on the front nine but lost a stroke to the rapid-firing veteran on the way home.

Gary Player was one of six golfers shooting 71 and the par 72s included Arnold Palmer, United States Open champion Julius Boros, Art Wall and George Knudson of Toronto, the lone Canadian in the field of 29.

Govt. Honors Sportsmen

TORONTO (CP) — Forty-five coaches, athletes and sports organizers will be honored Tuesday with the first provincial achievement awards recognizing distinguished contributions to physical fitness and amateur sport.

They will receive framed certificates in a ceremony in the Ontario legislative chamber.

Among recipients will be Nancy McCredie, Brampton; Fred Hamilton, Guelph, curling; W. E. McKay, Oakville, Willy Mueller, Red Rock, swimming; Lealie Skilper, St. Marys and A. E. Sterling, Chatham, baseball; Keith Wiese, Cornunna, and Wilhelm Weller, Camp Borden, gymnastics.

Abel Voted Coach For Game ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Five Hawks Make Top All-Star Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Moe Abel, coach of Chicago Black Hawks.

No, Abel hasn't deserted Detroit. But he will coach the National Hockey League all-star team this year and the 1963-64 squad of superstars is, in effect, Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks, who fared in the stretch to lose the NHL title by a point for the second straight year and then bowed out in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, fared differently in the all-star balloting. Five Hawks grabbed positions on the first team and only Toronto defenceman Tim Horton spoiled a Chicago sweep.

Horton won't play for the All-Stars in the annual clash with the Stanley Cup champions in October. His services will be required by the cup-winning Maple Leafs and Chicago's Elmer Vasko will move up from the second team.

Abel, All-Star coach because he was runnerup in the Stanley Cup playoffs, left left with a starting lineup of Black Hawks for the traditional spectacular.

Bobby Hull and Kenny Wharram will patrol the wings with Stan Mikita at centre and goalie Glenn Hall will be supported by defencemen Pierre Pilote and Vasko. Hull, NHL goal-scoring leader with 43, was the only player to poll a unanimous 150 points in voting by 13 sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities.

THIS IS THE TEAM

First team:

Goal—Glenn Hall (132); defence—Pierre Pilote (168) and Horton (134); Centre—Stan Mikita (145); left wing—Hull (150); right wing — Ken Wharram (144).

Second team: ....

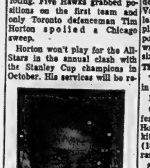
Goal—Charlie Hodge, Montreal (97); defence—Vasko (94) and Jacques Laperriere, Montreal (43); centre—Jean Ratelle, Montreal (117); left wing — Frank Mahovlich, Toronto (44); right wing—Gordie Howe, Detroit (113).

The only change from the all-star team after 25 games was the insertion of Mikita at centre in place of Jean Beliveau. The Canadiens playmaker slipped slightly from his first-half brilliance while Mikita won the scoring title and outpolled the leader 85-35 in the second half to offset an 82-40 deficit.

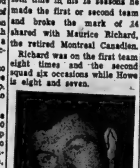
Three players who made the first-half second team were dislodged as goalie Charlie Hodge and defenceman Jacques Laperriere of Montreal ousted Johnny Bower and Bob Baun of Toronto. The third, Dave Balon of Montreal, had been sided with Mahovlich but was left in a cloud of ice-shavings in the second half.

The N.L. awards $1,000 to members of the first place team and $500 to runnersup. Cheques of $500 and $250 go to those selected at each half.

Hull, Wharram and Pilote took jackpot prizes of $2,000 while Hall and Mikita pick up $1,750 each. Hodge and Vasko get $1,000 and Mahovlich and Laperriere $750. Bower, Baun, and Balon get $250 and so does New York's Camille Henry, who made the second team in the last half.



FINISH STRONG



Hodge and Laperriere were strong finishers. Hodge has been a minor leaguer most of his career and Laperriere is only a rookie—and a threat to capture the Calder Trophy in that category.

Hull made the team for the third time in five years and Mikita was a top selection for the third straight season. It was Pilote's second consecutive choice, Hall's third appearance and the initial first team election for Horton and Wharram.

Howe's second team selection added another record to his mounting collection. It was the 18th time in his 18 seasons he made the first or second team and broke the mark of 16 shared with Maurice Richard, the retired Montreal Canadien.

Richard was on the first team eight times and the second squad six occasions while Howe is eight and seven.

Dave Feeney Heads Loop

An election of officers was the main item on the agenda as the Commercial Softball League held another meeting last night.

Dave Feeney is the loop's new president with Don Smith moving from the president's chair to the position of vice-president. Ron Ferguson was elected secretary-treasurer.

The manager from each team will complete the league's executive body.

Six teams are expected to take part in the league this season. They are Barriage Landscapers, City Hotel, Lightfoot Construction, the Belleville Jaycees, Black Diamond Cheese and Point Anne. The latter two teams are new entries since the last meeting earlier this week.

It was also announced that the entry deadline has been changed one day, from Monday, May 4, to Tuesday, May 5. The change was made to enable league representatives to attend a Parks and Recreation meeting being held on Monday night. The league hopes to get all matters concerning playing fields straightened away at the Monday meeting.

Arrangements were completed last night for the Belleville and District Umpires' Association to handle all Commercial League games this season. President Les Burton represented the umpires at the meeting.

A league meeting has been called for Tuesday night next, at eight o'clock at the City Hotel, and all clubs are requested to have their entry fee in and also to have a representative at this meeting.

WANTS ROAD TWINNED

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Donald Cameron (Ind-L—Alberta) urged the government Thursday to consider the twinning of the Trans-Canada Highway as one method of promoting Canada's tourist business. He told the Senate the Trans-Canada Highway will be inadequate within two years to cope with the flow of traffic at the peak of the tourist season.

Allan Cup Series

Fires Opening Gun Tonight

WINNIPEG (CP) — Terry Ball will add young legs to Winnipeg Maroons' defence tonight when the Western Canada senior champs meet Woodstock Athletics in the opening game of the Allan Cup final.

Ball, a standout with the junior Winnipeg Rangers, had been asked to play for Edmonton Oil Kings in their quest for a second straight Memorial Cup. But Maroons, for whom he played two games in the western final, wanted him too, and the 19-year-old junior star was in Maroons.

Thursday, a pleased Gord Simpson, Maroon coach, said Ball had decided to join Maroons.

Following a light workout Thursday, Simpson's only major worry was Al Johnston, the ex - pro who brought scoring punch to this year's Maroons. Johnson is nursing a back injury.

Simpso also said centre Reg Abbott will not play in the first two games tonight and Sunday. Abbott broke his wrist in the first game of the club's European tour in February.

If Abbott plays, it will be against doctor's orders, and, said Simpson, "don't be surprised if he misses the whole series."

Ticket sales for the seven-game series were strong Thursday as Maroons awaited their second straight bid for the Allan Cup. The Athletics scheduled an early-afternoon practice.

SMALLEST BONE

The smallest bone in the human body is the stapes, or stirrup bone, one of the three auditory ossicles in the middle ear.

Bobby Hull Not Hurt Seriously

DETROIT (CP)—Bobby Hull, high-scoring left winger for Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, says he expects to be released from hospital here today.

Hull suffered minor injuries to his hands Wednesday when the car in which he was riding skidded on wet pavement and collided with a semi - trailer truck. He was taken to hospital for observation and x-rays.

Hull was driving to Kentucky with two passengers in his car. His brother Dennis who played hockey with St. Clairgtons Black Hawks this season, and John Montgomery of Detroit, were not injured.

Hill Rise, Dancer Derby Favorites

Dozen Will Run

By TED SMITS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Hill Rise, the pride of California, and Northern Dancer, Canada's hope, ruled as favorites today among the dozen three-year-old thoroughbreds entered for the 90th running of the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby.

Present odds are 6 to 5 on Hill Rise and 8 to 2 on Northern Dancer.

Far behind, in the view of the handicappers, are Quadrangle and the Scoundrel, each 8 to 1.

Cloudy skies and a temperature in the 60s are forecast for Saturday's race. The track should be in good shape despite rain in the early part of the week. A crowd of about 100,000 is expected.

Post time is 5:30 p.m., EDT. The CBC will televise the festivities from 5 to 6 p.m. Its radio broadcast is from 5:15 to 6 p.m.

If all 12 colts start the purse will aggregate $156,800 and the winner will receive $114,200. It costs $1,250 just to go to the post in addition to the $250 entry fee and $100 to nominate.

ROMAN BROTHER IS NEXT

Back of the four favored thoroughbreds are Roman Brother at 10 to 1, Mr. Brick 13 to 1, Dandy R. and Wil Rad 20 to 1, and Mr. Moonlight, Inhoodah, Royal Shuck and Extra Swell, all 30 to 1.

Post positions do not mean much because of the five-eighths of a mile straightaway from the starting gate to the first turn, but Northern Dancer's trainer, Horatio Luro, got exactly what he wanted when he drew No. 7. Hill Rise is next to the outside in No. 11.

The undoubtedly will be the best second-guess Derby ever. The seasoned top jockeys have played musical saddles with a vengeance.

Bill Shoemaker, who rode Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor's Northern Dancer to victory in the Florida Derby, will be on Hill Rise.

Bill Hartack, who won the Wood Memorial Quadrangle, will be on Northern Dancer. Manuel Ycaza, who has previously ridden Roman Brother and Northern Dancer, will be on The Scoundrel. Bob Ussery will be on Quadrangle.

A Canadian-bred horse never has won the Kentucky Derby. Northern Dancer was foaled at the National Stud Farms at Oshawa. Nearctic is his sire and Natalma his dam. His blood lines are excellent. They include Native Dancer, Mahmoud and Hyperion.

In 14 starts he has won 11, finished second twice, and third once, and earned $280,272.

Hill Rise is owned by George A. Pope of the El Peco Ranch, Madera, Calif., and trained by Bill Finnegan. Hillary is the sire and Red Curtain his dam.

WON EIGHT

His record is eight firsts and two thirds in 10 starts, with $168,810 in prize money.

When he won Tuesday's Derby Trial in the excellent time of 1:35 1-5 people began to talk of him as a potential winner of the Triple Crown, which means the Preakness and the Belmont in addition to the Derby.

The Kentucky Derby is a 1¼ mile race with all entries carrying 126 pounds.

The big question always is whether the three-year-olds accustomed to shorter distances can last for the Derby. Hill Rise, a long strider, and Northern Dancer, a short strider, both are bred for distance.

The Derby being what it is, the winner might be an outsider such as Roman Brother, the smallest in the field but none the less the top money winner with $293,950.

Montreal Weakened By Injuries

Favor Marlies To Win Tonight

TORONTO (CP)—If Montreal NDG Monarchs have anything left, they'll have to come up with it tonight in order to stave off elimination in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals.

The Monarchs, who trail Toronto Marlboros 2-1 in the best-of-five series, are as short in reserves as they are in the odds department. The physical pounding administered to Montreal in the third game of the series figures to hamper them in this most crucial game.

It all started in the second game in Montreal when the Monarchs, after dropping the opener 7-2, bounced back to post a 6-4 win.

Naturally the loss, Toronto's first in playoffs, was a blow to their pride and they came out fighting mad for the third game. By the end of the first period, four Montreal players had felt the effects.

Monarch defenseman Jeff Tapping received torn knee ligaments when crashed into the boards by Marlie Bob Dillabough and another defenseman, suffered a shoulder separation when he was charged by Toronto's Ray Winterstein.

Centre Andre Lagueux was carried off the ice on a stretcher minutes after he was crashed headlong into the boards by Andre Champagne who drew a five-minute major. Monarch defenseman Jim Hargreaves suffered a stick cut on his face and missed most of the middle period.

Tapping and Boudreau will definitely miss the game tonight. Lagueux may play, though he is under observation for a concussion.

After Wednesday's game, Monarch skipper Scotty Bowman said: "We're not going to bodycheck. That's part of the game. But I think some of their boarding was intentional."

Marlboros' coach Jim Gregory said: "We handed out more bodychecks in the first three shifts than we did in the last five games. But I don't think they were dirty."

Should the Monarchs be eliminated tonight, they will have the satisfaction of having put up a strong showing than was expected of them against a team that outweighs most of the clubs in the National Hockey League.

A Toronto win will send the Marlboros into the Canadian final Sunday afternoon against the defending Memorial Cup champion Edmonton Oil Kings. A Montreal win would set the stage for a fifth and final game here Saturday.

"Bert Wells Memorial" For Cribbage

A handsome new trophy known as the "Bert Wells Memorial Trophy" has been donated to the ANAF Branch 2-1 as the top award for cribbage champions.

The first tournament will be held in the club tomorrow starting at one o'clock and all cribbage playing members are requested to take part.

The tournament will be completed during the day and the presentation will take place immediately following the announcement of the winner.

There will be no entry fee for players taking part.

It is planned to hold cribbage tournaments at different periods of the year with the trophy going to the winner.

The "Bert Wells Memorial Trophy" is particularly outstanding since it was hand-carved out of wood by Jack Fitzgerald a member of the club. Figurines were donated.

Ken Colling Memorial Race Set For Wed.

The field is expected to be wide open with any one of a number of harriers capable of winning top honors when the 20th annual Ken Colling Memorial Cross Country Run is held on Wednesday, May 6.

Likely a new record number of entries will be running for the beautiful Colling Trophy, won last year by Trenton High School's Brian Kane. Kane, leading the field around the new course approximately 4½ miles in the time of 23:54 last May, is not attending school this year.

The event is open to Bay of Quinte district secondary school students and entries will be taking part from all Belleville schools it is expected, as well as from Tweed, Madoc, Campbellford, Trenton and Picton schools, among others. There were 63 entries in all last year.

The winner will receive the Ken Colling trophy, the donor of which, Mr. Cleo Colling, will also present crests to the first 36 finishers. The BCIVS Boys' Athletic Society will also present plaques to the top six finishers.

Mr. A. Haig, principal of Albert College, will fire the start-gun at 4.30 Wednesday, at the BCIVS campus, where the race will also finish. Others on the race committee are Father McGee, Mr. J. Sisson and Mr. H. Townsend.

Unless 'Archaic Ru'es' Changed

Won't Regain Supremacy

OTTAWA (CP)—It is rather hopeless to expect Canada to regain its international hockey supremacy until the "archaic rules" governing eligibility are changed, president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Thursday.

Amateur teams in Canada can't match the state-sponsored teams in Europe, he said, until the rules were revised to remove amateur status from state players the international scene would continue to be dominated by them.

Mr. Campbell also held out little hope for such a rule change, "as long as hockey involves national pride and prestige."

Speaking to the Men's Canadian Club of Ottawa, the NHL president recalled the first time the Olympics added hockey to the winter program. It was 1920 and that year Winnipeg Falcons scored "hundreds of goals" against foreign opponents.

Will Play Test Games

Parsons Cleaners, Belleville representatives in the senior soccer picture in this area, have arranged a couple of "test" exhibition matches for their home field this weekend.

Kingston Dunbricks will supply the opposition for a Saturday afternoon contest. Game time is 4.30.

Trenton RCAF Flyers will clash with Parsons in another exhibition match at 2.30 Sunday afternoon.

Both games are scheduled for the Belleville Fairgrounds.

A Parsons team spokesman expressed confidence that the club would be considerably improved this season and felt that this weekend's "two friendly matches should tell a little how it will look under fire."

Oil Kings Ready For Final

EDMONTON (CP) — A nimble redheaded centre with the pleasant playoff habit of scoring important goals will be the busiest young man in hockey next week when Edmonton Oil Kings are involved in the 1964 Memorial Cup final.

Doug Fox, in his third and last season with the club, has received permission to write his second-year dentistry examinations at the University of Toronto. The tests are scheduled on all but two days between May 4 and May 14.

The Dominion junior final is expected to begin at Toronto Sunday. Toronto Marlboros lead Montreal Notre Dame de Grace Monarchs 2-1 in the best-of-five eastern final.

Jim Cardiff, captain of Weyburn Red Wings of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, was rated Thursday night by the Oil Kings, leaving the Western Canada junior champions with the three replacements they are allowed to use in the 1964 Memorial Cup final.

Coach Buster Brayshaw said Cardiff, an outstanding puck-carrier, had been off skates too long Centre Frank Hück of Regina Pats and wingers Larry Mickey of Moose Jaw Canucks and Ron of Boehm of Estevan Bruins were selected to leave for Toronto today with the rest of the Oil Kings.

Will Split Record Take

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—The mystery winner of a world's record $122,222 twin double finally put in an appearance Thursday at Roosevelt Raceway to claim the prize.

He turned out to be Michael Sherman, a New Jersey trotting horse owner, who will share the money with six other persons.

With Sherman, as he cashed in the ticket were three of his six partners in the betting venture —Joseph Z. Saker, John E. Saker and William L. Bresnahan Jr.

The men declined to identify the other three partners, but their attorney, William Boyle, said they are relatives.

Colts Snap Dodgers' 4-Game Win String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some nights a manager can't do anything wrong.

Harry Craft played the percentages, once and threw the book away twice in the seventh inning Thursday night and was rewarded with a four-run rally that gave his Houston Colts a 7-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers, snapping the National League champions' winning streak at four.

In the only other National League game on the rain-curtailed schedule, the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies downed Cincinnati Reds 3-1 for Dennis Bennett's second victory in three decisions. Cleveland Indians whipped Minnesota Twins 8-4 and Kansas City Athletics bombed Detroit Tigers 10-3 in American League games.

The score was tied 3-3 at Houston and the Colts had Eddie Kasko on second with one out in the seventh when Craft suddenly became a genius.

HIT FOR HIMSELF

Craft let Al Spangler hit for himself. Brewer walked him. The next man up was Walt Bond, who already had two hits for the night, including a two-run homer.

Staub rewarded his manager's confidence with a base-clearing double down the right-field line that was the ball game. Dick Farrell, a former Dodger, pitched a nine-hitter for his third straight victory.

Richie Allen, looking more and more like the National League's Rookie of the Year, doubled home the first run and another scored when Joe Nuxhall hit a batsman with the bases loaded in the first inning to make things easy for Stennett and the Phillies. Bennett permitted the Reds eight hits but kept them scattered.

A three-run homer by rookie Tom Reynolds in the first inning started Detroit's Mickey Lolich on his way to his first defeat in three outings as the Athletics mustered an 11-hit attack including later homers by Jim Gentile and Rocky Colavito. Orlando Pena was the winner, evening his record at 2-2.

Cleveland only mustered one hit against Dick Stigman in the first five innings but chased him with Leon Wagner's three-run homer in the sixth and wrapped it up with Vic Davalillo's two-run double in the following inning. Pete Ramos, with ninth-inning help from Ted Abernathy, was the winner.

Six-Day Bike Race To Belguim

MONTREAL (CP) — Belgium won the indoor international six-day bicycle race Friday night at northeast - end Paul Sauve Sports Centre but one of the racers who started in the race doesn't know about it yet.

Louis de Vos, a Belgian-born Montrealer, representing Canada in the bone-shattering race, has been in a deep coma since Wednesday in Montreal's Maisonneuve Hospital.

De Vos, named "Mr. Cyclist" last summer by the Quebec Cyclist Union, smashed into another cyclist who lost control on a curve after blowing a tire, flipped into the air and crashed head-first into the wooden floor of the bowl-shaped track, suffering a fractured skull.

Dr. Guy Blanchard, on duty at the centre since the race began last Friday night, announced after the race that de Vos' condition was still critical.

Hugo Scrayen, the other member of the Canadian team, remained in the race after following forces with Michel Scob of the defunct Tango team to keep the Canadian colors in the competition. They finished in last place.

The defending champions Nando Terruzzi and Nino de Rossi of, Italy were one lap behind the winners along with Klaus Budgdhal and Lucien Gillen, representing Germany. The Italians took second place with 785 sprint points to the German team's 492.

Playoffs Earnings Set Record

CLEVELAND (AP) — Quebec Aces, losers to Cleveland Barons in the Calder Cup playoffs, received top share of a six-way split of the playoff earnings, the American Hockey League announced Thursday.

Aces got $30,000 and the Barons received $27,000.

Total payoff was $106,000, largest in the 28-year history of the league. Other splits were: Pittsburgh, $18,000; Hershey, $16,000; Rochester, $9,000 and Providence, $6,000.

The Aces' share was highest because the club received $10,000 for winning the Eastern Division championship and $12,000 for beating Pittsburgh, Western Division leader, in the first playoff series. Quebec's share of the final playoff was $8,000 and the Barons received $12,000.

Lionel Pugh Leaves In June

British Coach To Settle In Vancouver

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Few British sportsmen embark for Canada with greater expectations than track coach Lionel Pugh, off to Vancouver June 34.

Though "sublimely happy" at Oxford University, the 42-year-old Pugh regards his decision to emigrate to Canada as a "very positive thing" and says he is eagerly waiting for his first look at British Columbia.

"I've never been to Western Canada but I've been given a wealth of information about the beauty and desirability of it all from British athletes who have been, such as Bob Reed the pole vaulter."

One of several British athletes to join what has been called the "muscle hustle" to Canada, Pugh puts all the stress on the future and wastes no time in recriminations about British conditions.

"I'm not going in a negative way," he told a reporter in a break from his schoolmaster's round at Birmingham.

LIKES COUNTRY

"I was out last year in Guelph, where you have the biggest sports clinic in the world, and I liked the country so much, and enjoyed my stay so thoroughly, that I determined to go back.

"It isn't money shortage here of general dissatisfaction. I just decided I would like to live in Canada. I aim to become part of the scenery out there."

Pugh, five feet eight inches and 170 pounds, was born at Barry, near Cardiff in Wales, and describes himself as half-Irish, half-Welsh.

He feels he has a "Canadian outlook," one that concentrates on ability rather than reputation, and expects to get along well as far as temperament is concerned.

"I don't think I suffer from the usual failing, British reticence," he said, adding that Britain as a nation is "riddled with class barriers" though he personally had not suffered.

Accompanying him to Canada will be his wife, Irene, graduate of a Welsh university, and their 10-year-old daughter, Jane.

COACHED AT OXFORD

Pugh formerly was coach at Oxford and before that national coach for the Amateur Athletic Association in the Midlands area. Some reports have said he will become assistant professor in charge of track and field coaching at the University of British Columbia, but he himself says modestly he will merely be on the university's physical education staff.

Pugh is following the course pioneered by Geoff Dyson, who left Britain to become director of Canada's sport development program. Among athletes, Olympic pole vaulter Geoff Elliott went to the University of Alberta and sprinter Peter Radford, in an interview last week, said he also may emigrate to Canada.

Despite the exodus, Pugh is reluctant to comment critically on a possible "malaise" in British athletics. After all, he says, conditions have improved greatly since Dyson left, and coaches today "are getting most of the things they were asking for."

Crackers Lose Again, Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just when Atlanta Crackers were ready to get cracking, they had to run into Joe Hicks Sothey're still looking for their first International League victory.

The Crackers, hitting Bob Gardner freely but failing to drive in their base-runners, lost to Buffalo Bisons 4-3 but were trailing only 1-0 after seven innings Thursday night. Then Hicks tagged Ted Sadowski for a three-run homer in the eighth.

The Crackers hit back for a run in the bottom half of the inning and had two-run rally going in the ninth with two out and two men out. Second-baseman Jim Snyder brought the Atlanta fans to their feet with a long, looping fly ball down the right field line only to have Hicks end the ball game with a fine running catch.

WASTE HITS

The Crackers, now winless in five starts, wasted 10 hits against the Bisons, leaving 10 men stranded. The luckless Sadowski, who gave up only seven safeties, has three of the five defeats.

Jim McKnight's two - run homer, his third of the year, highlighted a three-run second inning that gave Rudolph his working margin for Toronto. The southpaw retired the last 23 batsmen after giving up singles in the first two innings.

Columbus put together four straight hits in the sixth inning to chase Nels Chittum and eventually scored all their six runs before the third out. Earl Francis was the winner.

Canadian Soldier Narrowly Missed by Greek Fire

By GERARD ALARIE

NICOSIA (CP)—A shot fired by Greek - Cypriots narrowly missed a Canadian soldier on patrol Thursday in the ancient village of Aghirda, about 12 miles north of here.

"There was only one shot," said a spokesman for the Canadian contingent of United Nations troops, "and we are still not sure it was aimed at the Canadian patrol."

The patrol, under the command of 2nd Lieut. Mike Perrien of Williams Lake, B.C., was moving through Aghirda, whose streets are only wide enough for one car and lined with old stone houses, when the shot was fired.

It plowed into the group about a yard from Sgt. Julien Lacroo que of Ste. Monique des Saules, Que.

Earlier, a fight between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots in the key Kyrenia Pass area, was held up for a United Nations rescue operation.

Maj. Roger Boucher of Quebec City patrolled between the two while an ambulance from the Royal 22nd Regiment picked up a wounded Turkish-Cypriot and the bodies of two Turkish-Cypriots killed in the fighting.

As eyewitness under Sgt. Barney Harvey of Oromocto, N.B., had the job Thursday of retrieving the body of a Turkish-Cypriot shepherd, shot through the stomach as he tended his flock near the village of Tembelos, two miles from Kyrenia on the island's north coast.

The Canadian troops also took over a string of newly-established observation posts on the Kyrenia mountains in a bid to stem the fighting.

Until now, the UN patrols had been roving over the area.

In another incident Thursday at historic St. Hilarion Castle, near the Kyrenia Pass, one Turkish-Cypriot was killed and two others injured in the explosion of mortar bomb.

In Nicosia, a Canadian contingent spokesman said any UN troops who find themselves threatened by further shooting can flee to their defence.

"This has always been the case since UN soldiers have been in Cyprus."

Deer Declared Menace in New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUKLAND (CP)—To visiting sportsmen New Zealand is known as a hunter's paradise because of the great herds of deer that can be shot without licence and without bag limit.

But local farmers and botanists bitterly complain that the deer are a menace. They say the herds destroy the forest undergrowth, cause rapid runoff of rainfall, and resultant flooding and serious erosion.

The result has long been a tug of war. Official government policy is to exterminate the deer—by poisoning, by paying full-time hunters, and by offering free ammunition to amateur hunters. Deer stalkers' organizations and the tourist industry complain that a major attraction is being destroyed and that selective culling would keep the deer in check.

Now a new possibility has emerged—deer farming as a major export industry to supply insistent world demand for venison.

Already small-scale export of venison has been highly successful in many markets abroad. But the job is being done on a makeshift basis. Hundreds of thousands of deer are shot every year in New Zealand, but only a small proportion are killed in readily accessible areas. Most of the carcasses are left in the forests.

ARRANGE DELIVERY

A few hunters have established delivery systems, usually by small aircraft, which get the deer to processing works in time for the carcasses to be prepared in good condition for export.

Significantly, a properly processed deer carcass will bring about $72 as venison in export market abroad, compared with about $66 for a bullock carcass.

Advocates of deer farming maintain that in fact the venison industry could become more valuable to New Zealand than the beef export trade.

They maintain that there are large areas of wasteland in New Zealand where deer herds could be built up and systematically managed without causing any harm to vegetation or rainfall runoff. New Zealand conditions have proved ideal for deer, as shown by the great growth in herds from a few imported animals, and in spite of all efforts to keep the numbers in check. Therefore, deer-farming enthusiasts claim, venison could be produced efficiently and economically if systematic methods were introduced.

The question of policy on deer herds is to be examined by a parliamentary select committee in the near future.

It is likely to take very compelling arguments to persuade the government to vary the extermination policy in view of the proven damage deer cause in many districts. But exceptions might be made if it could be proved that herds could be confined to specified boundaries.

Has Taught 1,500 Anglers How to Cast, Make Flies

By EDDY COLLISTER

MONTREAL (CP)—"There is no more satisfying feeling for an angler than to catch a fish with something he has made himself," says Cliff Joudrey.

"He can make a fly for 10 cents while the fellow alongside him may be struggling with a plug he paid $2 for."

A member of the Montreal Anglers and Hunters Association, Joudrey has helped teach 1,900 men and women how to cast properly and how to make their own flies. It's done through a course organized 12 years ago.

"When the association asked me to work on this project, I envisaged a group of a dozen or so," Joudrey says. "We started in the Canadian Legion building on downtown Mountain Street but the class grew so fast we had to find larger space."

Classes are held one night a week for six weeks and the 240 students enrolled this spring are a record.

Two dozen volunteers help with the teaching. "Most of them started—with us by taking the course and now they have instructors' badges. We are always on the lookout for those with an outstanding aptitude and recruit them as teachers."

MOTHER OF ANGLING

Joudrey, whose interest in angling includes its history, says more words have been written on fishing than any other sport.

And while many know that the father of angling is Sir Izaac Walton, who published The Compleat Angler in 1653, few know the sport also has a "mother."

In 1496 Dame Juliana Bunes said to have been the prioress of an English convent, wrote a treatise on Fishing With an Angle giving details of how to make artificial flies and listing 12 lures.

In recent times, Joudrey says, a new dimension has been added.

"Occupational therapy finds it useful in many ways. At one time, leather goods were the prime product. Now machinery can turn out the same quality at lower cost. This has not happened in fly-tying."

"Rehabilitation centres employ fly-tying now and many patients are finding themselves with a good business."

While sponsoring the course, the association is still mainly concerned with conservation, Joudrey says.

"It may seem strange to many people that we are conservation conscious because we are after game. However, we want to protect what we have from indiscretion, so we may enjoy it."

House May Have to Sit All Summer

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday that if the Commons does not make more progress with legislation than so far this session, the House may have to sit through the summer without a holiday.

The subject came up in the question period when Eugene Rheaume (PC—Northwest Territories) asked when legislation would be introduced to set up the proposed Indian claims commission.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Mr. Pearson what was meant by this reference to a second part of the session.

"Surely the leader of the Opposition wouldn't begrudge the House a week or 10 days, some time in August," Mr. Pearson said.

"Well, is that the plan?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. "Or is this just a flippant answer?"

Mr. Pearson then said that if the House does not make faster progress, the Commons "may not get even the week off."

Rainy Weather Predicted for Fishing Derby

PICTON (Staff) — Cold rainy weather is forecast for the fishing derby, which will certainly hold down the entries which up until a few days ago had been pouring in to derby headquarters.

On Thursday morning, the army erected a tent which will be used for the official weighing on the lot of the Picton Marina. It poured rain all the time it was being erected, and at 4 p.m. it was still raining.

However, fishermen are hardy individuals, and rain or shine, there will be a lot of them out in the Bay of Quinte waters, trying to hook and land the pickerel lunkers that are to be found.

Last year, the largest pickerel weighed in at 10 pounds 7 oz., not a record breaker, but a respectable sized fish. There were many fish in the 6 - 8 pound size caught last year during the derby.

One joker we spoke to last year said, "I caught quite a few — some were two inches long — some three inches long — and of course I caught a lot of little ones too."

This year, there is a prize for the smallest pickerel turned in. the winner will get a family size tent. For this prize, there will be a lot of competition.

Prizes will be presented at about 1:15 p.m. Sunday at the Picton Marina.

Federal Officials Often Apply Unprintable Names To Judge of the Far North

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Eskimos call him "Erkoktoyee," or the man who listens.

He is John Howard Sissons, who since 1955 has been justice—the first one—of the territorial court of the Northwest Territories.

He applies white man's law to the vast area stretching from the Yukon east to Greenland and north to the pole.

His rulings in that time indicate he regards the law as an ass—at least as it often fits (or fails to fit) northern situations.

He has accepted non-Christian marriages among Eskimos as being fully valid legally.

He has brushed aside expert recommendations in deciding the allocation of children to adoption cases for Eskimos.

He has regularly ruled against any effort to restrict the hunting rights of Indians or Eskimos who take game for food. One such case now is en route to the Supreme Court of Canada.

In another recent case he washed out the conviction of a young Baffinsegrounds Eskimo who killed a rogue muskox on the advice of his elderly mother despite the fact the animal is protected by law.

OPPOSED PLAN

Even more recently he created precedent as a judge testifying before the Commons committee on mines, forests and water in the process he tossed harpoons at the plan to split the Northwest Territories in two and had the satisfaction of seeing it delayed, if not killed.

It was another opportunity for him to say — although he was more restrained than usual — that the Ottawa run like a colony by southern civil servants.

Who is this man?

Mr. Justice Sissons was born in Orillia, Ont., 71 years ago and was called to the Alberta bar in 1921. From there on his story has the flavor of the Northwest.

He practised law in the Peace River town of Grande Prairie Alta., until 1936 and sat as Liberal member of Parliament for Peace River from 1940 until his defeat in 1945 by Solon Low, former leader of the Social Credit party.

That year he was named district court judge for southern Alberta and in 1955 he became territorial judge, travelling 25,000 miles annually on a huge, little populated circuit.

Judge Sissons today is still a spry individual, a man who can cope with the necessity of setting his bedroll down informally in a tiny arctic community to hear cases ranging from capital murder to game infractions.

CANE IS GIFT

He is of medium height but squarely built, with a pronounced limp, deep blue and sometimes frosty eyes behind rimless bifocals.

He bears an elaborate memento of his northern role in the shape of a narwhale tusk cane. Equipped with carved whalebone head, native copper bands and a rubber tip, the cane is a gift from the Pond Inlet community of the northern end of Baffin Island and joins a good collection of Eskimo carvings and other bric-a-brac the judge treasures.

"I am not at all easily embarrassed," Mr. Justice Sissons confided to the Commons committee last December where he scored some points and underwent considerable grilling from Liberal John Turner, lawyer-MP for Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George.

Mr. Turner had objected initially to a judge testifying before a committee on political and administrative matters.

—Proper settlement for land has not been made with Indians and Eskimos of the Northwest Territories.

—There could be "some very nice cases" on gold or other minerals including oil found under Eskimo camps, and, in fact, some have already occurred in Alaska.

— Northern government should be established along the lines prevailing in the old Northwest Territories west of the Manitoba border just before Alberta and Saskatchewan became provinces in 1905.

WANTS NEW TREATY

The judge interpreted this as having a lieutenant - governor, an executive council headed by senior civil servants and an elected council all located in the North.

He called for a treaty to be negotiated with the Eskimos and an Eskimo Act plus a new treaty with the Indians of the Mackenzie River area.

At present a minority of the nine-man territorial council is elected, the commissioner is an Ottawa resident and the proposed territorial split would leave the eastern area with a majority of appointed council members.

Judge Sissons had a special word for the 8,000-odd Eskimos among the 25,000 residents of the Northwest Territories.

They serve on juries and do very well, he said. They attend court sittings faithfully and "I feel that those Eskimos can take the same active part in respect of all administration, and I think they should be allowed the opportunity of doing so."

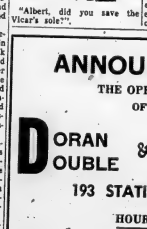
He added later: "I think we are more law-abiding than any other part of Canada."

WELCOMED BY ESKIMOS

At one point he said: "The Eskimos call me Erkoktooyee. That means 'the one who listens to things and to whom people tell things.'"

Mr. Turner: "Do you also have a pseudonym 'The Walrus'?"

Mr. Justice Sissons: "I have a lot of them but I like Erkoktooyee better than any of them and I like the thought. -



"My finest recollection is of when I go into one of those Arctic settlements and the plane circles round, the children yell 'Erkoktooyee comes,' and they come running down to the beach to meet the plane.

"I would rather have that than they should yell 'The judge is coming,' and run to the bush, you know. There is none of that in our country."

Convicted prisoners often come up to express thanks for a fair trial. Mr. Justice Sissons says:

"They are very fine people . . . and I have a great deal of respect for them. I have great respect for their ability too. I think they could take a better hand in the administration than could most white people and they could do a really good job in all fields of administration."

British Firm's Missile Profits Being Probed

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Ferranti Limited has finally agreed to open its books on the Bloodhound missile deal by which it made a profit of £5,400,000 ($15,200,000).

But Aviation Minister Julian Amery, announcing this in the House of Commons Wednesday night, said he hoped the Labor opposition motion condemning the government for laxity in permitting excessive profits on private contracts now would be withdrawn as premature.

But the opposition soon made it clear it would press on to a vote.

Amery said the government was determined to find out exactly what happened and to take steps to prevent its happening again.

He admitted the profit on the 1960 surface-to-air missile contract was by "any standards excessive and unjustified." But full details could not be known until the investigating committee, under Sir John Lang, had studied the Ferranti books and reported. Labor should wait until this report is available.

MAY SHOW LAXITY

"It is possible the Lang report will reveal laxity — if it does the government and the House will no doubt see that appropriate measures are taken."

It was clear that Ferranti officials knew at the time the price was fixed, that they were going to make a great profit. Amery said even "commercially more prudent" if they had informed the government.

"The central fact remains that there was a serious discrepancy of nearly 100 per cent between my department's estimate on the cost of direct labor Ferranti would use and the cost of labor they did actually use. I am determined to find out exactly what happened."

Ferranti made its profit of £5,400,000 on a total government payment of £30,500,000 and export orders—to Sweden and Australia—of £1,220,000.

land in the Northwest Territories.

"It was ideal for our purposes. We didn't suffer because we had all the modern aids at our service in two—specially equipped track vehicles and sleds.

"The only time it really got uncomfortable was when we had to change a flat tire."

NEW TICKET MEN

TORONTO (CP)—C. O. Bick, Toronto Police Commission chairman, said Wednesday the first group of bylaw officers who will take over issuing parking tickets from regular police officers, will be sworn in Tuesday and begin their jobs by the middle of May.

Arctic "Even Sounds Cold"

"Like an ice cube dropping into a drink," adds Mr. Milne, who along with three fellow scientists recently returned home after spending six weeks on a desolate polar ice pack 600 miles from the North Pole.

The research expedition, called Ice Pack V, studied underwater background noises which might influence sonar systems trying to detect submarines under ice fields.

The expedition leader was pleased with the results of the mission, which he said debunked a theory that there would be no sound in the water under thick polar ice.

Mr. Milne says the temperature averaged 50 below and even dropped to 69 below at the expedition's camp, 40 miles west of Isachsen on Elles Ringnes Island.

Mob Violence, Mass Hysteria As Beatles Prepare First Movie

LONDON (CP)—The making of the Beatles' first movie, supposed to be a rush job, moves ahead at a snail's pace.

On the set, it's mass hysteria; outside it's mob violence.

Occasionally the outsiders get inside and the scene defies comparison with anything since they quit turning out the old cream-pie - in - the-eye comedies.

London bobbies, like so many Keystone Kops, skitter across the set to intercept the invaders, dozens of screaming girls in hot pursuit of their mop-topped idols.

And the Beatles flee to the security of a small back room and resume a continuing card game until the coast is clear.

Finally the scene is set again and the Beatles, by now lackadaisical about in the background, are corralled by indulgent assistants and herded into the spotlight.

Then a sign, one of the props, collapses. Just as it is repaired a light bulb, for no apparent reason, burns out.

In fact, after watching one session at the Scala Theatre in London's Soho district where a whole morning was consumed in filming one short, no-dialogue scene, you wonder if it wouldn't be more fun simply to make a movie of the Beatles making a movie.

Only the Beatles, apparently, are not bugged by all the high-pitched confusion. To them making a movie is the everything else, is just a big laugh.

Aside from the fans, the movie makers have been harassed by union troubles that developed when other actors discovered the 350 happy fans admitted to the balcony to provide the agonized sound effects were not being paid. Finally the management cut the bit players to 150, expelled the rest, and paid the union rates of about $10 a day, plus meals.

Author Alun Owen, a Welshman who like the Beatles was raised in Liverpool, travelled with them for several weeks before starting the movie script. He admits the plot, centring around difficulties the Beatles encounter on a trip to London for a television appearance, is pretty thin. But the movie will have seven songs, including several not previously released.

Owen, known to Canadians through the CBC productions of his TV scripts, including After the Funeral and The Stag, says Paul McCartney—he's the one with the choirboy face—is the most adult member of the four-some.

"He has a keen sense of responsibility," says Owen, while John Lennon, at 23 the senior partner, "is just a happy anarchist."

"Often, in his pictures, he looks a little dopey but in fact he is very sharp—he has a great sense of humor."

EASY TO LIKE

Of George Harrison, Owen says: "He's just a wonderful guy. He's the easiest fellow in the world to get along with. A marvellous disposition."

The original idea was to rush the movie through by June and give it speedy, world-wide distribution in case the Beatles' popularity started to lag.

But since then the group has jumped back into the British top 10 with two new songs, taken over several places in the United States list, sparked riots in Australia and mob scenes in Toronto among fans seeking tickets for their forthcoming tours.

Cosetta Cristiani provides some of the grace, beauty and thrills in the Riding Remos big bare-back riding displays with the International Hippodrome Circus which is coming to the Belleville Memorial Arena on Friday, May 8th, and Saturday, May 9th, sponsored by the Belleville Youth Centre. Performances will start promptly at 4:30 and 8 on Friday and at 2 and 8 on Saturday.

European Style Indoor Circus to Exhibit Here

Throughout Europe and even in Australia and Japan most of the circuses are presented indoors in permanent buildings. Now, the International Hippodrome Circus, the European style performance made famous in America through television, comes to Belleville. Bringing many of the specialities here in person that have been telecast from Europe. The circus will present four performances at the Memorial Arena on Friday, May 8th, and Saturday, May 9th, sponsored by the Belleville Youth Centre.

Performances will start promptly at 4.30 and 8 on Friday and at 2 and 8 on Saturday.

The entire production takes place in one large ring just as they are seen throughout Europe and other lands. This arrangement is very suitable for auditoriums. Almost every feature on the fast-moving program has been telecast from overseas or New York at some time or another. The vast scope of the greatly diversified performance includes aerial troupes and teams; astounding acrobats; dainty-footed equestriennes and brilliant acrobats in a big bareback riding display; performing elephants; trained dogs and ponies; high aerial ballets with a sparkling barrage of beautiful girls; hilarious clown comedy served in both American and European fashion and many other features. Many of these performers are making their first American appearance with the International Hippodrome Circus, but many are familiar to television audiences.

The Farfains are two fantastic acrobats being seen in this country for the first time. This act has been featured in almost all the important night clubs, circuses and stage revues in Europe. They are masters of precision tumbling, illusion and hilarious comedy surprises.

Natal—is he man or monkey? has been televised from overseas three times and upon each occasion he was featured with a different clippings of the trial proceedings and editorial comment which followed.

Magistrate Jermyn was quoted as saying Johnston had a right to stay Melody Kemp, that he did not have the ability to run a class properly, and that the magistrate, would probably have done the same thing as the Kemps if he had been in their place.

Johnston has resigned from his post as principal, saying he did not believe his life would be safe if he remained at his post after his assailants were released from prison.

School Board Asks Removal Of Magistrate

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Augusta Township school board has asked the attorney-general's department to remove Magistrate Gordon Jermyn from his position as presiding magistrate in Leeds and Grenville counties.

The board is protesting remarks made by the Magistrate in a recent case in which five persons were convicted of assaulting school principal David Johnston of Algonquin public school.

Acsley and Pauline Kemp and their son Clifford, 16, of Maitland, six miles east of here, and David Mawhinney, 31, of Brockville and Charles Hepburn of Kingston, attacked Johnston in retaliation for a thrashing the principal gave the Kemps' 14 - year - old daughter Melody. They were given short prison terms.

The board backed their request for Magistrate Jermyn's dismissal with news clippings of the trial proceedings and editorial comment which followed.

Magistrate Jermyn was quoted as saying Johnston had a right to strap Melody Kemp, that he did not have the ability to run a class properly, and that the magistrate, would probably have done the same thing as the Kemps if he had been in their place.

Johnston has resigned from his post as principal, saying he did not believe his life would be safe if he remained at his post after his assailants were released from prison.

Will Restore Ben Casey To Old Spot Next Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If Ben Casey had it to do over again, chances are that the dedicated doctor would pick a specialty other than neuro-surgery.

"Neurosurgery is pretty self-limiting," explained the ABC series' technical advisor. "So much of it is trauma. . . ."

The technical advisor, incidentally, is not a neurosurgeon, but a registered nurse, Mrs. Alice Rodrigues. She inherited the job when Dr. Max Warner, the brain surgeon who first worked on the show, was called into the U.S. army.

Mrs. Rodrigues' job does not involve hunting new diseases and ailments to fit story lines. That is done by the three medical consultants who work with the script writers.

"The writers tell the consultant of a situation and ask him if there is a disease that affects a person this way or that, or what disease makes a patient have this or that symptom," she said. "My job is simply to make sure the hospital scenes have authenticity."

On frequent occasions, she turns actress, playing the scrub nurse in an operating scene. Actress Bettye Ackerman plays the anesthetist but it is always Mrs. Rodrigues' hands which are shown in the closeups of the oxygen tank.

The first season has been a rather traumatic one for the glowering surgeon-hero and his cohorts. ABC pulled the show out of its popular Monday night spot and set it down on Wednesday at 9.30 p.m. EDT where two very popular comedy shows are broadcast on a rival network.

Casey has dropped from among the 10 top shows to ninth place. Next season it will be restored to its old spot.

Old Mansion With Past Filmland's 'Magic Castle'

By BOB THOMAS

This gingerbread monument to a gentler age seems likely to escape the wrecker's ball, thanks to Milt Larsen, who has transformed it into a haven for practitioners of the black art.

The story is this: Larsen's father swung between careers as a criminal lawyer and professional magician. He dreamed of creating a meeting place for fellow magicians, but he died before realizing it.

Milt Larsen, writer for television's Truth or Consequences, had long admired the stately mansion and saw in it a chance to realize his father's dream.

The owners of the property gave him a 10-year lease. Then Milt went to work to restore the house. A showplace when it was built in 1909, it had followed the pattern of most old Hollywood mansions—rooming house, convalescent home, and, 'tis said, house of ill fame.

Fifty-one gallons of paint remover restored the handsome oak woodwork. Frieze and stained - glass were installed from another less fortunate mansion. When magic castle opened its doors to 62 members in December, 1962.

Now there are 500 members and a rise of membership fee from $50 to $100 doesn't seem to faze newcomers. Headed are 300 magicians, of whom a tenth earn a living from magic, plus such persons as Paul Coreman, Charlton Heston, Lance Reventlow and Efrem Zimbalist Jr.

'OPEN SESAME'

A visit to the magic castle is a rare experience. After signing in the register in the reception hall, you stand before the statuette of an owl and murmur, "open sesame." Magically, the door opens.

You enter what appears to be a pleasure den of the 1890's—bar of inlaid wood, red and gold carpeting, gilded chairs with marble-topped tables. For all its cheery elegance, the castle exudes an ominous spell.

There is a hint on the ancient daguerreotypes of a couple who dance across the crowded room with four eyes apiece. The feeling is heightened in the next room, where a ghostly repasts on the grand piano. Irma is invisible, and the piano seems to play with ghostly fingers. Then there is the malevolent-looking ape manning the elevator, which, happily, is chained shut.

Upstairs rooms are for dining, the main floor for refreshment—and magic. Jay Ose is the resident magician, and there are others to help him, amateur and professional, including the great Blackstone, 78 now and still amazingly nimble of finger.

Overseeing the nightly frolic is Larsen.

"A lot of love went into the making of the place," he said, "and I think the people feel it."

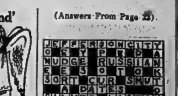
Govt. Can Now Probe Any Municipality

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature's committee on municipal bills Thursday approved a bill giving the Ontario government the authority to investigate all affairs of any municipality in the province.

Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner said the existing law gives his department power only to investigate municipalities' financial affairs.

The bill contains a section to enable municipalities to crack down on bone-repair rackets.

The section says the municipality can refuse a licence to anybody who is "not of good character" or who has no place of business in the community.



The bill also contains a section which would authorize municipalities to tag cars parked on boulevards and sidewalks and make the owner of the car, as well as the driver, liable for the penalty.

Banks Guilty Of Assault And Jailed

Former SIU Leader Wipes Tears From Eyes

Judge Not Impressed With Defence Witnesses

By STRAUN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal C. Banks is spending his first week-end in jail since he came to Canada 15 years ago to smash the Canadian Seamen's Union and set up the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.).

The burly union leader expressed no emotions Friday while Judge Claude Wagner read his judgment finding him guilty on an assault conspiracy charge but tears were seen in his eyes as he was being led to cells.

He wiped his eyes with the backs of his hands and traveled at reporters after his $2,000 bail was cancelled and he was led to Montreal's Bordeaux Jail to await sentencing Tuesday. Defence counsel Joseph Cohen said an appeal would be filed Tuesday as well as application for bail.

Judge Wagner described Banks as a union leader "who seemed to enjoy practically the right of life and death over his men."

CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

He was found guilty on a charge of conspiring with Eldon Richardson, Paul - Carah, Jack Casper "and others" to assault Capt. Henry Walsh, a rival union official, with intent to wound, maim or disfigure. The charge carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

Capt. Walsh suffered a brain concussion and bruises all over his body in a 1957 beating behind a hotel in Owen Sound, which Judge Wagner said was intended as a "lasting lesson."

Judge Wagner's 56-page judgment took two hours and 20 minutes to read to the packed courtroom, during which Banks sometimes leaned forward with his hands folded in front of him.

He described the victim of the Chamber Needs Repair

OTTAWA (CP) — Sometimes during an uproar in the Commons, it seems as if the roof is falling in.

Works Minister Deschatelets told the House Friday that the roof over the Commons chamber—it handpainted linen ceiling suspended from hidden beams—is in "urgent" need of repair.

He said this is one of the many things the government plans to do on Parliament Hill by 1967, the centennial of Confederation in Canada.

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) put his finger on the problem of repairing the Commons roof.

"We have to get Parliament out of here for several months before the work can be undertaken," the B.C. member said. "I do not know how that is going to be accomplished in the next year or so."

For Transport Minister Pickersgill, it might have seemed the roof had fallen on him Friday.

He came under attack by opposition MPs for going on the CBC's national TV news to outline the government's air policy guidelines after a Commons uproar Thursday prevented him from making the statement in the House.

Both Conservative Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas charged that Mr. Pickersgill had forced the publicly-owned CBC to let him make his statement on television.

Prime Minister Pearson, the CBC and Norman Depoe, the CBC reporter who interviewed the minister, all denied that any pressure was involved.

Mr Pickersgill told the House that he did not announce the government's new aviation policy, but merely stated the principles on which it was being formulated.

He said the policy will be established after consultations with Trans-Canada Air Lines, Canadian Pacific Airlines, the regional carriers and other interested parties.

Once the Pickersgill affair was cleared away, the House turned to a quiet discussion of the $301,900,000 spending estimates of the public works department for the 1964-65 fiscal year.

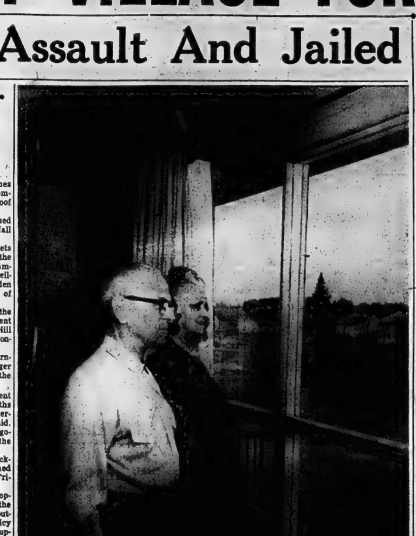
Mr. Deschatelets said his department has adopted a new approach to public works propposals. It is prepared to study conditions in an area to see what projects can be launched to boost economic activity.

For example, he said, the department might ask yachtsmen—to talk with the provinces plans to build marinas—a kind of waterfront motel for yachtsmen—to help promote tourist activity.

He also disclosed that the federal government and the British Columbia hydro and power authority have reached an understanding on preserving navigation on the Peace River when the latter is building a multi-million-dollar power dam.

In return, the federal government is granting B.C. to get a licence from Ottawa to build a dam on the Peace River as authorized by the Act of Federal Navigable Waters and Protection Act.

Mr. Deschatelets said it would be desirable to amend the act to eliminate uncertainties and establish the application of the legislation to such projects.



Shot to Death

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Robert E. Allison, 21, of Markham was shot to death early today in a garage in this town 33 miles east of Oshawa.

Police said the owner of the garage surprised Allison trying to get into the premises and fired at least one shot.

Details of the shooting were not immediately available.

THEY PRE-TESTED PLAN — Announcement has been made that the uranium mining community of Cardiff, near Bancroft, is to be turned into a village for the retired. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Dickey, shown looking out of the window of their home at 29 Pine Road, Cardiff, have, in effect, pre-tested the idea. They visited all the provinces of Canada except Newfoundland in search of a place in which to spend their retirement years, finally settling on Cardiff. Here they enjoy many pleasant hours viewing the panorama stretching away from the large front window of their spacious living room. Mr. Dickey, a superintendent of contract construction for the City of Toronto for many years, speaks with the authority of experience when he says "You get the best value for your money buying a home here in Cardiff." Uranium Town Houses Offered At Cut Prices

Central Mortgage Hopes To Recover $600,000

By ELMER BONTER

BANCROFT — The federal government's housing agency, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, expects to recover $600,000 in a move to transform a former uranium mining town into an independent village for retired people.

Cardiff, eight miles west of here, comprises 200 fully serviced homes that were erected at a cost of more than $2,000,000 in 1956.

Three years ago, when Canadian Dyno Mines closed, 50 company homes were sold to private owners with fixed incomes. A number of them were purchased by R.C.A.F. and Army personnel intending to move in when they leave the service.

Until the unique idea to revive the village was proposed and accepted, authorities considered wrecking the dwellings and selling the recovered materials for salvage.

Recently when ill was certain that stock-piling operations at Faraday mines would end in July, C.M.H.C. awarded Peterborough realtors Bowes and Cocks an exclusive contract to dispose of the remainder of these buildings in the village. Some 150 three-bedroom and two-bedroom bungalows, which cost approximately $11,000 apiece to build, are being offered for sale at $4,500 and $4,230 respectively.

Prospective buyers can procure N.H.A. 6% per cent mortgage money repayable at $48 monthly over 20 years. Payments cover principal, interest and taxes, including water charges and garbage collection fees.

Located in a wooded valley high in the Haliburton highlands, the townsite has much to offer the sufferers of respiratory ailments, such as chronic bronchitis and asthma.

The health aspect prompted the suggestion for the new Cardiff slogan: "Where the air you breathe and the water you drink is the purest in North America."

The village is widely envied for its clean atmosphere and chemical-free water piped into every bungalow. Among the city conveniences available are schools, churches, running sewage disposal system, large outdoor swimming pool and adequate fire and police protection.

The eyes of governments in Ottawa and Toronto watch the imaginative handling of the project with particular interest. For a similar situation now exists elsewhere, at Elliot Lake, also requires special attention.

"What is learned in the venture at Cardiff may be used as a guide in solving the other problem," an official said.

Nancy Astor Is Dead

LONDON (CP)—Lady Astor, the Virginia belle who despised liquor, but loved politics so much she became the first woman to sit in Britain's House of Commons, died today. She was 84.

The woman whose acid wit ruled countless Britons and delighted countless others during her quarter of a century in Parliament died at Grimsthorpe Castle, the Lincolnshire home of her daughter, Lady Ancaster, northeast of London.

The exact nature of her illness was not disclosed, but a member of her household said.

Lady Astor will be buried privately in the chapel of the Astor home at Cliveden in Buckinghamshire. Cliveden had been the scene of many gatherings, social and political, of leaders in the British aristocracy and others in the years preceding the Second World War.

Memorial services will be held in London and Plymouth. Dates have yet to be announced.

TOOK SEAT IN 1919

Lady Astor, who was known affectionately in Parliament as Nancy, took her seat in the House of Commons as representative of the Sutton division of Plymouth in 1919. She served until 1945.

She was not the first woman elected, however. The Countess Markievicz, a member of the Irish Sinn Fein party, was the first woman elected. But she

When Lady Astor Dropped Brick It Landed on Somebody's Corns

LONDON (AP) — No subject was too sacred, no person too pompous, to be spared the lash of Lady Astor's tongue. She was mistress of the bon mot, and when she dropped a brick, you heard it. That was exactly what she wanted.

A collection of her epigrams would fill a small book of such distinctive style it could bear the title Astorisms, or perhaps Astorisks.

On marriage — I married because I was tired of being beaten me. All women do.

On motherhood — All this sentimental plush peddled about mothers is just too sickening.

Today's Chuckle

The successful man has a wife who tells him what to do — and a secretary who does it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The gradual trend to cool clearing skies and lower humidity in the lower Great Lakes area appears likely to continue. A large high pressure area which has produced fine weather in Quebec for several days has been advancing slowly westward and will probably control the weather over the weekend. There should be considerable sunshine and near normal temperatures.

Motherhood is only a quality of mind and outlook.

On the sexes — Women like men for what they are, not what they look like. Men like women for what they look like, not what they are.

On herself — I am not certain that I am not the most intelligent person that ever lived.

I left Virginia to better myself. I was only a southern Belles girl, I am a politically evilest but not quite successful volcano. (After leaving Parliament).

On playing bridge with King Edward VII — I wouldn't know the difference between a king and a flatiron. The king roared with laughter.

On her father - in - law, Lord Astor — Old moneybags.

On England—England, above everything else, is built on the belief that it is the quality of justice that makes her a little unpopular. I have a husband who is terribly just, so I know how irritating it can be.

On women — We women are not always asking for superiority, for we've always had that. All we want is equality.

On women in the House of Lords — A splendid idea. I can imagine nothing more awful than a house with only men in it.

Will Tell Happy Tale On Trade

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Canada's top trade promoter is heading home with a happy tale to tell.

R.C. (Bert) Butler, as buoyant about business as when he entered government service 63 years ago, flies to Vancouver Monday to start on a coast-to-coast tour in which he will meet hundreds of Canadian businessmen and deliver some 30 speeches.

Butler, officially known as commercial minister at Canada House, goes at a time when Canadian exporters are breaking records in Britain.

In 1963 exports topped the billion-dollar mark for the first time and Butler is hopeful of a 10-per-cent increase in 1964. Exports to Britain now account for about 15 per cent of Canada's sales abroad.

The only blot in a bright picture is that British exports to Canada are still languishing, leaving a big gap in the balance of trade between the two countries.

Butler says Canadian exporters are broadly confident now of their ability to be competitive in British markets.

"It wasn't always that way. A few years ago some of them were pretty dreary about the prospects in Britain. Now they have discovered they have a lot of advantages here, and they're full of confidence."

Canadian officials are hopeful that exports to Britain will reach the $1,200,000,000 mark by the end of 1964.

U. S. Aircraft Transport Sunk in Saigon Harbor

SAIGON (AP)—The Card, a Second World War U.S. aircraft carrier credited with seven U-boat kills, was sunk by an explosion today in South Viet Nam. But she was partially refloated by the high tide in Saigon Harbor.

Divers who inspected the gaping hole in the baby carrier said they could not yet determine whether the blast that sent her down in the Saigon River was external or internal.

American authorities were investigating three possible causes: A Communist bomb attached to the outside; sabotage committed by one of the all-civilian crew or a malfunction in the engine room.

All 75 crew members escaped injury when the pre-dawn explosion tore an underwater hole in the vessel and settled her on the bottom of the 48-foot-deep river.

Only the Card's flight deck and super - structure showed above water for several hours after the blast at low tide. But with the incoming tide at midday, the Card's keel broke free of the muddy bottom and she was partially refloated although still riding low in the water.

U.S. authorities first assumed that Communist Viet Cong terrorists swam or crawled under the wharf where the Card was docked, attached an explosive and detonated it electrically.

However, after divers could not determine whether the ex-

Ont. Nurses Decide Today On Likely Bargaining Agent

TORONTO (CP)—The Registered Nurses Association of Ontario was to decide today whether to ask the Ontario government for legislation to make the association bargaining agent for Ontario nurses.

The more than 2,000 nurses, winding up a three-day annual meeting, discussed the question thoroughly Friday.

They heard an interim report of a survey conducted by the association at the branch level, in which a number of complaints among Ontario nurses were discussed. Two men addressed the association urging members to fight for compulsory arbitration.

Among chief complaints noted in the nurse' report were lack of monetary recognition of ability and experience, salaries which are not commensurate with responsibilities, and rigid hospital rules which hamper the nurses' freedom to nurse.

The nurses were also told that the province-wide study, which was begun by the association last summer, showed many favored collective bargaining for nurses.

The report included suggestions that RNAO should change

P.M. Takes Battle To Own Riding

By STEWART MacLEOD

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday night took his argument for a new Canadian flag into a hall of the Royal Canadian Legion—an organization that staunchly supports the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag.

Mr. Pearson had just become an honorary president of the legion's branch 39 in this Algoma east town, represented in the Commons by the prime minister, when he expressed the hope that Canadians would be more and more closely under new symbols.

"We hope to be able to agree before long on national symbols that will bring us together in a way that will show no disrespect to those other symbols that mean so much to us."

He mentioned ties with England as being among those other symbols.

He referred only to "symbols" throughout his remarks but several times he made reference to the pride he felt at wearing the maple leaf badge during the First World War. "How proud we used to be of the maple leaf and the word 'Canada' on our uniforms."

There was no reaction from the crowd of several hundred as he spoke about new symbols. He said he was sure the various views could be reconciled on the matter.

Roses, Riches, Renown Await The Winner of Kentucky Derby

Among the trim three-year-old thoroughbreds answering the bugle for the 1¼-mile race were western U.S. champion Hill Rise, unbeaten this season, and Canadian-owned Northern Dancer, eastern ruler.

Barring last-minute withdrawals, America's foremost horse race had $114,300 for the winner. In addition to the $100,000 Kentucky Derby purse, two millions could see the race on television.

The long-striding Hill Rise, from El Peco ranch in California, came in with eight consecutive victories.

The race climaxed a busy week for derbytown visitors — who jammed motels and hotels. More than 250,000 watched the annual Pegasus parade and thousands lined the Indiana and Kentucky shores as the Bell of Louisville upset Cincinnati's Delta Queen in the second annual steamboat race on the Ohio River in pre-Derby festivities.

Special Pullman cars helped house the visitors.

United Appeal Directors Approve Move to Allow Favored Bodies to Benefit

The April meeting of the United Appeal directors was held recently at the YMCA, with Mr. D. G. Rose acting as chairman in the absence of Mr. G. A. Wishart, vice-president.

Reports were presented by W. J. Killough, chairman of public relations committee; T. H. Fell, this year's campaign chairman, and D. G. Burr, chairman budget committee. The committee of John D. O'Flynn Jr. as a director and vice-campaign chairman was approved by the board in accordance with the constitution.

A recommendation from the executive committee in connection with a voluntary allocation privilege for this year's campaign as proposed at the emergency meeting held on March 31st was fully discussed and adopted. As has always been the custom since the formation of the United Appeal in 1956, a person making a donation may still designate it for an agency of their choice, if they so desire. On the other hand, a revised method of distributing funds to the participating agencies will now enable an agency favored over others by the allocation privilege to receive a greater share than in the past. However, only the one and only purpose of a United Appeals campaign is to raise sufficient funds to offset the estimated operating deficits of the participating agencies, no agency will be entitled to receive more than its approved budget amount, less the proportionate share of administration expenses, unless the campaign reaches or surpasses its objective.

In his report to the meeting, Mr. Burr advised that all member agencies have already been asked to submit their 1965 budget requirements to the committee by May 15th.

Rain Is Needed But Not Now Say Farmers

The rain is badly needed to raise lake water levels and it will do much to give spring wheat and meadows a start, but numbers of Hastings county farmers would rather see the rain later in the season —after the spring sowing is completed.

It is now into the month of May and due to frequent rain and showers, very little, if any, spring sowing has been done.

In fact many farmers have done very little spring cultivation.

"Water is lying on the fields and we can't do a thing," reported one district farmer yesterday.

He agreed the rain was needed to raise water levels but said it would be more welcome later.

Racial Issues To Be Examined On CJBQ Shows

Three views on the North American racial struggle expressed by men deeply involved in it will be featured in a series of three programs on radio station CJBQ, May 6th, 7th, and 8th at 2.03 p.m. EDT on the program Trans Canada Matinee.

Though listeners may not agree with what these men have to say, hundreds of thousands of their followers live by the principles they uphold.

On Wednesday, May 6, Toronto reporter Austin Clarke interviews Malcolm X, a Black Muslim Negro who says: "We are against segregation but we are for separation. Segregation is that which is forced upon inferiors by superiors. A segregated neighborhood is usually deteriorated, economically, politically, intellectually and otherwise."

On Thursday, May 7, Governor George Wallace of Alabama talks to Gordon Donaldson, Washington correspondent for the Toronto Telegram. The interview was recorded in the Governor's office in Montgomery, the Alabama State capitol.

On Friday, May 8, Dick Gregory will be heard. Described as "the Will Rogers of the Atomic Age," Gregory is a comedian, social satirist and pioneer who believes in telling the truth about segregation so that it brings smiles instead of bitterness, and makes even the insensitive think.

Opposition members said Transport Minister Pickerseill forced the CNR to let him make on TV a statement on air policy he should have made in the Commons.

Mr. Pickersgill denied his Thursday statement about TCA and CPA integrating their overseas services constituted government policy.

A Conservative censure motion against Mr. Pickersgill was ruled out by the speaker whose decision was upheld 111-63.

Works Minister Deschatelets said his department is prepared to study conditions in a given area to see how it can stimulate economic activity.

had pledged herself not to serve again.

Sharp - tongued and witty, Lady Astor cherished a number of pet causes. On no subject was she so outspoken as on abstinence from drinking. She never lectured, but fought against the sale of vodka in the Soviet Union.

She was an ardent feminist, unmercilessly lashing out at those who did not share her views.

And in the last months of her life she was a virtual recluse.

She was married to Boston banker Robert Gould Shaw when she was 18. The marriage was dissolved in 1903, and three years later she married Waldorf Astor, son of the American - born William Waldorf, later Viscount Astor.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN — In memory of a dear husband Earl O'Connor Brown who passed away May 2, 1960. Four sad and lonely years have passed.
Since then a heart sorrow fell,
But God only knows how I miss you well.
God gave me the strength to meet,
And courage to bear the test.
But I long to meet for me to lose you Earl,
God only knows best.
—Sadly missed by wife Edith.

GILLESPIE — In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. Ethel Gillespie who passed away May 3, 1961.
It's not the words, they are but few,
It's the golden deeds we love you,
Each flower and leaf may wither,
Each evening sun may set,
The hearts of those we love you,
Are the ones who never forget.
—Loving memories from her daughters Mabel and May, sons Ralph and Stewart.

LITTLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Ernest Little who passed away May 3, 1961.
When evening shadows are falling,
And I sit in quiet alone,
To my heart comes a longing,
If he could only come home,
Friends may think I have forgotten,
Then at times they see me smile,
But little they know the heartache,
My smile hides all the while.
—Lovingly missed and always remembered by wife Helen.

BUNNETT — In loving memory of our dear father Ernest T. Bunnett who passed away May 3, 1963.
Though your smile has gone forever,
And your hand we cannot touch,
We have so many memories,
Of you Dad, we love so much.
—Always remembered by Gertie, daughter and son-in-law, Gladys and Earl, son and daughter-in-law, Bert and Jean and grandchildren.

LITTLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Ernest Virgil, who passed away May 3, 1963.
We often think of bygone days,
When we were together,
The family chain is broken now,
But memories linger forever,
To us, he has not gone away,
Nor has he traveled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,
—Sadly missed by Marilyn, Harold and family.

LITTLE — In loving memory of our dear father Virgil Thomas Little who passed away May 3, 1963.
We do not need a special day,
To bring to you to our mind,
For every day we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours to give,
We'd give it yes, and more,
To see the face we love once more.
Come smiling through the door.
—Sadly missed by son Donald, wife Jean and family.

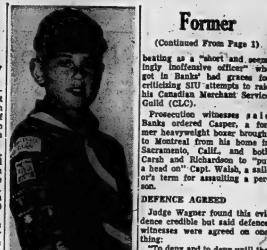
plosion was shipboard or from without attention was also turned to the possibilities of sabotage by one of the all-civilian crew or a mechanical reason.

Her days of glory past and dwarfed by giant carriers, the Card was assigned to the U.S. military sea transportation service when classified by the navy as an aircraft ferry. Though a naval vessel, she is manned by civilians.



In the Second World War, the Card won a presidential unit citation for sinking seven German U-boats in the Atlantic in 1943.

Immediately after the predawn explosion tore a hole in the engine room bulkhead, the Card began settling to the muddy river bottom. She normally draws 28 feet when loaded, and the amount of sinkage was reported to be about 22 feet.

Borge Langeland, 40, the civilian captain from New Orleans, said there was a possibility the vessel—loaded with old helicopters bound for the United States —might capsize.

Damage to the stricken ship had not been fully determined, but he said it probably would be many weeks before the Card could be repaired, refloated and made fit for sea again.

The Card arrived in Saigon Thursday with a load of helicopters and fighter - bombers and was scheduled to sail for the United States later today with the cargo of old helicopters.

Attempt to Cash Cheque Leads To Two Arrests

Police are holding two men —one arrested in a city bank— on fraud charges linked to a $50,000 safe robbery in Western Ontario.

The identities of the men, or full details on the robbery were not immediately made known by Belleville police today — presumably pending arrival of investigators on the case.

The pair are believed to have cashed bonds stolen in the robbery for travellers' cheques at several banks between Oshawa and Trenton.

It was cashing of the traveller's cheque that tipped the case into the laps of Belleville police.

Banks in the area had been alerted after several of the stolen bonds had been identified. The bonds are said to have been cashed at Oshawa, Bowmanville and Port Hope — and perhaps other Central Ontario centres.

The cheques apparently were recognized when presented for payment at the Royal Bank branch before its late Friday night closing time of 6 p.m.

While the man was still on the premises a staff member slipped outside where Constable Bob McDonald was on duty.

The officer returned with him and took the man in custody shortly before the bank closed.

After questioning the suspect, plainclothesmen began a search of the downtown area and arrested the second man in a car parked on Front Street opposite the Belle Theatre.

DANGER INCREASES

TORONTO (CP) — W. A. Bryce of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, said Friday that for the first time since 1936 it is more dangerous to drive a car a mile than it was the previous year. Mr. Bryce, in Toronto for the council's 10th annual conference May 4-6, said in an interview the number of fatalities per 1,000,000 miles driven declined steadily every year until last year.

beating as a "short and seemingly inoffensive officer" who got in Banks' bad graces for criticizing SIU attempts to raid the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC).

Prosecution witnesses said Banks ordered Casper, a former heavyweight boxer brought to Montreal from his home in Sacramento, Calif., and both Carsh and Richardson to "put a head on" Capt. Walsh, a sailor's term for assaulting a person.

DEFENCE AGREED

Judge Wagner found this evidence credible but said defence witnesses were agreed on one thing:

"To deny and to deny until the end any association whatsoever with the incident of the beating of Capt. Walsh."

"The court has come to the conclusion that the beating of Capt. Walsh was a manifest act of gangsterism agreed to, prepared, ordered, directed and supervised by the accused, Harold Chamberlain Banks.

"Having had the opportunity of appreciating the evidence, seeing the witnesses, studying their behavior and noting their contradictions, the court has no hesitation whatsoever in finding the accused guilty as charged."

He said Banks "has taken pains to identify with this truth that it is now impossible for this court to believe him," referring to the accused's testimony that "I never got mad at Capt. Walsh at any time."

Judge Wagner termed Banks' profession of faith in a policy of non-violence as "most enlightening."

IS INCOMPATIBLE

"This profession of faith is incompatible with the evidence which this court heard during three weeks.

"Not only has ill been established beyond a reasonable doubt that a beating took place, but it has been established, and also beyond a reasonable doubt, that this beating was ordered by the accused."

The judge said he has "absolutely no hesitation" in stating that he "far from impressed" by the evidence of the main defence witnesses.

He made particular criticism at Leonard McLaughlin, executive vice-president of the SIU scheduled to replace Banks as president of the SIU under the board of trustees.

Judge Wagner said he did not overlook the "affinity" of Mr. McLaughlin with the accused but added "it does not seem appropriate to say the least for this man to act in the manner that he did."

HAS LITTLE REGARD

Later in the judgment, he said:

"The court wishes to state that it entertains very little regard for the conduct of Mr. McLaughlin who more than any other member of the union was familiar with the sentiments of the man at the top.

"This Mr. McLaughlin in his testimony before the court gave us the definite impression that he was bent on favoring the accused by attempting to minimize the motives which had prompted the beating of Capt. Walsh."

Banks faces trial in the present spring assizes on a charge of conspiring with Mr. McLaughlin and Norman Cunningham to assault Greaves in Vancouver four years ago. The alleged co-conspirators have not been charged.

He also faces preliminary hearing June 16 on a charge of conspiring with 14 other SIU officers to induce seamen to abandon their ships in connection with the SIU march on Ottawa last October to protest establishment of the trusteeship.

Teenage Girl Suffers Severe Facial Injuries

PICTON — One girl is in the Kingston General Hospital, suffering severe facial injuries as the result of a one-car accident which occurred one and a half miles south of Cherry Valley at about 9.00 p.m. last night.

Provincial Police Constable William Chard, who investigated the accident, said a car driven by Roger Harrison, R. R. 5, Picton, was proceeding around a sharp curve when the '57 Ford left the road and rolled over at least twice, landing on its roof.

Miss Carol Taylor of 18 Rogers Street, Picton, was taken to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital, but was later transferred to Kingston General Hospital.

The driver of the car and Lynne Richards, both of R.R. 4, Picton, and Terry Plews, of R.R. 5, Picton, were treated in hospital for minor cuts and bruises and allowed to go home.

All four occupants of the car were teenagers.

The car was a total wreck.

Three Belleville Anglers Standing High in Derby

PICTON (Staff) — Records are falling by the wayside in the fishing derby, sponsored jointly by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the Quinte Isle Tourist Association.

Despite inclement weather, many boats were out from Picton, and many others trailed to East and West Lake and other points where the pickerel are known to abound.

Jack Wardbaugh brought one in on Friday that ran 11 pounds and it seemed he would have a good chance of being the winner, that is, until about 9 p.m. Friday when three other Belleville anglers came in to Doo's Bait Shop at the Picton Marina with their catch.

Doug Fournia, 236 Pine St., Belleville, hit the jack pot while trolling in West Lake. He hooked and landed a whopper that tipped the scales at 12 pounds. It too was 19 inches long and had a girth of an even 16 inches. He caught it at 4 p.m. on a red Abu bait.

Ralph Smith, 5 Dunbar St., also of Belleville, came in a close second to Doug. While in the same boat, he tied into a pickerel that weighed 10.5 pounds and was 29½ inches long and with a 16-inch girth.

John Clark, 13 Grove St., Belleville, who was the third man in the boat, nailed three nice pickerel and a pike, not record breakers, but four neat nice fish.

With clear and warm the forecast for Saturday, it is expected that the derby will see the 1,000 anglers they expected.

its structure to be more broadly representative of the staff nurse, and that the association should be empowered legally to act as bargaining agent and to control and standardize wages, hours and working conditions.

Dr. John Crispo, assistant professor of industrial relations at the school of business, University of Toronto, told the group it would be a difficult struggle to achieve the legislation.

"Those who tell you that to bargain collectively is unprofessional are talking nonsense, and they are trying to mislead you," said Dr. Crispo.

"It would be unprofessional for you not to bargain collectively and effectively."

Dr. Crispo's report on collective bargaining for nurses was published last year.

George S. F. Ferguson, a Toronto lawyer, also urged the association to adopt the resolution, saying: "Collective arbitration is a fine and dignified process in this province."

Both men agreed the association could be classified under the Labor Relations Act with no further legislation but would have to do strenuous missionary work and political lobbying to gain its objective of compulsory arbitration.

Dr. Muriel Uprichard, associate professor at the University of Toronto School of Nursing, told the meeting nurses must resolve their differences and act as a united group to get collective bargaining legislation enacted for them.

Commenting on the fact that staff nurses have been engaged in a struggle to keep down the registered nursing assistant, Dr. Uprichard said: "If we must take sides, I am on the side of the staff nurse, who is vital and on whom we most impose."

However, she added, the staff nurse should welcome the assistant as a mark of higher nursing status and should prepare herself for the new task of greater complexity.

Some of nurses attending a privately-sponsored luncheon Friday were told that doctors and nurses are overworked, nursing staffs are undermanned, hospital beds are in short supply and the costs increase year by year.

Dr. Paul S. Campbell, a physician and scientist from Ottawa, said: "The aims of the doctor and nurse have been fossilized for decades. They have failed to keep pace with the needs of the nation."

Six Persons, Five of Them Children, Perish

RIVIERE-DU-MOULIN, Que. (CP)—Six persons, five of them children, died early today in a fire that swept a wooden three-storey building here in minutes.

A passing motorist saw Mrs. Vincent Sylvain leap from a third-floor window. The only survivor, she is in hospital at nearby Chicoutimi in critical condition.

Mr. Sylvain was not home at the time.

Philipp D'Amours and his son Normand, who lived in a second-floor flat, also were victims of the 3 a.m. fire. It was not immediately known how or where the fire started.

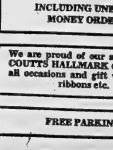
Indian Released Despite Refusal To Sign Bond



QUEBEC (CP)—Jules Sioui of the Huronia Indian Reserve near Quebec City was released from prison Friday—despite his continued refusal to sign a bond to keep the peace.

Sioui, 58, entered Quebec jail last May for tearing down a list of voters posted on the reserve before the 1963 federal election. He termed the list an invitation for Indians to sell their souls."

At his trial he was sentenced to one month in prison and was ordered to sign the $200 bond which would have been in effect for 12 months after his release.

But Sioui refused to sign because he felt the bond would prevent him from fighting for what he called "Indian treaty rights and Indian freedom."

Editorials From French — Canadian Newspapers

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Trois - Rivieres is Nouvelle-Haven-Prince Minister Douglas-Home (of Britain) continues to show himself a great optimist. He acts and governs as if he were certain of winning in the end. His country is experiencing a period of prosperity, to be sure, and maybe people are living better than they were last year, but it will take more than that to get him back up the hill. He is leading a divided party.

Nobody doubt, after the recent byelections, that a June election would result in a smashing defeat for the Conservative party.

It is nevertheless to doubt that a fall election will be any more to the advantage of Mr. Douglas-Home. One cannot see him rallying unity to the ranks of his party.

The Labor party, its unity tightened again for the present, has the wind in its sails. It is waging a furious battle, but one aimed much more at criticizing than at offering a constructive program. It has already lined up tomorrow's government and is the main field of foreign affairs it is even now adopting the stance of a government.

But indeed, if one takes into account the political customs and traditions, England could change its government in the fall without any disruption of its life. (April 28).

Ottawa le Droit—The Opposition in the House of Commons riddled the Laurendeau-Dunton royal commission with criticism recently for what it considered the inopportune and too frequent public statements of its co-chairmen.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who took the offensive along with Mr. Frank Howard, NDP member for Skeena, and Mr. H. A. Olsen, Social Credit member for Medicine Hat, declared that the commission is in the process of becoming an itinerant group of after - dinner speakers.

Mr. Olsen was of the opinion that the statements of the co-chairmen were only widening the divisions in the country. As for Mr. Howard, he maintained that the commission is not well regarded outside Quebec.

Without discussing the merits of the commission itself, as Mr. Howard did, we believe with Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Olsen that Mr. Laurendeau and Mr. Dunton hope in as well as each member of their commission, have no business at present other than receiving briefs and listening to those who want to say something in front of them. Later Parliament and the public will study the reports they submit. Let us hope in the meantime that the Laurendeau - Dunton commission keeps quiet and contents itself with keen listening, note-taking and thinking. —Maurice Hnot. (April 22)

Montreal Le Devoir — The Lloyd government was not corrupt. It governed Saskatchewan efficiently and methodically. It was composed of relatively able men. What caused its defeat?

One must dismiss any attempt to explain Mr. Lloyd's defeat by bringing in the doctors' strike or the school question. The CCF party made enemies over these two issues but neither was seriously raised during the campaign. The true cause seems to be the economic situation of the province.

Paradoxically, Saskatchewan was in very prosperous at present. Nevertheless, the people are discontented. They maintain that they can no longer, at the present time, live almost—exclusively off the land. But the cities are not offering enough new opportunities. Industry and business have developed at a slow pace. For 40 years the province has scarcely been able to keep its people on its territory to fill the gaps caused by death.

On the 24th Thatcher campaigned. He declared that a Liberal regime would be better apt than a socialist to attract new capital to the province. Since Mr. Lloyd has been premier, with much of anything, the electorate voted for the advocates of economic expansion. . . .

Mr. Thatcher, as a good Liberal, also promised what Liberals are promising everywhere, including Quebec. He did not promise to "socialize" anything. Confronting problems that the CCF participated in not seeking, he promised positive reforms that captured the popular imagination.

Events could not have served Mr. Thatcher better if he had planned them. The election came only a few days after Mr. Pearson's miracle solution of the federal-provincial imbroglio. And the tenacious campaign waged for two years by physicians and certain newspapers again medicare must have hurt some socialist candidates. To say nothing of the defection of the health minister, Mr. Erb, to the Liberal camp.

Besides, in Saskatchewan as elsewhere, the urban vote is getting more important every election, and the weakness of its industry had become evident in the towns and cities. — Vincent Price. (April 24)

Quebec l'Action—The CCF party provided the people of Saskatchewan with a sound administration and a host of progressive measures but only to the extent that its initiatives were in accord with ot traditional policies. Indeed, when the Saskatchewan government tried to bend reality to its theoretical concepts, it got nowhere. For example, the state factories, those flowers intended to blossom in place of private industry in shoe - manufacturing, withered away in no time. The adventure of state medicine is still an object of ardent controversy. A considerable proportion of doctors practicing in Saskatchewan have left their province to live elsewhere.

Beyond all that, Saskatchewan is one of the provinces where the pace of economic development has lagged the worst. The weakness of its industrial growth was, without doubt, the main cause of the socialist defeat.

From the beginning the (socialist) experiment defied reality. Socialism was installed in a province, where the government's jurisdiction is limited by federalism, whereas the system requires the omnipresence and intransigency of the state. The socialists dedicated to the elimination of private enterprise organized a service like a desert island in a capitalist ocean. To live in the North shores of Saskatchewan clearly had to deprive itself of investments the sources of which did hold in contempt but which nevertheless were essential for jobs and income.

The astonishing thing is not at all the fact that the socialists have lost power in Saskatchewan. It is that they kept it for 20 years . . . — Lorenne Pare. (April 24)

New Teaching Proposal

If we were a teen-ager, we should be getting awfully tired of hearing our elders talk about the "youth explosion."

Hon. William Davis, Ontario minister of education, used the term again the other day, as he presented his department's budget to the Legislature.

"Explosion?", the teen-agers may be forgiven for ejaculating. "What's explosive about a problem that takes a decade or so to develop? After all, we were not born yesterday."

Still, there is some excuse for the continued existence of a shortage of teachers. No matter how long the coming need may have been apparent, it is still true that the situation demands that a higher percentage of the adult population devote itself to teaching.

Robert F. Nixon, Liberal member for Brant, has come up with a suggested solution which, as far as we know, is new.

Mr. Nixon, himself an ex-teacher, would have the government hire university graduates as teachers, without putting them through a teacher-training course.

He says they can gain experience while they teach.

Obviously, such a system leaves something to be desired. We cannot help feeling, though, that it is a more promising arrangement than giving recent high school graduates a "cram" course in teaching techniques and sending them out to staff schools.

Of course, either system would produce some excellent teachers and some real duds. But on the average the university graduate without teacher-training ought to be able to do a better job than the high school student with teacher-training. If this is not true then there is something the matter, not so much with universities as with the view that knowledge plus maturity makes us wiser and more capable of undertaking any task.

New Type of Espionage

A Russian newspaperman has been expelled from Canada for endeavoring to bribe a civil servant into providing him with secret information on Canadian industrial processes.

Nobody is going to quarrel with the government's action in this case. Offering a bribe to a civil servant alone provides ample justification for sending this Russian home.

Still, we should not be surprised if there were many Canadians who are wondering what kind of secrets Canada possesses in the industrial field.

And how come, in a free enterprise economy, that these secrets are in the keeping, not of some captain of industry, but of a civil servant?

What would happen if some Canadian, in some manner, came into possession of this coveted industrial secret, without being aware of the fact that its curiosity had pushed him into the espionage business? It could happen. How does one know some industrial process is being so zealously guarded, unless one is told that it is classified information?

The episode has given the Canadian press the Capitol's leading spectator sport, enjoyed by both the downtown crowds and the tourists.

The "Pocket Debates" came on at the usual time of day, after 10 o'clock at night, when the tired Commons is ready to pack it away for the morrow, and the galleries have emptied of spectators driven out in yawning boredom by the dull drone of the day's discussions.

After ten o'clock at night, except on the Budget or other infrequent so-called "Great Debates," who's listening? Not many.

It used to be—ever since the discovery eight years ago in the '56 political explosion of the pipeline that all important items could be destroyed right there on the floor of the Commons —that the Question Period was one of the more important industries of construction.

The Conservatives used it to blow up the Liberals in 1957, and the Liberals employed it to torpedo the Conservatives in '62 and '63, and the Conservatives have been employing it lately to work up a blitzing of the Liberals.

CHINESE TORTURE

For eight years, first the Conservatives, then the Liberals, and again the Conservatives in Opposition used the Question Period to exasperate and pillory the Cabinet.

It worked destructive wonders, every day, inexorably frustrating the Government into incredibly important acts.

It built up anger and resentment in the Cabinet and tore down resilience and resistance of its ministers.

Like the Chinese Torture Treatment, it brought them slowly and painfully closer and closer to the breaking point.

Each Official Opposition in its day had the usually - - but not always - - eager and happy cooperation of the "Splinter" groups.

Mack in '56, former CCF Leader J. S. Coldwell, an old Socialist veteran Stanley Knowles did as much, and sometimes more than John Diefenbaker, Donald Fleming or Davie Fulton, to end the 22-year-long political day of Louis St. Laurent, Jack Pickersgill, C. D. Howe and Company.

At last Session, the same Stanley Knowles, aided and abetted by the Lakehead's Dougie Fisher and Quebec-Montreal's Colin Cameron of the New Democrats, gave John Diefenbaker, Waldo Monteith, Gordon Churchill and Company all kinds of valuable help in laying the last nail in Mike's coffin.

Call it "obstruction," or call it "for what it's worth" is, Opposition - - but the Commons, in bitter memory, were, and have been only doing to the Liberals what the Liberals did to them.

FATNIES

Then suddenly, voluntarily, although now with belated if increasing reluctance, they gave it up.

They all but swore off the strong stuff of opposition.

They agreed to let Mr. Speaker put their questions out of order, and what is more make his rulings stick.

Monday, they promised to keep their questions short, ask nothing that wasn't of "urgent public importance," and generally simmer down into modest and well-behaved little Parliamentary Fauntleroys.

It cut the heart out of the Question Period.

In a day, this usually mad and frantic verbal rough and tumble on the floor of the Commons was cut from an entertaining full-length feature running 90 minutes or more, to just another run-of-the-mill "extra added attraction," as the theatre world calls it.

The spectators are yawning, and turning back to the comic pages for their laughs.

It was that old Foxy Grandpa, Stanley Knowles, the Old-Warrior of the Pipeline, who suggested the Daily Question.

It was more or less his own personal Parliamentary "invention" to end the Question Period and give the Opposition the lapped-out-of-shape "Pocket Debates" as a most satisfactory substitute.

Maybe Dief should have known better than to buy it so innocently, even for a six-week "trial" run that could go on indefinitely. For wasn't it he who only the other day accused Stan-The-Man of being a con artist, a skilful and not altogether unwilling shill for the Government?

Daily Question Period Now as Riproaring as Romper Room

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in the Commons has been MIA.

Ambushed, conned, trapped, just plain out-foxed.

The Honorable Members on the Progressive Conservatives - New Democratic - Social Credit - Rallidement Des Creditistes benches have had their political teeth pulled as surely as Samson lost his hair.

Those were the teeth that they so often, with such relish and malice aforethought, sunk into the tender hides of the cabinet ministers in the annual trapping and biting match that used to enliven the Commons daily for its opening hour or 90 minutes.

For some strange reason that defies all permissible logic, the once wildcats of the Opposition have agreed, for a "trial" six weeks, to become lame ducks.

They have diluted the strong acid of the very lively and always entertaining Question Period into a mild milk-and-water mixture.

They have bowed to the good, hard stout club of the Question Period, with which they so painfully thumped the Government, for a gentle wimpy wand of "Pocket Debates."

WHO'S LISTENING?

In the Question Period, they did their stuff each day when the galleries were full of the sitting cheering spectators, and the Commons was packed there like so many ducks in the line of hot inquisitorial fire.

Each Official Opposition in its day had the usually - - but not always - - eager and happy cooperation of the "Splinter" groups.

Suitable Girdle Sometimes Solution for Backache

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 80 years old and my back ached so bad I went to the doctor and had it X-rayed. He said the cartilage had worn out and for me to wear a girdle. I never heard of such a thing. Is this common in older people. — Mrs. Jane W.

Perhaps he said "worn" instead of "worn out" between the boxes of the spine are discs or cushions of cartilage. In time they become flattened or "worn." This is one of the reasons why some old people aren't as tall as they were in youth.

We all can expect a certain amount of this wearing. It is a result in pressure on certain nerves which emerge from the spine, and a suitable girdle can help hold the back in a better position and relieve pressure) may be the answer to such pains.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am planning a trip abroad. I have had tetanus, typhoid and smallpox vaccinations. Is it necessary for tetanus and typhoid be all that is required, or will I have to go thru the whole series again? — G. T.

Smallpox must be repeated every five years but it is not mandatory.

If you are going to a danger area, have a typhoid booster.

Paratyphoid isn't required but it is a good protection against severe intestinal upsets, and strongly recommend it. Typhoid and paratyphoid are usually combined in one preparation of vaccine.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a teacher and drink a great deal of milk because of a stomach ulcer. Someone told me recently that kidney stones are formed by calcium deposits and that too much milk will cause them. Should I cut down on milk? If I have to choose between the ulcer and kidney stones, I'd prefer the ulcer. — W. H.

A little knowledge can be dangerous.

Yes, calcium is one of the contributing factors in stones, but obt because of calcium in the diet. We don't, in fact, know precisely what causes stones to develop, although infections such as kidney infections certainly can stimulate their formation.

One can have painful calcium deposits elsewhere in the body often in the feet or joints) but not because of milk. Calcium is deposited in these areas as part of a healing process in irritated or infected parts. You apparently don't have kidney stones but you do have an ulcer.

Forget about "someone's" dreary ulcer story, and keep on drinking milk.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have frequent and severe pains in the hind my right shoulder, in the neck region. Pain can occur in any position, standing, sitting, lying down, driving a car.

Mostly from my descriptions of my symptoms the doctor called it a "hooked rib." Is there any treatment short of surgery? — Mrs. E. S.

Personally, I wouldn't want to diagnose on a description — except in some circumstances, to say it "might" be such and such. X-ray is the best method of finding out what your trouble really is.

If it is a "hooked rib" that means a congenital anomaly, one rib being placed a segment more than usual. There is a press on nerves and cause pain. This is also called a "cervical rib."

Arthritis of the spine can cause similar symptoms, however, so you need to know which it is.

In a rule, removal of the cervical rib is the only curative solution, but it is straightforward surgery and not to be feared.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Recently items appearing in this column under the heading "20 Years Ago" have actually been reports of happenings only ten years ago. The Ontario Intelligencer apologizes to any person who may have been inconvenienced by this error, now corrected.

May 2nd, 1944 . . .

The call of the great out-of-doors made itself evident to members of the younger generation on Sunday in an apparent irresistible measure with motorists, pedestrians and cyclists taking advantage of the brilliant sunshine to do just what they fully intended to do over Easter week-end. Most noticeable were the numbers of cyclists seen on the highways radiating in all directions from the city.

That grass fires are not confined entirely to urban areas and that they can cause considerable damage when out of control in rural districts was indicated Saturday afternoon on the 9th concession of Sidney, when a vacant frame farm house was destroyed. The farm house was owned by Mr. Wesley Lake and was situated approximately two miles east of Stirling.

Plans are now complete for a gala opening during the spring breezes on Firreman's Park on Sunday suddenly become somewhat concerned when the top portion of a sedan motor car was observed in the river adjacent to the old No. 1 fire hall. At first it appeared as though a motor car had apparently been driven right over the abutment wall into the river. However, when the car was secured and investigations made, it was discovered that only the body portion of an old automobile was floating slowly with the river. The body had been removed from a chassis and was floating along the river bank where some mischievous children pushed it into the river.

May 2nd, 1934 . . .

Following are the newly elected directors of the Belleville Rotary Club: Jamieson Bone, J. B. Boyce, R.J.C. Dewar, Morley Duff, and J. S. Sherit. Ed Bernstein will be a member ex-officio of the board of directors when he retires as president on July 1st. The new president and secretary-treasurer will be appointed by the directors in the near future.

The Rev. Gerald Graham, who has been in charge of St. John's Anglican Mission, Bridge Avenue, and other outlying parishes in the district, has been appointed rector of the parish of Leeds Rear in the eastern part of the diocese by the Rt. Rev. John Ridgeway Orchard, Rural Dean T. H. H. Hall, rector of the parish of Merrickville and Burritt's Rapids will succeed Mr. Graham in charge of St. John's Mission and he will also act as locum tenens at the Canadian Air Force Station on the Front Road. The Rev. Gerald Graham was formerly a solicitor and many friends regret his departure from the city.

Building permits issued at the office of the city engineer for the month of April amount to an estimated value of $2,050. They covered minor repairs and alterations.

Mr. Elmer B. LaBarr left this afternoon by motor for Louisville, Kentucky, to attend the Kentucky Derby which will take place at Churchill Downs. This is Mr. LaBarr's first time to see the famous race.

40 YEARS AGO

May 2nd, 1924 . . .

The city has at last got around to the matter of the Corby baths on Victoria Park. The sum of $5,000 which was left by the late Senator Corby for the purpose, has accrued interest to the amount of $1,500 so the total amount is now $6,500 to expend. The cheque for this amount is now held by Mr. Stewart Lewis, K.C., solicitor for the estate. City engineer Charles Campbell has the plans prepared for the baths.

National Castings Limited of this city, owing to increased business, has made a large addition to their buildings. The installation of an electric furnace has attracted considerable new business.

May 2nd, 1914 . . .

Saturday evening, April 25th, was ladies' night at a meeting of the Belleville Club in Winnipeg. Fifty or one hundred persons were present and the event was most enjoyable. Mr. William (Bill) Smith, the late principal speaker. He left Belleville in the early seventies and in his address referred to and recalled to the memories of the old timers present the days before the railway pierced the north country, and Belleville was the shipping point for the territory. Those were the days when Belleville was some town and waggon loads with grain from the countryside lined Front Street from the Upper Bridge to the wharf where the grain was sold to buyers. Mr. Squires was personally acquainted with Scott who was shot by Louis Riel, they having prospected together in the gold fields of Eldorado in the early sixties.

Our Worst Shipping Tragedy

14,000 Tons of Elegance Sunk in Minutes

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

QUEBEC (CP) — On a fine, clear spring night 50 years ago the elegant Empress of Ireland was gliding down the St. Lawrence River toward the sea.

Most of the 1,057 passengers were in their berths by mid-night on their first night out of Quebec City. But one, Thomas Smart of Toronto, was still sitting out on the upper deck when the captain walked by on his way to the bridge about 1:30 a.m. on May 29, 1914.

At 38, Captain Henry George Kendall was unusually young to be master of an ocean liner. In fact, he had just taken command of the 14,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner four weeks earlier at Halifax.

"It's a nice night indeed," he said returning the passenger's greeting. "but it looks to me as though a fog is coming. You can never tell how quickly one will gather at this part of the river."

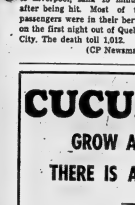
The liner had just dropped its river pilot at Father Point, 175 miles downstream from Quebec City, and was accelerating to its full speed of 18 knots bound for the Atlantic and Liverpool.

SIGHTS COLLIER

Toward 2 a.m Capt. Kendall saw the masthead lights of what appeared to be a ship approaching ship, about six miles away. It was the Norwegian collier Storstad, bound for Montreal from Sydney, N.S., with 10,800 tons of coal.

Then a bank of fog suddenly rolled out from shore, completely hiding the two ships from each other.

A few minutes later a young Empress passenger, Grace Kohl — now Mrs. Richard Mather of Montreal—woke up suddenly and looked out a porthole to see the lights of another vessel through the fog.



"I thought it was the boat taking the pilot off and I went back to sleep," she recalled recently.

The ship she saw was, in fact, the Storstad — heading straight for the starboard of the Empress of Ireland.

Seconds later the collier struck the liner amidships, penetrating her hull 15 to 20 feet and tearing open her steel plates in a lengthwise gash. Tons of water poured into the liner's two exposed boiler rooms.

SANK SUDDENLY

The Empress immediately listed heavily to starboard. She sank in 15 minutes.

LOCATES DISASTER — On a clear spring night, May 29, 1914, the liner Empress of Ireland was struck by the Norwegian collier, Storstad, on the St. Lawrence River off Father Point, Que. The liner, enroute to Liverpool, sank 15 minutes after being hit. Most of the passengers were in their berths on the first night out of Quebec City. The death toll 1,012.
(CP Newsmap)

The place was 5½ miles east of Father Point. The death toll, in the worst peacetime shipping disaster in Canadian history, was 1,012 — 840 of the passengers and 172 of the 420 crew. Of the 138 children aboard, only four survived.

Many passengers and crew were trapped below decks. The collision had plunged the liner into darkness almost immediately.

Many died struggling in the water or were sucked below the surface when the Empress made her death plunge.

The Empress had 40 lifeboats but only four of them got away, all from the starboard side. So quickly did the ship list, there was no chance to lower any boats from the port side.

There were no casualties on the Storstad.

CHURCH GROUP LOST

Among the passengers on the Empress were 200 men, women and children of the Salvation Army heading for London for an international congress.

Only 33 of them survived. The victims included the Canadian commander, commissioner David M. Rees, his wife and their three children.

That is why, on May 29 each year, the Salvation Army holds a memorial service in Toronto's Mount Pleasant cemetery. A wreath is customarily presented by Mrs. M. E. Martyn of London, Ont., who, at eight-year - old Grace Hanagan, emerged from the disaster an orphan and the youngest survivor in the Salvation Army group.

Her father, bandmaster Edward Hanagan, managed to get her on to a piece of floating wreckage before he disappeared beneath the waves. Just 10 hours earlier, around 4:30 p.m. on the sunny afternoon of May 28, he had led his band in God Be With You Till We Meet Again as a large crowd watched the Empress pull away from her Quebec City berth.

The disaster, coming only two years after the "unsinkable" Titanic had struck an iceberg and carried 1,513 people to the bottom of the Atlantic, stunned the world. What had gone wrong?

EVENTS DISPUTED

When the Empress of Ireland and the Storstad sighted each other, before the fog rolled out from shore, Captain Thomas Andersen of the Norwegian ship was asleep in his cabin. His young first officer, Alfred Toftenes, had taken over the watch at midnight but had standing orders to call him in case of fog.

What happened on the two bridges, once the fog came, was bitterly disputed at the official inquiry ordered by the Canadian government.

The report of the inquiry commission, headed by Lord Mersey, who had also conducted the Titanic inquiry, concluded that the Storstad had changed course in the fog and was to blame.

It found First Officer Toftenes "wrong and negligent" in changing course in the fog and in failing to call his captain as soon as the fog came in.

The report said: "The captain is the man who ought to have been there. Mr. Toftenes says that he thought there was no danger and therefore he did not matter.

"He was wrong; there was danger, and anyway it was his duty to obey the order which he had received to call the captain when the fog came in."

CALLED SKIPPER

Capt. Andersen came up to the Storstad's bridge probably about the time Miss Kohl was looking out her porthole in the Empress. First Officer Toftenes had called him up because it was "getting hazy."

The Norwegian captain was not immediately informed that there was another ship in the vicinity and his first move on reaching the bridge was the routine step of checking the compass. He barely got to it when he looked up and saw the lights of the Empress across his bow, just 600 to 800 feet ahead.

He immediately ordered his engines thrown into reverse but it was too late.

So great was the impact of the collision that the Storstad swung out from the Empress, turned more than 90 degrees and glided past her bow back into the fog.

For almost 10 minutes Capt. Andersen had no idea where the stricken liner was until he heard the cries of people in the water.

Then he moved as close as he dared and lowered his four boats to pick up survivors.

CAPTAIN SAVED

A fluke saved the life of Capt. Kendall of the Empress. A section of the bridge broke away as the liner went under, hurling him into the water near a lifeboat. Finally aboard, he directed rescue operations until he was convinced there was nobody left alive in the river.

Between 3 a.m. and 4 a.m. two other vessels, the mail tender Lady Evelyn and the tugboat Eureka, reached the scene. But all they could do was take survivors to the nearest town, Rimouski, Que.

Cleared of any blame for losing his ship, Capt. Kendall, now living in retirement in England, commanded the auxiliary cruiser Calgarian during the First World War until it was sunk by a German submarine in March, 1918. He finished the war as a commodore of convoys and was Canadian Pacific's marine superintendent for London and Southampton from 1918 until his retirement in 1938.

The inquiry commissioners could not help feeling compassion for the unfortunate Toftenes, then 33, his career blighted by the almost inconceivable tragedy.

"We regret," they said, "to have to impute blame to anyone in this lamentable disaster and we should not do so if we felt that any reasonable alternative was left to us."

Young People Rebel Against Unkind Life

DEAR DORIS — It seems as though I've come to the end of the line. I have a boy and a girl, ages 18 and 20. The boy has been in reformatory for stealing. Last month the girl decided her business course was boring and she used to come home after I left for work.

DORIS CLARK

One day my husband found them here with some other girls and boys having a ball. He ordered the other kids home and told our two to find themselves a job. So they just walked out of the home.

They phoned me once since. They seemed to be somewhere comfortable but wouldn't say where. Have you any idea what I might be able to do? — FRANTIC MARITIMER.

DEAR FRANTIC — Where were you when your young ones were facing the challenges which go with growing up?

When a boy does things which are against the law, it is usually in rebellion against a life which has not been kind to him. You and your husband may have worked to provide material things, but your boy and girl needed you to be there when they came home from school; needed your reassurance in troubled times; needed your love, even your reliable and consistent discipline — and that of their father.

At 18, they may not go away if they choose. The ties which bind you now can only be those of affection. Consult the Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved, to discuss your particular situation.

DEAR DORIS — I am keeping company with a man who was raised in the country and always did heavy work. He is wonderfully easy going and we have good times.

But he doesn't dress well at all; seldom looks neat; and he has only one suit, which fits him poorly. I am ashamed to go out with him. How can I get him to acquire better dress habits? — LOVE HIM BUT?

DEAR LOVE — Could it be that nobody ever told him how to groom himself? How to comb his hair or press his trousers? Or the usefulness of a "Sunday suit" for dates?

Try this: tell him you want to have his picture taken with you or for you. For such an important occasion you want him to look his very best: hair cut, shoes shined, suit cleaned and pressed. You might even suggest that he have a clean white shirt to put on at the last moment.

If you do this gently and because you are fond of him, he may get a brand new respect for himself. Take one step at a time.

To FUTURE MODEL — You can get the information from me if you will write again giving me your name and address on a stamped envelope.

(Don't just muddle along. Doris can give you a new slant on your dilemma. Write to her.)

Mothers and Daughters Enjoy Banquet Night at YMCA

Fathers and sons were left at home to cope with the supper dishes on Friday evening while the girls of the Y took their mothers out to the annual mother and daughter banquet held at the Y.M.C.A. The Y's Menettes sponsored the dinner and helped with the serving.

The tables looked attractive with white 'mums arranged with spring blossoms of tulips and daffodils, and sprays of forsythia.

Mrs. Hugh Watson, president of the Y's Menettes, conducted the meeting, and the musical part of the evening consisted of a sing-along led by Mrs. M. Wooley with Mrs. D. Sims at the piano.

Greetings were brought from the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors by Mrs. Freeman Burrows who explained the interesting and varied program which the Board is working on, in which the whole family can participate.

A toast to the mothers was proposed by Miss Kate Walters and the response was made by Mrs. Donald W. Maddocks. A demonstration on the pommel horse was given by some of the Intermediate girls.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Major Homewood of the Salvation Army was the guest speaker, and introduced her subject of India with the assistance of her daughter Gillian. Mrs. Homewood and her husband and family spent five years serving in India, and had brought back several mementoes of their stay there.

To demonstrate the clothing worn by the women of India Mrs. Homewood showed how the under skirts and the sari were arranged. The sari was six yards long, and Mrs. Homewood considered it the most graceful and useful of clothing worn anywhere by women.

Babies' clothing was made in dark flowered cottons, and children's clothing was in the same dark colors.

A toy prized by the Indian child was a wooden snake fashioned like a retractable gate which could be sprung out to startle people. Household utensils included a wooden mallet which Mrs. Homewood described as a mixmaster, although it was operated manually by twisting it between the hands. Dried gourds of various shapes and sizes were used for container sets. Fruits in season were enjoyed particularly mangoes, guavas, and bananas.

The speaker showed the Indian flag of saffron, white and green and the garlands of different types which are presented to people as a mark of esteem. Boys and girls in India give to the Red Cross and to their Sunday-school and save their coins in a bank which has to be broken to get the coins out. Mrs. Homewood had a vanity case which had been given to her containing a red powder for the lips.

"The Indian women spends a great deal of time with her hair and keeps it oiled and shining and clean. When she is finished she smears it down the centre and dabs a red powder.

"The important things is to realize that we all have something to learn from each country", said the speaker. "People in India are always willing to give to beggars regardless of how poor they are. The ones who give are the ones who receive back the gift, glorified. Those who get the most out of life are the ones who give."

Introduction of the guest speaker was made by Mrs. F. Bobbie Clarke and appreciation was expressed by Miss Joanne Wiggins. The Y's Menettes were thanked for the excellent dinner by Y member Miss Cathy Kerr.

Mr. D. G. Diamantides introduced the guests at the head table and program director Graham Geldart explained the summer activities which include a learn to swim class, a summer fun class, the day camp at Oak Lake and an outdoor sports program.

Mrs. F. Burrows assisted by program director for girls Mildred Gray presented the awards to those who had qualified.

"THE THIRD CANADA - WIDE SCIENCE FAIR"

"There is another way to truth: by the minute examination of facts. That is the way of the scientist . . . " — John Masefield

"Here's something that would be of interest to see! Let's plan to attend."

So suggested my husband upon reading of the Science Fair in Montreal.

And we did.

Well, it wasn't until we'd entered the exhibit area in the Hall d'honneur of the Universite De Montreal that the true importance of this event was revealed to me.

Of course I'd heard of it. "This fair," my husband had explained, "is held for High School boys and girls whose exhibits have won highest honors in Regional Science Fairs throughout Canada. You will recall one held in Belleville at Quinte Secondary School when two exhibits were selected recently: Robert Murdock and Peter Smale."

"Yes," he answered and mentioned that Mr. R. C. Ellis was the chairman of the local exhibition. Sponsored by the Belleville Rotary Club which looked after the travel, living accommodations and banquet for the finalists.

"But the Fair Council itself is sponsored by such Canadian bodies as the Agricultural, Chemical and Engineering Institutes; the Geological Association, Dental and Education Associations, the Physicists, Physicists, the Conference on Education, Teachers' Federation, Universities Foundation, Institute of Biological Societies and the Royal Astronomical Society."

"Gosh," I said.

"Besides, there's a list of some three dozen Canadian Industrial firms, such as: The Shell Oil Company, The Northern Electric Company, The Ford Motor Company of Canada, The E. B. Eddy Company, Dominion Stores, The Bank of Montreal, to name a few. All are greatly interested in and give much encouragement to these promising young Canadian scientists."

"I really had no idea . . ."

"The incentives are excellent, too. There's a total of four (4) first (#1), four second (#50), and four third ($25) awards; one for the boys and the other for girls. Exhibits are in main categories: A. Biological Sciences. B. Physical Sciences. (There are also subject proficiency awards at $10.00 each and special awards.) The two over-all best or grand awards, one for boy and one for girls, consists of expense - paid trips to the International Youth Science Fortnight. London, England."

Although all was explained, you'll get an impersonal, wrong, unreal, until as I've said, we entered the exhibit hall, flanked by rows of interesting, varied, well-displayed, "Canada - wide" exhibits, each in its own specified space and judged by creative ability (30 points), scientific thought (30), thoroughness of study and research (10), and dramatic value(10) to total 100 points.

Then, somehow, everything sprang to life, to reality; the youthful enthusiasm, boundless and contagious swept and carried one along. Kenneth Graham's model wrote: "As a rule, indeed, grown-up people are fairly correct on matters of fact; it is in the higher gift of imagination that they are apt sadly to seek." For the gift of imagination displayed here dazzled yet sobered one at the same time, by its very realization and precious quality.

Adults were saying: "Amazing! "Imagine, teenagers!" "It's beyond me!" Exclaimed 17 year old Madeleine Solomon from Quebec City and exhibitor of "Geographic photometer" "...Oh, I've been interested in physics way back since I was fourteen..."

As we seek out our two Belleville exhibitors who give this Fair special meaning for us, we look in "The List of Exhibitors" and read as we do so: Smale: Crystals — Natural and Man-made.

Peter Smale, 17, R. R. No. 5, Trenton, Ontario. Grade 12, Quinte Secondary School, Belleville.

Project: Production and photography of man-made crystals and examples of natural crystals. A crystal is a solid with characteristic shape and cleavage caused by arrangement of atoms, ions or molecules into a definite pattern or crystal lattice composed of unit cells. Crystals were produced by three methods: (1) Evaporation of supersaturated solutions, (2) Heating naphthalene and condensing the gas, and (3) by low temperatures. Future Career: Engineering. Science Fairs: Bay of Quinte '62, 63' 64. Cost of project: $3.50.

Project: A homemade vacuum tube working on principle of with a vacuum pump, current meter, power supply, filament voltage source and grid voltage control. The full assembly is designed to show the basic principle and wide uses of this electronic component. Idea source: My science teacher and crystal radio given to me some years ago. Career: Engineering. Science Fairs: Bay of Quinte '63, '64.

What good fortune, at such a Fair as this, Canada's youth may present first hand it's own explorations into the fascinating world of facts and ideas. That a nation such as Canada comprehends, so well expressed by Masefield.

"Man consists of body, mind and imagination. His body is faulty, his mind unfavourable, but his imagination has made him remarkable. In some centuries, his imagination has made life on this planet an intense practice of all the lovelier energies."

MAIL CALL

Question: At the end of a meal, what should you do with the napkin: smooth it back into its original folds or just put it on the table "as is"? There seem to be several opinions about this, and I'd like to know yours. — Mrs. I. G., New York City

Answer: The napkin should not be recreased, but should be taken from the lap in casual folds, not in a wad, and placed to the left of the plate when you leave the table.

Question: Are you supposed to return a phone call even if the caller does not request you do so? For instance, when I return-ed from shopping the other day, I found a message saying "Mrs. Smith" and that's all. It did not indicate I was supposed to call back and, since I had no idea who the caller was, I forgot about it. The next day "Mrs. Smith" called back and seemed in a temper because I had not returned her call. I would, if she had requested it. What is correct in this type of situation.— Mrs. L. M., Peabody, Mass.

Answer: It's only necessary to return a call when the caller leaves a message to that effect when you're not home. If she leaves only her name, it usually means she'll call back when she's more apt to catch you.

P.C. Women Plan Library For Centennial Project

The Progressive Conservative Ladies' Association of 8 Provincial Associations making up District No. 2 met at the Kiwanis Centre April 29th. There was excellent representations from all districts.

Mrs. Stuart Howell, president of the Belleville P.C. Women's Association, welcomed the ladies of District No. 2 to Belleville. She remarked that the large attendance must indicate the resurgence and strength in the Conservative party. Compliments were given to Miss Kay McFarland, chairman of District No. 2 and president of the Ladies' Association of Ontario on the fine organization she had accomplished.

Mrs. R. N. Broad, secretary, gave a comprehensive report and read messages from Provincial and Federal Members who were unable to attend Ladies Parliament was in session. Mrs. Donald Allenbrick, M.P., Prince Edward Lennox sent greetings from Hon. John Diefenbaker.

PLAN LIBRARY

Miss McFarland announced the details of the P.C. Women's proposed birthday for centennial year. A library is being planned for this historic year.

The speaker of the day was Mrs. Dorothy Downing, National Director, P.C. Women's Association who was introduced by Miss Jane Scott, 1st vice-President of Belleville Y.P.C.'s. Mrs. Downing spoke on some length on the P.C. leader, Hon. John Diefenbaker.

Mrs. Downing said that "In the 22 years of Liberal rule prior to 1957, women had been ignored so far as appointment to public office was concerned. When Diefenbaker, the incoming Prime Minister of Canada appointed women to executive office for the first time.

He named the first woman to a cabinet position in Canada — Ellen Fairclough. He appointed the first woman to the office of ambassador — Miss Margaret Meagher, ambassador to Israel, and the Conservative Government gave Canada its first female judge — Mrs. Cowan — and Miss Mary Louise Lynch to this board.

FOUGHT DISCRIMINATION

John Diefenbaker's record shows he has always fought discrimination against people, said Mrs. Downing. The Conservative government granted the right to vote to Canada's Indian citizens, and appointed the first Indian to the Senate, James Gladstone of Alberta. John Diefenbaker spoke out in defence of the Japanese. Canadians, who during wartime were being relocated by the Liberal Government from their west coast homes, and spoke out against racial discrimination at the Commonwealth Prime Minister's meeting in London.

John Diefenbaker is the man who has won more elections than any other Conservative leader since Sir John A. Macdonald, she said. John Diefenbaker has elected more members to the House of Commons than any other Conservative or Liberal Leader in Canada's history. John Diefenbaker leads today, save one exception in 90 years, the numerically largest opposition in the House of Commons.

"All Canadians know," said Mrs. Downing that John Diefenbaker has the becoming graces of devotion, courage, fortitude, incorruptibility and conscientiousness. His courage is known to us all; and we know, too, that John Diefenbaker is one of Canada's truly great orators."

LIGHTING CEREMONY

An impressive candle lighting ceremony was performed by Mrs. Downing to symbolize the light and knowledge represented by the Progressive Conservative party. A large blue candle was first lighted, and then seven smaller ones which represented the youthful voter, the New Canadian, the forgetful voter, the unmarried, the unin-formed, the late voter and the moved away voter. Each individual in the audience then lit a candle to represent each vote and the confidence for the party lighted in the minds of men and women across the country which would spread its glow and reach the new votes.

An expression of appreciation was given to Mrs. Downing by Mrs. Gerald Curry of Frankford Association.

A social hour provided by the hostess association was enjoyed. Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock poured tea.

CLAIM RECORD

EDINBURGH (CP)—Ten students from St. Andrew's University, members of the varsity society, claimed a world record by reading plays nonstop for 46 hours, 11 minutes.

QUESTION:

My problem is I cannot, and I mean cannot make a white cake. I have followed recipes to the smallest detail but alas, my cakes are coarse and heavy. One could shoot peas through the air spaces. My ideal is a light and feathery type of cake that falls apart in layers, if you know what I mean. There is another texture when whites of eggs are added as the last ingredient. This type is not what I desire . . . Mrs. C.-B.

ANSWER:

Yes, I recognize the texture you are seeking. But it following does not produce it to a "t" write again. It calls for whole eggs.

SATURDAY

Time Here for Travel Tips To Help With Summer Trips

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

(Q) "We are planning a trip to Washington, D.C., in August, but have been told it is foolish because of the heat and crowded tourist conditions. What do you think?" — Mrs R. C. B.

(A) Washington is crowded with tourists and hot in the summer, all right. But there is usually less government activity, and it really doesn't seem as crowded as it is. There are plenty of excellent air-conditioned accommodations these days, so if you can take the heat during the day you won't mind the nights.

(Q) "I have a slight tendency towards air sickness which I can control with dramamine. How is ship travel likely to affect me? Would I be uncomfortable just the first day or two? — Mrs. M. G. S.

(A) Experts say air sickness has little or nothing to do with sea sickness; some get one and not the other. Sideways motion of the ship — rolling — usually is less bothersome than fore and aft motion — pitching — most often encountered westbound on the Atlantic. Some people simply get used to motion after a day or two. However, comparatively few have to take medication regularly, only in rougher seas. There are many excellent and harmless medications which effectively solve this age-old problem today, and a check with your doctor would be a good idea.

(Q) "How do you evaluate the relative merits of the various tours offered? There are so many of them. We don't want a rat race, above all." — E. F.

(A) First you ought to be sure you have a competent and reliable travel agent who will not recommend a tour unsuited to your taste. Second, price is an important determining factor, as it is in everything else. Lower - priced tours often have too much crammed into them in order to make them look like bargains. A careful analytical reading of every detail in the tour folder is essential. If you're not out to set any course records, avoid those tours that have you in a different city every night, and just passing through interesting places by day. Many places are worth several nights and days, even at the expense of missing something else.

(Q) "How does one go about booking those charming and inexpensive pensions in Europe we keep hearing about. Do they have to be booked far in advance? — J. B.

(A) Pensions — small family hotels like boarding houses — are in fact hard to book, both because they do little or no promotion, hence are little known to travel agencies, and because their few rooms usually are booked up by repeat clients. They do not, as a rule, pay the commissions hotels do, hence travel agents are reluctant to deal with them except as a service to their clients. Best bet is to find a travel agent who specializes in them, or a friend who can recommend some from experience, then book direct.

(Q) "I am planning to take a trip with two lady companions, in September and October through the northwest to California and the southwest. How should we plan the route to take advantage of the best weather?" — Mrs. T. W.

(A) That time of year is, of course, when the weather turns. Since it will start turning cool in the upper country by October, you'd be best off starting there California is fairly even in the Fall (warm in the south, cool in the north through both months), and the Southwest, warm. If you're lucky, the Southwest may not be as warm in October and in September.

(Q) "When's the best season to visit Hawaii?" — Mrs. M. S.

(A) Any season. The climate variations are never enough to worry about. It's a little cooler in the winter.

(Q) "How far in advance is it necessary to write for tickets to hit shows in New York?" — Miss B. B.

(A) Just as far in advance as possible, especially for musicals. Always give a few alternate dates with each request in case the performance you choose is booked. They say New York theatres give preference to requests from out-of town; while that's never been probed, you probably stand a good chance of getting what you want if you write just as soon as your plans are definite.

(Q) "(1) Is a travel iron practical for a trip to Europe? (2) Will a transistor radio come in handy? (3) What is the best country in Europe in which to buy furs?" — Mrs. A. B.

(A) A travel iron is fine if you can afford the baggage weight, and if you get from your dealer the necessary adapters for European plugs and current. A transistor radio is always a good friend, but don't play it on the plane; it interferes with navigational instruments. Most experts say that European furs are inferior to North American.

(Q) "How much, and how to tip at an American Plan resort?" — Mrs. P. D.

(A) Everyone except bellhops and room service waiters (the usual 25 cents a bag or 15 percent of the check) is tipped weekly, or at the end of your stay. They would include your waiter or waitress (50 cents to $1.00 a day per person, depending on how fancy a resort it is), and the busboy, who normally receives about half the waiter's tip except for exceptional service. Other tips are at your discretion and depend on services given — head waiters or maitre d', children's playground attendant or nurse (up to $1.00 a day per child), swimming pool lounge attendant (25 cents a day), locker and steam room attendants (up to 20 per cent of your charges there), and room maid (50 cents a day).

Miss Carolyn Worley — Mr. Val Lunski, B.Sc.

A Lift for Living

Man's Soul Measured by Size Of Things Which Move Him

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN MAN'S SOUL

In spring we see elemental events taking effect among us. Spring is a time of hatchings and births, with life getting a fresh start in myriad ponds and streams, in nests and dens. It is a time of revolution when April and May conquer the tyranny of winter, life breaks the rule of death, springtime overthrows the kingdom of gloom, and man feels sunlight reaching into the very marrow of his bones.

Now, in May, we behold a blending of man's response to earth and earth's response to man. It is this fundamental transaction of business between man and earth that makes spring the most exciting season of the year. In the yellow-green hours of springtime man acts and expects nature to react appropriately. The boy raises his kite to the strong, moist breezes; the householder cleans out last year's nesting box and puts it again in a tree near the house; a special stall is prepared for a mare to have her colt and for a cow to bear her calf. The lawn is raked; the garden is spaded; the field is ploughed; the gardner plants his bulbs and the farmer sows his seeds. And each performs his task with the high expectation as if to say, "If I call, Nature will answer."

BEYOND MAN

Agriculture is based upon the assumption that there is something beyond us that is sympathetic to us and sensitive to what we do. The farmer ploughs and plants and then waits for Nature's reply to his expectations. He believes that the silver rains and golden sun will encourage the good earth to acknowledge his work and answer his trust with growth and an abundant provision for his need. All great religious faith rests upon the idea that behind this responsiveness of Nature there is a God who cares for us and answers our need, and that Nature is but one of His ways of manifesting His concern.

Responsiveness is a basic element in human nature. Man's very physical being is fashioned for sensitivity to what the world may be saying to him. We have lungs for responding to air and for responding to sound, eyes for responding to light. Air, sound and light were here before the man came, and lungs, ears and eyes are God's way of furnishing man with an answer to the atmosphere and a reply to the visible, audible wonders of the world.

One of the world's saddest sights is a person who can make no appropriate response. We have all seen some such person at one time or another. We may have watched with pity as a mother awaited, the first sign that her infant recognized her and would smile at her in answer to her smile, and we have seen grief steal into her face when her fearful heart as she realizes the child might be blind or mentally retarded, and could not respond to her as she had hoped.

Then there are others who will not respond when they can, the pupils in school who will not listen to instruction, the citizens who will not bother to vote even when they know great issues are at stake, the tourists who speed through vistas of breathtaking beauty oblivious to the splendour because they are preoccupied with the number of miles they can travel each day. Unresponsive folk are as frustrating as were the dolls about which one little girl complained to her mother, "I just love them and love them, and they never love me back!"

JESUS HAD TROUBLE

Jesus had trouble with such doll-like, dehumanized, unresponsive people. In the days of His flesh He "went about doing good" the Book of Acts tells us. But He could not do the good He desired everywhere. Why? Because some people were unimpressed by Him. They did not receive Him with eagerness and high expectation. The Gospel of Matthew cites Christ's rejection by His neighbors in Nazareth, of whom it is said, "He did not do many mighty works there, because of their unbelief." Some knew Him too well, so they thought. They were His neighbors and relatives. He had a familiar face and manner. He had worked for them in the carpenter's shop, making their doors, tables and chairs. How could God do anything of real consequence through such a commonplace fellow. The power of Christ was present among them in abundance, but the Nazarenes missed it because they lacked the faith to respond to it. It takes little faith to respond with amazement and joy to miracles that occur across seas, or a prophet of old to arise, behold God's work — and to appreciate it — when it is a next-door miracle, seen everyday, that occurs only to rare souls.

Man is made to respond, and we are hardly human at all until we are humble and awe-struck in the presence of God and God's wondrous works. God reaches out to us through the beauty that surrounds us, through the prayers of those who love us, through the example of some walking Gospel whose life we have read, through the Book, through a well trained conscience, in manifold other ways, and supremely through Christ. At our best, we eagerly reply. We answer in wonder, in prayer, in changed and devoted ethical conduct. "We love, because He first loved us" declares the First Epistle of John. God's love takes the initiative and man answers. And this is man's glory. that he can sense God's care and His commands and that man is capable of grateful, joyful response.

A man's soul can be measured by the size of the things that move him. The greatest souls are those who appropriately respond to God.

SEES WASTE

FREDERICTON (CP) — Dr. J. M. Berg, professor at the University of Toronto, said Thursday night "it is a waste of human talent to discard" the many retarded children regarded as "trainable." Although earlier methods had left little but a life in an institution for children with IQs between 20 and 50, Dr. Berg said modern procedures had made notable advances in this group.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: How many miles is it from Belleville to Boston, Mass., and can we cross Lake Champlain by ferry with car? — P. G., Belleville.

ANSWER: It is 440 miles to Boston from Belleville and there is a ferry which you can board at Port Kent, N.Y., and takes you over to Burlington, Vermont. This ferry takes cars and passengers. One-way fares, which include car and driver, range in price from $1.25 to $3.00.

QUESTION: We are going to Lake George, N.Y. Could you please tell us the time the launch tours run and how much the rides are? — Miss Rawden, Odessa.

ANSWER: Lake George, Marine Ind. S. Beach road, offer sightseeing tours of Lake George. Island cruise at 10 and 3; one hour shoreline cruise at 11, 1, 2.30 and 4; evening cruise at 7. Fares $1.25 and $2.00, children five to twelve half fare, under five free. Open May 1 to Oct. 12.

QUESTION: We are planning our honeymoon at the end of June. Where could we go to relax and fish within a radius of three hundred miles? — Reader.

ANSWER: The Laurentians, north of Montreal, are within 250 miles of Belleville, and have lovely motels, good fishing and beautiful scenery. The Adirondacks in New York State are also very beautiful, with good fishing and accommodations. This is about 150 miles from Belleville. Or you could go to the Muskoka Lakes, about 100 miles north of Toronto, where there are all sorts of resorts and camping facilities. Long Sault Parkway near Cornwall is another delightful spot.

QUESTION: What places of interest can we visit on our way to Quebec City? We are driving along Highway No. 2 all the way, and would appreciate places of historic interest, east of Brockville. — M. W., Trenton.

ANSWER: On leaving Brockville, you can stop a few miles east of Morrisburg and visit Upper Canada Village, which is a good two or three hour tour, and then stop at Cornwall for a visit at the Robert H. Saunders St. Lawrence Generating Station, also the United Counties Museum, 731 Second Street West, which has a historic setting. In Montreal the places of interest are too numerous to list. We would suggest you stop at the tourist information booth on entering Montreal and ask for brochures, and likewise in Quebec City. If you wish these brochures in advance of your trip, write to the Province of Quebec Tourist Bureau, 12 Rue Saint-Anne, Quebec City, and they will be glad to mail them to you.

On meeting Stalin — Why do you insist in carrying on a Czarist form of government? You know what I mean—shooting your enemies without trial and all that sort of thing.

On being given a Nazi salute by von Ribbentrop — Stop that nonsense with me.

When a wartime incendiary bomb hit her house — Where in hell are the sand buckets?

On newspapers — The more I see of the press, the more I thank God it has no influence on people.

On post - war politics — All this talk about equality and the age of the common man does not make sense. The common man does not make sense. The common man has never led the world and never will. It is the uncommon man who has always commanded the following.

Only a master of the English language could cap her — Sir Winston Churchill. It happened in the House of Commons. Lady Astor: "If I were your wife, I'd put poison in your coffee."

Churchill: "If I were your husband, I'd drink it."

DE GAULLE WORKING

Cadaver Look Is 'Out' Wholesome Look Now 'In'

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Can you predict when the fad will pass? I hope I live long enough. I am sick and tired of seeing our 17-year-old daughter in her black tights, boots, string hair, no lipstick and gobs of eye make-up. There are times when she looks so ghastly I hope no one will recognize her as mine.

I've talked until I am blue in the face, trying to persuade her to look like a normal human being instead of a derelict, but I might as well talk to the wall. She used to be quite sensible. Now she follows the pack like a sheep, and a blind one at that.

Am I worrying needlessly? Do other mothers feel as I do? Please tell me what you think about this. — A CONCERNED MOTHER.

DEAR CONCERNED — Chin up, mother — this too shall pass. In fact it may pass more quickly if you ignore it.

I am happy to report that the cadaver look is out and the wholesome look is in. When your daughter catches up with the latest she'll abandon the black leotards and shock movie eye make-up and rejoin the human race.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Do you believe if a person breaks a mirror he is in for seven years of bad luck?

I haven't been in good health these past few months. The doctor says he can't find anything wrong with me, but I still feel tired and edgy all the time. This superstition thing has thrown me into a real tailspin.

After lunch yesterday, I was powdering my nose. The compact fell out of my hands and the mirror broke into pieces.

The woman next to me said, "Well, that's seven years of bad luck for sure. I've never seen it to fail." She then went on to recite the terrible things that have happened to people she knew who had broken mirrors.

Please, Ann, tell me what you know about this. — WEAK PERHAPS.

DEAR PERHAPS — The only bad luck that comes from breaking a mirror is the problem of replacing it. If you want to wait seven years before you buy a new compact that's up to you.

I can think of no way to guarantee you seven years of good luck, but I can suggest something which might improve your mental health for the next seven years. Dump that lunkhead friend who went out of her way to "Cheer you up."

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Hank and I have been married eight years. We have five children, lots of bills and plenty of monthly payments to make.

My folks are not wealthy, but they have helped us out when things got to the repossession stage. I have always paid them back.

This morning when I was cleaning out the closet I found ten $20 bills stuck way down in one of Hank's worn shoes. The minute he came home I asked him where the money came from. At first he said he didn't know and then he changed his story. He said he was saving up to buy me a fur coat.

At one time Hank played the horses, but I don't think he goes near the track any more. I'm worried sick about the unexplained money. What does this sound like to you? — GRAY HAIR.

DEAR GRAY — It sounds as if Hank has had another attack of bangtail fever. Tell him now is his chance to quit when he is ahead — and I am keeping my fingers crossed for you that he will listen.

* * *

Confidential to A REAL FRIEND — Stop being so "friendly" or you will wind up paying her bills again, Dummy.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They tell me Tuffy Truesdale's pet alligator has departed this mortal coil and joined the Valhalla of "Rassiin' Reptiles.

I hope Tuffy skinned the slithering sloh and converted his hide into milady's purses, wallets and whatnot.

Tuffy brought the long-tailed lizard to Belleville not a few times. And in case some of you wrestling buffs remember, following, is a re-run of a column I wrote not a few years back.

Some guys and animals are born lucky; others acquire good fortune and yet others have it thrust upon them.

Many equine race track champions and prize-ring heavy droughts horses end up ignominiously in a glue-pot. Fine bulls and steers after a brief span of life wind up in a meat cannery or on a butcher's block. That prince of fishes, the salmon, gives his body to the salad bowl. After all, what fun do they get out of life?

But Tuffy's alligator is living the life of Reilly. Most of this overgrown lizard family live out their alleged span of 1500 years lazing around in a Florida or American river or pool, swimming, sun-tanning, getting free meals with no heating or tax problems to worry about. Eventually they wind up in luggage manufacturing joints, or have their hides carved up in small chunks, embroidered with a handle or two and some fancy, and are carried around on milady's arm as a purse.

Not so Tuffy's' tidbit. This slithering freeloader is the only one of his kind to get the chance to see the world at no cost, without benefit of joining the navy.

It lives well. It gets three big meals a day, if it bothers to wake up to eat them. Its razor-like chompers are toothbrushed daily so you don't have to wonder where the yellow went. It has a thinking crocodile's choice of viands, and is not averse to chomping on a human leg or arm, if it can get within range.

For, as Tuffy says, an alligator lives to eat. It has 30 teeth in its gaping jaws, 80 crunchers that can humberg a man with one shuddering chomp. The jaws of an alligator exert a pressure of 900 pounds. Think of it. Nine hundred pounds. God, what a missing way to die.

The last time Tuffy was here he brought Robert, the Rollicking Reptile to the stage in a coffin-like box. Its jaws opened and closed slightly in a sort of mentro-nomic rhythm. Funny sounds came forth. Then we discovered the damn thing was sound asleep—and snoring. While in passing it should be noted there is no such thing as a trained alligator. How can you train anything which has a brain the size of a quarter? No cracks, please.

Then the alligator wakened and was poked reluctantly from its coffin-like nursery with long poles. Finally it made for the side of the ring and Tuffy grabbed it by its long tail. He did a tug-of-war until he got the varmint back to the centre of the ring when he called for complete silence.

He tapped the alligator on the head and the great mouth opened. Then passed a hand through the gape and the closed with a sickening "Whap." Then he fixed the alligator's eyes and slowly brought his own closer until his and the alligator's optics almost touched. The reptile sat as if entranced.

Actually it is not a wrestling match, but an educational feat showing you what to do in case you meet an alligator in your favorite shopping centre some Saturday morning, or on your way home after the New Year's Eve party. Just pat him on the head and look him in the eye. When he begins to get dreamy-eyed, just wink at him, pick up the groceries and walk away. He won't bite you. Tuffy Truesdale hasn't even a semblance of a scar, and he's been doing it for years.

Ed 'Strangler' Lewis
Blind for Second Time

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Blindness can help you see more clearly.

So says Ed (Strangler) Lewis, one of the world's greatest wrestlers, who at 75 is living in darkness for the second time in his life.

Lewis first lost his sight more than 40 years ago, when he was at the height of his wrestling career. He regained his sight, but lost it again about three years ago.

Lewis attributes his earlier going of sight to God, saying doctors everywhere had he would never see again after a bout with trachoma, an eye disease. And he still has hope he will see again.

"If God was able to heal me once, he can do it again," Lewis says, "so I'm absolutely confident." At times, he adds, it seems he can see finger movements and lights.

Mays Hot But No Match For Dodgers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Every time they looked up Willie Mays was at first base, but that didn't stop Los Angeles Dodgers from winning game No. 1 against San Francisco Giant.

TOMMY DAVIS

Don Drysdale pitched a five-hitter and Tommy Davis, recovered from a shoulder injury, drove in four runs as the Dodgers belted the Giants 7-1 Friday night before a crowd of 52,733 at Los Angeles—the biggest of the baseball season.

But the most surprising development centred around Mays, who hit his eighth homer and also collected a single, raising his batting average to .400, and wound up playing first base for the first time in his 13-year major league career.

Mays, starting from a charley horse, moved from his normal centre field position to first base in the second inning. He didn't make an error and handled a couple of difficult chances, but it was the Dodgers' night even before the game started.

Before Drysdale went to the mound, Dodger ace Sandy Koufax was pronounced fit and another Los Angeles pitching casualty, Johnny Podres, was listed as a probably starter for Sunday's game. Koufax, who has been out since April 22 when he strained a muscle in his left forearm, may pitch Monday.

TURNS HIM OVER

Club physician Dr. Robert Kerlan turned Koufax over to Dodger manager Walt Alston this way:

"He's all yours now. So far as I'm concerned, he can pitch any time."

So can Drysdale, who struck out nine Giants and walked only two. He brought his record to 2-1 as the Dodgers made it five victories in six games, but remained 5½ games behind Philadelphia.

The Phillies got another standout performance from Richie Allen, who hit his sixth homer and also stroked a double, lifting his average to an eye-opening .431 while leading the way to a 5-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves. It was the 10th victory in 12 games for the Phillies.

Billy Williams of Chicago Cubs also had a hot bat. He drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a single in a 10-run first inning and later added a sixth RBI as the Cubs walloped Houston Colts 11-3.

CRAIG WINS FIRST

Roger Craig won his first game for St. Louis Cardinals by stopping Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2 on seven hits and Cincinnati Reds rode seventh-inning homers by Gordy Coleman and Marty Keough to a 4-3 decision over New York Mets.

The Cubs sent 15 men to bat in the first, then breezed behind Larry Jackson, who allowed the Colts only five hits and retired 16 in order at one stretch. Williams singled in the first run in the first inning, then capped the uprising with the N1a's first grand slam this season. It was his sixth homer. He doubled in another run in the eighth.

The Phillies struck for three runs in the sixth and beat Braves' starter Warren Spahn, now 1-3, for the first time since 1962. Winning pitcher Jim Bunning had a six-hit shutout until the ninth, when he needed relief help to gain a 3-0 record. The Cardinals won it for Craig with a four-run fourth-inning rally against Vern Law. Singles by Dick Groat, Bill White and Key Boyer produced one run, Charley James doubled another home and Johnny Lewis drove in two more with a single.

Tracy Stallard had a 3-1 lead and a three-hitter going for the Mets when the Reds took over in the seventh. Coleman led off with a homer and, after Johnny Edwards singled, Keough connected for the winner. Frank Thomas homered for the Mets.

Calls Senior Baseball Practice

A practice and a short meeting for players and others interested in helping keep senior baseball alive in Belleville has been scheduled for tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon.

Noe Hunter, one of several players who have been working towards entering a Belleville team in Lakeshore League play this summer, said yesterday that players are asked to report to the Fairgrounds for a two o'clock workout Sunday afternoon.

Should rain wash out the practice players are requested to gather for a planning meeting at Maher's Shoe Store, Front Street. There will also be a short meeting at the Fairgrounds if the practice is held.

Hunter indicated he would have more to say on the senior baseball picture here on Monday but in the meantime hopes to see a large turnout on Sunday.

FIGHT STOPPED

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Undergo Stanley (Kitten) Hayward of Philadelphia rallied from a second-round knockdown Friday night to win by a fourth-round technical-knockout over Curtis Cokes of Dallas, Tex. Hayward weighed 150¾, Cokes 147. Referee Zack Clayton halted the fight at 2:45 of the fourth round after cokes had been floored for the third time.

Allan Cup Opener
Winnipeg Blanks Woodstock 5-0

By BOB PARKINS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Playing-coach Ted Power ordered a morning practice today for his Woodstock Athletics following their 5-0 shutout by Winnipeg Maroons Friday night.

The victory gave Maroons a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final for the Canadian senior hockey championship. Power was already looking forward to evening the series with a win in Sunday's second game.

"We'll be back Sunday—we can play better than that," Power said after scheduling ice time for today's practice. "We couldn't get used to that big sheet of ice soon enough, and I'll admit it—the nine-day layoff after our last series made us rusty."

Taking advantage of a lack-lustre Woodstock defence, Maroons pelted Athletic goaltender Ron Salter with 29 shots and forced a handful of spectacular saves on him.

In the process of keeping Winnipeg's goal total to half what it might have been, Salter relied to the dressing room for stitches twice during the game. The first time he was crushed into the goal post by two of his own players in a wild scramble and the second time he was cut by a stick attempting to stop Maroons' third goal.

MARSHALL SCORES TWO

Athletics were slowed by heavy Maroon checking, but Winnipeg paid for its hitting by taking seven of 11 penalties called by referee Bill Roberts.

The Woodstock club appeared to be affected by the size of the Winnipeg Arena's ice surface, considerable bigger than what they were used to.

"Back home we were able to move right up the ice by passing and still get back if they broke it up," Power explained. "Tonight, there was too much room. We got caught up the ice too much.

Maroon goaltender Don Collins matched Salter's heroics before 6,180 fans with 25 saves. In winning their ninth game in 10 playoff outings this spring, Maroons took period leads of 2-0 and 3-0. They scored their last goal with 45 seconds remaining.

IS FOURTH LOSS

Woodstock's defeat was only their fourth in 20 playoff games. They won their Eastern Canada title with a four-game sweep of Ottawa Montagnards after turning back representatives from their own OHA Senior League and the NOHA.

Power was impressed by Maroons. "But they sure go for that clutch-and-grab style. And they can expect to get it back Sunday. We'll be sticking out a few arms and legs too."

Coach Gord Simpson of the Maroons, although pleased with the western champions' play, also felt Woodstock would be stronger in Sunday's second game and said his team would have to take better advantage of scoring chances.

"In fact, it could turn into a goalienders' series. Collins was great out there tonight, and their boy kept us down. Once Woodstock comes around, this whole thing could be up to the goalies."

'Hill Rise' Derby Favorite
History With Northern Dancer

LOUISVILLE (CP)—If recent history is to be trusted, Northern Dancer's smartest move today was manoeuvering Hill Rise into the favorite's role as they step to the post for the 90th running of the Kentucky Derby.

The little Canadian colt, a 5-to-2 second choice to Hill Rise's 6 to 5, must have been nestling a few old racing sheets along with his morning oats.

The record shows that Derby favorites have found the going progressively tougher of late. While 39 popular choices have come in since the race was first run in 1875, only four have made it in the last 20 years.

The Dancer, owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, is boistered in his bid to become the first Canadian-bred derby winner by the presence of the same jockey, Hill Hartack, and trainer, Horatio Luro, who got Decidedly home in front of the favored Ridan in 1962. Carry Back, the last successful favorite, came in the year before.

The four favorites who won in the last 20 years are ranked among the sports greatest of the ton in 1946, Hill Gail in 1952, Needles in 1956, and Carry Back.

In the list of those who tried and failed at the Derby with odds of 8 to 5 or less are reedoubtable names, too, such as Candy Spots last year, Bold Ruler in 1957, Nashua in 1956, and Native Dancer in 1953.

With the crowd of 100,000 + lured by bright skies, a fast track and a redoubtable entry list, the sentiment for George A. Pope's Hill Rise was based not only on his impressive string of eight straight victories but also on his decisive victory four days ago in the Derby Trial in the respectable time of 1:35 1-5 for one mile.

Northern Dancer has a string of five straight victories, including the Flamingo and Florida Derby.

The big race will be seen on nationwide television via CBC from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m EDT and heard on radio as well Post time is 5:30

RESIGNS AGAIN

TORONTO (CP)—Ed Fitkin has resigned as publicity director of Maple Leaf Gardens for the second time in 12 years. He resigned in the early 1950s to do radio work but returned to the Gardens post five years ago. He said he hopes to concentrate on writing books and pursuing his radio and television career.

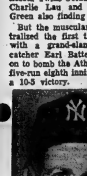
Ford Fires 2-Hit Shutout; Twins Win



Battey Grand-Slams

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The way things are shaping up, Kansas City Athletics may lead the American League in home runs without ever getting out of last place.

Their two big slugs guns, Rocky Colavito and Jim Gentile, are two of four players currently tied for the lead with four homers apiece. Each hit one out of the park against Minnesota Twins Friday night with Charlie Lau and rookie Dick Green also finding the range.

But the muscular Twins neutralized the first three homers with a grand-slam effort by catcher Earl Battey and went on to bomb the Athletics with a five-run eighth inning to sew up a 10-5 victory.

WHITEY FORD

Rain, which washed out two other games Friday, held off at Yankee Stadium for a change and permitted Whitey Ford to tame Washington Senators with a two-hitter for his second shut-out of the season as New York came through with a 1-0 decision.

The two games offered a contrast in pitching effectiveness.

While Ford and his three Washington adversaries permitted a total of only seven hits and walked a total of six, the five batters in action at Kansas City yielded 17 safeties, gave up 10 bases on balls and contributed a wild pitch and a hit batsman for good measure.

DRIVES IN SIX RUNS

Battey had a big night, driving in two runs with a single besides his grand-slammer before he retired in the eighth inning after being hit on the mask with a foul tip. Rich Rollins also had a two-run single and Bob Allison wound up the Minnesota scoring with a ninth-inning homer.

Camilo Pascual staggered to his second victory in three decisions, getting way to Bill Pleis after yielding the fourth Kansas City homer in the eighth. Moe Drabowsky was the loser.

The Yankees, unable to play since last Sunday because of the rain, didn't start their hit attack until the third inning and permitted none of the Senators to get beyond second base.

Bennie Daniels lost his first game after two victories when Bobby Richardson opened the third inning with a walk and moved around on singles by Hector Lopez and Tom Tresh.

Both sides lost a key man during the game. Mickey Mantle pulled a muscle in his leg when he raced in quickly to grab a short fly ball in the third inning and had to leave the game. Daniels, who had given up only four hits, retired in the seventh with a stiff shoulder.

Opponents Wish Mick Good Health

NEW YORK (AP) — American League players on all fronts away from New York wish the Yankees nothing but a bad year. But they draw the line when it comes to Mickey Mantle.

They wish him a healthy year.

A member of Washington Senators said Friday he even mentions the switch-hitting Yankee ace in his prayers.

It isn't that he is secretly rooting for the Yankees. He is looking out for the welfare of his own club as well as his own good. From a monetary sense, of course.

"I know just what's in this fellow's mind," said Don Lock, Washington's centre fielder. "I feel the way he does. And I think practically all the guys in the American League feel the same way.

"Let's face it. Mantle is the league's No. 1 attraction. Nobody else approaches him when it comes to box appeal. I would guess that his presence in a game adds from 5,000 to as to a game.

Let's not kid ourselves, a healthy Mantle means more money in our pockets."

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Whitey Ford, Yankees, allowed only two hits and did not allow a runner past second base, registering his second shutout in New York's 1-0 victory over Washington Senators.

'Mr. Bowling' Tourney Kingston Man Has Lead

A Kingston bowler, George MacDonald, grabbed a comfortable lead in Belleville's "Mr. Bowling" tournament last night and left it up to the remainder of the field to chase him today.

MacDonald rolled a sparkling ten-game string of 2789, giving him a good lead over 20 other entries who bowled last night.

About 50 others will attempt to beat that mark today, one block of keglers making their bid in a ten o'clock block this morning, while the final group hits the lanes at three this afternoon. The tournament is expected to wind up around eight o'clock tonight.

Close to $500 in prizes, including a watch and a trip for two to the New York World's Fair, are up for grabs at the two-day 13th annual tournament being held at the Bowl-O-Drome.

MacDonald had games of 331, 373, and 303 while building his 2789 total. His pilot up a 1444 score in the first set of five games and added a 1345 score in the second block.

Belleville and Cobourg bowlers grabbed the next six positions.

Harry Ridley of Belleville, was second with 2518, including a 330 game followed by Cobourg's George Heeley with 2378. Heeley also had the high single of the night, a big 403 score, which could stand up for top money in the high singles race.

Geo Hardwick, Belleville, was fourth last night with 2364. His high single was 319. Harry Livingston, Cobourg, had 2338 (310), with Fred Clarke, Belleville, sixth, with 2338 (332), and George Hammett, Belleville, seventh with a 2302 total.

Jim McKenzie, a two-time winner, who copped the championship last year with an even 2700, finished well down and out of the running last night.

A number of top bowlers will be gunning for the leader's spot today.

Prizes will be presented following the tournament winding up this evening.

Fans Swamp Ball Leafs For Stock

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team has been swamped by people buying stock in the community ball club.

"It's fantastic," says general manager Frank Pollock. "We can't handle the business. Our telephones started ringing at eight o'clock Thursday morning, and the mail has been phenomenal."

Buying of shares, at $1 each, has been so heavy that Pollock has had to hire extra help at Maple Leaf Stadium. A minimum of 10 shares per person must be bought, but Thursday's sales were as high as $500.

The switchboard at the stadium was jammed and some people who couldn't reach the office, telephoned club president Bob Hunter at his private office downtown.

Pollock mailed a prospectus to all his clients Wednesday night with return envelopes, and received one reply Thursday morning—postmarked 8 a.m.

"That one must have worked in a post office," Pollock said.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Puerto Rico's Chi-Chi Rodriguez, who weighs 120 pounds but hits a golf ball like a heavyweight, battled through high wind and an occasional sandstorm Friday to take the lead in the second round of the $65,000 Tournament of Champions. Rodriguez shot a two-under-par 70, one of only three to break par in a round beset by gusts of wind that ranged from 30 to 45 miles an hour. He posted a 36-hole score of 139.

Rodriguez and Knudson, each with a 70, and Player and Paul Harney, who had 71s, were the only four of the field of 29 who could break par.

Marlboros Enter Memorial Cup Finals

By GERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—For two periods Monday night Marlboros remained alive in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals. In the third period, however, Marlboros assumed the role of pallbearers and laid the gritty Montrealers to rest.

The Marlboros, displaying their class in the third period with a hit - and - run attack, crushed the Monarchs 11-3 to wind up their best-of-five series with a 3-1 edge.

The triumph sends Toronto into the finals against champion Edmonton Oil Kings in the best-of-seven Dominion final which starts Wednesday here Sunday afternoon.

Marlboros jumped into an early lead, but Montreal rallied to tie the score 2-2 at the end of the first and 3-3 going into the third period.

SCORE THREE EACH

Forwards Wayne Carleton and Peter Spratt provided the vital three goals. Defenceman Jack Chipchase came through with a key assist as the visitors trailed 4-2 at the end of the first and 5-3 going into the third period.

Despite the high score, Montreal goalie Rogatien Vachon was outstanding, stopping 47 shots to tie a playoff defender Gary Smith's 26. The Montreal defence, obviously handicapped by the loss of two regulars through injuries, left Vachon to fend for himself tithe and again.

The Oil Kings defeated Niagara Falls Flyers last year to win the Memorial Cup after three unsuccessful attempts.

PAIR JOIN RIDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Signing of two American import backs, one of whom is expected to make a strong bid for the backup quarterback position to Russ Jackson, was announced Friday by the Ottawa Rough Riders football club. They are Billy Ray Locklin, 5-foot, 10-inch quarterback from Washburn University, and David Snyder from Florida State University. Both are 21.

Doubts Howe Would Make Top Defenceman

WINNIPEG (CP) — Detroit goaltender Terry Sawchuk says he doubts his National Hockey League is a mite, let alone Howe, would make a good defenceman.

"You know I do not believe Gordie would make a good defenceman," Sawchuk said in an interview published Friday. "He hasn't got the right mental."

He said the veteran Howe "would be too offensive-minded" to play the position well, but added:

"Mind you I'm not trying to take anything away from Howe. He's the greatest hockey player I've ever seen in my time in the NHL and still is."

Sawchuk's comments appeared in a column by the Free Press sports editor, Maurice Smith, who asked him whether plans were afoot for shifting Howe to defence.

ACHIEVING PROPER HEIGHT

A particular and most effective kind of difficulty in strength is the fact that your normal "drive" on a shot will not produce the desired result.

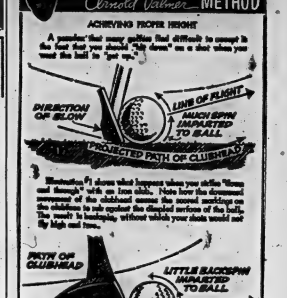

Illustration #1 shows what happens when you strike "down and through" with an iron shot. Note how the downward movement of the clubhead causes the ball to rise. Also the tendency for the ball to spin excessively because of the sharp contact on the clubface. Such spin is undesirable, without which your shots would not fly high and true.

Illustration #2 shows what happens when a golfer tries to lift or scoop the ball into flight instead of striking it down-and-through blow. Scooped shots don't provide club-ball friction. Result: Ball travels low and lacks backspin. Without much backspin the ball shoots forward and fails to rise appreciably. Remember to swing the clubhead down and through if you want height on your shots.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)— Blue Norther continued her campaign for the three-year-old filly championship Friday with a victory in the $47,397 Kentucky Oaks, the oldest stakes in America for sophomore fillies. A sun-drenched crowd of 39,200 watched Blue Norther, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, put down a strong rally by Miss Cavandish to win by about three-quarters of a length. Road to Romance was third.

Blue Norther was clocked in 1:44 1-5 for the 1 1-16 miles and paid $5.20, $2.60 and $2.40. Miss Cavandish returned $3.60 and $2.80. Road to Romance was $3 to show.

Ford Fires 2-Hit Shutout; Twins Win

Battey Grand-Slams

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The way things are shaping up, Kansas City Athletics may lead the American League in home runs without ever getting out of last place.

Their two big siege guns, Rocky Colavito and Jim Gentile, are two of four players currently tied for the lead with four homers apiece. Each hit one out of the park against Minnesota Twins Friday night with Charlie Lau and rookie Dick Stigman also finding the range.

But the muscular Twins neutralized the first three homers with a grand-slam effort by catcher Earl Battey and went on to bomb the Athletics with a five-run eighth inning to sew up a 10-5 victory.

WHITEY FORD

Rain, which washed out two other games Friday, held off at Yankee Stadium for a change and permitted Whitey Ford to tame Washington Senators with a two-hitter for his second shutout of the season as New York came through with a 1-0 decision.

The two games offered a contrast in pitching effectiveness.

While Ford and his three Washington adversaries pe rmitted a total of only seven hits and walked a total of six, the five hurlers in action at Kansas City yielded 17 safeties, gave up 10 bases on balls and contributed a wild pitch and a hit batsman for good measure.

DRIVES IN SIX RUNS

Battey had a big night, driving in two runs with a single besides his grand-slammer before he retired in the eighth inning after being hit on the mask with a foul tip. Rich Rollins also had a two-run single and Bob Allison wound up the Minnesota scoring with a ninth-inning homer.

Camilo Pascual staggered to his second victory in three decisions, giving way to Bill Pleis after yielding the fourth Kansas City homer in the eighth. Moe Drabowsky was the loser.

The Yankees, unable to play since last Sunday because of the rain, didn't get a hit after the third inning and permitted none of the Senators to get beyond second base.

Bennie Daniels lost his first game after two victories when Bobby Richardson opened the third inning with a walk and moved around on singles by Hector Lopez and Elston Howard.

Both sides lost a key man during the game. Mickey Mantle pulled a muscle in his leg when he raced in quickly to field a short fly ball in the first inning and had to leave the game. Daniels, who had given up only four hits, retired in the seventh with a stiff shoulder.

Opponents Wish Mick Good Health

NEW YORK (AP) — American League players on all fronts away from New York wish the Yankees nothing but a bad year. But they draw the line when it comes to Mickey Mantle.

They wish him a healthy year.

A member of Washington Senators said Friday he even mentions the switch-hitting Yankee star in his prayers.

It isn't that he is secretly rooting for the Yankees. He is looking out for the welfare of his own club as well as his own good. From a monetary sense, of course.

"I know just what's in this fellow's mind," said Don Lock, Washington's centre fielder. "I feel the way he does. And I think practically all the guys in the American League feel the same way.

"Let's face it. Mantle is the league's No. 1 attraction. Nobody else approaches him when it comes to fan appeal. I would guess that his presence in a game adds from 5,000 to as to a game.

"Let's not kid ourselves, a healthy Mantle means more money in our pockets."

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Whitey Ford, Yankees, allowed only two hits and could not allow a runner past second base, registering his second shutout in New York's 1-0 victory over Washington Senators.

'Mr. Bowling' Tourney Kingston Man Has Good Start

A Kingston bowler, George MacDonald, grabbed a comfortable lead in Belleville's "Mr. Bowling" tournament last night and left it up to the remainder of the field to chase him today.

MacDonald rolled a sparkling ten-game string of 2789, giving him a good lead over 20 other entries who bowled last night.

About 50 others will attempt to beat that mark today, one block of keglers making their bid in a ten o'clock block this morning, while the final group hits the lanes at three this afternoon. The tournament is expected to wind up around eight o'clock tonight.

Close to $500 in prizes, including a watch and a trip for two to the New York World's Fair, are up for grabs at the two-day 13th annual tournament being held at the Bowl-O-Drome.

MacDonald had games of 331, 373, and 303 while building his 2789 score. He piled up a 1444 score in the first set of five games and added a 1345 score in the second block.

Belleville and Cobourg bowlers grabbed the next six positions.

Harry Ridley of Belleville, was second with 2515, including a 330 single, followed by Cobourg's George Heeley with 2378. Heeley also had the high single of the day, a 373 top score, which could stand up for top money in the high singles race.

Cec Hardwick, Belleville, was fourth last night with 2362. His high single was 319. Harry Livingston, Cobourg, had 2358 (310), with Fred Clarke, Belleville, sixth, with 2338 (332), and George Hammett, Belleville, seventh with a 2302 total.

Jim McKenzie, a two-time winner, who copped the championship last year with an even 2700, finished well down and out of the running last night.

A number of top bowlers will be gunning for the leader's spot today.

Prizes will be presented following the tournament winding up this evening.

Fans Swamp Ball Leafs For Stock

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team has been swamped by people buying stock in the community ball club.

"It's fantastic," says general manager Frank Pollock. "We can't handle the business. Our telephone started ringing at eight o'clock Thursday morning, and the mail has been phenomenal."

Buying of shares, at $1 each, has been so heavy that Pollock has had to hire extra help at Maple Leaf Stadium. A minimum of 10 shares per person must be bought, but Thursday's sales were as high as $300.

The switchboard at the stadium was jammed and some people who couldn't reach the office, telephoned club president Jack Hunter at his private office downtown.

Pollock mailed a prospectus to the 13,000 shareholders Wednesday night with return envelopes, and received one reply Thursday morning—postmarked 5 a.m.

"That one must have worked in a post office," Pollock said.

The triumph sends Toronto against the defending champion Edmonton Oil Kings in the best-of-seven Dominion final which gets under way here Sunday afternoon.

Marlboros jumped into an early two-goal lead and the visitors trailed 4-2 at the end of the first and 5-3 going into the third period.

SCORE THREE EACH

Forwards Wayne Carleton broke Marlboros' deadlock and fired three goals. Defenceman Jack Chipchase came through with a hat trick in the scoring as Grant Moore, Andre Champagne and Nick Harbaruk added singles.

Montreal goalies were Norm Ferguson, Andre Laguesx and Craig Patrick.

The game was clearly played in comparison to the third game and referee Gord Pranschke called only five penalties, including three in the final period.

Despite his high scoring, Montreal goalie Rogatien Vachon was outstanding, stopping 47 shots in the 60 minutes to outminder Gary Smith's 26. The Montreal defence, obviously handicapped by the loss of two regulars through injuries, left Vachon to fend for himself time and again.

Illustration (1) shows what happens when you strike "down and through" with an iron shot. Note how the downward movement of the clubhead causes the sweet part of the clubface to cut against the downward surface of the ball. The result is backspin, without which your shots would not fly high or long.

Illustration (2) shows what happens when you strike "down and through" with the ball high. Instead of striking a downward-through blow, Arnold Palmer first reaches to the ball from above. Scooped shots don't provide the proper backspin.

Remember to swing the clubhead down and through. Vary your height on your shots.

Circus Stars World-Famed For Using Heads

Two young performers have become world-famous by using their heads in a fantastic manner that has made them feature attractions throughout Europe, South America and United States. They are Freddie and Ortans Cannestrelli who are featured with the International Hippodrome Circus coming to Belleville on Friday, May 8 and Saturday, May 9 to present four performances at the Belleville Memorial Arena under the sponsorship of the Belleville Youth Centre. Performances will start promptly at 4.30 and 8 on Friday and at 2 p.m. and 8 on Saturday.

Both born on American circuses of famous performing troupes, the Cristianis and the Cannestrellis, they first met on the Ringling Circus. They are both accomplished performers in almost any field of endeavor. They married and struck out on their own and have developed the most daring and beautiful act of it's kind. They execute head-to-head balances, one arm to head stands, planges and other remarkable feats while teetering on the treacherous rola bola. Most people use their heads for thinking, but Freddie and Ortans also use theirs performing feats and it seems to be paying off.

MANY STARS

The fast-moving two hour program has many stars making their first appearance in America including Fransisco et Cie, funny men from France; Natali, the billed "is he man or monkey?" The Aero Stylites, high serial perch and trapeze thrillers from Denmark; The Parisians, flashy comedy acrobats; The Bounding Belmonts, trampoline wizards from England; The La Fontaine Sisters, originally from France and just recently from Brazil.

The Riding Remos are originally from Spain but have toured the U.S., Canada and Mexico before.

The performance is presented in the European style made famous on television. There is one large center ring and the public is seated right up to its edge, bringing the audience into close contact with the performers. This arrangement is very suitable for playing buildings. It also allows an opportunity for novel audience participation with the clown stunts and other features of the program that lend an exciting surprise element.

Mrs. Tibbetts said Friday the plan "has no significance" in his general recovery schedule from his April 1 heart attack. "It is merely a precautionary measure," she said.

Odd Cars Prep For The '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The strangest mixture of race cars in the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 54 - year history was wheeled out Friday to open practice for the $500,000 Memorial Day race.

Weirdest of all was a speedster with an "outboard" motor completed only Wednesday by Henry (Smokey) Yunick of Daytona Beach, Fla. The driver will sit in a pod hung on the left side of the chassis, beside an Oldsmobile engine mounted just in front of the rear wheels.

The car still has to win approval of the speedway technical committee before it can run on the track.

Crackers Drop Six In Row

ATLANTA (CP) — Catcher Norm Sherry batted in four runs with a pair of homers, leading Buffalo Bisons to a 5-3 victory over Atlanta Crackers in the only International League baseball game played Friday night.

It was the sixth straight defeat for the Crackers, mired in the league cellar. They have yet to win a game this season.

Sherry, who said after the game he couldn't remember when he had two homers in one game, belted a three-run round-tripper in the fourth and a solo clout in the sixth.

The victory went to reliefer Duane Richards, who came in for starter Ray Apple in the fifth when the Crackers scored all their runs. Southpaw starter Jim Merritt took the loss, his first against no victories. Richards now is 1-1.

Three other scheduled games were rained out.

Retired Ad Man Offers Chart For Careers After Age 65

By THOMAS COLLINS

A retired advertising man, with a little more savvy about the world than some, has come up with a "How To Get A Job" chart for various categories of retired men.

His name is John W. Blanchard, a New York ad agency man, who now has his third retirement job. His chart!

Advertising Men — Be a press agent for a large shopping centre that is just getting off the ground (Blanchard's first job); an ad salesman for a small magazine or newspaper that is not fussy about employees over 65; an editor of an employe magazine published by an institution or an association, most of which do not stick too strongly to the age-65 limit; a speech-writer for a candidate for Mayor or Parliament, an advertising-publicity director for one of the large home developments for the elderly now going up in the sunshine states (Blanchard's present job); a promoter for any local fund-raising organizations.

Men Of The Armed Services — Be a special assistant to the president of a manufacturing concern, if you are a colonel or better, and if the company sells anything to the Armed Services; a technical consultant to any manufacturer who makes for the Armed Services any equipment in which you have specialized, . like tanks or parachutes; a restaurant manager if you have supervised a mess kitchen or an officer's club; a director of the security force at a jail, prison, or a bank.

BE SALES CONSULTANT

Retail Store Men — Be a sales consultant to a major supplier or merchandise to your particular type of store — if you have been at an executive level; if you have been below executive level recognize your experience is not very saleable and seek a position in the provincial or regional office of your church, your civic club, your college, or any welfare, charitable or educational society; be a special assistant to the trucking firm that delivers merchandise to your particular store, or which delivers purchases to customers.

Civil Service Workers — Be an expediter for any business concern that has business with the government, provided you are fully familiar with government red tape and know how to find what guy down which corridor makes the decisions. Most businesses want no business with the Justice Dartment or the the Internal Revenue people. In Provincial Government the Highway Department is important.

Industrial Plant Men — Be the Heaven-sent angel to the buyers of whatever your plant makes — as the fellow who knows how to keep it running. From the company that buys locomotives to the housewife who buys a clothes washer there is almost constant demand for a repair man. As a special assistant to the big company or as proprietor of a fix-it shop in the neighborhood.

CAN GET JOBS

Mr. Blanchard says that probably 80 percent of retired men can get a job if they will give a few hours of study to just what they have to sell, where they can sell it. . and then use a little sense of timing in their approach. "The shopping centres and the home projects for the elderly are naturals right now," he explains. "So is the repair service thing —we've filled this country with homes appliances and automobiles that almost nobody can, or will, fix without waiting a week.

"While the fellow who knows his way around government offices is worth his salt to any business, and will continue to be as the complexities of government grow.

And this War on Poverty business is going to open up all sorts of secretarial and promotional jobs on the local level as welfare organizations move to get in on the money. . .

Mr. Blanchard, with a good many others, thinks a retirement job is good for about a couple of years. And after that is for the birds. "If you've got enough income for your needs," says he, "why stand around for 40 hours a week letting some sophomore tell you what to do? . .especially when a 2 p.m. nap is so pleasant."

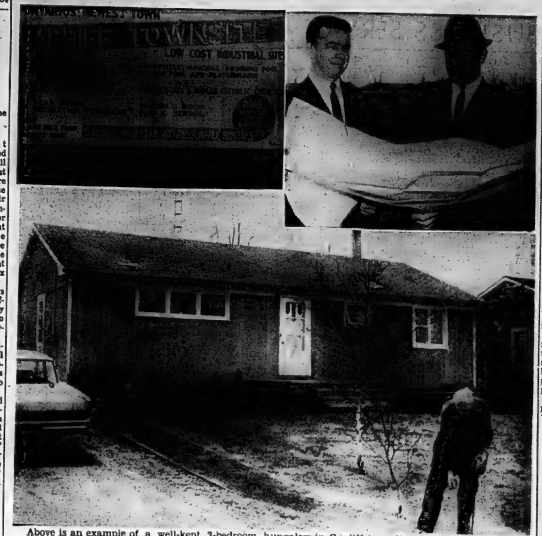
expressed confidence that a strong united Canada will emerge through existing difficulties.

"This country couldn't be broken up by all the totalitarianism of two world wars. Is it going to be broken up by the strident and shrill voices of extremists?

"Of course not."

Between those who cry "separate" and those who say "go" there was a great body of great Canadians whose moderate voices would be heard on behalf of Canada.

The spirit of unity that prevailed in war time, "when there were no French-Canadians or English - Canadians but just plain Canadians," is what is needed in Canada today.



"If we could somehow transfer these goals to the difficult task of peace how great it would be."

The prime minister, on a 24-hour visit to his riding, told the legion banquet that changes in administration of veterans' hospitals, now under discussion in Ottawa, will in no way prejudice the interest of veterans.

"There will be no changes—I give you my word as leader of a government—which will prejudice the interest of veterans."

But as wars fade further into the background, he said, some administrative changes may have to be made to reflect the circumstances. These changes would be made without interfering with the rights of veterans.

A standing ovation greeted this remark.

Above is an example of a well-kept 3-bedroom bungalow in Cardiff townsite under new ownership. It is owned by Mr. Cliff Sheir, an active salesman calling on clientele across Ontario, who resided in Toronto until three years ago. He spends many hours of his spare time on lawns and general upkeep of the place. Some 150 comparable bungalows are now being offered for sale in a joint effort by C.M.H.C., and Peterborough realtors (upper right) John Bowes, left, and Bill Cocks, right, personally directing the campaign to establish Cardiff as an independent community for people with fixed incomes. Upper left is the large sign placed at entrance to Cardiff when it was booming mining town. It now serves a new purpose as village taken on a new important role. It is being refurbished along with homes and new civic buildings as Cardiff's future looks bright again.

GM to Build Major Car Plant North of Montreal

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—General Motors of Canada Limited announced Friday it will begin construction within weeks of a major passenger car plant at Ste. Therese de Blainville, about 20 miles north of Montreal.

Production of Chevrolets and Pontiacs will begin in the summer of 1965 at the 300-acre site with 1,000 men initially employed in a 1,000,000 - square-foot plant.

At capacity, the plant will employ 2,500 and turn out 100,000 autos a year. Buicks and Oldsmobiles eventually would be produced by what General Motors President Edwin H. Walker described as "a completely integrated plant."

He said it will involve the major outlay of a $120,000,000 expansion program GM recently announced for Canada in the next two years.

It will be the first auto manufacturing plant in Quebec. But two French manufacturers—Renault and Peugeot—also have been studying the province as a possible location for assembly plants.

Premier Lesage said at a press conference he expects to make a statement before the end of the present legislature session in early July on whether Quebec will build a steel plant.

Steel plant studies had gone on independently of the General Motors plant negotiations.

"We really hope we could compete with others to supply not only the General Motors plant in Quebec but its other plants with flat steel," the premier said in answer to one question.

Mr Walker said General Motors sold 70,000 cars and trucks in Quebec in 1963 and "we believe the province, which is one of our principal markets, will continue its current spectacular growth.

"The Quebec plant will boost GM's passenger car production by more than 30 per cent."

A General Motors statement said the work force will be drawn from the Montreal area but a nucleus of technicians from the Oshawa plant would get production under way.

GM also plans to build a plant for the manufacture of interior trim at Windsor, Ont., and a new truck chassis plant at Oshawa. Existing parts manufacturing facilities and passenger car operations at Oshawa are being expanded.

Fulbright Plans Talks On Cyprus In Three Capitals

Labor Chieftian Wants Heaviest Tanks on Job

By CLARE McDERMOTT

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Cyprus was calm today following an outbreak of fighting between Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots over the Greek Orthodox Easter weekend.

The island dispute was to be taken up in talks Tuesday between British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Sen. J. William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), due in London today.

The chairman of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, who has also arranged speaking engagements in The Netherlands and Denmark, was asked by President Johnson to visit London and Athens as well as to convey the United States' growing concern about the Cyprus situation to the Greek and Turkish governments.

In Nicosia a UN spokesman said today two British soldiers sustained minor wounds when two grenades exploded near a UN post along the "green line" border separating the Greek and Turkish communities.

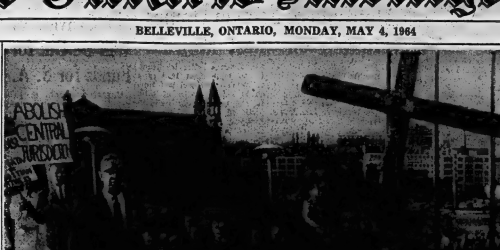
He said that isolated shots were heard during the night in the Kyrenia Mountain range in northern Cyprus, where Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots engaged in heavy fighting Sunday.

DODGE BULLETS

A British patrol also dodged bullets in the southern village of Ayios Theodoros Sunday, but the shooting stopped after a shouting warning from the British leader.

No casualties were reported in either of Sunday's incidents.

Fighting, in a sweep, the drawn-out island dispute moved opposition Labor Party Leader Harold Wilson to plead with time Britain "got tough with regard to Cyprus."



He said Britain should offer to put the heaviest tanks it has in Cyprus and get rolled on other UN contingents to do the same.

Wilson also called on the British government to insist on the demilitarization of Cypriot irregular forces and urged the disposal of more UN forces to the island to relieve British troops. He said that the UN authority in the UN in Cyprus was being "slowly flouted."

SAID VULNERABLE

"British and other UN troops are in a vulnerable, dangerous

P. M. Had Good Time In Riding

By STEWART MacLEOD

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Hon. L. B. Pearson, whose role as member of Parliament for Algoma East clearly outclassed that of prime minister for 24 hours, returned to Ottawa Saturday after polishing off such problems as wharf repairs at Gore Bay and river dredging at Spanish.

Cyprus and the United Nations were not publicly mentioned as the prime minister turned himself over to constituency questions that involved new schools at White Fish Falls, a post office at Espanola, and improved wharfage on Manitoulin Island.

"We're delighted to have our member of Parliament with us today," said President Adelbert Hunt to a meeting of the riding's Liberal associations. "He is also, incidentally, prime minister of this country."

In this town of 5,300, Mr. Pearson moved about without a flutter of excitement. A banner over the highway said, "Welcome Home, Mike". But there were no gatherings of spectators.

"Everybody is pretty used to the prime minister being around," said Baxter Ricard, a Sudbury radio station reporter who drove to Espanola with the official party.

PUT ASIDE

Even when Mr. Pearson attended the main function of his visit—a speech to "First World War Honor Night" at the Espanola branch of the Royal Canadian Legion—he pushed the heavy affairs of state to one side for most of the evening. However, none of his speech excluded reference to the question of national unity.

After Chairman Leo Pouceault told fellow legionnaires he wanted them to enjoy themselves "no matter what happens," the prime minister, enjoying himself hugely, un-

Teen-Agers' Night Club Set Up Within Half-Block of Broadway

The four guitars and drums of the Auroras backed up the wildly harmonious singing of the five Charters.

Dim but gay lanterns softened the artificiality of the bare, pale trees and flowers decorating the dining room. A redcoated waiter squeezed by the dance floor with a drink-laden tray.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murray, the well-known dancers, sat at a ringside table.

But here, at Teen Haven, the drinks were non-alcoholic and the patrons were aged 16 to 20. So were the entertainers. About the only adults in the club were the Murrays, who had dropped in to see what new steps the youngsters had worked out.

"You see, dancing teachers don't make up the dances," said Mrs. Murray.

Her husband added: "The kids actually set the pace in each dance. It's their show. It has always been that way."

Presiding and pleased over the way his three - week - old venture caught on was Angelo Barone, a 30-year-old auditor who has raised three children, one still a teen-ager, and thinks adults should show a little more faith in the younger generation. He described the club as "primarily a public service, but with a commercial aspect too."

"Youngsters never get a break," he explained. "They need a place of their own."

The idea of a teen-age nightclub is not new. A few exist in various parts of the United States. But none can boast of such a choice location as Teen Havens' Times Square area site.

Barone estimated it costs $900 a week to operate the club.

The biggest spender drops only $2.25 or $2.50—that includes $1 admission and a couple of "suicide special" fruity ice cream sodas. Sandwiches and inexpensive meals are available.

The club can seat 300 and on weekend nights comes close to that. But weeknight crowds, who are chased out at 10 p.m., run about 80 or 90.

Barone uses adult chaperones but said he has had no trouble in the club so far.

'Whips' Calls Are Out

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The whips' calls are out.

All members of all parties have been ordered by their party whips to be on hand Monday and Tuesday for whatever votes are needed to deal with the second "supply debate" of the parliamentary session.

Six such two-day debates are held each session under the rules of the Commons. They are motions by the government to have Parliament take up consideration of departmental appropriations.

Once the motions are moved, any matter can be debated that hasn't already been decided this session by the Commons. Opposition parties usually embody their debating points in an amendment, which under parliamentary precedents immediately becomes a non-confidence in the government motion.

To preserve the element of surprise, opposition parties don't reveal in advance what their debating subjects will be.

Two weeks ago, Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill moved a motion deploring the government's plan to "abandon its responsibilities for the administration of veterans hospitals."

MOTION DEFEATED

The motion was lost—and the Liberal minority government sustained—on a vote of 123 to 91.

The supply debates are directly descended from the ancient basic principle of parliamentary government that the Commons will approve no government spending estimates before airing its grievances.

Until introduction of the two-day limit by a rule change some years ago, the supply debates could last as long as an energetic and dedicated opposition group could find MPs to add to the speakers' list.

This procedure of supply debate has recently found its outlet in discussion of supplementary spending estimates, which are not limited by the two-day rule. This year, the Commons spent 15 days debating year-end supplementary estimates for 1963-64.

A parliamentary rules reform committee currently holding meetings is reported tackling the question of limiting the debates. The problem is to set a time limit which will prevent protracted filibusters but still allow ample time for serious discussion of government spending.

HIT OPPOSITION

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Castro-to-Cuba "peace marchers" reached Miami Saturday and ran into opposition from a group of Cuban refugees.

'Kennedy Round' of Tariff Talks Open in Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — Today marks the formal opening of the "Kennedy round," of tariff talks, climax of a generation of U.S. efforts to break down barriers to international trade.

The attack will be both on U.S. barriers and the obstacles raised by the rest of the non-Communist world. Success would mean more business for some enterprises, tougher competition for others.

Farmers in many countries, including the United States, would find themselves working under new restrictions.

Consumers would enjoy lower prices.

For the better part of a week the men who direct foreign trade policy for the world's major trading nations will meet at the old League of Nations headquarters. The Communist bloc will be represented by Czechoslovakia and Poland, but the Soviet Union and Communist China remain aloof.

The United States delegation will be headed by former state secretary Christian Herter, President Johnson's chief trade negotiator. His chief bargaining partner will be the European Common Market, the world's largest trading unit, which includes France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

The job will not be done when the big men go home. Second-level economists and diplomats will go on as they have been doing for a year. Probably for another 18 months. The 40 nations which have been represented so far will probably be joined at one time or another by the other 35 also associated with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The American effort dates back to 1934. That was when President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his secretary of state, Cordell Hull, put through the first Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. It embodied one of their major policies: To break down the high tariff wall built around the United States in the years before they took office.

There have been repeated renewals of this law, and successive rounds of tariff reduction. In 1962 President Kennedy put through the Trade Expansion Act, the most recent and far-reaching of the renewals. Under it President Johnson has far more power than any president has ever had to slash import duties and change trading rules.

The U.S. government has broadened the scope of the talks by insisting for the first time that farm products must be discussed as well as industrial products. In addition, it has announced readiness to talk over other obstacles to trade, ignored in previous rounds.

Nurses' Assoc. Wants to Be Bargaining Agent for All

TORONTO (CP)—The Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario voted Saturday to seek Ontario legislation making the association bargaining agent for all Ontario nurses.

The decision was made in a resolution at the third and concluding day of the association's annual meeting.

The vote of 121 voting delegates opposed the resolution, an initial consent giving nurses collective bargaining and compulsory arbitration rights.

After the meeting, Margaret Page of Fort Arthur, new president of the 32,000-member organization, declined to comment on when the board would act on the resolution.

The resolution proposed that a committee be formed to start the collective bargaining machinery and that the RNAO take action to publicize and eliminate sub - standard working conditions and salaries of nurses.

During the three-day session, attended by some 2,000 members, the association announced that a management consultant firm started a study Friday of the RNAO.

The committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses, a splinter-group which has been active in the past, has claimed that the RNAO is ineffective and that its executive is too heavy with nurses in senior positions.

In an interview Ruth Le Roux, CAPN secretary, said her group is pleased that the collective bargaining resolution was passed.

But she said the CAPN would wait to see some reaction to the resolution and the stand before making any conclusions.

Another issue is whether nurses should be paid extra for working unpopular shifts. A resolution was passed asking for a referendum to find out what they want done about the matter.

Before Saturday's resolution was passed a personnel policies report, designed to give a guideline to employers, was approved.

It includes a suggestion salary range and a schedule of raises aimed at equalizing pay standards throughout the province.

The range begins at $4,320 a year for a registered nurse and rises to $8,220 for an assistant

Brazil Making Strides

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A month ago Brazil was teetering on the brink of economic disaster and a possible takeover by Communist elements. Today it is making strides toward whipping its tangled web of problems.

The lightning revolution that drove Joao Goulart from the presidency has brought many changes in Latin America's largest nation—and more are in sight.

Inflation has been doubling the country's cost of living every year. Obviously the revolution alone could not solve this hard - core problem. But it has brought a climate of confidence unknown for three years. The cruzeiro, Brazil's monetary unit, has strengthened in relation to the dollar, and the stock market had a surge.

Food lines caused by phoney shortages have disappeared. Rio's daily blackouts, caused by and alleged power shortage, ended. Wheat has begun arriving from the United States to avert a threatened bread shortage.

PRICES LEVEL OFF

Prices have levelled off somewhat, thanks mainly to state action temporarily freezing prices on many products. Guanabara State says food prices, for the first time in years, showed a slight decline over the 30-day period.

The government has moved to follow up its initial advantages with measures aimed at streamlining Brazil's tax structure, solving supply problems which caused food shortages, purging government deadwood and eliminating some of the basic causes of the inflationary spiral.

Goulart tried some of the same measures but they failed as he gave to first one then another pressure group adversely affected.

President Humberto Castello Branco, armed with a packet of extraordinary powers plus the firm backing of the military forces which ousted Goulart, seems immune to most of these pressures.

Mass arrests of Communists and fellow travellers took place in the first month. Hundreds of those seized have been cleared and released. Others may face trial on charges of violating national security.

ARMY RETIRES

The so-called supreme command of the revolution, composed of military leaders, has virtually faded away after fulfilling its announced role of pre-

Fishing Village Threatened By Forest Blaze

Nova Scotian Families Prepare to Flee Homes

HALIFAX (CP) — The seven families who make up the fishing village of Terence Bay continued escape preparations as a forest fire roared closer to the tiny South Shore Nova Scotia community this morning.

Thirty-five persons, the entire population of the community 25 miles east of Shelburne, had most of their belongings stowed away in automobiles and trucks and slept in their clothes during the night. At last report the advancing fire wall was within five miles of Port Rebert.

The fire which threatened the community broke out in the Sable River area Saturday and swept over 400 acres of mixed forest by this morning. At one stage it jumped a main highway carrying traffic, and burned down four telephone poles, cutting communications between Halifax and Shelburne.

Some 100 men, including Canadian Navy personnel stationed at Shelburne, are fighting the blaze which showed new vigor this morning.

It was the first forest fire to flare up again today as the serious conservation ban on outdoor weather began in the Maritimes.

Eight forest fires destroyed nearly 30 acres of woods in the Tweed district Saturday and April of this year. All fires in the district so far have been caused by carelessness.

First of the first last month was in Sheffield township, on April 13. A fisherman's cigarette caused that fire, which burned off one acre of land. Careless smoking, burning rubbish, sap boiling and children playing with matches are blamed for the other fires in Kennebec, Ashby, Tudor, Madoc, Sheffield, Elzevir and Marmora townships. All fires are now out.

Thirty-four fires were discovered and extinguished during April of last year, according to the Department of Lands and Forests records. The reduced toll this year is credited to wet weather during January. Rainfall recorded at Tweed during January of this year totalled more than three and a half inches, more than an inch more than normal for the month and nearly two inches more than during January of last year.

INFANT DIES

HALIFAX (CP)—An unidentified infant died aboard the Great Liner Olympia at sea early today, hours before an RCAF aircraft was to take off from Montreal, N.S., in an attempt to transfer the sick child to hospital here. RCAF search and rescue reported the death of the four-day-old baby, which suffered from bronchial pneumonia.

Youths Collect Garbage

For a fee ranging from 25 cents up they're toting away in rented trailers household garbage that has piled high since garbage collectors went on strike 13 days ago.

The offer looked like a bargain to many housewives after some 1,500 civic outside workers voted Sunday to remain on strike despite proposals from the provincial labor department.

The union, whose members include sewer and street crews and parks employees, voted 85 per cent to reject a proposal by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson to return to work pending mediation of the dispute by Dr. G. Neil Perry, an economics professor.

The union also laid down a demand for conditions, insisting now on a full 19-cent increase on the basic wage of $2.60 an hour instead of the 12 cents proposed at the start of the walkout.

The city was sticking to its seven-cents-an-hour offer.

Parade Heads Of Two Britons Through City

ADEN (Reuters) — Some 300 British troop reinforcements arrived here today to support forces pressed during fighting dissident Yemeni backed tribesmen in the South Arabian federation.

The British-backed federation has been claimed by Yemen and the claim has been backed by Egypt.

Meanwhile, it was reported Sunday that two British soldiers were decapitated and their heads paraded in streets through the Yemeni city of Taiz.

A British Army spokesman in London confirmed the two men, Capt. Robert Edwards, 27, of the Somerset and Cornwall Light Infantry, and John Warburton of the Royal Engineers, were in a party of nine ordered to obtain information on rebel dispositions.

A fierce hand-to-hand battle followed during which Warburton was killed and two other British soldiers injured.

Spring Floods, Month-Long Rain, Prolonged Drought Plague China

HONG KONG (AP)—Natural calamities have struck vast areas of Communist China.

Provincial radio broadcasts from China say parts of central China were devastated by recent floods and drought in south China have been plagued by prolonged drought.

Peking's broadcasts apparently have not yet affected the food situation.

Visitors and refugees from many major cities in China reported rice rations remained unchanged at between 30 and 40 pounds for each adult every month. Meats and vegetables also available in large quantities at the "high price" market, they said.

Radio Chengchow in Honan described spring floods in the southeast part of the province as "the worst in several decades." The broadcast said most places in the province had had continuous rain since early April.

Radio Wuhan said that in Hupeh, one of Red China's wheat-producing provinces, urgent measures to ensure the safety of dykes and reservoirs had been adopted.

"All rivers are high and all reservoirs full," the broadcast said. "Further rainfall will cause floods."

European businessmen who recently returned to this British colony from Peking or Shanghai say many parts of Hupeh were covered with water.

Waterlogging was also reported in some areas in east China. However, the situation there was not considered serious.

In south China, severe drought was reported on Hainan Island and parts of Fukien province.

Radio Haikow reported: "Little rain has fallen in Hainan in the past two months. The island has launched a bitter struggle against drought. According to statistics from eight counties, 70,000 laborers have been hurled into the battle."

Areas near Amoy, opposite the Chinese Nationalist island of Quemoy, also were reported suffering from prolonged drought.

Fulbright Plans Talks On Cyprus In Three Capitals

Labor Chieftian Wants Heaviest Tanks on Job

By CLARE McDERMOTT

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Cyprus was calm today following an outbreak of fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots over the Greek Orthodox Easter weekend.

The island dispute was to be taken up in talks Tuesday between British Prime Minister Sir Alex Douglas-Home and Sen. J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), due in London today.

The chairman of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, who also arranged speaking engagements in The Netherlands and Denmark, was asked by President Johnson to visit Athens and Ankara as well as to convey the United States' growing concern about the Cyprus situation to the Greek and Turkish governments.

In Nicosia a UN spokesman said today two British soldiers sustained minor wounds when two grenades exploded on the UN post along the "green line" border zone separating the Greek and Turkish communities.

He said isolated shots were fired in the Kyrenia Mountain range in northern Cyprus, where Greek and Turkish Cypriots engaged in heavy firing Sunday.

DODGE BULLETS

A British patrol also dodged bullets in the southern village of Aylos Theodoros Sunday, but the shooting stopped after a shouting match between the British troops.

No casualties were reported in either of Sunday's incidents.

In London, however, the Conservative government moved Opposition Labor Party Leader Harold Wilson to say it was time Britain "got tough with regard to Cyprus."

He said British should offer to put the peacekeeping task of the UN contingents to do the same.

Wilson also called on the British government to insist on the withdrawal of Greek and Turkish regular forces and on the dispatch of more UN forces to the island to relieve British troops.

Wilson said the authority of the UN in Cyprus was being "openly flouted."

P. M. Had Good Time In Riding

By STEWART MacLEOD

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Hon. L. B. Pearson, whose role as member of Parliament for Algoma East clearly outclassed that of prime minister for 24 hours, returned to Ottawa Saturday after polishing off such problems as wharf repairs on Gore Bay and river dredging at Spanish.

Cyprus and the United Nations were not publicly mentioned as the prime minister turned himself over to constituency questions that, involved new schools at White Fish Falls, a post office at Espanola, and improved wharfage on Manitoulin Island.

"We're delighted to have our member of Parliament with us today," said President Austin Hunt to a meeting of the riding's Liberal associations. "He is also, incidentally, prime minister of this country."

In this town of 3,200, Mr. Pearson moved about without a flutter of excitement. A banner over the highway said, "Welcome Home, Mike," but there were no gatherings of spectators.

"Everybody is pretty used to the prime minister being around," said Baxter Ricard, a Sudbury radio station owner who drove to Espanola with the official party.

PUT ASIDE

Even when Mr. Pearson attended the main function of his visit—a speech to "First World War Honor Night", at the Espanola branch of the Royal Canadian Legion—he pushed the heavy affairs of state to one side for most of the evening. However, none of his speeches excluded reference to the question of national unity.

After Chairman Leo Foucault told fellow legionnaires he "wanted" them to enjoy themselves "no matter what happens," the prime minister, enjoying himself hugely, un-

Teen-Agers' Night Club Set Up Within Half-Block of Broadway

The four guitars and drums of the quartet backed up the wildly harmonious singing of the five Charters.

Dim but gay lanterns softened the artificiality of the pine-apple trees and flowers decorating the dining room. A red-coated waiter squeezed by the dance floor with a drink-laden tray.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murray, the well-known dancers, sat at a ringside table.

But here, at Teen Haven, the drinks were non-alcoholic and the patrons were aged 16 to 20. So were the entertainers. About th. only adults in the club were the Murrays, who had dropped in to see what new steps the younger set had worked out.

"You see, dancing teachers don't make jobs on dances," said Kathryn Murray.

Her husband added: "The kids really set the pace in dancing for the grownups. It has always been that way."

Presiding at the door over the way his three - week - old venture caught on was Angelo Terone, a 30-year-old waiter who has raised three children, one still a teen-ager, and thinks adults should show a little more faith in the younger generation. He described the club as "primarily a public service, but with a commercial aspect too."

"We never get a break," he explained. "They need a place of their own."

The idea of a teen-age nightclub is not new. A few exist in various parts of the United States. But none is a boast of such a choice location as Teen Havens' Times Square area site.

Terone said he raised $15,000 a week to operate the club.

The biggest spender drops only $2.25 or $2.50—that includes $1 admission and a couple of "suicide specials" fruity ice cream sodas. Sandwiches and inexpensive meals are available.

The club can seat 300 and on weekend nights comes close to that. But weeknight crowds, who are chased out at 10 p.m., run about 80 or 90.

Barons ages adult chaperones but said he has had no trouble in the club so far.

BURNED CROSS, A SYMBOL OF PROTEST — Austin Moore, 21, a student at Tougaloo, Miss., carries a burned cross at a protest by hundreds of Methodists Saturday in Pittsburg. Whips' Calls Are Out

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The whips' calls are out.

The members of all parties have been ordered by their party whips to be on hand Monday and Tuesday for whatever votes are needed to deal with the second "supply debate" of the parliamentary session.

Six such two-day debates are held each session under the rules of the Commons. They are motions by the government to have Parliament take up consideration of departmental appropriations.

Once the motions are moved, any matter can be debated that hasn't already been decided this session by the Commons. Opposition parties usually embody their debating points in an amendment, which under parliamentary precedents immediately becomes a non-confidence in the government motion.

To preserve the element of surprise, opposition parties don't reveal in advance what their debating subjects will be.

The two-week-ago, Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill moved a motion deploring the government's plan to "abandon its responsibilities for the administration of veterans hospitals."

MOTION DEFEATED

The motion was lost—and he Liberal minority government sustained—on a vote of 123 to 94.

The supply debates are directly descended from the ancient basic principle of parliamentary government that the Commons will approve no government spending estimates before airing its grievances.

Until introduction of the two-day limit by a rule change some years ago, the supply debates could last as long as an energetic and dedicated opposition group could find MPs to add to the speakers' list.

This protraction of supply debate has recently found its outlet in discussion of supplementary spending estimates, which are limited by the two-day rule. This year, the Commons spent 15 days debating year-end supplementary estimates for 1963-64.

A parliamentary rules reform committee currently holding meetings is reported tackling the question of limiting the debates. One problem is to set a time limit which will prevent protracted filibusters but still allow ample time for serious discussion of government spending.

'Kennedy Round' of Tariff Talks Open in Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — Today marks the formal opening of the "Kennedy round," of tariff talks, climax of a generation of U.S. efforts to break down barriers to international trade.

The attack will be both on U.S. barriers and the obstacles raised by the rest of the non-Communist world. Success would mean more business for some enterprises, tougher competition for others.

Farmers in many countries, including the United States, would find themselves working under new restrictions.

Consumers would enjoy lower prices.

For the better part of a week the men who direct foreign trade policy for the world's major trading nations will meet at the old League of Nations headquarters. The Communist bloc will be represented by Czechoslovakia and Poland, but the Soviet Union and Communist China remain aloof.

The United States delegation will be headed by former state secretary Christian Herter, President Johnson's chief trade negotiator. Its chief bargaining partner will be the European Economic Market, the world's largest trading unit, which includes France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

The job will not be done when the big men go home. Second-level economists and diplomats will go on as they have been doing for a year. Probably for another 18 months. The 40 nations which have been represented so far will probably be joined at one time or another by the other 35 also associated with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The American effort dates back to 1934. That was when President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his secretary of state, Cordell Hull, put through the first Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. It provided one of their major policies: To break down the high tariff wall built around the United States in the years before they took office.

There have been repeated renewals of this law, and successive rounds of tariff reduction.

In 1962 President Kennedy put through the Trade Expansion Act, the most recent and far-reaching of the renewals. Under it President Johnson has far more power than any president has ever had to slash import duties and change trading rules.

The U.S. government has broadened the scope of the talks by insisting for the first time that farm products must be discussed as well as industrial products. In addition, it has announced readiness to talk over other obstacles to trade, ignored in previous rounds.

Nurses' Assoc. Wants to Be Bargaining Agent for All

TORONTO (CP)—The Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario voted Saturday to seek Ontario legislation making the association bargaining agent for all Ontario nurses.

The decision was made in a resolution at the third and concluding day of the association's annual meeting.

Only four of 121 voting delegates opposed the resolution, an initial statement giving nurses collective bargaining and compulsory arbitration rights.

After the vote, Margaret R. Page of Port Arthur, new president of the 37,000-member organization, declined to comment on when the board would act on the resolution.

The resolution proposed that a committee be formed to start the collective bargaining machinery and that the RNAO take action to publicize and eliminate sub - standard working conditions and salaries of nurses.

During the three-day session, attended by some 2,000 members, the association announced that a management consultant firm started a study Friday of the RNAO.

The committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses, a splinter-group which became active in January, has claimed that the RNAO is ineffective and that its executive is too-heavy with nurses in senior positions.

In an interview Ruth Le Roux, CAPN chairman, said her group is pleased that the collective bargaining resolution was passed.

But she said the CAPN would wait to see some reaction to the resolution and the study before making any conclusions.

Another issue is whether nurses should be paid extra for working unpopular shifts. A resolution was passed asking for a referendum to find out what they want done about the matter.

Before Saturday's resolution was passed a personnel policies report, designed to give a guideline to employers, was approved.

It includes a suggestion salary range and a schedule of raises aimed at equalizing pay standards throughout the province.

The range begins at $4,330 a year for a registered nurse and rises to $8,320 for an assistant

Brazil Making Strides

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A month ago Brazil was teetering on the brink of economic disaster and a possible takeover by Communist elements. Today it is making strides toward whipping its tangled web of problems.

The lightning revolution that drove Joao Goulart from the presidency has brought many changes in Latin America's largest nation—and more are in sight.

Inflation has been doubling the country's cost of living every year. Obviously the revolution alone could not solve this and accompanying debt problems. But it has brought a climate of confidence unknown for three years. The cruzeiro, Brazil's monetary unit, has strengthened in relation to the dollar, and the stock market had a surge.

Food lines caused by phoney shortages have disappeared. Rio's daily blackouts, caused by and alleged power shortage, ended. Wheat has begun arriving from the United States in avert a threatened bread shortage.

PRICES LEVEL OFF

Prices have levelled off somewhat, thanks mainly to state action temporarily freezing prices on many products. Goulart's State says food prices, for the first time in years, showed a slight decline over the 30-day period.

The government has moved to follow up its initial advantages with measures aimed at streamlining Brazil's tax structure, solving supply problems which caused food shortages, purging government of dead-wood, and eliminating some of the basic causes of the inflation-ary spiral.

Goulart tried some of the same measures but they failed as he gave in first one then another pressure group and vested interests.

President Humberto Castello Branco, armed with a packet of extraordinary powers plus the firm backing of the military forces which ousted Goulart, seems immune to most of these pressures.

Mass arrests of Communists and fellow travellers took place early last month. Hundreds of those seized have been cleared and released. Others may face trial on charges of violating national security.

ARMY RETIRES

The so-called supreme command of the revolution, composed of military leaders, has virtually faded away after fulfilling its announced role of pre-

Fishing Village Threatened By Forest Blaze

Nova Scotian Families Prepare to Flee Homes

HALIFAX (CP) — The seven families who make up the fishing village of Port Hebert continued escape preparations as a forest fire roared closer to the tiny South Shore Nova Scotia community this morning.

Thirty-five persons, the entire population of the community 35 miles east of Shelburne, had most of their belongings stowed away in automobiles and trucks and slept in their clothes during the night. At last report the advancing fire wall was within five miles of Port Hebert.

The fire which threatened the community broke out in the Sable River area Saturday and swept over 400 acres of mixed forest by this morning. At one stage it jumped a main highway disrupting traffic, and burned down two telephone poles, cutting communications between Halifax and Shelburne.

Municipal Board Approves Plan to Build City Barn

The Ontario Municipal Board at a special hearing at city hall this morning gave approval to the city's application to construct a new city barn at the cost of approximately $175,000.

City council has already given two readings to the construction by-law which will come back to council for third reading, approval of detailed plans and calling of tenders.

Plans are to construct the city barn on city-owned property immediately east of the water pollution control plant in Foster Ward.

At this morning's hearing two local ratepayers voiced objections to the construction of the city barn.

One objector, Al Reynolds agreed that a new city barn was needed, but felt the project should be done in stages.

WITHDRAWS OBJECTION

Alderman Donald Joss, who previously had voiced objection to city council withdrew his objection by letter subject to certain conditions, one being a request that the city parks board be permitted to use garbage space and build a greenhouse on the property.

The city's application was presented by City Solicitor E. Gus Porter who called on city engineer Wilbur Purcell to outline the need for the new city barn.

Alderman Jack Deacon also made a strong plea for municipal board approval of the project.

In reply to Mr. Reynold's request that the barn be constructed in stages, City Engineer Purcell told the board that this would not be practical and that such a proposal in the end would be more costly.

He said that detailed plans for the building were not prepared and ready for presentation to council.

He said the $2 acre site would also have sufficient room for a transit commission barn if it was decided to build on this location.

Mr. Purcell also felt there would be sufficient room for storage of Parks Board vehicles.

HAVE BAD NAME

DACHAU (AP)—Rev. Martin Niemoeller, declaiming a memorial at the site of the Nazi concentration camp of Dachau, said Sunday a recent trip to the United States convinced him Germans "have the worst reputation among all the peoples of the world." The famed pastor himself once a Dachau inmate, said he was placing his hopes in German youth to find a "new way" for a country with a past stained by Nazi atrocities.

Lawn Bowling Season to Open May 18

The lawn bowling season will open on the first holiday of the summer, when the big decision of the members at the spring meeting of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club held at the clubhouse on Saturday night. An open jitney with a pot luck supper will be suggested for May 18th. Due to the untimely death of the president, Mrs. Gordon Corbin, club members unanimously endorsed Percy Graham, a former president and vice-president of the club to be the head of the club during the coming season. Lieutenant Wright, a member of the executive was raised to vice-presidency and Mrs. Abney was named a director of the club to replace Mr. Wright.

Gordon Hayes, a past president and an efficient treasurer of the Corbin Gold Cup tournament for some years, accepted the general chairmanship of the tournament along with his other duties. This post was held by the late Gordon Watkin. The executive decided to increase the entry fee of the Corbin to $16 a rink from the former $12 to meet increased costs. It was decided to leave the scoring methods the same as in former years. A suggestion that only 32 rinks be in play with a four game schedule was ruled out for this year as it was expected that a greater entry would be received for this event. The quality of prizes will not be altered in any degree.

The Trenton members, left without a green, will be welcomed by the local club. It is expected their number will be increased. The Trenton Club, which will be independent of the local club, enjoyed a splendid season on the Belleville greens and are most grateful for the courtesy that has been extended to the bowlers. They will conduct all their tournaments on the local greens.

The financial report given by Wally Lavergne showed the club in a better position than it has been in years and with increased membership and greater enthusiasm, a splendid season is anticipated. Gordon Wince was elected club game chairman and the various tournaments were allotted to the several members that have carried them on for years. It was decided to issue cards of the tournament dates with the Corbin especially prominent and send them out to the various clubs in Ontario.

At the conclusion of the meeting the women of the Trenton and Belleville clubs joined the men in a social evening. Bridge and euchre were played after which a delicious buffet lunch was served donated by the visiting women. It was a grand start to an anticipated season of excellent bowling. Incidentally the greens due to the recent heavy rains are coming along in grand style and will be in their very best when the first bowl is rolled to open an other year of this fine pastime.

MARKET TESTING

REGINA (CP) — The federal agriculture Department has launched a market cattle-testing program to eliminate on-farm testing of beef cattle for brucellosis, commonly known as Bang's disease. Females sent to market will be tagged and blood tests drawn at stockyards or packing plants will be tested. This will replace collection of blood samples on the farm.

Relaxed and Informal Atmosphere Seen in Homes Situated on West Moira

The Sunday Walking Tour by the Hastings County Historical Society took in West Moira St. Never a fashionable area, there are yet some attractive homes, and the trees are still lovely, especially in the vista up Hillside Ave. towards Holloway Church. One pleasant thing about West Moira St. is the relaxed and informal atmosphere, the way the street bends, the way some houses are set back and some forward, giving endless possibilities for interesting gardens.

Our 1845 map shows part of the street, but nothing at all on it except a building on the site of the store at the head of Hillside Ave., and a house on the south side, a little east of Murney; it may be the one set back with porches and a large barn, but if so, the windows have been altered beyond recognition.

We looked over the northern end of Murney St. and identified two more houses, one on the west side, just as they appear on the 1846 map. The solidarity of the house on the east side has a lovely doorway (somewhat spoiled by awkward painting) and a fine fanlight and an interesting bell , shaped wall. It must be of the late 1840's. . . the old door - knocker, we have.

ROW HOUSING SEEN

The tour by going up Coleman St. from the Footbridge to Mc Moira, passing only a few examples of row housing and one or two isolated town houses, finally came to what is by caught on in Ontario, but which has always interest for us in this day of crowding when we must once more learn how to live close to our neighbors. Most of these row houses were presumable meant for workers in the mills which once stood thick along the river here.

The O'Brien Funeral Residence (Belleville's oldest, built in the 1845 map) belonged to the owner of a mill about where the church stands, across the way.

Most notable among the row houses are the western three units of the corner building at Moira and Coleman. There is a fine relationship of doorway to bay windows, and chimneys which cannot have been much improved by the extensive brick ches that once existed.

The south side of West Moira St. has several eccentric little houses, each lively in its way. At the bottom of the hill is a low stone cottage with a well-kept garden, probably built about 1850. It has roof gables and graceful drapery all around. Andrew Jackson Downing would have approved.

WOULD NOT APPROVE

Downing would definitely not have approved of the freshening up that the little wooden house at the top of the hill is undergoing. This is in the Gothic taste, also of about 1850, with the twinlight set forward, and with nicely moulded drapery. Until this year it had boarded-and-batten siding, with Downing considered excellent because it expresses the vertical supporting function of the wooden timbers which actually hold up the building; but the present owners have removed the battens and covered the house in with non-descript synthetic shingles in a dreary white. Surely the simple and serviceable board - and - batten siding would have been renewed. As to the colors, it is interesting to reflect that the taste of 1850, as preached by Downing, called for natural and sober stone colors, browns and greys. Green and white were thought vulgar.

REFLECTS ITALIAN TASTE

An entertaining oddity is the little house with a tower, a bit further on. The tower reflects the Italian taste, and was evidently added about 1870 to a tiny house of the late 1840's. Someone should fix this house up for all it is worth, as a charming example of Victorian eccentricity. Had our readers noticed that a similar house was featured in color on the cover of American Home magazine last month? Victorian is much in vogue in the States.

On the north side of the street, set far back, is the Asa Yeomans house, remembered by many as the isolation hospital, and now the Diment apartments. This house is in a class with Hillside Cottage and the Lazier house above Latter's dam, but has the added charm and dignity of French windows. It deserves better treatment than it is getting. Mrs. Williamson is writing the history of this house for her weekly series.

The Marchmont Apartments, too, deserves better treatment. It was built about 1870 as a children's home, and is featured in Belden's Atlas of 1878. It was never really well-proportioned, perhaps, but the village of Marchmont would be attractive (unusual, too, at that late date), and the garden setting behind, on Yeomans St., much mangled but retaining one Gothic window, was the chapel of the home, we are told.

Returning towards town, opposite the Asa Yeomans house, an early stone house is being sympathetically treated. We think: the turn-of-the-century Tuscan columns of the verandah are being replaced with rather elegant wrought iron trellis—a touch of old New Orleans.

STATE OF MIND REFLECTED

But on the whole it is shocking to see the building standards of the present day care for the achievements of the past advertising no sense of pride in the future ones. The builder's te of mind is reflected in the building in 1900's of a type plain for all to see. Victorian building at its best reflects unbounded enthusiasm and confidence: tall houses reach upward by myriad turrets and pinnacles that illustrate again es our grandfathers believed they would presently conquer. A house built in 1900's or 1910's, however, is apt to reflect only the cynicism of the speculative builder, or worse, the greed of the owner who builds only for resale value and not to suit himself at all. Our grandfathers seem to take little or no account of their surroundings. Designed more for its setting than for our city streets, they jostle their neighbors in the newer subdivisions, or intrude ir to obscure thing into, the ir realities. Tracey Avenue, Home builders, failing to use their eyes, are quickly destroying the characteristics of one of the city our grandfathers left us.

STOP FOR COFFEE

The walking tour stopped for coffee at Miss Fralick's house on the corner of Hillside Ave. This house was built in the 1850's, we judge from the mouldings and general style. It is a quarter house, in the British, Georgian, tradition. It has been divided into apartments, but is unobtrusive that its appearance is not spoiled, and though it is a plain building its setting gives it great dignity.

Next week's tour (by car), will be out of Hastings, into Prince Edward County, where we shall be able to go into several early houses. Those interested should not wait for a personal invitation, but assemble at the Museum at 2 p.m. as usual. We expect to skip the holiday weekend, and resume the week-t tours after-ards.

One of Three Held Requests Legal Aid

Donald Ricks, 17, made the request as the trio appeared for remand.

His companions, Gerry Kennington and Frederick Stevens, entered pleas of not guilty but said they did not wish a lawyer.

They were arrested April 28 at a Belleville roadblock after neighbors interrupted an attempted burglary at John Drew's service station in Deseronto.

Heavy Damage In Collision On Victoria Ave.

Eight Pathfinder Scouts escaped injury when the station wagon in which they were returning home was involved in a $2,000 accident at Victoria Avenue and Church St. last evening.

The youngsters were the charges of Mrs. Ruth Sands, of Oshawa, and had spent Sunday on a Madoc-district farm.

The Sands station wagon, heading north on Church St., collided with the car of Stanley Fritz, 25, of Amelisburg's third concession; veered 120 feet across Church Street, into the driveway of the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home; struck the rear of a parked car and jarred it into a garage door.

The Fritz car was written off by police; damage to the station wagon was $600; damage to the parked car, owned by Reginald Cooper, Belleville, $350, and $175 to the garage.

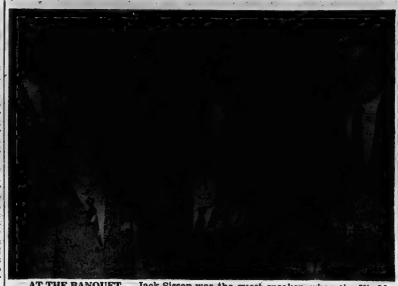
Fathers, Sons Enjoy Banquet Night at 'Y'

Saturday night the Y's Men's Club sponsored one of the most successful Father and Son banquets in the history of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. One hundred and seventy boys and their fathers enjoyed a delicious meal served by the Y's men after which they witnessed various demonstrations and heard speakers.

Michael Allore proposed the toast to the fathers and Dr. H. F. Williamson responded for the fathers. A rousing singsong followed, led by Y's Don Lockyer with Mr. Claire Hossack at the keyboard. Chairman for the evening, Garry Sherman, president of the Y's Men, welcomed everyone, and expressed how happy the Y's Men were to be of service to the Y members and their fathers.

Mr. W. S. Wills — president of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors, brought greetings, and expressed how they were looking forward to starting the Y program in the new Y.M.C.A. on June 1st. He also paid tribute to Mr. Charles Wilson and his committee, who were responsible for the new (Y) building project. His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis, brought greetings from the City of Belleville, and thanked the Y.M.C.A. for allowing him and his son, Ray, to join in such a fine occasion.

The "Y Gymnasts" under the direction of Graham Geldart, performed many feats of skill on the "horse" and "springboard" to the delight of the audience.



Y's John Hayman introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Jack Sisson — Director of Physical Education at Quinte Secondary School. "What Do I Want for Him" was the title of Mr. Sisson's talk, directed to the fathers present. "What goals should a father set for his son." The speaker put forth the following points, which he believes his son should be concerned with. The creation of an appetite for sports and sportsmanship by learning from teachers who have a zeal for sports and the sportsman's code. By hero worship of a worthy leader in their favorite games.

CARRY ZEAL ONWARD

"Formal Muscle training" as well as the learning of game and skills should be combined so that the young man will carry his zeal for sports on into adult life equipped with physical and mental powers which will make him "a winner" during the contest of life. Team sports such as hockey, football and basketball are very important to teach the youngster that he is expected to "dig for everybody else if he expects them to dig for him". Team sports present opportunities for lasting friendships and chances to see how people live in other parts of the country. Team contact sports can develop courage; how to get up after being knocked down and then face getting knocked down again. Courage to be a good loser, but most of all, courage to do his best and strive to win always, will make a boy into a better man. Individual sports such as track, wrestling, and tennis are important to give the youth the experience of winning or losing on his own.

Mr. Sisson expressed the hope that the citizens of Belleville and those present will make full use of the facilities they now have for recreation as well as planning new programs and parks to play them in. The speaker said that the Y's use of Moira Secondary School facilities on a part-time basis was a step in the right direction of full use of school facilities after hours by young adult and youth groups under the supervision of the Recreation Commission.

Ricky James thanked the speaker for the boys and fathers present and a gift of a one year membership for Mr. Sisson's daughter in the "prep." class of the Y was presented with the compliments of the Y's men.

Presentation of awards followed and Mr. Jim Driscoll paid tribute not only to the winners of the many awards but also to the losers, whom he hoped would keep trying for an award in the future. Mr. Di Diamantides, General Secretary of the Belleville Family Y.M.C.A. remarked that this would be the last Father and Son Banquet in the downtown 'Y' next year. It would be held in one of the finest new family Y.M.C.A.'s in Canada. He related that now is the time to buy a family membership and avoid the impending raise in rates.

Mr. Diamantides closed his remarks by paying tribute to Graham Geldart, and his assistants for the fine leadership they are providing for the youth and adult classes in the 'Y' program.

Sandy Cunningham thanked the Y's Men for sponsoring the banquet and providing such a fine speaker. The most successful event was closed with the singing of the "Queen" with Youth Chairman Y's Ron Poste at the keyboard.

Kiwanis Club Will Supply 'Road Signs'

Thanks to the co-operation of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and the Moira River Conservation Authority, Belleville and district residents — as well as tourists — will soon be able to take in all points of interest in the Moira watershed without danger of getting themselves lost.

The local service club and the Conservation Authority have planned a "Conservation Drive" and appropriate road signs are in the process of being erected.

A brochure containing write-ups on each of the ten stops included in the "Drive" is to be published for distribution through hotels and tourist establishments.

To get the project officially underway members of the local Kiwanis Club are planning to make a tour of the "Drive" on May 27th.

Purpose of the "Conservation Drive" is to assist in publicising the achievements of the Moira Authority and to make people more aware of conservation problems.

The three Authority conservation areas at O'Hara's Mill northwest of Madoc; Price's at Actinolite and the Vandervaler Area east of Thomasburg will be included as main stops on the "Drive".

Special service bulletin for Mutual Life policyholders

Here's how Mutual Life can help you plan for your child's education

The value of a university education can't be figured in dollars and cents — but the cost can! If your child attends a university in your area today, the expense for books, fees, board and room will come to about $1,000 per year; away from home with room and board included, the cost would be about $2,200 each year. Naturally, costs will vary depending on the area, the course taken, and the institution — but in every area they are continually rising.

Your child could pay some of this expense himself . . . but probably not all of it. He will need your help. Most parents don't have this amount of cash available either, but you can if you plan for it!

Will you take the time to discuss this important matter with your Mutual Life representative? He can show you a plan for accumulating money through The Mutual Life which will guarantee funds for university education. The Plan will guarantee that the money will be available whether you live or die. This is the way thousands of our policyholders are building a guaranteed fund to enable their children to have a university education without financial worries. Call your Mutual Life of Canada representative and talk it over with him . . . or mail this coupon.

An Excellent Plan

The decision to turn the uranium-town development in Cardiff Township into a village for retired people strikes us as admirable.

We are aware that the idea is open to the criticism that it involves segregation of an age-class. We sympathize with those who maintain that, generally speaking, these older citizens should be retained in our regular cities, towns and villages. Not only can they benefit by this continued association with those of other age groups, from the youngest to those who are themselves nearing their retirement, but they have much to give to other generations.

Nevertheless, this is dealing with the ideal. In practice, many of these older people are at present crowded into second-class accommodations and have to pinch pennies or hard to make their meagre pensions cover living costs; that they are robbed of the rightful heritage of old age.

This situation will, we all hope, be changed in the future, when pension plans, private and public, provide for the retired in a more bountiful manner.

For the present, though, anything which offers older citizens a chance to live in comfort and with dignity is praiseworthy. Combining such an achievement with the redemption from the wreckers' hammer of a model community like that in Cardiff Township is a real reason for cheers.

The plan will have the added advantage of cushioning the effects on Bancroft's economy of the closing of the former Faraday mine.

All in all, somebody in Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation or in some government office at Ottawa has had reason to be proud of a most attractive brain-child.

The Unkindest Cut

The guy who first carried coals to Newcastle was a piker.

Members of the royal commission on banking and finance would put to shame the man who tries to sell bottled smog in Pittsburgh.

In their report these gentry urge the federal government to make greater use of its taxing and spending powers.

Ouch!

And, to add insult to injury, advice like this is offered in the dying days of April, just when everybody is settling accounts with the income tax department.

Of course, the commission had a reason for advancing what appears, on the surface, a wholly unnecessary recommendation.

It had in mind the effects of taxation and spending on economic conditions. Governments, it feels, have not utilized to the full this method of stabilizing the economy. It even wants the federal government to seek the cooperation of provincial and municipal governments in this field.

"Appropriate fiscal deficits or surpluses incurred in sensible ways for sensible purposes are, after all, not national disasters—they are acts of prudent economic management," it says.

Ah, well, somebody has to remind governments to make greater use of taxing and spending powers, it is at least some comfort to realize that not everyone is raising a cry of blue ruin whenever a government endeavors to provide some of the services it has promised the electors.

Tramp, Tramp, Tramp

The tramp, according to The Times of London Service, has almost disappeared from the English countryside. It puts the blame on the centralization inherent in the welfare state system.

Before the Second World War, it says, there were 260 local authority centres scattered about the country within a reasonable day's march of each other.' Today the National Assistance Board has 25 reception centres, so widely spaced that a man must get a lift if he intends to travel from one to another in a day.

The Times, as might be expected, seems to know a better class of tramp than the average. The English tramp always used to look as if he had slept in a haystack—and he probably had. What happened? Were haystacks nationalized?

The individual must cope, if he is to act in a normal way, with the situation which he actually confronts. The moral decision must be a real decision. One of the great difficulties, as I see it, when talking about morality is that the individual suddenly leaps off, and makes a moral code that has got very little relationship to his actual conduct in the situation confronting him.—C. J. Harrison, Professor of Comparative Law at Cambridge University.

Letter to The Editor

Writes to Pearson Backing Red Ensign

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

There are probably a large number of people who would like to express their feelings of attachment to the Canadian ensign and to do this in some effective way that would deter the government from arbitrarily adopting a new emblem that may not have a trace of historical significance. I would suggest that such people follow the advice of Bruce West of the Globe and Mail. I determined to do so and wrote the Prime Minister a short polite note expressing the hope that no change would be made. I was gratified to have a reply almost by return mail reading as follows:

"The Prime Minister has asked me to acknowledge your letter suggesting that the Red Ensign be confirmed as the Canadian National flag and to assure you that he appreciated your having made your views on this issue known to him.

Yours sincerely,
Jules Pelletier,
Secretary."

There is certainly no hint in this reply that a change will or will not be made. Even if the Prime Minister's office receives a large volume of letters endorsing the Red Ensign, I am sure the government will then produce an effect.

Yours very truly,
Joseph M. Porritt.

Has Canada Nothing Strictly Canadian?

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
Re: Mrs. Dorothy Howe's Letter.

Rarely have I read a more convincing letter on the flag issue. I can therefore assume that it was written by a very convinced person, whose opinion I respect.

It contains, however, a paragraph who prefers something different in design, move to another country. Since I am one who prefers something different in design, and have no intention of moving anywhere, I must therefore look for other suggestions. I will not, mind you, imply that those who are so much in love with the Union Jack, move to England! Such a match is controus to the Canadian economy. Nor do I doubt the acts of heroism displayed under the Union Jack, or all that it stands for.

I simply fail to see why we should keep on being identified by a flag, a national anthem, or anything that comes from abroad. Did you know that street cars used to be manufactured in Belleville? Well, here is the proof from our file copy at this time in 1924, that such was the case: "Messrs. St. Charles and Pringle of this city are pushing work on the construction, of fifteen cars for the Montreal Street Railway." To the foregoing it may be added that the firm of St. Charles and Pringle manufactured the majority of omnibuses used by hotel owners from coast to coast to convey their patrons free of charge from the railway station to the hotel, and also to take them back to the station when leaving. When travelling, Belleville fared at home when they entered the bus and read the notice at the front of the bus that it was manufactured in Belleville by the firm of St. Charles and Pringle. Later Mr. Pringle retired from the firm and Mr. James St. Charles controlled the company. There were other carriage manufacturing companies in Belleville — the Ashley Carriage Company, the Brown Carriage Company and the Finnigan Carriage Company, but omnibuses and street cars were manufactured only by the St. Charles and Pringle Company.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

The Belleville Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic held its 170th clinic on Sunday, April 30th with 128 donors from the city itself and several outlying points contributing blood to help swell the Red Cross Blood Bank against the needs of the coming battles, when the invasion opens.

Incidences of yesteryear and of the days when sailing schooners plied regularly through the water of the Bay of Quinte laden with practically every conceivable type of merchandise were recalled here this week with the raising of an old sunken hull from under the water at the old Allen Coal Dock. Although now sunken for 15 or 20 years and hauled up as a result of the salvage operations, the "Bertha Caulkens" again came into the limelight as the result of progress. The site of the old Allen Dock now having been purchased by Mr. J. J. Mulvihill, manager of the Reliance Industries, Ltd., with the new owner desirous of building a new dock it was necessary that the sunken hulk be removed.

Meeting in Shire Hall to prepare plans for their exhibition this fall, members of the Belleville Fair Board voted 60 per cent of the net profit from the 1943 Fair to four patriotic organizations carrying on work in the battle zones. Organizations to benefit from the one-quarter of the profits will be the Canadian Red Cross; Canadian Army Huts; WAAC.A.; and the Salvation Army.

Strictly Personal
Children Tend To Respect Show of Power

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We saw an old man in the park, pulling a sullen-looking dog and brandishing a thick stick. "Why does he seem so fierce and angry?" asked my little boy. "Because he is frightened and feels weak," I told him.

This is a lesson that children must learn early in life, so that later they will not respect and try to imitate a false show of strength and pugnacity. They should be given to understand that the angry and aggressive person is full of fears he does not understand.

Genuine strength can afford the luxury of gentleness, just as the person who is sure of his social position can afford the most democratic manners. It is only those who feel weak and small and unworthy inside who should make clear your inferior arrogance or aggressiveness.

Children, because of their size and relative helplessness, tend to respect any display of power. What they are incapable of seeing is the power behind it; and a sound training at home must include, as its absolute basis, the recognition that bullying rocks is a sign of weakness and not of strength.

The formula here is wonderfully apt word for teen-age boomers; they call them "the hairies." Perhaps because just precisely what these boys feel about themselves, and explains why they act as they do.

In fact, if one examines the dynamics of delinquent behavior in gangs, one may be sure that the "toughness" has been adopted as a defense against feelings of weakness and inferiority. If a child grows up in an atmosphere of brutality and lawlessness and physical danger he can cope only by retreating into a private world or by seeming to be as callous and aggressive as his environment.

What is astonishing, indeed, is that so many children grow up in an environment remain emotionally healthy and are even able to put their energies and forces to good use. In such cases, curiously, the supplies of love available to them have been in great enough to overcome the forces of fear.

But in many families — and not merely in the slums — the supplies of love are not adequate, and children grow tense, petrified, as it were, at the core of their personality. The hysterical old man with the stick and the cudgel was merely a caricature, an example of the way in which such apprehensions remain locked within the adult psyche.

It would be fascinating, and enormously useful, if one could compare the psychic apparatus of a Churchill and a Hitler — the one exhibiting real courage and calmness, the other a pathological aggressive as one whose destructive impulses are unleashed by the other's need for self-destruction. Violence is not the currency of strength, but its counterfeit.

Boast About Big Spending

Vancouver Province

When they were boys, Premier Bennett and Alberta's Premier Manning went "hand in hand" to school. Now they have a chance to see which one of them can lick your father" at each other.

Now that they've grown into politicians, however, the taunts have been changed to "my budget can lick your budget." Each is claiming that his provincial spending is the greatest.

Mr. Hinman started the ruckus by doubling Mr. Bennett's assertion that B.C.'s latest budget is the third largest in Canada, at $206 million. Alberta's, said Mr. Hinman, is $414 million.

Talking advantage of the differences between a net budget and a gross budget, Mr. Bennett has since parlayed our spending up to a tenth-shattering $580 million.

The controversy is a sharp comment on our times. Not too long ago, premiers and finance ministers boasted of spending as little of the taxpayers' money as possible.

To Your Good Health
Donation to Med. School Primarily a Legal Matter

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would a medical school accept as a gift my body at death? I would like to arrange this with a college in California, with my eyes to go to an eye bank, etc. How should I go about it? — F. F.

This is primarily a legal matter, because your body is not like a piece of property which you can give away. Rather, your nearest kin has the responsibility of deciding what should be done.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would a medical school accept as a gift my body at death? I would like to arrange this with a college in California, with my eyes to go to an eye bank, etc. How should I go about it? — F. F.

This is primarily a legal matter, because your body is not like a piece of property which you can give away. Rather, your nearest kin has the responsibility of deciding what should be done.

Your wish is a reasonable and generous one, but to accomplish it, you must make arrangements in advance.

Legal conditions vary from state to state, but the general principle remains pretty much the same.

"California has enacted specific laws governing this, and you can find out what to do. In some states you can't find out because no such legislation exists.

In California, besides stating your intention in your will, you should make clear your wishes to your immediate family, and send a copy of your intention to the medical school you have chosen. Your spouse (or nearest kin) should have a copy, as well as the trust company or executor who will handle your estate. The state health department must have a copy in advance, too.

A bit complicated? Yes, and you will need the help of an attorney, but it won't really be too difficult a task.

Do not, in any case, try to make such plans and then keep them secret. Those who have a need to know must be informed well in advance.

When it comes to corneas for eye banks, or other tissues for artery or bone banks, it is considerably easier, but it still requires advance preparation, and notification of those who will handle your estate.

By and large, other tissues must be removed promptly after death (before embalming, certainly, and preferably just as soon as possible) if the gift is to be useful.

Remember that the circumstances surrounding death (grief, shock, worry) may cause you wishes to be temporarily forgotten unless you have matters fully arranged.

The donation of eyes has become much more frequent in recent years, and your eye specialist, or people in the eye department of the medical school or hospital of your choice, will be glad to guide you. In many instances they will have forms which you can fill out, or will be able to tell you where to get them readily.

Dear Dr. Molner: An X-ray shows I have an enlarged heart. What is its significance? I can expect, at 39, to lead a normal, active life? Am I prone to a heart attack? What could cause it? — R. K. T.

It does not mean that you are likely to have a heart attack. It may — or may not — mean that your activity must be limited.

Many enlarged hearts are the result of some past trouble which once has been adequately compensated. There are other cases which mean trouble is developing.

Here are two suggestions.

1 — Have your case studied at once to see which answer fits you.

2 — For a discussion of this (as well as related) problems, send for a copy of my booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart." Any reader may get a copy of the booklet by sending 25 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Note To S. L.: I'm sorry, but while griseofulvin is wonderfully effective against some types of fungus, it does not control other types.

"Don't Quit Because Of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner enclosing a long, self-addressed unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Schweitzer Under Fire

Watertown Times

Albert Schweitzer, the jungle doctor, musician and philosopher, has been the object of such extravagant praise and the subject of so much plous adulation that he probably should not be too much of a surprise that someone has finally objected to the idolatry.

It would be a mistake to think that Dr. Schweitzer is anything less than an extraordinary man of powerful intellect and personality, just because of this "debunking" work that has now been published. Nothing can be taken away from his remarkable career, and of the effect it has had on so many who have found his life and work a source of inspiration. What Albert Schweitzer has done with his long life cannot now be undone.

It is just like London Journalist, Gerald McKnight, has gone ahead and put the doctor on pedestal, because he has published a book. "Verdict on Schweitzer" is an exceptional not so much for the picture of paints of Schweitzer as for the contrast with the generally accepted version of the man. That generally accepted version is the one that Albert Schweitzer himself has done much of saintly, and McKnight's picture of him includes some common and distinctly unappealing human flaws.

Autocratic, patronizing, medically and administratively outdated, paternalistic — these are the characteristics attributed to Schweitzer's medical mission at Lambarene, in Gabon, formerly French Equatorial Africa.

Criticism of these flaws in the Albert Schweitzer myth have been provided occasionally in the past, but briefly and never assembled in an effort to present the case against Schweitzer in a single manner.

The new view of Schweitzer is, it must be remembered, an accumulation of criticisms of his temperament and work. It he is indeed arbitrary, stubborn and wilful, he is not much different from many high-powered intellectuals, impatient that others with the less gifted. But this look askance at Schweitzer does not take into view the less appealing sides to his character had been shielded from view for so long.

The paramount fact about the life of Albert Schweitzer is that, as a young man already established internationally as a musician with a brilliant career open to him and the acclaim and rewards for his musical genius already mounting, he forsook both the world he knew and the work he had mastered to conduct a medical mission in what was then known as "dark-est Africa." He has carried it on for 50 years and, if his leadership leaves something to be desired, the example still seems quite enough to qualify him for special rank.

Queen's Group Studying Area

Eight Queen's University students are in the Belleville area this week for their annual senior field camp, during which they study a community's physical and human problems and its urban and rural areas.

The members of the group, under the direction of Dr. Richard T. Ruggles of the Department of Geography at Queen's, are staying at the Queen's Hotel.

The students have been addressed by Gerald Boyce on the history of the Belleville area; by John Beavis on the work of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, and by Roger C. Greig on studies by the Community Planning Association regarding development of the central city area and the waterfront.

leashed his wartime exploits of the First World War.

What did you do in the great war, grand-daddy?" he was sometimes asked.

"I crashed on a training flight, then I got hit by a London bus, and got invalided home."

"Of all the people who enlisted in that war, I don't think that anyone could have a record of less distinction."

Even as he lay in a military hospital, he wasn't exposed to war heros. "On one side was a fellow with sore lungs—probable from smoking too many cigarettes—and on the other side was a fellow whose face was covered by bandages because he had been kicked by a mule in France."

MET DELEGATION

Saturday morning, Mr. Pearson was up early to meet a delegation from Elliott Lake, a one-time town of 30,000 whose population has dwindled to 9,500 because of the lack of demand for the uranium on which the town was established.

Mr. Pearson told them that progress was being made toward establishing new activity in the town, but he didn't tell reporters what was in the wind. One of the delegates said the talks involved a complex—industrial and institutional. There is also the possibility of a national park, he said.

The prime minister handed over to the delegates the U.S. presidential flag which president Kennedy gave Mr. Pearson at the Hyannis Port conference a year ago. It is being loaned by the prime minister to the Elliot Lake Uranium and Mining Museum.

Elliott Lake Police Chief Jack McLaren said the town's problems are so great "that we really need a member of Parliament who is also prime minister."

Five minutes after this conference, Mr. Pearson was back in his motel room with a delegation from Spanish, talking about local problems there.

"You know," he told a group, "we've had some pretty close votes in Ottawa. We just squeaked through a couple of times, and it's nice to get up here among my friends and talk about wharves and post offices."

Child Drowns In Pond Near Tweed

TWEED. — Tragedy struck a nine-member family here Saturday for the second time when Dale O'Colin, 9, was drowned in a pond about a mile from his home.

Police said the boy likely suffered an attack of cramps while swimming with several of his brothers and sisters after the family ate lunch.

Four years ago, Eugene O'Colin, the father, accidentally killed an infant son while backing his car out of his driveway.

Tweed is about 23 miles north of Belleville.

3. SHELTER
costs John Duchêne $75.00 a month.

4. THE FOURTH NECESSITY
guarantees the other three,
yet it costs less than any of them.

John Duchêne is a high school teacher, living in Windsor, Ontario. He and his wife, Judith, have two children—Christopher, 3, and Juliana, 18 months. Like all young fathers, John likes to think that he will always be around to provide his family with the first three necessities—food, clothing and shelter.

But John, concerned for the future, has recognized that, in addition to the first three necessities, there is a Fourth Necessity—enough life insurance.

John budgets $28.50 a month for life insurance premiums. Should he die, his family would receive $8,000 in cash—enough for final expenses and to pay off the mortgage—plus a steady monthly income until the youngest child is 17 years old. But John, of course, expects to live to enjoy the savings accumulated in his contract.

Like the cost of the other three, cost of the Fourth Necessity, enough life insurance, varies from family to family.

How about you? Is your family as sure of its future as the Duchêne's? Find out where you stand with a Metropolitan Family Security Check-up. Without charge, a specially trained Metropolitan man will study your present situation. He will add up your savings, property and present insurance; estimate your family's future needs; show you what it necessary to secure their future—and the most economical way to do it.

Like John Duchêne, you will probably discover the Fourth Necessity costs far less than the others. Find out from your Metropolitan man soon. There is no obligation . . .

Ann Landers

Readers Object to Ann's 'Cutesy-Wootsey' Names

ANN, HONEY — We read your great little column every day, Doll, and we believe your advice is generally sound, often helpful, and sometimes, Cupcake, it is downright hilarious.

However, Tooty, your adorable little cutesy-wootsey names for those who write to you are a bit much.

So, Babe, will you kindly cut out the chummy little handles? The Buddy-Boy approach to a person who may be twice your age detracts from your otherwise sensible writing — and you should know it, Sweetie.

ANN LANDERS

We sincerely hope you will accept this criticism in the spirit of friendship, since this is the way it is intended, Buttercup. — SUGAR AND SPICE.

DEAR S. AND S. — Thanks. I'll watch it, Lambie Pie.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Can you settle an argument I have been having with my wife?

She has asked me to hand over the names of the manufacturers with whom I do business. (I am purchasing agent of a fairly large company.) She wants to write letters to these suppliers asking for donations to her pet charity — which by the way, is a worthy one.

I feel that these sollicitations would be improper. She claims all the other wives do it, and if she doesn't get money out of these manufacturers for her charity, some other wives will get it for their charity.

What is your opinion? — CHICAGO V.P.

DEAR VEEP — Your wife is going to hate me, but I agree with you. Her letter would add up to blackmail. She knows well that a supplier is not likely to ignore a request from the wife of a purchasing agent — and that's precisely why she wants the list.

Such requests could backfire and cost you plenty. Example: What if a supplier handed over a nice fat cheque to your wife's charity and later you discovered that this supplier's merchandise was inferior or that his prices were out of line? You'd find yourself in a nice box.

Don't allow her to put you under obligation to your suppliers because she wants to make a dazzling showing as a $ 5 raiser.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Now that summer is almost here and the children are running in and out of the house, it is impossible to keep the doors locked. Will you please say something in your column about friends, neighbors and relatives who walk right in?

I have been scared out of my wits by neighbors who appear from nowhere and tap me on the shoulder while I'm making a bed or vacuuming a rug. One woman actually goes from room to room looking for me. Yesterday she opened the bathroom door and I was in the tub.

There are times when I hear people knock and I don't want to be bothered, so I pretend not to hear. They walk right in and shout, "Yoo hoo. I know you're home because the door is open."

Please tell me what to do. I am hog-tied. — OPEN SESAME.

DEAR OPEN — Keep your door locked. Instruct your children to knock or ring the bell in a special way so you'll know who it is. You can then ignore all other knocks and bellringing if you wish to.

An open door is an invitation to something far more serious than a brassy neighbor. Use your head, Lady.

Canadian Women Getting Into Professional Rut

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian women may be getting themselves into a professional rut.

Sixty-six per cent of all young women with aptitude for higher education pick a teaching or nursing career, says Marion Royce, director of the women's bureau of the federal labor department.

"Beyond these professions their impact is negligible."

Only seven per cent of physicians in Canada are women and barely two per cent of lawyers, she said.

"Numerically women are participating increasingly in the labor force but they have a long way to go to recognize and develop their potential. They are not exploiting other career opportunities the way they should."

Miss Royce, in an address here, said the attraction of nursing and teaching may result from pleasure at home.

"Girls are told these are suitable professions for young women. But, like a man, a girl should choose a career in which she has an interest and for which she has an aptitude."

RETURN TO JOBS

Miss Royce says girls are still conditioned to the idea that they will eventually marry and stay home with the children.

"This argument is illogical today because 50 per cent of all women in Canada's labor force are married.

"Women leave the labor force through their child - rearing years but they return."

She saw no reason why women could not combine marriage and other careers.

"In many European countries, for instance, most of the dentists are women. I can see no reason why a woman cannot set up her dental office right in her own home. Yet women in Canada are not attracted to the dentistry profession at all."

The single woman has been a part of the labor force for years and her work pattern is the same as that of a man, Miss Royce says.

"But the married woman is a new element in the labor force, and we should try to think of ways to lighten her burden."

More adequate day-care services for children is one way, she says.

Former Nurses Taking Course As Refresher

TORONTO (CP)—A refresher course aimed at preparing former nurses to return to their profession has met with enthusiastic response here.

The 45-hour course offered by two Toronto hospitals has an enrolment of 110.

"Most of the nurses are married women anxious to get back into the profession," says Jean McKay, with Johanna Welbe, is course co-ordinator. "Practically all of them have been out of it for many years."

About 60 per cent of those enrolled graduated in the 1930s. Some would like to go back to work full time, others part time.

"We hope to help these nurses reassess themselves in relation to present trends in nursing for re-entry into a field which is greatly in need of their services."

The course, sponsored by Toronto General and Women's College hospitals, is divided into three periods of two days each with sessions from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Overleaves is 42 hours of lectures, hospital observation and demonstrations.

Home and School News

PARK DALE SCHOOL

The regular monthly meeting of the Park Dale Home and School Association was held on Monday, April 27th, with Mrs. D. Reid presiding.

During the business meeting, a new slate of officers for the year 1964-65 was presented and accepted. The new officers will be installed at the September meeting.

Mrs. Reid introduced the guest speaker, Mr. J. M. Cousins, Inspector of Public Schools.

Mr. Cousins gave a most interesting talk, his subject touching on guidance, teachers, equipment, junior and senior schools, the new course rules for mathematics and mental health.

Mr. Cousins explained that a guidance teacher should get to know a student's poor subjects as well as his good ones, his hobbies, as all these things could lead to a profitable business for the student in the future.

The guidance teacher can obtain information about bursaries, job requirements and procuring information from colleges.

Mr. Cousins said: "We should not think our child's teacher has gone off her rocker" when our child comes home and tells us 6 plus 3 equals 12! The reason for this answer will be the new ground rules in mathematics that will be introduced into our schools within the next two years."

Commenting up on mental health, Mr. Cousins said that the following five things are necessary for good mental health: "Security, positive identity, share experiences, cope with problems and being able to examine oneself actualy and honestly."

Fillets Of Haddock Dressed Up

by Mary Moore

Your Old Faithful is spouting again.

This time it is about fish which seems appropriate.

I fixed the fishman with my glittering eye and asked this packed question: "What fish in this counter is the very freshest?" With a wry smile he answered "The haddock, ma'am." Since it was 40c per pound this pleased me no end and I invested in one pound.

BAKED HADDOCK (OR OTHER) FILLETS WITH ORANGE

Note: This amount serves 3. If you have six in your family buy two pounds and double amounts of remaining ingredients.

1 lb. fresh haddock fillets, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons orange juice (not strained), ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Mix together the melted butter or margarine, orange juice, salt and pepper. Lightly butter a shallow baking dish (which can be taken to table) with this mixture. Place fillets in one layer on baking dish. Pour half of remaining butter-orange mixture over. Bake (or broil) for 3 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr., then pour over remaining orange mixture. Bake and return to oven for 3 or 4 minutes longer or until fish fillets are opaque. Note: If fillets are not more than ¾" at thickest part these will cook in 5 minutes or less. Do not overbake or fish will begin to dry out.

Another economical fish dish may be made with fresh or fresh frozen haddock fillets this way:

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Homemade Cream of Vegetable. Soup;. Broiled. Beef Patties;. New. Beets;. Cole Slaw;. Deep. Dish. Rhubarb Pie; White Cream Cheese; Coffee.

HADDOCK FILLETS AU GRATIN (Serves 6)

In a rather large casserole arrange 2 lbs. fresh or fresh frozen haddock fillets, overlapping, if necessary, to allow to thaw. Make Sauce: In 1¼ tablespoons melted butter or margarine sauté ¼ cup chopped onion until transparent but not brown. Stir in 1¼ tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon paprika. Stir in ¾ cup milk and ¼ cup grated Cheddar cheese until thick and smooth. Remove from heat and spread evenly over haddock fillets. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 30 minutes or until fish is just baked through. This is an economical and attractive guest dish.

Wives Can Be Devious Lot About Clothes

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—In chic couture houses the semi-annual Friday representatives were agreeing with New York Assistant District Attorney Leonard Newman that wives can be a devious lot.

Their ruses in sparing their spouses from the knowledge of the high cost of their fashion purchases are numerous and colorful, says Cell Chapman, among others.

"But they have to be," the lady designer added, in defence of her own sex. "Husbands have an unrealistic attitude about these things."

At any rate, these machinations indulged in by the distaff side to conceal the true cost from the head of the household," Newman said in Manhattan State Supreme Court Friday, enabled a Manhattan employee to misapply $227,000 of the company's funds.

The employee, 43-year-old Arthur Keller, showroom manager for 15 years, has specifically admitted stealing $166,116 from the exclusive dress house.

HE APOLOGIZES

Apologizing for unmasking wives' chicanery, Newman told the court that many ladies made partial payments . . . out of their household expenses and their husbands were subsequently billed for the difference."

Besides juggling the household funds in order to pay off at least a fraction of what they ran themselves, the ladies also request accounting departments to divide the bill to appear as though she had purchased four or five dresses during price she's paying for one.

"All this is absolutely necessary, if a woman does not have an adequate allowance from her husband," contended designer Chapman, "or if he just doesn't understand about the necessity to pay good money for good clothes."

"It's just like men who go to the grocery store and are shocked to find they can't buy a loaf of bread for a nickel anymore." She says. "Somehow we have to get men to the fashion shows to educate them."

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

COURTESY CREATES HAPPIER HOUSE-HUNTING

Blossoming daffodils signal that spring has arrived. They also certify that the house-hunting season is open.

Couples with young children head for the happy hunting ground of Scarboro with dreams of three bedrooms and two baths dancing through their heads, and a copy of the Sunday real estate section clutched in their hands. Others, settled in the middle ages, are more grounded and now set their sights for exurbia and a larger house with more grounds — after figuring their equity and finding they can make the necessary down payment.

In the spring, everyone seems to be refeathering a nest in the greenward, but, should the proper house-hunting courtesy is observed, there's always a chance some feathers will get ruffled in the process.

Many of the houses on the market are still occupied, so when prospective buyers go to look, they should remember that in affect, they are guests, and, as such, should observe some of the proper courtesies.

Although owners naturally are anxious to sell, family life still goes on, and prospective buyers must realize that it's difficult to conduct business as usual with a horde of strangers tramping through on the hour.

SHOW CONSIDERATION

Out of compassion for homeowners, considerate prospective purchasers should try to:

Make an appointment to see the house instead of just walking in unannounced. Though anxious to see that dream-hunter, if he's soft - hearted, should make an appointment late enough in the morning so the householder can get things straightened up enough for it to be shown.

When sizing up a house, the prospective buyer is entitled to ask questions about construction, water supply, plumbing, sewage, etc. But he should refrain from handling furnishings or moving them around to inspect floors, etc., without asking permission.

If possible, small children should be left at home, or safely outside in the garden, to avoid damage to furnishings. Pets, of course, should never be taken on house-hunting jaunts, no matter how important their opinions may be.

If it's rainy, take the same precautions you would if you really owned the house. Leave rubbers on the porch and umbrellas in the stand. The role of prospective buyer doesn't mean one can tramp mud through a house, even though it looks as though a sale will be made.

In short, put yourself in the shoes of the seller and view the house as you would like others to view yours when it comes your turn to sell.

Successful Spring Fair Given by University Women

The nineteenth annual exhibition of Manly Macdonald paintings was enjoyed by a festive crowed on Saturday, May 2nd, at the University Women's Club Spring Fair in St. Michael's' auditorium.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. J. E. Pugh, president; Mrs. R. E. Barrett, vice-president, and by Mrs. A. S. Lewis, convener of the fair.

The auditorium was gaily decorted for the occasion, in summer motif, with fresh flowers, ferns, and potted plants highlighting the pool-side scene on the stage.

The main attraction was the art exhibit, arranged by Mrs. J. H. Bateman, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Walker and Mrs. R. L. Finlayson. On display were many charming paintings by Manly Macdonald, R.C.A., who, with Mrs. Macdonald, was present to discuss with visitors the interesting features of his canvases.

Mr. Macdonald, hailed as one of Canada's foremost colorists, often chooses the neighborhood of the Bay of Quinte as his subject and the locale of several of his works was familiar to most of the viewers. Among the local scenes to be enjoyed were the Bay of Quinte at different seasons of the year, the Salmon River, the Reach at Picton, and a variety of rustic farm scenes. A wood-cutter, vibrant with energy, and a young boy, fishing from a row-boat drew the attention of many of the viewers. Various views of the Don Valley also gained the admiration of the visitors, while two striking portraits—one of General Graham in bright crimson uniform and the other of the artist's grandson clad in tartan—demonstrated the versatility of the artist and proved particularly eye-catching.

Mr. Macdonald's generous donation of two paintings — a small one which was used as a prize and a larger one which was sold—will enable the University Women's Club to provide three $300 scholarships to girls of Bellevville and district who plan to enter university in the fall. Towards the end of the fair, Mr. Macdonald drew the lucky ticket for the small picture and Miss Grace Tucker became the proud owner of a beautiful painting of the Reach at Picton.

Picture committee consisted of Mrs. D. G. Burr and Mrs. J. E. Nelles, assisted by Mrs. J. S. Birchard, Mrs. R. W. Cass, Mrs. F. H. Bellisteil, Mrs. R. S. Burt and Mrs. H. W. Burns.

After enjoying the exhibit, visitors were invited into the tea room by Mrs. J. L. Acton and Miss M. Gibson. Here the summer motif was reflected in the attractive table centre-pieces. The tea room was capably convened by Mrs: R. W. Hurley and Mrs. J. Marta. Those who poured tea during the afternoon were Dr. L. B. Mathieson, Miss N. Merry, Mrs. P. T. Seibert, Mrs. G. E. Boyce, Miss J. Tickell, Miss H. Farley, Miss S. Mingay, Miss M. Young and Miss F. Dewey. The tea table was replenished by Mrs. P. Belton, Mrs. W. S. Babbitt and Mrs. F. B. Sheffield; and the tempting food was arranged by Mrs. R. E. Barrett, with the assistance of other club members.

A popular spot during the afternoon was the home-baking table, convened by Mrs. J. Beach and Mrs. P. T. Seibert.

Admissions to the Fair were looked after by Mrs. W. G. Pryor, assisted by Miss E. Panter, Miss K. Daly and Mrs. J. Boyd.

The decorating committee whose artistry and ingenuity provided such a pleasant atmosphere for the afternoon consisted of Mrs. K. Grant, Mrs. F. H. Bellisteil, Mrs. R. L. Finlayson, Mrs. R. A. Pringle, Mrs. J. McKibbon, Mrs. H. Morton, Miss E. Panter, Mrs. R. Kar and Mrs. R. G. Walsh.

The Club is grateful to Mr. J. Ritchie and his art students at B.C.I.V.S., and to the merchants who displayed posters, to radio station C.J.B.Q. and to the Ontario Intelligencer for their help in publicizing the Spring Fair. Special thanks of the Club go to Mr. Manly Macdonald who each year gives so generously of his time and talent, to make the Fair an outstanding success.

W.C.T.U. Stresses Harm Of Social Drinking

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held their regular monthly meeting recently with the theme based on "Cocktails."

A number of quotations were the topics for discussion, some of which were: "Abstinence assures a closer walk with God"; "Cocktails have entered the social and business life of our citizens to an alarming extent"; "A cocktail is all too often the first step to alcoholism as related by rehabilitated alcoholics, especially women"; "It is an easy road from taking a social drink to habitual drinking which leads to chronic alcoholism"; "Alluring" night clubs, intriguing cocktail lounges, bars with soft lighting and softer music are gaining popularity"; "Cocktails are served not only at parties said to be 'smart' but at funerals, before 'or after, to friends of the deseased, at business functions and at office parties. In business life alcoholic beverages have become a positive menace."

DANGER TO BUSINESS

The financial editor of a large city newspaper took occasion to warn of the danger to business life by serving alcoholic drinks and is quoted as saying: "It is a simple fact that the majority of men and women do not and never will grasp the principles of intelligent management. They watch the methods and conduct of their seniors and apparently successful associates; which in a sense means that business drinking is imposed particularly on young people."

"The truth is, as expressed by a majority and attested in by medical research, that drinks neither clear the air nor the mind. It is at such parties that many girls, especially, get their first drink. It becomes a habit and then an obsession and she will not acknowledge her condition as readily as the male. She makes excuses for her drinking, her health, her husband, her family or life in general. She is on the downward road which leads to degradation, ill health and probably—insanity. This is a condition the girl who took her first drink did not foresee."

FILMS IN SCHOOLS

The WCTU distributes films in the schools; also pamphlets and has essay and poster contests to impress abstinence on young people.

"There are 200,000 alcoholics in Canada and about 4,000 more are added every year. Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia have the highest rate and the lowest rate is in the Maritimes. They have fewer cocktail bars and liquor out-lets.

Plans were made for the advertising of the Consecon Children's Camp early in July; also for the attendance at the county convention of the WCTU to be held in Picton.

Mrs. Wells gave a paper on international affairs and Mrs. Hubbs closed with devotional based on the renewal of faith and hope.

Presbyterian Women to Hold Rally

MONTREAL (CP)—The largest women's conference ever held by the Presbyterian Church in Canada, scheduled for Montreal May 8-10, will celebrate a double anniversary.

It will be the 100th anniversary of the birth of organized Presbyterian women's work in Canada and the 50th birthday of the amalgamation of three groups into the Women's Missionary Society, Western Division.

The conference, at the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, will be attended by 1,000 women from across Canada. They will represent not only the Western Division—covering New Brunswick and all provinces to the Pacific Coast — but also the Eastern Division—Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Rev. Dr. Harry Lennox of Vancouver, moderator of the last general assembly, will be present. Speakers include Margaret Kennedy, missionary to India, who will give three main talks on the society's motto, The World for Christ, and Rev. Dr. Kenneth G. McMillan, general secretary of the Canadian Bible Society.

BORN IN MONTREAL

The three-day conference takes the Women's Missionary Society back to its birthplace. It was in Montreal in 1864 that a group, later known as the Woman's Missionary Society, was formed to help the church of Scotland in mission work among the French - speaking people.

In 1876 a second group, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, was founded in Toronto.

During Gold Rush days, the Atlin Nurse Committee was set up to send nurses to the Klondike. Its first hospital was a small cabin with a mud roof and sawdust floor and held four cots.

In 1903 it became the Women's Home Missionary Society, the last of the three groups that amalgamated in 1914 to become the Women's Missionary Society, Western Division.

To mark the double anniversary, the 45,000-member WMS has raised $38,000 for four special projects—a fellowship house in Winnipeg, a nurses' residence in Jobat, India, a Christian education building in Taipei, Formosa, and the Hsin Chu Bible School in Formosa.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

On Wednesday, April 29th Mrs. Clement French, 39 Alexander St., was at home to several relatives and close friends, on the occasion of her 90th birthday. She was the recipient of a number of cards and gifts, two birthday cakes and several gifts of flowers. A highlight of the occasion was a visit from her daughter-in-law, Mrs. G. W. French of Toronto, also a telephone call from her only granddaughter, Mrs. Don Richardson of Toronto. She also spoke to Mrs. Richardson a three children in turn. Although Mrs. French has been affected with arthritis for some time, she keeps up with the daily news and enjoys the visits of her many friends. Guests were present from Toronto, Kingston and Belleville.

No Need to Be Constantly Reminded of Past Folly

DEAR DORIS — I was surprised to read the answer you gave to "Happy Home," who complained about being reminded constantly that she had to get married. I think it most unworthy of you being a counsellor.

There is too much condoning of such marriages. It's dishonest. What do you think the children will think of such parents? The girl doesn't know what to say to her mother and she wants to forget it. She needs to remember how she hurt her mother, who I've no doubt wanted the best for her girl.

While "Happy Home" is happy, there are many that are unhappy — trust having gone from both sides. I would like to see this in your column? — SURPRISED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SURPRISED — Don't you think H.H. had heartaches enough? Didn't it take discipline for her and her husband to make a go of it? Would you suggest she be reminded once a month of her folly?

I agree that intimacy before marriage can lead to great unhappiness. If you read this column with any regularity you'll know that my advice to young people is to control physical appetites outside of marriage. (Incidentally, it is H.H.'s mother-in-law, not her mother, who keeps reminding her. Doesn't that make a difference?)

DEAR DORIS — I am planning a fall wedding with the bridesmaids in fall colors. What kind of flowers should they carry? I would prefer artificial ones.

I plan on wearing a white Bible. Would artificial red roses and dropping buds be satisfactory? — GUIDANCE NEEDED.

DEAR GUIDANCE — The bridesmaids should carry fresh autumn flowers which tone in with their gowns. Your own bouquet should be of fresh white flowers. I have never heard of anyone carrying artificial flowers at a wedding.

DEAR DORIS — I like this boy and he likes me but we both too shy to come right out and talk to each other when we see each other. Instead we write notes back and forth. Could please tell me how to break the ice between us? — JOAN

DEAR JOAN — I thought writing notes was a method of communication only used with deaf mutes. If you like to write in for the free leaflet, "Don't Be Shy," enclose and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, this would p some helpful ideas towards untying your tongue.

One example of such an obstacle is the "Buy American" Act which requires foreign bidders on federal contracts to submit prices 25 per cent lower than home suppliers if the foreign firms are to have any chance of winning the award. Other countries have similar laws, which the United States would also like to have discussed.

The preliminary haggling has already brought some progress. Agreement seems near on one of the major problems: How to cut duties on a product when the rate in one country is considerably higher than in others.

STEP NEARER SOLUTION

A formula is being worked out to handle these disparities. The higher tariff, usually but not always American, is to be cut more deeply than the lower tariff—but not unless the higher rate is really interfering with trade. Just what constitutes interference is disputed.

A glimmer of light is also visible on a basic problem of the trade in major foods: Grain, meat and dairy products. The problem from the American viewpoint is how to make sure that the traditional exporting countries—the chief ones are the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—are not edged out of their old markets in Western Europe by increased local production.

The United States wants to stabilize its sales by pushing down the high West German grain price. If the West German price is lowered, there will be less temptation for the French farmer to increase his own production and put pressure on the Common Market to keep out imports. But there is heavy political opposition to a reduction of the grain price in Germany, the country that takes most imports.

As an alternative, the United States would welcome guarantees from the Common Market to take fixed quantities of grain imports. This is all right with the West Germans, but the other Common Market countries demur.

A compromise may be in the making, along these lines:

The West Germans would agree to reduce their grain price some, but not until 1966. At the same time the Common Market would promise to take steps against rising home production if imports drop below fixed point. In return, the United States and other exporters would undertake to hold down their surpluses.

Such a compromise could open the way to big international agreements for stabilizing trade in meat and dairy products as well as grain. Their prices depend closely on the cost of feed.

One group of nations almost certain to benefit from the Kennedy round are the underdeveloped countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America. There if general agreement to give their industries the benefit of tariff reductions, without requiring them to open their gates fully to products from the industrialized countries.

LEAVE HOSPITAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—A mother and her newborn baby who received four prebirth blood transfusions have been released from hospital, one of her doctors said Sunday. Dr. Rhinehart Friesen said Mrs. Melvin Taylor is expected to return to her farm home at Druid, Sask., with the baby. He said the child—whose life was saved by the rare transfusion procedure — will develop normally.

HAMILTON (CP)—The Spec "He w tator says a man who worked stricted. two years in Joseph Brant Hos- Dr. Bu pital as a doctor and who has sisted at been accused of being an impostor may have worked as an ambulance attendant and factory sweeper b ing to the hospital in adjacent Burlington.

The paper says Paul Couture of Hamilton said Saturday in an interview the man who identified himself as Andre Couture is his brother, Adrien.

Paul Couture is quoted as saying Adrien and his wife arrived in Hamilton in 1960, in poor circumstances and unable to pay rent. Paul Couture said his brother worked at a casting company here as a cleaner and was an ambulance attendant in Oakville.

"Then one day he came home with a diploma and said he was a doctor. I was dumbfounded."

The College of Physicians and Surgeons in Toronto has said that the Dr. Andre Couture, 34, who worked as an Interne in Brant Hospital was "an impostor."

The only MD of that name in the Canadian Medical Directory graduated from Laval in 1958 and now practises in Chicoutimi, Que.

IS A COUBIN

In Hamilton, Paul Couture said the Chicoutimi doctor is the cousin of himself and Adrien.

In Hawkesbury, near Ottawa, the man who worked at the Brant Hospital said Friday night of the imposter charge: "It's the first time I've heard about it.

"I don't know what they're talking about. I am coming back to Burlington to see what it's all about. I plan to leave here during the weekend."

Paul Couture said the Quebec City family broke up 19 years ago when his mother died.

Dr. D. C. R. Burrows, chief of the Joseph Brant x-ray department, said doctors at the hospital felt sorry for Dr. Couture and felt they should teach him as much as possible so he could pass the medical council examinations.

"Dr. Couture did no more at the hospital than would a medical student," he added.

WAS RESPONSIBLE

"He wasn't given as much responsibility as other interns have been," Dr. Burrows said.

venting partisan squabbling from putting Brazil back to the pre-revolution level.

Many Brazilians, imbued with the idea that the military's place is in the background, took a dim view of the armed forces' postrevolutionary action, although they said firm measures were needed.

Castello Branco, a highly respected military man who rose from private to supreme command of his nation's armed forces, has 21 months to clean house on his own terms.

He has picked a team of basically nonpartisan specialists as cabinet ministers. They have promised to start the basic reforms, including land reform, that Goulart talked about.

Elections next year will pick Castello Branco's successor.

Campaigning for the presidency, already under way when the revolution came, has halted under a tacit agreement to give the new regime a breathing spell.

Ontario Chamber to Centre Attention on Keeping Closer Tabs on Govts. and Laws

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario Chamber of Commerce opens its annual policy soul-searching today, with much of the attention centring on the question of keeping closer tabs on governments and their laws.

More than 100 pages of policy recommendations are to be examined by the 300 delegates at the three-day meeting, with some of the key ones expressing concern about possible abuses by authorities of civil and legal rights.

One recommendation, presented by the Windsor chamber, would ask the Ontario government to establish an "ombudsman" who would investigate peoples' complaints against government actions.

Another, from the Oakville chamber, asks that the provincial government make more use of committees to get fuller airing of proposed legislation.

Laws can be pushed through quickly before members of the legislature and interested people can study them properly, the recommendation says. Such a practice could lead to damaging legislation.

HAVE RESPONSIBILITY

At the meeting's business session Sunday night, delegates were told community chambers of commerce have a responsibility to help create good laws and defeat poor ones.

Ian Atherton, manager of the Ontario body, said no board of trade or chamber "can be said to be filling its true role of service to the community unless it takes an active and continuing interest in the legislation not only of its town, but of its province and its country."

"I'm afraid the local chamber is all too often associated in the public mind as being simply a tourist information bureau, or simply a group dedicated to promoting local scenic wonders or predicting weather for the office picnic."

He urged the delegates to set up public affairs committees in their communities to examine local, provincial and national issues.

A bid to amend the chamber's bylaws to permit its six-man executive committee to issue policy statements if the full board of directors cannot meet was challenged from the floor.

ACCEPT PROPOSAL

Mr. Speigal, president of the Sudbury and district chamber, suggested that if committee policy were challenged by any chamber, the members of the board of directors should be polled by phone or telegraph to come up with a comprehensive opinion. His proposal was accepted.

Among the topics expected to be considered is the development of a closer relationship with La Chambre de Commerce de la Province de Quebec.

Other major proposals include spelling out in dollars the amount charged by credit companies; increased efforts by chamber members to try to ensure that tourist facilities meet more than minimum provincial standards; investigation of the use of voting machines as in the United States; stiffer penalties for dangerous driving, and amending the Liquor Licence Act to permit the issuing of banquet permits in dry areas.

"He wasn't given as much responsibility as other interns have been," Dr. Burrows said.

Dr. Burrows said the man assisted at operations at the hospital but did no surgery on his own.

Paul Couture said he lost track of his brother for many years and knew nothing of his educational background. He estimated Adrien's age as 35.

Mr. Couture visited his brother while he was working at the Joseph Brant Hospital.

"I heard people say he was a good doctor, and apparently he saved the life of a man who had a heart attack."

The College of Physicians and Surgeons, which licenses medical men in the province, investigated Dr. Couture of Burlington after a complaint had been filed by Dr. H. R. McDonald of Kilbride. The intern had taken over Dr. McDonald's practice while the veteran physician spent a holiday in Florida.

Dr. McDonald said he was informed by the college this week that Couture was "an impostor," impersonating a doctor in

Braves' Pitchers

'Move Over, Warren'

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shove over, Warren Spahn. You may not be Milwaukee Braves' only pitcher after all.

Pitched to third place in the National League standings, manager Bobby Bragan's club today can look back on three complete-game pitching victories in the last four starts.

Sunday's 1-0 two-hit masterpiece by Hank Aguirre against the Phillies followed Bob Sadowski's five - hitter against Philadelphia and Tony Cloninger's one-hitter against the Pirates.

The only loss in the four game stretch was charged to a 43-year-old southpaw on the staff of youngsters. Fellow named Spahn.

Fischer, sprung from the bullpen, turned in his third straight route - going performance, retiring the last 16 batters he faced. The 24-year-old right-hander also produced the only run of the game in the second inning.

ORDERS PASS

Joe Torre had doubled and moved to third on a fly ball. With two out and a 3-0 count on Dennis Menke, Phillie manager Gene Mauch ordered an intentional walk.

Fisher spoiled the strategy with a clean single up the middle and then made the run stand up. He had to because it was all the Braves could manage off Art Mahaffey, who hurled a four-hitter but wound up a loser.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind to whip St. Louis Cardinals 12-8, San Francisco Giants topped Los Angeles Dodgers 6 - 3, Houston Colts beat Chicago Cubs 5-3 and Cincinnati Reds swept a doubleheader from New York Mets 6-5 and 6-3.

In Saturday's games, the Braves hammered the Phillies 11-3, the Mets blanked the Reds 3 - 0, Pittsburgh shaded the Cards 5-4, Chicago clobbered Houston 9-0 and the Giants outlasted the Dodgers 5-4 in 12 innings.

SHUT THE DOOR

Fischer surrendered single to Tony Gonzales in the second and John Herrnstein in the fourth Sunday before shutting the door. He struck out four and walked two. It was the first major league shutout for the $50,000 bonus baby.

Willie Stargell was the Bucs' gun for the Pirates, driving in five runs with a home run and by a single. The Cards raced to a 6-3 lead after Stargell's three-run homer in the first.

Hill Rise, starting as a 7-to-5 favorite with Northern Dancer, a 3-to-1 second choice, stayed close to the eventual winner in the early going but was forced to swing wide to catch the Canadian colt when he made his move.

Hartack, a tough little jockey who had won his first two derbies on Iron Liege in 1957 and Venetian Way in 1960, paid a handsome tribute to his little mount:

"He's all blood and guts and he tries hard."

Northern Dancer returned $8.80 to bettors.

Noses Out Leo Labelle

Geo. MacDonald 'Mr. Bowling'

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Kingston's top five-pin bowler, George MacDonald, watched a determined bid by Belleville's Leo Labelle fall short of the mark here Saturday, evening in the 13th annual "Mr. Bowling" tournament.

MacDonald, who rolled his ten games Friday night and chalked up an outstanding 2789 total, topped a field of 68 of the area's finest keglers to collect the tourney's top prizes.

Leo Labelle wound up with a 2862, good for second place money. A headpin and blow in the tenth frames of the eighth game, leaving him with a 205 single, put the pressure on Labelle. He responded with a 274 in the ninth game but, needing 330 in the final game to catch MacDonald, managed only 232, well short of the mark.

MacDonald carries a 251 average into the top leagues this season and collects trophies left and right. In his ten games here, the popular veteran bowler scored 266, 331, 275, 285, 191, 299, 207, 303, 273, and 263.

Labelle got away to a fast start with 294, 341, 368 and 273 games, followed by 190, 214, 301, 205, 274 and 232. At the half-way mark Labelle had a 1466 total compared to MacDonald's 1444.

Jack Canning and Harry Ridley tied for third spot, with 2515, followed by Joe Allan with 2500. Canning had opened the tourney with a bang by rolling games of 339 and 302. Allan hit an even 300 in his final game to climb into fifth place. Bill Fagan, 2477, Wally Dever 2433, Art Lockwood 2429, Glen Hamilton 2424 and George Heeley 2378, also made the top-ten list, giving them a split of the prize money.

Flight bags were presented to the next eight high scorers. They were: Cec. Hardwick 2363, Dick Young 2362, Jim Elliott 2359, Harry Livingston 2356, Ernie Ormshaw 2357, Jim Begley 2353, Charlie Batty 2347 and Fred Clark 2338.

George Heeley, of Cobourg rolled a brilliant 403 single on Friday night and that stood up to earn him the tournament's high single award.

Prizes also went to high singles in each flight, and the competition was tough. 300 or better scores were: G. Heeley 403, Fred Clarke 322, 302, G. MacDonald 331, 375, 303, L. Labelle 341, 368, 301, Graham Seeley 313, Jake Hellewell 321, Cec. Hardwick 319, Harry Lamoreux 303, Harry Ridley 330, Harry Livingston 310, Jim Taylor 337, Ernie Ormshaw 348, Roy Southworth 326, Art Lockwood 353, Murray Price 313, Wally Dever 382, Bill Fagan 315, Charlie Batty 335, Jim Begley 312, 321, Jack Canning 339, 302, Harry Derushie 310, Dick Young 303, Joe Allan 300, Ken Kiser 314, 321, Ron Saylor 327, Earl MacDonald-346, Leo St. Louis 323.

Jim McKenzie, two-time winner including 1963, finished out of the running and was master of ceremonies for the post tournament presentations, Mr. Doug Miller, B.P.A.O. director of Toronto, doled out the prizes and trophies. Mr. Gerry O'Connor made his annual presentation of the perpetual wrist watch to the new "Mr. Bowling" for 1964.

Jackie Wardhaugh Top Winner

Fish, Game Club Derby

Jack Wardhaugh whose eleven-pound pickerel won him third prize in the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce Fish and Game Derby also took first prize in the Belleville Fish and Game Club Derby.

Second prize went to John Smith, 5 Willard Street who hooked a 7¼ pound fish on a "crocodile".

Ralph Smith of R.R. 1 Belleville took third money with a 6¾ pound fish.

Several other entries were submitted at varying weights.

The winning Wardhaugh fish weighed a little over twelve pounds when taken from the water but shrinkage from delay in weighing reduced the official twelve to eleven pounds.

It was caught about six o'clock Saturday morning off the mouth of the Moira River.

The fish were weighed at Bob Blaind's Sports Store, a mecca for fishing buffs over the weekend.

The prizes will be presented to the winners at the May meeting of the Fish and Game Club scheduled for the 19th.

B and D Softball Still Uncertain

The troubled waters of the Belleville and District Softball League bubbled over the top once again here yesterday and left the loop very close to the sinking point.

Wayne Drake, manager of Trenton Commercial Printers, arrived late for yesterday's meeting and told those present, "I'm afraid we are not going to be able to field a team".

Four clubs, Trenton, Trudeau Motors, Belleville Juniors and Tweed Lombanks had filed their entry fees more than a week ago and Sunday's meeting was called "just to iron out a few minor problems" and to approve a schedule.

Drake said he was late for the meeting because a Trenton practice had been called and he had waited to see how many players turned out. He said there were exactly five — and that was the reason for the team's doubtful status.

The announcement rocked other team representatives and Jack Fisher, of Tweed, said that if Trenton did not have a club it was possible that Tweed would also be out. "I doubt if our sponsor (Wally Moffat, of Lombanks) will want to come in a three-team league and right now this group does not seem too stable."

The two Belleville clubs, Trudeaus and the Juniors apparently intend to operate, league or not and later enter the OASA playdowns. Both teams offered to help out the Trenton team by steering some players that way.

The Trenton manager secured names of a number of players from Belleville and the area who he intends to contact within the next few days. "We certainly don't want to fold but unless we get more than five players out only one of which is a pitcher, we have no alternative," he said.

Another decision has been called for Wednesday night, Club Canara, at seven o'clock South Trenton and Tweed have promised to have the matter settled one way or the other by then.

The clubs went ahead with other business at hand, approving a four-team, 16-game schedule which would open on Monday, May 18 and close on July 18. This would give each club nine home and nine away games.

League secretary Cliff Belch informed the clubs that a tournament team, the California Cuties, would be available for games in his district on June 15, 16, 17. The Juniors and Trudeaus felt that they might arrange for a game against the Cuties in Belleville on one of those dates.

But the four mentioned clubs Trudeaus, Juniors, Tweed and Trenton — would be played on Tuesday, Tweed's on Wednesdays, Belleville on Thursdays and Trenton's either Saturday or Monday nights.

King of the Hill

Ron Elliott retained his "King of the Hill" crown Saturday by turning back challenger Leo Labelle. Games bowled in the "Mr. Bowling" tournament were counted this week.

Labelle rolled 294, 341, 368, 273 and 190 to qualify with a big 1466 score. Jack Canning was second with 1396 followed by Trenton's Ormshaw with 1263.

Elliott rolled games of 302, 329 and 235 for a neat 856 five-game total to keep his title in the challenge match.

The weekly "Beat Your Average" contest was not held but will resume next weekend.

The Belleville senior baseball "corpse" came back to life over the weekend with a little prodding from some fellows who want to play ball and with the help of one of the city's top sponsors.

Moe Hunter, spokesman for the players, said this morning that Gerry Joyce, of Joyce Realty, is donating a recondi-tioned set of uniforms to get the ball moving. Several other donations have also been made to the team.

"Our most urgent need right now is in the executive field," Hunter said. "We hope to complete arrangements for a meeting in the next few days but we certainly hope to receive some help in handling the club's business, management, financial matters, etc.

"We are holding another practice on Tuesday night at the Fairgrounds at six o'clock and would like to invite any and all interested parties to attend. If enough people turn out perhaps we can elect a team executive," Hunter added.

Hunter said that anyone wishing to help out in any manner is invited to contact him in the meantime.

Plans are for the Belleville club, likely to be called "Loyce Realty," unless a full-time sponsor shows up, to play in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's senior division.

The senior division hopes to operate with two divisions, likely playing an interlocking schedule.

Belleville would be in the eastern grouping, along with Brockville, Kingston and possibly Cannifton, the latter on a part-time or exhibition basis.

Oshawa, Port Hope, Ajax and Little Britain, the last-named also on part-time or exhibition basis, would form the western division.

While nothing definite has been decided yet concerning entries, a schedule and — fourth, these matters will likely be settled this week.

Meanwhile, half a dozen of last year's Kenmor club and the same number of new faces turned out to Sunday's workout here.

Larry Mavety, Moe Hunter, Larry Soule, Pat Asselstine, Rick Locke and Pete Weston represented the old Kenmor squad. Newcomers to the picture were Stu Mulhead, Bobby Moon, Mike Chatland, Dan Leitner, Bill Lang and Dick Hurst.

Hunter said he expected to see several more ex-Kenmors out this week although three or four of the fellows say they are retiring.

"I don't think we will have any trouble getting a good club together if we can secure the assistance of some of the city's older, experienced baseball men in executive positions," Hunter concluded.

HOMER SHORTSTOP

When prominent baseball player Homer Shortstop was invited to run for office there was little doubt that he would win. "After all," he boasts "I'm used to winning. I'm also used to travelling in comfort. That's why all our teams will go Canadian National. Players who arrive relaxed usually win. And CN's Group Travel Plans save us money, too!" he boasted. "As much as 33⅓% when 60 club members go by CN. They travel together in a roomy, air-conditioned CN Charter Coach or sleepers. That means that last-minute plays can be discussed en route. Smaller squads go CN's Party Fare Plan and still save . . . as much as 20%, even over the rock-bottom Red 'Bargain' and White 'Economy' Fares. Financially speaking, Canadian Nationals economical Group Travel Plans keep you right in the ball park!"

Crackers Drop Two To Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Business remains as usual at the top and bottom of the International League standings. Syracuse Chiefs keep on winning and Atlanta Crackers keep on losing.

The Chiefs, who boast a gaudy .875 mark from seven victories in eight starts, have a six-game streak going with a three-game weekend sweep at the expense of Columbus Jets, winning 4-0 Saturday and taking Sunday's twin bill 4-0 and 8-4.

It was almost the same story in reverse for the Crackers, who haven't hit the win column yet in eight tries. A rainout saved them Saturday but they dropped Sunday's doubleheader to Toronto Maple Leafs 7-4 and 2-1, the second game going 10 innings.

Rochester Red Wings also had an undefeated weekend, edging Richmond Virginians 7-6 in 12 innings Saturday night and following up with 8-1 and 2-1 victories Sunday.

Hoosiers were divided between Buffalo and Jacksonville following a Saturday postponement, the Suns winning the first game 2-1 and the Bisons taking the second 8-4.

OYLER INJURED

Jack Hamilton, unbeaten in three tries, blanked Columbus with a two-hitter in Sunday's first game and the Chiefs belted three home runs, including back-to-back efforts by Bill Roman and Jim Northrup, to win the second. They lost short stop Ray Oyler for at least a week in the opener when he was hit near the ear by a pitched ball. X-rays showed no fracture.

Braves' Pitchers Win 3

'Move Over, Warren'

By HAL ROCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shove over, Warren Spahn. You may not be Milwaukee Braves' only pitcher after all.

Perched in third place in the National League standings, manager Bobby Bragan's club today can look back on three complete-game pitching victories in the last four starts.

Sunday's 1-0 two-hit masterpiece by Hank Fischer against the Phillies followed Bob Sadowski's five - hitter against Philadelphia and Tony Cloninger's one-hitter against the Pirates.

Fischer, sprung from the bullpen, turned in his third straight route - going performance, retiring the last 16 batters he faced. The 24-year-old right-hander also produced the only run of the game in the second inning.

ORDERS PASS

Joe Torre had doubled and moved to third on a fly ball. With two out and a 2-0 count on Dennis Menke, Phillie manager Gene Mauch ordered an intentional walk.

Fisher upended the strategy with a clean single up the middle and then made the run stand up. He had to because it was all the Braves could manage off Art Mahaffey, who hurled a four-hitter but wound up a loser.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind to whip St. Louis Cardinals 13-8, San Francisco Giants topped Los Angeles Dodgers 6 - 3, Houston Colts beat Chicago Cubs 5-3 and Cincinnati Reds swept a doubleheader from New York Mets 8-5 and 6-3.

In Saturday's games, the Braves hammered the Phillies 11-2, the Mets blanked the Reds 3 - 0, Pittsburgh shaded the Cards 5-4, Chicago clobbered Houston 9-0 and the Giants outslugged the Dodgers 5-4 in 13 innings.

SHUT THE DOOR

Fischer surrendered singles to Tony Gonzales in the second and John Herrnstein in the fourth Sunday before shutting the door. He struck out four and walked two. It was the first major league shutout for the $50,000 bonus baby.

Willie Stargell was the big gun for the Pirates, driving in five runs with a home run and a single. The Cards raced to an 8-3 lead after Stargell's three-run homer in the first.

But Pittsburgh came back with five in the fifth including rookie Gene Alley's first major league homer. The Pirates went ahead to stay in the sixth with Alley's single igniting a two-run rally.

Juan Marichal had a shaky start before settling down and turning in his 10th straight victory for the Giants.

WILLIE HITS .459

Willie Mays socked a single and his ninth homer raising his league-leading batting average to .459. Willie Davis had a two-run homer for the Dodgers.

Jim Wynn's two-run homer in the sixth carried Houston to victory, the first for Hal (Skinny) Brown after the two losses. Jim Beauchamp also homered for the Colts.

The Reds came from behind in both end act their double victory over the Mets. Marty Keough's three - run pinch homer narrowed a 5-1 Met lead in the first game before Hal Smith's two-run pinch single won it.

In the nightcap, Vada Pinson's two-run double in the seventh delivered the deciding runs.

Wins ANAF Crib Tourney

The tournament was held on Saturday at the club with sixteen entries taking part.

Branch president Jack Boyle made the presentation immediately following the tourney.

He paid tribute to sports chairman Hank Ford and his committee Bill Salter and Jack Fitzgerald for the arrangement of the tournament.

Tournaments for the trophy will be held from time to time.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

The Bay of Quinte Trap and Gun League held the first of it's inter-club shoots over the weekend with Belleville's Quinte club capturing top honors.

The Belleville club chalked up a total of 234 in the 50-target competition, followed closely by Picton with 227. Napanee was in third place with 210, Campbellford fourth with 207 and Madoc fifth and last with 191.

The next league shoot has been scheduled for Sunday, May 24 at the Picton club.

Meanwhile, the Quinte Trap and Gun Club shooters racked up some fine scores in their regular shoot Sunday morning. Denny Rosatte and Cy Gardner each collected a perfect 25 score.

Geo. MacDonald 'Mr. Bowling'

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Kingston's top five-pin bowler, George MacDonald, watched a determined bid by Belleville's Leo Labelle fall short of the mark here Saturday evening in the 13th annual "Mr. Bowling" tournament.

MacDonald, who rolled his ten games Friday night and chalked up an outstanding 2789 total, topped a field of 68 of the area's finest keglers to collect the tourney's top prizes.

Leo Labelle wound up with a 2662, good for second place money. A headpin and blow in the tenth frame of the eighth game, leaving him with a 205 single, put the pressure on Labelle, who responded with a 274 in the ninth game but, needing 330 in the final game to catch MacDonald, managed only 232, well short of the mark.

MacDonald carries a 251 average in Kingston's top leagues this season and collects trophies left and right. In his ten games here, the popular veteran bowler scored 266, 331, 275, 285, 191, 299, 207, 303, 273, and 263.

Labelle got away to a fast start with 294, 341, 268 and 273 games, followed by 190, 214, 301, 205, 276 and 232. At the half-way mark Labelle had a 1466 total compared to MacDonald's 1444.

Jack Canning and Harry Ridley tied for third spot, with 2515, followed by Joe Allan with 2500. Canning had opened the tourney with a bang by rolling games of 339 and 302. Allan hit an even 300 in his final game to climb into fifth place. Bill Fagan, 2477, Wally Dever 2438, Art Lockwood 2425, Glen Hamilton 2424 and George Heeley 2378, also made the top-ten list, giving them a split of the prize money.

Flight bags were presented to the next eight high scorers. They were: Cec. Hardwick 2363, Dick Young 2362, Jim Elliott 2309, Harry Livingston 2358, Ernie Ormshaw 2357, Jim Begley 2353, Charlie Batty 2347 and Fred Clark 2338.

George Heeley, of Cobourg, rolled a brilliant 403 single on Friday night and that stood up to earn him the tournament's high single award.

Prizes also went to high singles in each line, and the competition was tough. 300 or better scores were: G. Heeley 403, Fred Clarke 322, 302, G. Mercer 301, Hardwick 319, Harry Landymore 303, Harry Ridley 330, Harry Livingston 310, Jim Taylor 337, Ernie Ormshaw 348, Roy Southworth 326, Art Lockwood 333, Murray Price 313, Wally Dever 382, Bill Fagan 315, Charlie Batty 335, Jim Begley 317, 321, Jack Canning 339, 302, Harry Dorsaille 319, Dick Young 303, Joe Allan 300, Bob Laser 314, 321, Ron Saylor 327, Earl MacDonald 346, Leo St. Louis 323.

Jim McKenzie, two-time winner including 1963, finished out of the running and was master of ceremonies for the post tournament presentations, Mr. Doug Miller, B.P.A.O. director of Toronto, doled out the prizes and trophies. Mr. Gerry O'Connor made his annual presentation of a beautiful wrist watch to the new "Mr. Bowling" for 1964.

Jackie Wardhaugh Top Winner

Fish, Game Club Derby

Jack Wardhaugh whose eleven-pound pickerel won him third prize in the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce Pickerel Derby also took third prize in the Belleville Fish and Game Club Derby.

Second prize went to John Smith, 11 Willard Street who hooked a 7½ pound fish on a "crocodile".

Ralph Smith of R.R. 1 Belleville took third money with a 6¾ pound fish.

Several other entries were submitted at varying weights.

The winning Wardhaugh fish weighed a little over twelve pounds when taken from the water but shrinkage from delay in weighing reduced the official twelve to eleven pounds.

It was caught about six o'clock Saturday morning off the mouth of the Moira River.

The fish were weighed at Bob Blaind's Sports Shop a mecca for fishing buffs over the weekend.

The prizes will be presented to the winners at the May meeting of the Fish and Game Club scheduled for the 19th.

Winnipeg Grabs 2-0 Cup Lead

By BOB PARKINS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons, breaking fast and checking the length of the ice, overwhelmed Woodstock Athletics 7-1 Sunday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final.

Looking as impressive as they did Friday in their 5-0 rout of Woodstock, the Maroons jumped to a 3-0 lead after the first period, battled scorelessly through the second and then exploded for four goals in the third period.

The Woodstock goal, scored by Tommy Wilson, at 18:26 of the third period, stopped Winnipeg goaltender Don Collins' shutout streak at 116 minutes and 26 seconds.

Maroons spread their scoring evenly among Bernie Grebinsky, Aggie Kukulowicz, Lou Joyal, Al Johnson, Bill Johnson, Ron Farnfield and Murray Couch.

In a game marred by displays of temper, referee Bill Roberts of Montreal handed out 21 penalties, 12 to the Maroons. Woodstock's Art Sullivan drew a spearing major, and Grebinsky and Ron Hergott of the Athletics each got misconducts.

"We've got to start hitting the net," Woodstock playing-coach Ted Power said after the game.

"Our shots just aren't getting through the defence to the net. Their defencemen are making more stops than the goaltender, and how are we going to score if we can't find that net?"

With that, Power scheduled a practice for today, promising "We'll work on shooting, you can count on that. We're not quitting yet."

Power still felt the large Winnipeg ice surface was crippling his own defence.

"That's no alibi," he added hastily. "But we're not using the ice available inside our own blueline, and their forwards are working around too easily."

He said he plans no lineup changes, although "we might shuffle lines some more."

Power had brought Jack McIntyre, former National Hockey League veteran who was a defence standout in the Eastern final, to the forward line.

AT THE PARK — Academy Award Best Supporting Actress Margaret Rutherford listens intently as Charles Tingwell questions Flora Robson in this scene from "Murder at the Gallop," opening tonight at the Park Theatre. Agatha Goldwyn Mayer's new Agatha Christie mystery-thriller. Miss Rutherford again is seen as the intrepid amateur sleuth, Miss Marple. Robert Morley is also starred. On the same program Margaret Rutherford also stars in "Murder She Said", with Arthur Kennedy and James Robertson Justice. Complete shows are at 7.00 p.m. and 8.50 p.m.

Champions Unimpressive

Marlies Whip Oil Kings 5-2 In Opener

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—The opening of what promised to be the best Memorial Cup final in many a year, turned out to be a little disappointing for Edmonton Oil Kings.

The defending champions, expected to give the hard-rock Toronto Marlboros their toughest battle this season, were unimpressive in dropping the first game of the best-of-seven series 5-2.

The visitors, who neither match Toronto in size nor speed, were outplayed, outhustled and outchecked throughout the spirited game which saw 16 penalties called by referee Frank Dalgneault of Montreal. Ten were against Marlboros.

Oil King coach Buster Bray, shaw expressed disappointment in his club's showing following the game.

"We can play better hockey than you saw out there and we'll just have to if we want to beat the Marlboros," he said.

"I am not taking anything away from the Marlboros. They are a good club. But I know we are capable of much better hockey than we put out today."

Toronto coach Jim Gregory, pleased with his team's effort, especially the penalty - killing turned in by Barry Watson, Nick Harbaruk, Andre Champaign and Brit Selby, said:

"This was the first time I've seen them (the Oil Kings) play, but from what I've heard and what I saw today I know they can play much better than they did."

WEREN'T SHOOTING

"The reason we lost was quite obvious," said Brayshaw. "We just weren't shooting enough. Our boys were trying to make the pretty plays and as a result they blew a number of scoring chances."

Top National Hockey League prospect Ron Ellis paced the Toronto attack, firing two goals. Former Olympic stars Rod Seiling and Gary Dineen had one each as did Champagne.

Forward Reg Taschuk, who turned in a strong two-way performance for the visitors, scored both Edmonton goals.

Much of the talk before and after the game centred around 17-year-old Fran Huck, an 88-goal centre with Regina Pats of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, picked up by the Kings for this series.

Huck appeared to have trouble fitting in with the Edmonton style of play, although he did engineer a number of rushes displaying amazing speed.

"This kid has a lot of guts," said Brayshaw. "He carried the whole Regina team all season—a sort of lone wolf. With Regina he had no one to pass to him and had to make all the plays himself. He's only been with us a week but he's learning our style."

Oil Kings didn't appear too awed by the size of the Marlboros, although they did take a few solid checks, especially in the third period. Their downfall seemed to be their constant passing when more shooting might have turned the tide.

The second game is slated Tuesday with the third and fourth Thursday and Saturday respectively. The fifth, if necessary, will be played Sunday, and the teams will then move to London, Ont., for any remaining games.

'Made in America' Show Dies After 4 Performances

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Made in America, the CBS panel show that tried to substitute the sight of milliosaires for an amusing game died Sunday night as it had lived: Ingloriously.

It's demise after four performances made it runner up for the season's shortest-lived show. ABC's 100 Grand was removed after three performances — or was it two?

CBS proposes to finish out the season with another hard-luck show called Brenner, about a father and son who are policemen.

NBC's Incident on Wilson Street Sunday night was an interesting effort to show sensitive, concerned teachers attempting to help Grade 5 and 6 children living in a decaying Brooklyn neighborhood. Camera crews worked with a new teacher, her colleagues and her students for a month.

While network radio is excited about covering interviews and conversation instead of music and news, the lady who generally is credited with the first radio interview show celebrates her 30th anniversary in broadcasting today.

Mary Margaret McBride, who retired from network radio several years ago, now treats broadcasting as a hobby, doing three fully sponsored programs a week from her home.

Gina Taking Whirl of Night Spots With Glenn Ford

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I'm big girl," says Gina Lollobrigida. "After 15 years of marriage, I should be able to travel by myself."

The Italian beauty is here making a movie with Rock Hudson, Strange Bedfellows. Her husband, Yugoslav-born Dr. Drago Milko Skofic, is in Rome attending to his publishing business. Their divergence started tongues to wag, especially since she has been getting a whirl of the Hollywood night spots with Glenn Ford.

Gina couldn't care less about such talk.

"What am I supposed to do—go out alone?" she asked. "That would be even worse. I wouldn't think of going out with other women."

The thought of staying home in her luxurious Beverly Hills hacienda doesn't appeal to her, either. She has been taking lessons in such exotic dances as the watusi for her field trips into the local night life. Name is Dolce Vita was never like this, she says.

"I have never seen such wild people as in some of the night clubs in Hollywood," she commented.

She has had frequent dinner parties in her honor. This is a accomplisment, she remarked, also a hazard.

"So many names!" she groaned. "It's hard enough to learn names in your own language, but in English, too I

SOMETIMES "GOOF"

"I do the best I can, but sometimes I—how do you say it?—goof. I meet someone who says, 'you don't remember me, do you?' When I confess I don't he says, 'I gave a dinner party for 60 people in your honor.'

"So I say to the next person I meet: 'I think I know you from somewhere.' And he answers, 'no, I never met you.' It is very unnerving."

Gina's enthusiasm for working here might be surprising in light of her previous experience.

Her first Hollywood film was Never So Few, a lackluster adventure epic with Frank Sinatra.

"I did it mainly to prove to Hollywood that I could work here in spite of Howard Hughes," she said. "I once signed an agreement with him, and he kept me working in Hollywood for seven years without paying me a cent. Even after the contract was over, he made MGM pay him $50,000 to use me in Never So Few. And later MGM paid him $75,000 so he could do Go Naked in the World."

director.

Through the collective bargaining legislation, the association will seek:

—The right of the association to bargain collectively with employers on all matters involving salaries and other working conditions;

—The obligation by law on the part of employers of registered nurses to bargain collectively in good faith with representatives of the association;

—The right of either party to apply for assistance from a government conciliation officer or independent mediator;

—The right of either party, as a final resort, to obtain final and binding arbitration of matters in dispute, by an impartial third party or threepart board;

— Legal obligation of both parties to be bound by the results of these negotiations.

The delegates also approved a resolution to allow directors to consider an increase in annual fees. The increase over the present $20 would be proportionate to costs incurred in negotiations for collective bargaining.

WANT RECRUITING

They also voted for a cohesive effort to recruit new members for the association with a goal of getting between 85 and 90 per cent of Ontario's nurses to join.

Among other resolutions, delegates voted for salary increases for private duty nurses to $20 from $17 for a consecutive eight-hour shift.

If the association is successful in getting legislation for collective bargaining, this would have to be accepted by the employers.

Rinso Beamish of Kitchener, a past president of the association, criticized the group for "more concerned with dollars and cents than with the philosophy of nursing and preparation for service in the community."

The student nurse must not be indoctrinated into thinking and specialising in one branch for five days a week, from nine to five, she said.

"The student must realize that nursing is a young profession, and to promote it, we have to think of our moral obligation to our country."

and humiliating position, reluctant and passive spectators in a civil war," he said.

The labor leader called for the dismantling of road blocks and gun emplacements on the island, starting with those in residential areas.

"Secondly, we should take the leaders of the two Cypriot communities at their word and insist on the demilitarization of irregular forces. First step in favor of the ultimatum it should be laid down that no one other than a member of the regular forces or uniformed police, should be allowed to carry arms," he said.

Win Davis Cup Round

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Italy, Germany and Spain advanced impressively into the second round of the European zone Davis Cup tennis competition Sunday while Ireland won all those contest from Switzerland and created a doubtful privilege of meeting favored Britain.

Italy, rated a strong contender for Britain's European zone honors, split its last two singles matches with Israel for a 4-1 victory at Bari, Italy, after having clinched the series Saturday.

Germany called on a pair of substitute singles players to complete a 5-0 sweep against Belgium at Brussels and Spain defeated Brazil 4-1 at Barcelona as Manuel Santana earned the clinching point.

In rain and wind at Dublin, the Irish team won both concluding singles matches for a 3-2 victory over Seitzerland. Britain ended a 50-year drought Saturday. Britain and Ireland will meet at Easthourne, England, May 14-16.

Ontario Young Liberals Hear Bids for Party to Return to Being Reformers

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Calls for a return to being the reform party in Canada and active campaigning to sway the youth of the nation to liberalism were made at the weekend meeting of the Ontario Young Liberal Association convention.

A bid for the reins of the senior party in Ontario was made Sunday with social worker Andrew R. Thompson, MPP for Toronto - Dovercourt, officially announcing his candidacy for the leadership vacated by John Wintermeyer after he lost his seat at the last provincial election.

Mr. Thompson, 39, coupled his announcement with a challenge to Premier John Robarts to debate any of the vital issues facing the province "right here in the heartland of Ontario". Mr. Robarts holds the seat of London North.

William Benedickson, federal minister of mines and surveys, challenged 100 delegates Saturday to campaign more actively among the 18 to 21-year-olds of the country.

He said sooner or later there must be an advance in the voting age to 18 years and the future of both the country and the party lies with youth.

URGES SCHOOL CAMPAIGN

The young people of today are better educated and more informed than his generation were, he said, and he urged Liberals to carry the message of liberalism to high school students before they go to university.

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal provincial house leader and interim leader of the party, called for a moulding of the party into a party of reform to show practical electors that there is a vital and meaningful difference between Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

"If we have strayed from being the party of reform we must get back to being it."

The party must emerge from its next leadership convention — either this fall or next spring — with a leader and a platform that shows the party once again stands as the party of reform. The thousands of persons who feel there is no difference, or little difference between the PCs and the Liberals must be shown otherwise, the opposition leader said.

Following his announcement to the convention that he is standing for party leadership, Mr. Thompson told a press conference he was encouraged to seek the leadership by various Liberals across the province. A party worker said Mr. Thompson is not only supported by a number of hard-core politicians but by party intellectuals as well.

He charged that there is growing concern in Ontario about "regional development opportunities, about health and the adequacies of health services, about education and educational opportunities, about welfare and social justices."

His announcement of his candidacy was obviously approved by delegates, who accorded him a standing ovation.

On other fronts, paid, full-time workers and a strengthening of party riding groups were called for by outgoing association president Terry Wright. He is succeeded by Robert White, of Toronto. Vice - presidents include George Evanoff, of Sudbury.

Mr. Wright said there is not time "after supper and on weekends" for the volunteer executive to do the needed organizing.

He called for contributions from the riding organizations to make the association self-sustaining and for subsidization from the senior provincial party. Closer working links between the youth group and the senior party are needed, he said.

LISTS PROBLEMS

Michael Robert, president of the national Young Liberal Federation, said the organization faces three important problems: The elaboration of a political philosophy for the party; creation of an instrument to communicate this philosophy throughout the party; and the enhancing of Canadian unity.

A panel discussion on "Small It Is Liberalism in Ontario for Tomorrow" prompted Bruce Wells, a Middlesex delegate, to protest he did not feel the Liberal party could go much farther to the left without infringing on civil liberties and individual freedoms.

Panel member Dr. Mark MacGuigan, a University of Toronto law professor, countered that although government intervention is bound to limit some freedoms, socialism would inevitably bring about fuller freedoms for more people.

Other members of the panel were Edward Sargent, Owen Sound, MPP for Grey North, and Donald Patterson, Leamington, MPP for Essex South.

CAN GO LEFT

Mr. Sargent said the government could go a long way to the left before it begins to destroy free enterprise.

John Reid of the Kenora-Rainy River Young Liberal Association said during a panel discussion that there is "an appalling lack of intellectual activity" and new ideas among university political organizations.

"If youth is not going to give a radical tinge to the Liberal party, youth will not support the Liberal party," he said.

Kayak Club Members Test Skills on Moira

WHITE WATER ON THE MOIRA RIVER again attracted canoeists of the Ontario Voyageurs' Kayak Club this year. Twenty boats, including kayaks and Canadian canoes ran the river from Stoco to the Bay yesterday. Most thrills and some spills were at Lazier's Dam, in Belleville, when some of the most experienced canoeists ran their boats over the ruins of the dam and through the rapids. In the picture, photographer Alex Stewart of Toronto points a camera at canoeist Rolph Gut, also of Toronto, running the rapids. Canoeist Micheal Easton of Kingston is also taking pictures and canoeist Erik Lovenmark of Toronto stands by with a lifeline.

Hume, an official of the National Gallery of Canada, said here recently the city might select as themes for its proposed museum — a Centennial project — the settlement of Quakers and Nantucket whalers, or early skate manufacturing for which the city became internationally famous.

WRITING IN ORBIT

MOSCOW (AP) — Studies of handwriting of the six Soviet cosmonauts in orbit, reports scientist Pavel Vasilyev, show capacity for work and speed of reactions are normal. But, Tass news agency quotes him as saying, handwriting in their logs...looks is oversize because the weightless hand moves more boldly.

Separatists and Extremists Under Attack by Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Saturday night lit out at separatists and extremists and said Canadians must show a greater acceptance of their bicultural, bilingual heritage.

Speaking to the annual convention of the Canadian district of Civitan International here, Mr. Pearson called for the kind of citizenship which "resolutely assumes its duties rather than loudly proclaims its rights."

"Extremists in our country, in all provinces, continue to paint and shout the old, stark, black - and - white declamations," he said.

"They are a small minority but a noisy, newsy minority and that can make for danger.

"They are heard out of all proportion to their logic or strength. Their one hope is that the millions of Canadians they offend will remain spectators."

IS GREATEST TEST

Mr. Pearson said reconciliation of the two concepts of Canadian federation — unity and diversity — "is the most important task and the greatest test of Canadian statesmanship and maturity in 1964."

He was confident the quality of Canadian citizenship will meet any challenge, heal any diversity and overcome any difficulty and repudiate threats to Confederation.

He quoted from Edmund Burke: "Because half a dozen grasshoppers under a fern make the field ring with their important chink, while thousands of great cattle . . . chew the cud and are silent, do not imagine that those who make the noises are the only inhabitants of the field."

The prime minister added: "The grasshoppers that chink their separatist chant in Canada are kin to Burke's."

He listed these qualities of citizenship which he said are important today: The study and understanding of Canadian history and current problems; an active interest in all the affairs of nationhood; participation in "the dialogue of democracy," the exchange of ideas.

LAWN SEED MIXTURES

Yes, we defy any competitor to match our mixtures formula-for-formula; dollar-for-dollar.

Our purchasing power in the farm seed business places us in a prime position to buy select quality lawn turf grasses as advantageously as any seed firm in Canada. While our competitors are all organized on a national level with resulting high costs for advertising, distributors, etc., our distribution is far less extensive and therefore less costly.

THIS SAVING IS PASSED ON TO OUR CUSTOMERS IN IMPROVED FORMULAE AND QUALITY.

The formula of each of our blends (VERDANT, VERDANT-MERION, BOULEVARD etc.) is openly stated and printed on the package. If it were possible for you to compare this formula with nationally-advertised brands, you would find that our mixtures contain far more Kentucky Blue Grass and Creeping Red Fescue, far less Rye Grass, Red Top and other cheaper ingredients.

Banks Is Given Five-Year Term For Conspiracy

Immediate Application For Appeal Is Planned

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Claude Wagner today sentenced Hal C. Banks to five years in penitentiary for conspiring to wound or maim a rival union official in 1957.

Banks, standing between two Quebec provincial policemen, showed no emotion on hearing sentence pronounced although he appeared tired.

The deposed president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) had been in Bordeaux Prison since Judge Wagner convicted him Friday.

Prosecutor Jean Martineau had called for an "exemplary sentence" because of the "extremely grave crime" and because Banks had been in a position to set an example through his office in the union.

CRIME IS GRAVE

Judge Wagner said he took into consideration the gravity of the crime, "considered one of the most despicable by Parliament and the fact that the victim of the beating, Capt. Henry Francis Walsh, remains afflicted with a permanent physical disability.

"The accused has had previous encounters with the law, serving a three-year term in San Quentin (California). This does not indicate an increase in the penalty but is an indication that the relative clemency of previous terms has not such as to bring the accused to mend his ways.

"The accused was in a position of trust, the head of 19,000 SIU members who placed in him their ambitions, loyalty and faith. It is possible the accused won appreciable benefits for the members but they should not under any circumstances have been gained at the expense of the law."

Capt. Walsh, an organizer for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC), was beaten up Aug. 19, 1957 in a darkened hotel parking lot in Owen Sound, following difficulties with the SIU.

"The leaders of the society must set a high standard of behavior," the judge said.

"They all condemn violence but their actions must be in accord with what they preach."

He said Banks was dealing with matters that were "of vital concern of the ports and by order of the nation" and he owed the nation "a rigorous standard of behaviour."

Judge Wagner said he took into account the likelihood that Banks will face considerable difficulties in attempting to reorganize the labor movement following his release from penitentiary" and this will be a continuing penalty on top of the conviction.

Before the three-page judgment, the jury conference counsel Joseph Cohen said he has no representations to make and commended the police followed by Mr. Martineau's plea for exemplary sentence.

Mr. Cohen said he plans an immediate application for appeal and for bail, which was cancelled upon conviction of the accused Friday.

Rules Flouted Charge

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the legislature said Monday the Ontario government flouted the rules of the house to prevent Opposition criticism of controversial bills introduced by former attorney-general Frederick M. Cass.

"The government, in its panic, has ridden roughshod over the normal procedures of the legislature," said Vernon M. Singer (L — Toronto Downview).

Mr. Singer was referring to the removal from the house order paper last week of four bills introduced the same time as the Police Amendment Act. The bills were sent to the labor legal and municipal bills committee before debate in principle in the house.

Mr. Singer said the opposition members did not have a chance to fully examine the four bills, presented in amendment form to the committee for the first time Monday.

An act to amend the Collection Agencies Act was passed. Bills dealing with regulation of mortgage brokers, real estate and business brokers and used-car dealers are still in committee.

REMOVE POWERS

The amendments, put forth by Attorney - General Wishart, removed some of the powers that the original bills would have been given to provincial civil servants.

Premier John Robarts said he could not accept charges that normal rules of procedure were ignored.

The bills would be debated in the house after they were examined in committee. "Everybody has a full and complete opportunity to express themselves —that is the way it has always been and that is the way it will always be," he said.

Mr. Singer also criticized Mr. Wishart for his defence of Section 14 of Bill 99, the Police Amendment Act which provides the Ontario Police commission power to jail for eight days a person who refused to testify before it in secret about crime in the province.

The public uproar about the section resulted in Mr. Cass resigning.

CLAIMED INACCURACY

Mr. Wishart said Thursday reports that witnesses before the commission would not be entitled to legal counsel, or the protection of habeas corpus and certiorari, were inaccurate.

Mr. Singer said that when Mr. Wishart defended the bill he

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cloud and nightfall thunderstorms have spread into Lake Superior and are expected to extend gradually eastward during the next 24 hours as a disturbance centred in western Kansas moves to near Sault Ste. Marie by Wednesday morning.

John Lennon and George Harrison, half of Britain's famed rock 'n' roll group, left behind disappointed fans clustered here.

The Beatle's frustration came through when reporters questioned them on their departure.

"Why didn't you leave us alone," Harrison asked reporters. "It's very nice," he snapped, "but we didn't see much."

Lennon, his wife Cynthia, Harrison and an unidentified blonde London model, attempted to slip into Honolulu unrecognized Saturday night.

They stayed only 37 hours, spending about three hours in a car, 20 minutes outdoors swimming, and the rest of the time holed up in their hotel.

2 Votes Will Be Taken

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government, which has survived seven non-confidence tests so far this session, faces two more confidence votes in the Commons tonight.

Concluding a two-day supply debate, successive votes will be taken on Creditiste and Progressive Conservative motions dealing with the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act (ARDA) and water resources policy.

Voting was scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. EDT. Present party standings: Liberals 128, Progressive Conservatives 96, New Democrats 17, Creditistes 13, Social Credit 9, vacant 2, total 265.

The Conservative motion, introduced Monday by former resources minister Walter Dinsdale, condemns the government for not establishing a co-ordinated national water policy and for ignoring an "imminent national crisis in water resources management . . . evidenced by the critical low water levels of the Great Lakes."

It also points to "the increasing pollution of national waters and the urgent necessity of conserving water resources."

MAKE CALL

The Conservatives also called

1. Establishment of a national advisory committee on water resources to assist in co-ordinating national resource development.

2. Accelerating the application of ARDA policies to the principles of national resource development.

The Conservative non - confidence motion was promptly criticized by Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste - Lapointe) on the grounds it largely dealt with matters of provincial jurisdiction.

Introducing his own sub-amendment, he whittled down the Conservative motion so that it is effect now called only for

Exiles May Attempt To Oust Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rumors are flying once again that Cuban exiles have new efforts will be made soon to topple Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

These reports, increasingly persistent both in Washington and in Miami, tell of Communist Castro regime may soon be met with unrest and sabotage attacks both from within Cuba and from without.

The exiles say the outside groups will come from areas other than the United States.

Authority for the operation would avoid international complications for Washington as charged recently by U.S. planes and ships with such raiding parties.

U.S. officials appeared surprised when asked about the rumors. They indicated that they had no information whatever about any such plans by the exiles, although they said they had read recently a statement by one Cuban exile leader, Manolo Ray Rivero, now in Puerto Rico, that he and other leaders will be fighting inside Cuba by mid-year.

ATTACK FAILED

The only major organized effort to overthrow the Castro government came in April, 1961, when Cuban exiles, with U.S. help, failed in a sea and land attack against the Castro forces at the Bay of Pigs.

The exiles say a different type operation, much smaller than the Bay of Pigs in some ways and much larger in others, is being planned now.

The U.S. defence department Monday issued a statement which an official said was intended as a denial of reports that Russia has removed its best quality anti-aircraft missiles from Cuba.

The statement said the department has "no information indicating any change in the characteristics of the ground-to-air missiles installed in Cuba, despite published reports."

BRITISH TROOPS LEAVE FOR ADEN — Soldiers of the First King's Own Scottish Borderers board plane at British Royal Air Force base in Lyneham, England, to fly to the British protectorate of Aden. Indignation mounted in British government and parliamentary circles over a report later denied that heads of two British soldiers killed in skirmish with Yemeni tribesmen were on display in Taiz, Yemen's diplomatic capital. Britain does not recognize the republic of Yemen, which has territorial claims on Aden.

Beheading Story Denied

Britain Sends Reinforcements To Fight Yemeni-Backed Tribes

ADEN (Reuters)—British reinforcements moved into the Radfan region of the South Arabian Federation today to aid hard-pressed troops of the federation in their fight against Yemeni-backed dissident tribesmen.

The 900 troops were ordered from Britain during the weekend as tension between the British-backed federation and the Egyptian - backed Yemen mounted.

Another 90 troops were to leave Britain today for the area.

The Yemen has laid claim to the federation and tribesmen have been harassing the main 60 - mile - long Aden - to - Yemen trade route for some time.

Meanwhile, the British government was told Monday by the United States that a report that two British soldiers, killed during an engagement last week, were decapitated and had their heads exhibited on sticks in the Yemeni twin capital of Taiz was not true.

The British government asked the U.S. state department to check the report of head exhibiting and were told Tuesday the American embassy in the Yemen "had found no truth" in the report.

At the same time, Aden radio quoting the Yemen information minister, also denied the story which was first told by the commander of the British Middle East land forces in a press conference Sunday.

British concern for its key military base at Aden increased last week with threats by Egyptian President Gemal Abdel Nasser to "expel Britain from all parts of the Arab world."

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home told the British House of Commons Monday he would order British troops from Germany to Aden if it became necessary.

Anglican Synod Backs UN Efforts to Reduce Births

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Anglican synod of the Diocese of Huron Monday night overvoted a loud and determined bloc of delegates to approve a motion supporting the United Nations "in its efforts to stem the world-wide population explosion."

A handful of 12 clergy—led by Archdeacon Albert Abraham of Sarnia—raised strenuous objections to the resolution on the grounds the wording jeopardized the synod's position on moral and ethical grounds.

Archdeacon Abraham maintained the wording of the resolution would mean the Diocese of Huron would support legislated abortion if a country saw fit to appove such a drastic move to curtail population growth.

The resolution, which was supported by an overwhelming majority of the 350 registered delegates, read:

"That the Synod of Huron now assembled urge the government of Canada to assist by every means at its disposal, the work of the United Nations in its efforts to stem the ensuing tide of the world's population growth; to assist countries on request, in the formation of their plans to deal with this problem; and to support studies and appropriate research to meet the serious challenge posed by the rapidly expanding world population."

Supporters of the motion—which was presented by C. C. Johnson, a lay delegate from London, Ont.—emphasized the seriousness of the expanding world population and the necessity for quick action to feed, educate and accommodate the growing numbers.

A motion seeking the support of synod to ask the federal government to pass legislation "to permit the authorized dissemination of birth control information and materials" was sent back to the diocesan council for social service to be re-worded and presented later during synod.

Ont. C of C Says Problem Of Water Levels Is Crucial

OTTAWA (CP) — Increasing pollution of public waters and the continuing drop in the level of the Great Lakes are crucial problems that should be faced up to, the Ontario Chamber of Commerce said Monday.

More than 200 delegates from across the province were told at the chamber's annual meeting that the drop in the Great Lakes' level is a threat to the manufacturing heart of the North American continent, while pollution is endangering health and economic progress.

They approved resolutions calling for a study of the feasibility of diverting water from James Bay into the Great Lakes system, and for a greatly intensified campaign against pollution.

The chamber, which ends its meeting today, also went through a raft of recommendations dealing with education, health and health services, employer - employee relations, agriculture, natural resources, tourism and provincial - municipal affairs.

Still to come are recommendations on transportation, finance and taxation and government and legislation.

The call for a study of the plan to divert water from James Bay was made by Morey Spiegal, president of the Sudbury and district chamber.

He said the level of water in the Great Lakes has been falling steadily because of increasing consumption, and now is at the lowest level in recorded history.

The proposal he asked the chamber to study would take water from the Hurricane River in northern Quebec, pump it over the height of land and let it flow into the Harricana River and then into Georgian Bay or the Ottawa River and the St. Lawrence.

He said that although he was asking Ontario to take the lead in the study, the matter was of vital concern to the federal governments of both Canada and the United States, Quebec and the U.S. states bordering on the Great Lakes system.

The chamber's board of directors had recommended that the delegates reject the proposal, but the delegates overwhelmingly approved it. They emphasized, however, they are seeking only a study of the suggestion and their vote was not to be interpreted as meaning approval of the scheme.

Mr. Spelgal gave the cost figure of the project, but said it would lead to important hydro-electric developments as well as other benefits.

Other decisions taken by the chamber during the full day of studying policy declarations included:

1. A call for an immediate study of the problem of supplying ambulance services for victims of highway accidents.

The resolution was passed after Dr. R. M. Anderson of Toronto, chairman of the cham-

Govt. Will Not Extend Uranium Stockpiling

Bancroft Area Will Be Affected by Decision

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is not extending beyond June 30 the one-year program of uranium stockpiling that it undertook to keep three Ontario mines in operation.

The decision, announced in the Commons Monday, touched off opposition charges of Liberal bad faith with voters in uranium - producing areas.

Prime Minister Pearson, whose Algoma East constituency embraces two of the mines, retorted that the government had only been trying to give the uranium towns a chance to get out of the mess in which the Progressive Conservatives left them.

End of the uranium-buying was announced by Agriculture Minister Hays on behalf of Trade Minister Sharp who was at a trade conference in Geneva.

He said the program had cost $25,000,000 and further stockpiling would aggravate world markets and hold back revival of demand for which "the eventual prospects are good."

The stockpiling policy, announced by Mr. Pearson last year for a one-year period, was "designed to provide a breathing space for the affected communities" by enabling certain mines to maintain employment until July 1, 1964," Mr. Hays said.

IS GREAT BLOW

Rod. Webb (PC — Hastings-Frontenac) said the decision will be a "great blow and shock" to the people of the Bancroft area of his Ontario constituency where the third mine is located, Taxpayers were "left holding the bag" for the debt on municipal services installed in the mining communities.

He tried to put on the Commons record the wording of a newspaper advertisement published shortly before the April, 1963, election which brought the Liberals to power:

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled him out of order but Opposition Leader Diefenbaker got it on the record minutes later by asking Mr. Pearson what an ad by Liberal candidate William A. Shannon April 4, 1963, which said in part:

"Mr. Pearson has promised the Liberal candidate that if he is elected he will do all he can in the future and maintain the mines in operation and stockpile uranium until 1965.

"I am not aware of having had that statement in any form but I will be glad to look into it," replied Mr. Pearson.

The prime minister, stung by Mr Webb calling the day "black Monday" in the light of the uranium announcement, said the federal government invested $25,000,000 "in order to give the Bancroft companies a chance to get out of the mess in which the previous government left them."

CALLS FOR CHANGE

New Democratic Leader Douglas Fisher, urging the government to reconsider its decision, said he felt it difficult to accept the argument that stockpiling will adversely affect a revival of demand.

If demand was going to revive, "that is all the more reason for having a stockpile on

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Residents of this once-booming community, 85 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie, showed little surprise at the federal government's decision Monday against continuing its uranium stockpiling beyond the end of June.

Edward Futterer, chairman of the Elliot Lake Improvement District, said those who knew the project was being cancelled have spread the word and prepared for the blow.

The Elliot Lake Industrial Advisory Committee and officials of Denison Mines Limited asked Prime Minister Pearson last weekend to support a plan under which the company would continue the Elliot Lake operation for another year, employing about 500 men, Mr. Futterer said.

In Bancroft, 50 miles north of Peterborough, Reeve Michael J. Moldjee said: We are shocked and greatly let down, and a little bit mad — maybe more than a little bit mad.

"We feel that we have been at best misled."

Commit Seven For Trial on Cheating Charge

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate Kenneth Langdon Monday committed seven men for trial on charges of conspiring to cheat at play but ruled that the preliminary hearing will resume May 25 to allow the Crown to present all its evidence.

The charges were placed after participants in a dice game at a stag party at Oakville Golf club last Dec. 6 called police when they felt the game was crooked. Magistrate Langdon said Monday he had heard enough evidence for prima facie cases.

Charged are: William Scherbank, 44, Windsor; Vincent Bonifer, 46, Leicester, Ont.; and five London, Ont., men—Richard Yahnke, 37, Thomas David Darnell, 36, Jerry Stewart, 31, and Robert Dowling and Joseph Zubyk, both 26.

Two of four other men charged, Irving Kaplan, 34, of Detroit, and Eldon Dallas Snyder, 35, of Battle City, Mich., have forfeited $1,000 bail for not appearing. Police have been unable to locate Kaplan or Snyder.

Book Review

Pioneer Area Railroading Provides Interesting History

By GLADYS WARD

William Michaud of Shannonville has written the fascinating story of the railways in this area in a 20 page booklet called "Pioneer Railways of Central Ontario."

Belleville had its own railway called the Grand Junction which ran from the wharf up the west side of Pinnacle, easterly on Great St. James Street to the vicinity of Cemetery Street. At that point it turned to the left and north and crossed the Grand Trunk at the then west limits of its switching yard and continued its slow and difficult way to its eventual terminus at Peterborough.

Mr. Michaud describes the difficulties which beset the progress of the builders as the contractors became insolvent or wearied by the various difficulties encountered. But it was finally completed in 1879.

At the wharf a trestle was built to support an extension of the trackage some distance from the shallow water to a dock in deeper water to accommodate the greater draught of the larger vessels plying into Belleville harbor. These ships were loaded at the dock with the iron ore from the mines near Madoc, and the barley and other grains transported by the Grand Junction.

A regular scheduled ferry operated from Bayside Park in Prince Edward County and delivered passengers and freight at a ferry slip in Belleville harbor.

A timetable of the first passenger use of the Grand Trunk races from Montreal to Toronto on October 27th., 1856, informed the public that the train would leave Montreal each morning at 7.30 a.m. and would arrive in Toronto at 9.30 p.m.

Besides the history of railroading in Canada Mr. Michaud has added local color and has taken a nostalgic look at the business of being a railwayman. His book is well research-ed and even to those of us who have never been more than a passenger on one of the Diesel-Electrics, it is absorbing and interesting reading. Pictures point up the differences between the old wood-burning locomotives and the Ocean Limited.

In June of this year a celebration sponsored by the City of Belleville and the Canadian National and named "Railway Week" will signal the close of railway operations on Pinnacle Street and that link, the last of the Grand Junction Railway Belleville's own railway, will pass into history.

Elks Picnic Will Be Held In July

At a meeting of the committee for the second annual Elks' picnic held on Sunday much of the groundwork for a very big day was laid.

Saturday, July 4th. will be the day and will again be held on Zwick's Island.

Meetings between Parks' Board officials and the committee are planned to decide a suitable donation to Zwick's Island to mark the event.

A full day of entertainment is being planned for this year and will include bands, majorette, games rides and children's races.

The finals to select the Elks' Picnic Queen will be held at the picnic this year and it is expected that many of Belleville and district's beauties will be entered.

Anyone wishing to participate in the Picnic Queen contest, or in any part of the day, can receive desired information by calling picnic chairman, Bro. Maurice Sine at WO 2-7290.

Two Windsor Men Remanded In Custody

Two Windsor men were remanded in custody today on attempted fraud charges after Magistrate T. Y. Wills was told they were wanted by other police departments.

Wayne McMullen, 26, and Ronald Munro, 29, were arrested Friday after a man tried to cash $300 in travellers' cheques at the city's Royal branch.

McMullen had forged $500 bill after assistant crown attorney Bruce Robertson requested it be $1,000.

Detective sergeant Harold Reid said warrants already had been issued against the pair by other police departments.

"As soon as they're released they're going to be picked up again," he said.

Police claim both men were arrested after bonds - stolen in a $50,000 Windsor safe robbery - - had been cashed in banks at Oshawa and Bowmanville and travelling cheques issued at a Port Hope bank.

Blame 2 Fires On Fireworks

Fire Chief Gerald Vance of the city's fire department stated this morning that a city hydro transformer on the hydro works to minors is going to be strictly enforced at once.

Sunday morning were called to the Trent Road, where a child's playhouse had been set fire by children's reason for the firecrackers and last night the fire department was called to a fire in a barn behind Robllyn's dairy on Coleman Street, which had been started by children playing with fireworks. The building received slight damage.

Chief Vance said fireworks are not to be sold to children under sixteen years of age by anyone and if the child has been given permission to purchase them by his or her parents.

The penalty for anyone caught selling fireworks in the city to minors is a fine of up to $300 upon conviction or a term of up to six months in the county jail, if convicted.

The department was also called to the home of D. Brown when a portable electric cutting machine caught fire. The damage was slight.

Firemen were later called to the home of Burton Hubble on the 3rd of Sidney to extinguish a brush fire. There was no personal loss.

Ex-Premier To Receive Gold Key

BANCROFT — The status of Cardiff, Ontario, a busy mining town until three years ago, will be changed this weekend.

At a rededication ceremony on Saturday, May 9 Ontario's Ex-Premier Leslie Frost will be presented with a gold key to the village and named its No. 1 honorary citizen.

Cardiff, eight miles west of here appeared to be headed for extinction with the closing of all three uranium producers in the area. Faraday Mines the last to stock pile ore under an agreement with the Federal government is due to cease operations June 30.

In an effort to establish an independent community for people with fixed incomes the Federal government's housing agency C.M.H.C., granted Peterborough realtors an exclusive contract to dispose of 150 fully-serviced bungalows at 60 per cent less than it cost to build them in 1956.

Otherwise the dwellings along with administration buildings, two churches, a shopping centre, an 11-roomed school and large outdoor swimming pool might have wound up in the scrap heap.

Second Kiwanis Club Formed In This City

Belleville now has a second Kiwanis Club.

The name is the Belleville Quinte Kiwanis Club with meetings to be held weekly — in the evenings.

In fact the evening meetings were the prime reason for the formation of the new club which will have its official installation officers next Monday evening. District Lt. Gov. Ralph Hall of Picton will be the installing officer.

George Brown, employee of Canada Packers is the first president of the new Quinte Kiwanis Club. Vice president is Robert W. Carleton, secretary, Anthony E. Nagy and treasurer William H. O'Brien.

In his first president statement that the evening meetings would attract many potential Kiwanis members whose jobs or positions would not allow them to attend noon lunches held by the existing Kiwanis club.

PROJECTS CONSIDERED

No decision has been made regarding club projects, but Mr. Brown said boys and girls work, conservation, parks and safety each were among possible projects which might be undertaken.

In fact Belleville Kay club last night held a joint meeting with the new Kiwanis club President Brown and Moira Secondary School Key Club president Mike Hume were co-chairman for the meeting with the latter giving an outline of Key Club work.

The new Quinte Kiwanis Club has full support of present Kiwanis clubs which officially sponsored the second Kiwanis club in the city.

The organizational meeting was held a week ago and was attended by Munro Gerrier of Chicago, International Kiwanis representative, and Carl Reid, district governor from Picton.

50 YEAR FLOWER MAN — Mr. John Keeble, R. R. 7, Belleville, look a green-house job "for a few days" back in 1914 and has been there ever since. The 80-year-old florist is seen among hydrangeas at Barber and Sons greenhouse in Prince Edward county.

Took Job for 'Few Days' But Stretched It 50 Years

A greenhouse job taken "only for a few days" back in 1914 has stretched into a half century for Mr. John Keeble of Prince Edward county and although he will be 80 this summer he still has little intention of calling it quits.

Getting his discharge from the British Army in 1914 after 13 years service, Mr. Keeble decided to try his luck in Canada and possibly try farming on the prairies.

He also had a good reason for crossing the Atlantic — to visit an English girl friend whose family had moved to the Belleville area a couple of years previously.

But when he got off the train at Belleville, it turned out to be the end of his journey. He took the offered greenhouse job and also married the English girl.

But it was more or less an accident that Mr. Keeble got into the flower growing business.

OFFERED JOB

A few days after his arrival in the Belleville area he had occasion to go to Potter's greenhouse (Barber's) on the Picton Road to pick up some plants.

While he was there Mr. Potter offered him a job "for a few days." He has been there ever since.

When Mr. Keeble came to Potter's back in 1914 the greenhouse operation was much different than it is today.

At that time a considerable share of the business was growing vegetables, tomato plants and tomatoes. Today the green-house operation is almost exclusively flowers.

Each year Mr. Keeble supervises the growing of 12,000 chrysanthemums, 3,000 carnations, 8,000 snapdragons and varying amounts of dozens of other varieties.

Over the years the demand for snapdragons has increased to a greater extent than for other flowers.

MANY ADDITIONS

One of Mr. Keeble's specialties is the arrangement of hanging baskets for cemeteries and other uses.

Since Mr. Keeble went to work at what is now Barber's four new greenhouses have been added and the original ones rebuilt. There is now over 22,000 square feet under glass.

The name of the greenhouse operation has changed, but Mr Keeble has been working for the same family for all his 50 years in Canada. Mr. Stan Barber who with his two sons now operate the greenhouses, is a grandson of the man who Mr. Keeble went to work for back in 1914.

OVERTURN CONVICTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S Supreme Court Monday overturned the conviction of a Norfolk, Va., woman who contended that a spike microphone was stuck in the wall of an apartment adjoining hers to obtain evidence. The woman, Catherine Clinton, was convicted on charges of placing a female in a house of prostitution and receiving money from a prostitute. Her sentence was five years imprisonment and $500 fine.

President of Senior Citizens Breaks Hip

TRENTON — Mrs. E. E. Panter, the president of the Trenton Senior Citizens' Club, fell in the kitchen of her Hawley St. home Saturday morning and was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering from a broken hip. Mrs. Panter managed to drag herself across the room and into the living room of her home where she telephoned the ambulance.

Vice-President Mrs. Celia Rosenpiot and secretary Mr. Lena Phillips will carry on with club activities.

"I expect we'll be carrying out Mrs. Panter's directions," Mrs. Phillips said yesterday.

Council Agrees With Motion

TRENTON—Trenton council agrees with the council of New Toronto that it's a crying shame that persons who enter a nursing home aren't covered with hospital insurance.

Both councils feel that it's a real hardship for folks who are well enough to be sent home from hospitals, but not well enough to be sent home, to delve into their savings, or go into debt, to finance their stay in a nursing home.

The federal and provincial governments will be asked, by resolution, to either see that hospital insurance is extended to include nursing home care or the patients are allowed to remain in hospitals, where the insurance is good until they are perfectly well again.

The Association of Mayors and Reeves and other municipal councils in Ontario will be asked to add their voices to the resolution sponsored by the Toronto suburban council.

Delegation Proposes Council Raise $101,000 Debenture to Provide Olympic-Size Pool

Resolution Is Supported By Council

TRENTON — Trenton council, smarting under the whip-lash of higher and higher educational costs, voted last night to support a resolution made by the city council of Woodstock by which the federal and provincial governments would be asked to levy a special tax to use for education purposes, rather than take the costs out of the general levy. Property taxes would then be diverted for other benefits for the community.

Councillors at Trenton agreed that the physical condition of many municipalities was deteriorating while school facilties tended to get better and better.

The council of New Toronto would have the education taxes taken out of earned income, both individual and municipal, rather than out of taxation on real property.

This resolution, presented at council last night, met with the approval of town council also.

Appointment Might Solve Controversy

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald has suggested the appointment of a deputy magistrate for Trenton, who would sit on the Trenton Police Commission, and might, in the words of the mayor, "solve the controversy between town council and the present commission."

The mayor made the suggestion to two members of the Ontario Police Commission, visiting in town last week. The chairman of the Ontario body, Percy Milligan and Magistrate Thomas Graham, have promised to consider the mayor's suggestion.

Trenton at one time, towards the beginning of the century, had a local magistrate. A George Gordon, who is understood to have had no formal education for the position, served for a number of years and he was replaced by Magistrate T. A. O'Rourke, who also served for many years and was a member of high standing in the community.

The present police commission is comprised of the mayor, (this year's chairman); Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville and Magistrate W. R. Philp of Peterborough.

Various members of council have stated repeatedly that they do not think the present set-up of the commission is in the best interests of the town.

No Assistance For Color Presentation

TRENTON — While Trenton council will tactfully proffer "good wishes" to the members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on the May 17 presentation of the new regimental color — it won't proffer anything else.

Council voted last night not to accede to a request from the regimental honorary colonel, H. D. Graham) to donate a "small sum," around $200 to help defray the cost of supplying a light lunch for spectators at the ceremony.

It isn't in the Trenton budget this year. And furthermore, the presentation ceremony is being held in Belleville.

"Wish 'em luck," Councillor Ross Burtt instructed clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry, who has been set the task of writing to the regimental authorities to tell them that the small sum won't be forthcoming.

TRENTON — Douglas Whalley of the Board of Education and Donald Kilgour of the Trenton Recreation Committee came before Trenton council last night to propose that the town raise $101,000 by debenture to provide an Olympic size swimming pool in the high school for the use of the town's adults and children. While council would debenture for the entire amount, actual cost to the town would be $25,000 or less.

The Trenton Lions Club has offered to donate $25,000 towards the construction of a pool in the high school, if construction is started before the end of this year.

Recoverable from the provincial government, if the pool is at least partially sponsored by the Board of Educatiop, is another $25,000.

Enthusiastic members of the two bodies mean to raise the remaining $25,000 (or more) by public subscription.

Operational costs for the pool, for one year, would be around $7,000, Mr. Whitley told council last night, although he said this cost was based on the costs of running a pool at Leaside, not connected with a school, and would certainly be lower in Trenton. Maintenance men at the school would be asked to include care of the pool in their present schedule.

During the day time, high school students would have the use of the pool for physical education purposes. Principal John Cornerford would have jurisdiction over the pool in the daytime.

Evenings, Saturdays etc., would be devoted to swimming instruction form qualified members of the recreation Committee staff, (William Workman is recreation director) and recreational activities for which a charge would be made.

The pool, this year, and for the past 11 years, the RCAF pool has been made available to Mr. Workman and his staff. Around 4,000 adults and children have learned to swim and been taught the safety rules and life saving techniques at the RCAF pool. This year, the RCAF reluctantly cut off the use of the pool to anyone but RCAF personnel, as the filtration system at the station could no longer take the load.

Mayor James MacDonald and the members of his council agreed with Mr. Whitley that Trenton was a good one, but feel that more thought must be put into it before commitments are made. Recreation chairman on council, Edward Todd, will meet with Mr. Whitley and Mr. Kilgour or other appointees from the boards and discuss the matter further.

Wants Approval To Build 184 Single Units

TRENTON — William Sidor, Trenton and area developer, came before Trenton council last night to gain approval of a plan to build 184 single dwelling units in the Sidor sub-division, in west Trenton.

Councillor Gerald Weaver thought the proposal was a good one, and told the members of council that this might be the answer to allowing the developer to make some use of his land that is still not anticipated residents of the area. A proposal last year that multiple housing units (maisonettes) be built in the area met with adamant opposition from the persons who have already built houses in the sub-division.

"I think we should grab onto this idea," said the councillor, "We could get into something else controversial."

Council tentatively approved of Mr. Sidor's plans, but left the door open for modifications as the consulting firm of Gore and Storrie have yet to rule on the best location for storm and sanitary sewers in the area, which is low lying for the most part.

However, as Gore and Storrie men are now in the area, town engineer Eric Aldersey promised quick action on the matter.

No Increase In Taxes for Minor Repairs

TRENTON — The town council of Woodstock thinks it's unfair to penalize property owners for making improvements on their property by raising their taxes, and wants the legislature of the province to give some thought to the revision of Section 35 of the Assessment Act.

Trenton council, asked to back up the Woodstock council on the issue, did it last night.

For the record, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry said that in Trenton, owners of houses are not penalized for repairing or painting their dwellings, but feed an increase in assessment if they undertook extensive renovations.

NEEDS A NAME

Trenton council last night spent a good quarter of an hour indulging in the game of "attempting to name the baby."

The government - sponsored laud assembly on North Byron St. needs a name... and council came up with some suggestions last night.

Oak Park", "Valley View", "Espinola Hts.," "Sidney Shift, "Northern Hts.," "Sidney Hts.," "Hastings Hts.," received more attention.

"Riverview Hts." seemed ideal, but for the fact that you can't see the river from every part of the subdivision.

"Columbus Hts.," to match "Champlain Hts.," north of Trenton was also considered.

In all events, council will give the matter some serious thought and is open to suggestions from the populace.

APPROVES MOTION

Trenton council last night went along with a resolution from the town council of New Toronto that the Ontario Minister of Education be asked to conduct a survey of the present use of schools.

The Newmarket council thinks and Trenton council agrees, that school facilities could be used for longer periods in the year... and more advantageous Classes could be conducted on a "staggered" basis, thus doing away with "prohibitive costs" of constructing new additions to schools when a school population explosion occurs.

Gilbert Hotel Purchased by Toronto Family

TRENTON — Final papers were signed yesterday on the turn-over of the Hotel Gilbert from the Kerr family, owners since the 1830's, to a Toronto family. The hotel will be known, officially, in the future, as the Gilbert Hotel, (Trenton, Ltd.) Purchase price was not disclosed.

The new owners are Fred and Gladys Lewis, their son, David, and his wife, Mona.

"You might say it's a family corporation," Mr. Lewis Sr. said yesterday.

The two Lewis families have already taken a suite in the hotel. David Lewis and his family (the couple has two pre-school children), may buy a house in Trenton later on.

Many members of the present staff will stay on, and, a point emphasized by the family, this includes the chef, Aldo Aglio. Hotel manager since 1946, "Peg" LaValle will stay about a month, then take an extended holiday. Mary Kerr, the daughter of the recent owner, Mrs. James Kerr, will stay for two weeks to assist the Lewis family, with operational duties.

The hotel, first known as the Bleecker House, owned by William Bleecker, was taken over by James Kerr in 1932. After his death, Mrs. Kerr and Mary took over, and appointed Miss LaValle, up to then the hotel accountant, manager.

There will be no change in policy, Mr. Lewis Sr., says.

"We want to keep up the excellent record of this hotel," he said. Remodelling and renovation may be carried out in the future, but for the moment, the well-run hotel will remain as is.

The Lewis father and son team have had no former experience in running a hotel, having previously been in the plate printing manufacturing business in Toronto.

No Improvement

About a year ago, if memory serves us right, we commented on the fact that Belleville and the surrounding district had had only a meagre share of Ontario's industrial expansion during the previous twelve months.

There has now arrived on the editorial desk a copy of "Ontario Industrial Review 1963," published by the Ontario Department of Economics and Development.

The story is little, if any, changed—and if a little, that little for the worse.

The report lists 173 Canadian and foreign companies as "among the more important firms establishing new manufacturing operations in Ontario during 1963."

Not one of these new plants was in Belleville.

Only one, or at most two, could be considered in this district. These two plants are Tweed Veneers Ltd., at Tweed, and Infil Panels Ltd. at Cobourg.

Of the 173 new plants, 47 located in Metropolitan Toronto and many others in the neighboring district, including 15 in Toronto Township. The remainder of this vast province had to be satisfied with dividing up something less than two-thirds of the new plants.

The report lists "78 manufacturing arrangements between foreign and Ontario companies for production in Ontario."

Not one of these arrangements involved a district firm.

Sixteen Ontario companies are listed as "among the more important expanding to new locations in the Province."

None of the new locations was in the district; none of the expanding firms was from the district.

The report says that "478 Ontario manufacturing concerns were among the more important making additions to their production capacities in 1963."

Only one of these, Black Diamond Cheese Ltd., was from Belleville.

Only two others were district firms. They were Cook Chocolate Canada Ltd. of Campbellford and Erie Technological Products of Canada Ltd. of Gananoque.

"I feel that this Industrial Review of 1963 will help the reader to become better acquainted with our Program for Progress and to understand how we are working towards further economic development of our Province," says Hon. S. J. Randall, Ontario's Minister of Economics and Development, in the opening paragraph of his foreword to the report.

Reading the statistics we have just quoted, the Quinte district resident may be forgiven if he concludes that Ontario's Program for Progress, as at present conducted, holds little promise for him.

Some action is needed.

One approach would be to attempt to drum into the heads of government the fact that the economic health of the province depends on the equitable distribution of new industries, that Ontario cannot live by Toronto prosperity alone.

The second and much better plan would be to get out and start doing something for ourselves, placing little trust in benefits to be derived from any government program.

A combination of the two approaches would probably be the most effective.

What Do they Mean So Soon?

In the U.S., a Denver distributor of tobacco products says that most smokers seem to be "getting over the cancer scare."

"Most experts," we are told by the Associated Press, "had expected the (government) report would fail to knock out cigarette smoking, since past 'health scares' have had only temporary effects. But few expected so many smokers to abandon so quickly their intentions to quit or cut down smoking."

So quickly? What's the matter with these experts? Have they never tried to stop smoking? That report was issued several weeks ago. Several weeks is a long, long time to stay off the weed, or to reduce the daily consumption of cigarettes. If the attempts to quit or cut down had not started to dwindle by this time, the effect would almost certainly have been permanent.

Can it be that the so-called experts are all drawn from the minority, from the non-smokers?

Shakespeare, like Holy Writ, wrote words that are all things to all men. And the works of Shakespeare have that special quality that makes for works of genius. They mean something different to each new generation.—Jorge-Luis Borges, Argentinian writer and poet.

Reformed Question Period Bombed and Boomeranged

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The new, cut-short and choked-off daily Question Period in Parliamentary liveliest if not finest hour — is not working out quite the way the strategists so optimistically had it figured.

Sure, it saves time.

Chopped from the usual 90 to perhaps 40 minutes has been the time the Commons uses, when the House opens each day, for the always entertaining and generally useful cross-examination of the Cabinet by the Opposition.

But time is just about all it saves.

It is doing nothing to protect thin-skinned cabinet ministers from the needling barbs of Opposition sharp-shooters.

They are still getting speared.

And now, often as not, they can only squirm and suffer in silence.

This opening daily Question Period, certainly for the visitor or the tourist, is unquestionably the best act in the often amusing, frequently dramatic show — no charge, seats for the taxpayers — that the Canadian Parliament stages five days and three nights a week.

BULLETS FIRED AT HOME

It is just about the only time a taxpayer and the MP who speaks for him in the Commons can actually get at the Government.

For a great many of the more damaging questions fired at the Administration by the Opposition are based on information supplied by politically alert and dissatisfied taxpayers back home. They are the bullets in the ammunition. The MPs do the shooting.

And there is the Cabinet, sitting all in a double row, waiting in apprehension for politically explosive questions, loaded with trouble for the ministers praying silently that they will be able to disarm these verbal bombs with quick and convincing answers.

For nearly 10 years it has made for an interesting if scarcely tranquil hour. Commons life for the cabinet ministers, Liberal and Conservative alike. And it took up an hour or more of every Parliamentary working day, in addition to adding up to a total of as many as three weeks of questions and answers.

So perhaps the cry for "reform" was inevitable.

And as might be expected, they "reformed" the Commons with an assist from that old Liberal ally, New Democrat Stanley Knowles, the resident House expert on the rules, by the simple process of partially gagging the Opposition with a procedural crackdown.

Questions must be short, of an urgent nature and or public importance — otherwise they are ruled out of order.

But what Stan Knowles and the other experts seem to have forgotten is the human factor of order or not, they are still questions. And, more important, they still get asked.

TOO LATE

The catch is that a question must be asked before it can be ruled out of order — and then, it is too late — the damage is done.

Before, the cabinet minister under the gun could, if he wished, answer.

Now, if the question is out of order, he can only suffer in silence.

It was an obvious flaw in the program of the "reformers," and it has not taken the Opposition's experts in the dirt use of the political needle long to discover it.

So that swingingest of all Opposition partisans, Quebec Conservative MP Gerard Pigeon, can pop up and ask Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve if it's "decent and proper" for his wife, Jan Sauve to continue on the CBC payroll when he is one of the Cabinet bosses of broadcasting.

Ontario Conservative Whip Eric Winkler can ask the prime minister if he is accepting the resignation that Health Minister Judy LaMarsh publicly promised if her Canada Pension Plan was rejected or even altered.

And Saskatchewan Conservative MP Ed Nasserden can ask the prime minister how much further he thinks he can go in appeasing Quebec before the whole country comes apart at its provincial seams.

These and other questions — asked for the sole purposes of working up Cabinet tempers and wearing down Ministerial resistance — still get asked. But how they don't get answered. The suggestion is made. An idea is planted. A doubt is sown. And these suggestions, these ideas and doubts live and grow in the silence. "Reform," if that is the way Stan Knowles and the Government figured it, has boomeranged.

Nature's Laws Separated by Unlike Sciences

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of science and research, as I was recently, reminded me of the warning given not long ago by a respected American biologist at a conference on air pollution in Washington.

Prof. Barry Commoner, a committee chairman of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, observed that scientific advances in one field can be dangerous if not accompanied by advances in other fields.

Modern physics, for instance, "was ready to detect strontium 90, to analyze its nuclear structure and to understand its origin in the fission reaction." In contrast, modern biology "was quite unprepared for the entry of strontium 90 on its scene, for until the fallout problem revealed the necessity for such studies, it was almost a completely neglected subject."

The same pattern, Prof. Commoner pointed out, was found in the matter of air pollution: "We have been massively interfering in the natural world without being aware of the biological consequences until the act has been performed and its effects — which are difficult to understand and sometimes irreversible — are upon us. . ."

The laws of nature are separated among the different sciences — but they are not separated in the actual world. Nature is a whole; each part affects the other, and although nuclear explosions are experiments in physics, they also profoundly affect the biology of humans and other animals on the planet.

The widespread use of insecticides is also cited by Prof. Commoner as another example of "acting in ignorance" for while the new insecticides reflected a tremendous knowledge of chemical techniques, nobody seemed to care much that the intrusion of a poison insecticide into the atmosphere might do more long-term harm than short-term good.

Last fall, I commented on the government project to develop supersonic transport planes, at a cost of $1 billion to the taxpayer; Prof. Commoner agrees with my lay opinion that the physiological hazards of "sonic boom" were more than offset the advantages of speed, once the planes are in service, the decision is nearly irreversible.

"Ultimately, it is the citizens who must decide," he concluded, "and they cannot in general be expected to comprehend all the scientific issues involved. It is therefore the responsibility of scientists to fully explain and explore all the scientific effects before plunging ahead into an increasingly dangerous world." But who heard his words, and who listened?

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 5, 1944

The House of Commons heard itself called "unrealistic," responsible for a "tortuous performance" and apparently lacking in full appreciation that the finest of Canadian manhood is daily dying that those at home may live in peace. Having heard, the House applauded vigorously.

Group Captain Denton Massey, honorary leader of the York Bible Class in Toronto, and in the RCAF since the beginning of the war, said he was home in Canada on temporary duty and would return almost immediately to his duties overseas. "After 3 years overseas and the strict English rationing and blackouts, he looked on Canada as the moment not so much motivated by a fullout war effort but as a nation "enjoying the greatest prosperity in its history."

There was "unreality" about the House of Commons. Visitors might look on a debate and hardly realize there was a war on. There appeared to be "almost a carnival spirit in the country." On Tuesday the House had debated suggested amendments to the Family Allowance bill for removed from the war, and "it was a shocking experience, particularly at the beginning of the Sixth Victory Loan to have such a fatuous performance."

Group Capt. Massey said that men overseas disliked the thought that a man seeking a pension had the responsibility of proving his case, but Pensions Minister Mackenzie said later that the responsibility at a first hearing was definitely on the Pensions Commission to show why an award should not be made. In his opening, the House must never for a moment relax from its main duty of seeking to win the war, and set a standard for Canada so that by its actions it might provide the leadership Canada so sorely needed.

Imprisoned For Truancy

Brockville Recorder and Times

An example of possible illness pervading the magistrates' courts and legal profession is the story of the 15-year-old Kingston girl who was ordered to reformatory because she didn't like school.

This girl is now out of the training school but not because of the benevolence of our courts or fear of legal suit as a result of action taken by the girl's mother who had the money, time and desire, or St. Vitus dance, to appeal the court's decision.

The girl came before the juvenile court appearing without a lawyer, and magistrate Reynard that she'd been a frequent truant since the start of the school term in 1963. The girl was summoned to court under the Schools Administration Act and sent to jail under the Training Schools Act. In appealing the decision of the magistrate, the mother took action on the grounds there has been a denial of justice.

We wonder how many such cases appear before juvenile court magistrate? Time was when juvenile court cases were reported in the press, without names, because the law forbid the publication of the names of juveniles under 16 years. Indeed so little is known of the operation of the juvenile court here now that we're inclined to wonder whether or not it functions.

It is possible if the Kingston girl's case had received publicity, the girl would not have gone to training school.

In addition to this case pointing up a flaw in our juvenile courts, administration, it also illustrates the need for a better system of legal aid in this province, extending to juvenile courts.

Cigarette Smoking Factor In Causing Emphysema

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How about pipe smoking and emphysema? I never smoke cigarettes, and for the last few years I have had only three or four pipes after dinner.

I have read that emphysema can be caused and dangerously aggravated by smoking. Does this include moderate pipe smoking? I am 74 and my health is good. — H. G. H.

If your health is good, you don't have emphysema, and I certainly don't think you will get it now from your moderate pipe smoking.

If you have emphysema, I would tell you to give up all smoking.

Cigarette smoking is definitely an aggravating factor in causing emphysema, and some inborn physiological trait perhaps another. If you want further details on the subject, write for my new booklet, "How To Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to The Chicago Tribune Readers Service, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Six months ago I took a cousin home from a mental hospital where she had been for six years. She has tranquilizers three times a day.

She is 60, about 5 feet 8, and weighs 180 pounds.

The problem is, she is tires all day long, after making her bed or walking two blocks. She smokes and coughs a lot at times, sometimes has a pain in her abdomen. Do you think the pills cause this? Does the problem call for a checkup with my doctor? She has a good appetite.

She is very dear to me and I worry. — L. O.

The tranquillizers could cause this.

She is, of course, too heavy. She may have some circulatory trouble, judging from what you tell me, and I reply yes, have her checked by your doctor. Although she has had a mental illness, it is still possible that a physical disorder could account for the unusual fatigue.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 14 and have a problem. During my menstrual period I go swimming (in summer) or take baths.

In school I was told it is all right. My mother even has a doctor's book that agrees. But my friend says no. She says it might not have anything now but maybe later on in life I will be ill.

I don't like to disagree with what a mother tells her daughter, but apparently she has a fixed idea in this case. Maybe it is something she was told when she was quite young, and ideas we get early in life usually are the hardest to change.

However, her book and your booklet are right — and now you can tell her that Dr. Molner says so, too. Neither swimming nor baths will cause trouble now, or later in life.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 42, but from recent reading I believe that as a child and until I was 20 I may have had the petit mal form of epilepsy. The attacks, lasting about a minute, included loss of vision, and trembling of the whole body. I seldom fell if I could hold on to something to keep my balance.

Number 13 also is of any importance now. — Mrs. J. F.

You probably did not have epilepsy because attacks of it come or go in a very brief time, a second or so. It could have been Bell's palsy, or St. Vitus Dance, which tends to disappear after childhood. Or perhaps some migraine headaches. I do not think it is of significance now, but you might, just for the record, tell your doctor about it when next you see him.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." For your copy write to Dr. Molner, enclosing a long, self-addressed unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

That Man Hees Selling Again

Ottawa Journal

It was Mr. George Hees' energy and drive — brashness also played a part that stimulated the Department of Trade and Commerce and also the business of this country to go out and sell Canadian goods abroad. High pressure sales formed a large part of his armory — pressure not against foreign buyers but against Canadian trade officials and Canadian producers. The tactic of "go, go go" brought derisive smiles from abroad but it also increased our exports.

In Montreal last week Mr. Hees refused to cry havoc when the stock market went crazy; he took the line that though the splurge was too extreme the mining industry of this country has been due for some "boost" for it has been guilty at times in exploration and research and development for several years now.

Mr. Hees' comment will have been regarded by many as an invitation to the dance that together wise at a time of frenzy, but in the context of across-the-board values and development it was not without foundation.

It would be wrong ever to expect from Mr. Hees the voice of caution and restraint — he is not that kind of man. But it has long been said that Canada has too much of those qualities in any case. Mr. Hees perhaps has something we could best.

Last week too, for instance, a President of the Montreal Stock Exchange, he appealed for greater Canadian investment in Canadian industrial development. He did this not by saying we must control foreign investment but that we should encourage and put more "risk money" in our development. Said Mr. Hees:

I believe that the average Canadian, who puts aside a few hundred dollars of savings each year should, in his own best interest, be made aware of the following:

First, the capital growth during the past five years of $100 invested in a Canadian industrial company which has kept pace with the expansion of the Canadian economy.

Second, that this capital increase is tax free.

Third, the dividends which are received from such an investment each year.

Fourth, 50% of these dividends are tax free.

Fifth, that such an investment in the common stocks is kept abreast of the steady inflation which takes place in this and every other country each year, and that it is the only means of keeping capital from decreasing in value.

It is valid argument, and George Hees will get the old collect try — perhaps to the dismay of his critics but also to the good of the country.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Industrials staged an orderly retreat in light morning trading on the stock exchange today.

Some of Monday's favorites were sent fractionally lower in light profit taking. Dominion Foundries and Steel slipped ¼ to 22¾ while Algoma Steel backed away from its 1964 high of 67¼ set Monday to 67¼.

Distillers-Seagrams and Massey-Ferguson continued to move ahead with gains of ¼ to 58¾ and 22¼ respectively.

Senior base metals were led lower by International Nickel which declined ⅝ to 82¼. Falconbridge and Noranda countered the trend with ¼ gains to 72¾ and 46¼.

Speculative issues remained out of favor as prices and volumes were lower than Monday. PCE Explor ation, Belleterre and Bunker Hill all lost six cents to 50 cents, 30 cents and 56 cents.

Golds were higher. La Luz, a favorite Monday when it gained $1.25 to $6.45, added an additional 55 cents to $7. Leitch was up 20 cents to $2.35.

On index, industrials were down .09 to 152.72, base metals .04 to 66.34 and the Exchange index .05 to 142.99. Golds were up 45 to 133.73 and western oils .53 to 97.30. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,332,000 shares compared with 1,801,000 at the same time Monday.

Industrials were the pacemakers with prices increasing in a wide-range of issues. Automotive stocks moved into high gear with General Motors and Ford of Canada ahead three points each to 93 and 188. Chrysler gained 2¾ to 51¼.

Steels were strong as Algoma climbed to a 1964 high of 67¼ with a gain of 1½ and Dominion Foundries and Steel advanced 1¼ to 22¾.

Other industrial gainers included Canada A. up ¼ to 18⅝, Bell Telephone and Distillers Seagrams up ½ to 53¾ and-58, and Interprovincial Pipe Line up ¾ to 85¼.

Senior metals presented a strong front with Consolidated Mining and Smelting rising ½ to 34. Hudson Bay Mining gained ¾ to 69¾ while Noranda and international Nickel were up ¼ each at 46 and 86½.

Speculative issues continued to lose steam and prices eased. Tombill slipped three cents to $1.31. Bunker Hill two cents to 80 cents and Captain ½ cent to nine cents.

Golds were fractionally higher La Luz jumped $1.25 to $6.45. However, this was partially offset with a loss of 30 cents to Dickenson.

The exchange index rose .66 to 143.64, industrials 74 to 152.81, golds .09 to 133.28, base metals .08 to 66.38 and western oils .19 to 96.77. Volume for the day was 3,003,000 shares' compared with 4,320,000 Friday.

Patching Being Done by City Works Dept.

Reparing work along North North Front Street where sewer installation was carried out last fall and winter, is now underway by the city works department.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said the city has entered into an agreement with Beaver Construction to do the work and cold mix used last winter to top off sewer excavations was being furnished and replaced with hot mix.

Hot mix patching in other settlements along the street is also being done, it was stated.

"We feel that the north Front Street patching will return the street to the condition it was prior to the sewer excavations" Mr. Purcell said.

It is the responsibility of a contractor to return a street to prior condition following sewer excavations.

In this instance the city has undertaken to do the patching at a price agreeable to both the city and Beaver Construction.

Ted Broad Still Missing

MADOC (Special) — The search continued for the third day for a 40-year-old Belleville man who disappeared into the bush north of here.

Edward (Ted) Broad, 32 Parker Street west missing Saturday night, when he left a taxi at Eldorado and took to the bush.

No trace has been found of him since.

Provincial police from here, aided by volunteer searchers, have been combing the countryside in the Eldorado area without success.

Mr. Broad is reported to have hunted in the area for many years and is intimately acquainted with the district.

George Barr, Famous 'Ump' Gives Rotary Colorful Talk

If there is one difficult job in this world it is umpiring a baseball game and no one could have been better qualified for the job than former national baseball umpire George Barr, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, who has had 25 years' experience in the big leagues, with the National.

In his opening remarks to the Rotary Club of Belleville on Monday, Mr. Barr said, "friendship, ceases on the ball field." Mr. Barr added, "you had better look that door back there, (referring to the door leading to and from the Pinnacle Room) you fellas pour it on my back when I'm out there behind the catcher, and now I'm going to pour it on you."

He asked if anyone knew the difference between a judge and an umpire. The difference he said is a judge can take up to three weeks to make a decision but an umpire must make his decision instantly.

Mr. Barr stated he had a collection of over 600 autographed baseballs in his club room in his Tulsa home and said it takes about an hour and a half to go through it.

The former umpire has his own method for umpires. He said he got the idea from a football coaches' school. He said since he has started his school, 26 boys have made the big league. "I didn't put them there," he said, "they put themselves there." At one time the school has handled 115 students.

He added that while it takes only three years to make a soldier, it takes five years to make an umpire. He said that never, never in the history of baseball did an umpire ever go crooked.

In concluding Mr. Barr said there was only one place to play baseball and that is in the big leagues. He added that now was a good time to introduce Babe Ruth baseball here.

The now retired umpire has been called on by the United States Government for his services in many parts of the world, and is a director of the Babe Ruth League, having been with them since 1945.

The speaker was introduced by past-president Newton Thompson and thanked on behalf of the club by past-president Harold Mott. The official thanks of the club were extended to Mr. Barr by president Ronald Cass.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Norman Moore. Two special guests were recognized and presented with a boutonniere, in the person of Belleville's "Mr. Baseball" Jack Carson and Belleville Intelligencer Sports Editor, George Carver. On presenting, Mr. Carver with a white carnation, president Cass said, "George, this is in recognition of your innocence and purity".

A report on the Easter Seal campaign was given by chairman William MacCormick who said they were still about seven hundred dollars short of their quota.

Also in attendance at Monday's meeting were two secondary school students, winners of the local speech fair sponsored by the Rotary Club of Belleville. They were Robert Murdock of B.C.I., runner-up and Peter Smeti of Quinte Secondary. The two boys represented Belleville in the national fair at Montreal where Peter received on honorable mention.

Man Pay Taxes, Leaves $12.00 On Counter

Payment of property taxes is costly enough under normal circumstances, but it was even more so last week for Mr. A. Stapley of Johnston Street.

Visiting city hall to pay a property tax instalment, the local pensioner had under estimated by slightly under $3.00 the actual amount owing. So to cover the difference he handed over another $20 bill.

The tax office clerk receipted the tax bill and handed back the change, but in the confusion Mr. Stapley delayed in picking up all of the money.

Missing is another $12, believed picked up from the counter by some other person paying taxes at the same time.

Elder Statesman Is Someone Who Doesn't Do Anything Says Former U. S. President

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — During the last year someone suggested Harry S. Truman, 79, was an elder statesman.

Truman bristled.

"I'm still working hard as I can for the good of the country," he said. "An elder statesman — that's someone who doesn't do anything."

By that definition, as his 80th birthday approaches Friday Harry Truman still is not an elder statesman.

He sticks to his formula: Work hard, walk fast, sleep tight and learn to relax.

A somewhat slower walking pace—it's still fast for 80—and 12 to 14 pounds of recently added weight are the only outward signs of change in the former U.S. president. If anything, they make his appearance more distinguished.

He still keeps the hours of his farm days: Up at 5, in bed at 9:30. He has added brief naps at noon and occasionally at 3:30, when he leaves his office in the Truman library.

OFTEN INVITED

"He turns down an average of 30 to 40 requests for appearances each day and he considers every one of them," says Tom Evans, a close friend.

Through a miraculous budgeting of time, Truman somehow finds a moment for the many people who come to see him.

Reporters don't get much chance to question Truman individually. He holds press conferences when groups of reporters want his comment on a single subject—or he answers questions during the 130-paces-a-minute he calls a walk.

"What got you up so early?" he asks the reporter who greets him at the library at 7:30. Then comes the familiar grin and: "What is it you want to know?"

Is there anything in your life you would change?

"I would change nothing. I've always met every situation as it comes and that's the way it's going to be."

MORE OF THE SAME

What about the future?

"I'm going to be right here, seeing people and writing, just as I have done all along. Political prophets are no good and other seers aren't accurate."

The 33rd president of the United States, who ordered atomic bombs dropped on Japan, now goes grocery shopping with his wife like any other husband.

The man who ordered Greece saved from the Communists and championed the Marshall plan that rescued Western Europe when it looked easy prey to Stalin, drives his 1961 Chrysler to the office daily.

The man who helped establish the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for collective security against Russia once was seen carrying three suits and a top coat to his office to save the cleaner a trip to his home.

The man who instituted the Berlin airlift, who ordered the Communists stopped in Korea, who acclaimed and fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur, now prefully escorts distinguished visitors through his library and lectures to children and college students who visit the building.

WRITING HISTORY

Despite the diversions, Truman keeps single-mindedly to the task of setting down for history the turbulent time of his presidency. His White House secretary, Rose Conway, two other secretaries and two assistants are kept busy compiling that record.

The story of the Truman presidential years will come to U.S. television soon, with the former president himself as narrator. Each of 26 half-hour shows will begin with Truman telling about a major problem he faced at a certain time in the White House. These incidents will be put into a dramatic format. Truman will tell how he finally reached a decision.

ber's health and health services committee, said the possibility of getting adequate services is remote.

2. A proposal by Sarnia that coverage under Ontario's hospital plan include a basic charge against patients entering hospital for treatment, was rejected.

3. Asked that a committee study the possibility of using voting machines in Ontario.

4. Deferred action on a recommendation calling for a crash program to train teachers in conversing in the major languages of the world.

SAID NECESSITY

In arguing for the recommendation, the Stratford delegation said Canadians will have to be able to talk over peoples' languages if they are to meet them in future dealings.

It was rejected on grounds approval might be interpreted as taking the chamber's emphasis away from its standing call for greater teaching of French in Ontario schools.

5. Demanded that any marketing program set up for agricultural products follow the basic principles of a free - enterprise system.

6. Rejected a bid to increase the size of police commissions to five men from three to try to make them more directly responsible to community residents.

7. Called for stepped - up measures to attract tourists, including more publicity, improved tourist facilities, more attention for winter sports, naming of main highways instead of designating them number only and preservation of historic sites.

8. Reaffirmed a standing call for a royal commission to study municipal government.

9. Asked that the status of trade unions be changed so they can sue or be sued in their own name.

10. Demanded legislation to make secondary boycotts during a strike illegal.

HE'S AMAZED

On the Sarnia hospital proposal, C. E. McVicar, president of the Brantford Board of Trade, said he was amazed that the chamber would be asked to encourage any government to increase fees for any institutions were experts in that field and should be left to it.

On pensions, the delegates endorsed a recommendation expressing approval for Ontario's portable pension plan. The proposal also said government - operated public pension plans should be on a pay-as-you-go basis and opposed "the principle of accumulating a fund under a government plan beyond the amount necessary for financing current operations on a year - to - year basis."

A major proposal returned to a committee for further study was Windsor's recommendation that Ontario appoint an "ombudsman," an official who could investigate people's complaints that they had not received fair treatment under the government or its agencies.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

hand to meet that demand." And it was even more important to keep the industry alive against the day demand does revive.

H. A. Olson (SC-Medicine Hat) also urged reconsideration, saying the cutoff will have a severe impact on many communities kept going by the government through periods of slack demand.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said the former government could have had 25 - year contracts with Britain but instead chose promises from the United States.

As long as Canada had Liberal or Conservative governments which took orders from the U.S., Canadians never would be masters of their own economy.

When the stockpiling was announced last June, Mr. Pearson said the government would look for alternate employment for persons affected at the Millikan and Consolidated Denison mines at Elliot Lake and the Faraday Mine at Bancroft.

Mr. Haye promised the government will continue to explore the development of alternate employment.

Killed in Accident

CORNWALL (CP)—One man died and another was injured as a result of a head-on, two-truck collision on Highway 401 about three miles east of Cornwall Monday night.

Robert E. Johnson, 59, of Brockville, died after being admitted to hospital.

His tractor - trailer collided with another driven by Oliver Adamson, 56, also of Brockville. Mr. Adamson was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital today.

Both vehicles burst into flames upon impact.

seemed to be no better than Mr. Cass.

On another matter, Mr. Wishart said Liberal suggestions that laws on bail be changed to prevent persons facing minor charges from languishing in jail had merit.

Answering questions from Andrew Thompson (L—Dovercourt) and James Trotter (L—Parkdale), Mr. Wishart said: "I trust that something can be done and be done before long."

Mr. Thompson said bail should be required in cases where the background of the man showed he was unlikely to run away.

Mr. Trotter said bail was not necessary except in connection with major offences, such as armed robbery.

ANSWERS CHARGE

In other business, Mr. Wishart answered a charge by Donald C. MacDonald leader of the New Democratic Party, that Gamblers pay out $45,000,000 annually in Ontario to bribe politicians, policemen and members of the judiciary.

Basing his estimates on figures turned up in crime studies in the United States, Mr. MacDonald said about $450,000,000 was bet illegally in the province each year.

Bookmakers made a profit of $90,000,000 on this, but paid out half for protection purposes, he said.

Mr. Wishart said he had more confidence in officials than to believe this charge.

Mr. MacDonald also charged that most coroner's juries in Toronto are made up of veteran jurors who serve at least once a year.

FOUND INFRACTIONS

He said he had found 51 infractions of the law between January, 1962 and January, 1964, where persons served twice in a year. The law says a person may serve only once a year.

Mr. Wishart said while he does not condone such practices they do not constitute serious and certainly not criminal practices. By serving more than once on a jury a person might become a more competent juryman, he said.

In other business, Ken Bryden (NDP — Toronto Woodbine) called for a royal commission into the shooting deaths of three loggers at Reesor's siding, near Kapuskasing, in February, 1962.

He said residents of the area were not satisfied that police had gathered all the evidence available against those who did the shooting or that justice had been done in convicting offenders only on a charge of possession of offensive weapons.

Mr. Trocewicz caught a fish of this weight but the picture showed the real "winner," Foster Jackson, R.R. 1, Picton, who got a family tent for a pickerel that weighed just .385 pounds.

Two Are Killed In 401 Crash East of Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Two persons were killed and two others injured Monday night in a two car collision on Highway 401 about 15 miles east of here.

Dead are Mrs. Martha Ward, 42, of Ajax, Ont., and Joseph Latour, 41, of London, Ont.

Police said that Latour was alone in his car, and apparently was travelling west in the east-bound lane.

Mrs. Ward was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Gordon, who was taken to Scarborough General Hospital with chest injuries and lacerations. Their son, James, 10, was taken to hospital with a broken leg and lacerations.

Cars driven by Mrs. Joan Hill of Whitby and Mrs. Rosalea Whitbread of Oshawa were also involved in the pileup. Mrs. Whitbread was treated for minor injuries in hospital at Oshawa and released.

Ann Landers

Physician One to See for Advice on Skin Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am an 18-year-old high school senior (boy) with the worst case of acne in the whole world. Lots of guys in our class have acne, but nobody has it as bad as I do.

ANN LANDERS

The woman who lives next door to us is very friendly with my mother. She gives Mom medical advice, legal advice, and social advice. If she told my mother to put motor oil on her cereal Mom would do it.

This neighbor says acne should be left alone and that I will outgrow it. She claims too much doctoring will make acne worse and that just plain soap and water and time will take care of everything.

I am so self-conscious about the way I look that I am ready to quit school and go into hiding.

Mom always hands me your column (when you agree with her), so will you please print my letter and suggest something that might help? — MISERABLE MIKE.

DEAR MIKE — Is that neighbor lady a physician? If she isn't I suggest your mother take you to one immediately.

Acne cases often respond to a change in diet, special medication and lamp treatments. Skin problems can have devastating emotional effects on teen-agers. You need the advice of an expert, not the back-fence opinion of a neighbor. And now, Mike, please hand this column to your mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In recent weeks you have dealt with "the compulsive talker." I wish you would tell a distraught victim how to cope with the problem. In my case, I am plagued by three compulsive talkers — my wife, her mother and her aunt.

I've been told that I'm a good listener and I appreciate the compliment. But even a good listener likes to get in a sentence now and then. With the three aforementioned females it is utterly impossible. They end every sentence with "and — however" or "and — furthermore," just to let you know they aren't through talking yet.

Is there a tactful way to break in? Or must one just shout down the compulsive talker and talk over him? — OLD BUNION EARS.

* * *

DEA ROLD BUN — Why bother? These wall-to-wall bores are not interested in conversation. They want only to talk talk talk.

Your best defence when trapped by someone who has three months and no ears is to tune him out and think about something else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Maybe you outsmarted yourself. That letter which you said was a phony — the one from the man who wrote he had been dating the same girl for 37 years — could have been on the level.

A lovely woman who lives next door to my grandmother has been going with the same man since their high school days. Her parents would not consent to a marriage because he was of a different religion and refused to change. So they just continued to go together, for the past 40 years.

The woman's parents died a long time ago but she feels it would be an insult to their memory if she married the man, so she are still going together.

Now are you willing to admit you made a mistake? — COLUMBUS.

DEAR COLUMBUS — When I feel I have made a mistake I am not ashamed to admit it, but that was such a phony that only an addlebrained idiot would buy it.

Res-read the letter, Bub — especially the part about the 83-year-old mother who could no longer chaperone the aging couple because she broke her hip skiing at SunValley last year. Then write again, will you?

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems, and them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

concrete actions to implement the ARDA program.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound — Muskoka) said there has been no collective or co - ordinated effort on the government's part to find a solution to the water problem.

There was no evidence that the government had any real concern about water levels on the Great Lakes. The government had said, in effect, there is nothing we can do."

However, there were some things that could be done. Short-term measures, such as dredging channels and harbors for ships, could be undertaken. Long - term action could include studies of runoff and inquiries into how much water is drained from the lakes at Chicago.

ASSESSMENT WRONG

Mr. Aiken, whose riding borders on Georgian Bay which is one of the areas affected by the low water levels, said the government has made an improper assessment of the real situation.

It has been accepting lack of rain as an easy, plausible answer to the problem, but there were other causes.

The government blames the government for not taking emergency action to correct the immediate situation, and for not planning long - term measures. There had been no effective or co-ordinated effort on the part of the government to deal with falling water levels.

John Turner (L—Montreal St. Lawrence - St. George), parliamentary secretary to Resources Minister Laing, said the facts don't back up the claim by Mr. Dinsdale that the momentum of resources developed slowed down under the Liberals.

Former prime minister Diefenbaker made his major speech on resources in 1958 and it was 1961 before the resources-for-tomorrow conference was actually called.

DOUBTS TROUBLE

He doubted whether the Liberal government would have trouble matching it.

The water level on the Great Lakes involved a periodic fluctuation and the previous Conservative government took no action to ward off the present low levels. The Opposition now was "turning this problem into a trumped - up motion of want of confidence."

He said they had to dredge up weak arguments and muddy the waters to find a subject for a motion.

New Democratic Leader Douglas said that more water is a necessity if there is to be increased agricultural production on the Prairies.

Jack Davis (L — Coast-Capilano) forecast development schemes which would divert waters, which normally flow to Hudson Bay with no productive use, to the Great Lakes system.

Sensational Charges Made Against Khrushchev in Book Being Circulated in Asia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

A Chinese-inspired book circulating in Asia levels sensational charges against Nikita Khrushchev and illuminates the monumental Moscow - Peking battle for domination of revolutional movements in the underdeveloped world.

Bursting with anti-Khrushchev fury, the book accuses the Soviet leader of such things as plotting against Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba and advocating abandonment of the Communist struggle to take over South Viet Nam and Laos in Southeast Asia.

The charges and documentation could have come only from Peking. With Moscow's latest lament that the Chinese are trying to freeze the Soviet Union out of Asia, indications are that the dispute has gone past the point of no return and that the breaking point is near.

The book was published in Ceylon this last year. It was written in English by Theja Gunaward Hana, a Ceylonese Communist leader who is active in the "Afro-Asian solidarity" movement. Its text indicates it was virtually dictated by the Chinese. The title of the book is Khrushchevism.

Here are a few of the accusations against Khrushchev:

—That he made a deal with president Kennedy for "20 years of peace" and pledged not to support violent revolutions.

HUMILIATED CASTRO

—That he deliberately built up the October, 1962, missile crisis to humiliate Fidel Castro so that the Cuban regime would be overthrown in favor of Moscow - trained Communists.

—That he sent agents to Peking to foment trouble between Chinese and Africans, particularly in the university.

—That he plotted the Hungarian uprising in 1956 in a deal with Yugoslav President Tito, only to have it backfire into fullblown revolution.

That he bludgeoned Communist - ruled nations with threats of economic reprisals so they would toe his line. The book said he threatened to boycott the sugar of one nation (obviously Cuba) and that he threatened to expel others from the Communist family, hinting that those threatened were Romania and North Viet Nam or North Korea.

—That his policies caused rebellion against his rule in Soviet central Asia.

—That the Romanian party accused him of advocating abandonment of collectivization.

—That Khrushchev had to purge Czechoslovak and East German Communist leaders for opposing his line.

—That he bled Red China for repayment of every ruble in loans for the prosecution of the Korean War.

INSULTS KHRUSHCHEV

The book, citing little known documents which must have been supplied by the Red Chinese, goes far back in the history of the Moscow-Peking dispute to portray "Ilea - litten Khrushchev" as an "adventurist, opportunist, traitor, manipulator, stage manager — all of which produce the modern revisionist."

The author, once again seeming to echo Peking, predicts that Khrushchev will be the next European Communist nation to join Albania in breaking away from the Khrushchev camp. He says Romanian Communist chief Gheorghe Gheorgiu - Dej "is a brave man, and the world will soon see the Romanian peoples republic also proving its national sovereignty."

Since the book was published, Romanian leaders have travelled to Peking and have been pictured in the forefront of efforts to soft-pedal the Moscow-Peking dispute. But Gheorghiu-Dej did fail to show up at a round of Khrushchev meetings recently with satellite leaders.

SEES EASIER LIFE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon said Monday "life should be a lot easier" for Canada following the U.S.-Canada talks in Ottawa last week. He said in a press conference that during the talks Canada "finally got across" her position "of getting our current accounts into balance. The U.S. agreed the only way we could do it was to expand exports."

Want Ontario To Put Slogan On Car Plates

OTTAWA (CP)—Should Ontario put an advertising slogan on its car licence plates as some other provinces do?

The Ontario Chamber of Commerce decided Monday it should, but not before the suggestion was attacked as a cheap, undignified form of advertising.

W. E. Wall of Burlington told the chamber's annual meeting that it is all right to swim along with the tide of commercialism, but there is no need to go down the sewer just because other people do.

His opposition lost out, however, as the delegates at the meeting approved a recommendation calling for Ontario to produce a colorful and attractive licence plate—incorporating a slogan that would be recognized as a provincial symbol.

Four Questioned

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) Four suspected members of the underground Armee de Liberation du Quebec are being questioned in connection with the theft of weapons from a Shawinigan, Que., armory, police said Monday night.

The four youths were picked up Monday night in a combined raid by the RCMP and provincial police on a house in this community 40 miles east of Montreal. Police confirmed their arrest but declined to investigate.

Gordon Expects Bigger Deficits Or More Taxes

VANCOUVER (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon indicated Monday night that the new tax-sharing arrangements with the provinces could mean increased federal budget deficits if additional taxes are not imposed.

In a speech to the British Columbia division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Gordon praised the new federal-provincial agreement and the way in which it was brought about.

"It was one of those occasions when everyone concerned took a broad view, an unselfish view, of the right course to be taken."

But it would mean, he added, that the federal government would have to find some way to replace the additional revenues it is giving to the provinces.

Mr. Gordon indicated later that three proposed banks must wait until fall for their federal charters.

He said in an interview the government hopes to amend the Bank Act in the fall after studying the recently-released report of the royal commission on banking.

Charter applications have been made by the proposed banks of Western Canada, British Columbia and Laurentide.

Too Much Hair On His Chest, Refused Job

LONDON (CP) — A former army sergeant claimed Monday he was turned down for a job as machine operator because he had too much hair on his chest.

Eric Kinsella, 27, of Newport in Monmouthshire, told reporters that a doctor examining him advised: "You've got too much hair on your chest." The doctor then wrote "unfit" on Kinsella's application card.

"I've heard that it may be connected with abrasive oils getting into my hair but I worked previously as a machine operator and didn't have any trouble," Kinsella said.

WEDDING

SPENCE—KOSTER

FRANKFORD — On Saturday afternoon, April 25th, a lovely wedding was solemnized in Trinity Anglican Church, when Rev. F. F. Downing united in marriage Linda Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Foster of Frankford, and James Charles Spence, only son of Mr. Archie Spence and the late Mrs. Spence of Trenton.

The wedding music was played by Miss Doris Sadler, and the choir sang two selections. The altar was decorated with white carnations and white satin bows adorned the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz-length gown of Chantilly lace over satin with fitted bodice and scalloped neckline, and long pointed sleeves. She wore a scalloped crown of pearls and carried a bouquet of red carnations with lily-of-the-valley.

Maid of honor was Miss Susan Foster, sister of the bride, who wore a rose taffeta gown with matching headdress and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Miss Joanne Maybee, as bridesmaid wore a gown of mint green nylon over taffeta with matching headdress and flowers.

Miss Diane Maybee, the other bridesmaid wore a gown of blue nylon over taffeta with matching headdress and flowers.

Flower girl was little Miss Mary Ann Maybee of Frankford who wore a pink dress with Peter Pan collar, with full ruffled skirt and white accessories. She carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Groomsman was Mr. Steve Larkin of Trenton and ushers were Mr. Jack Foster and Mr. Louie Isaac of Trenton.

The reception was held in Trinity Anglican Parish Hall decorated with wedding bells and pink and white streamers. The bridal table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom figures with silver leaves and sprigs of lily of the valley and flanked with white candles.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a three-piece brown suit with beige accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Charles Wigmore of Montreal, Quebec who wore a navy blue dress and duster ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling, the bride chose a three piece black and white ensemble with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

They will reside in Trenton.

Guests were present from Oshawa, Trenton, Hamilton, Montreal and Wooler.

Student Nurse Depressed By Rigorous Routine

DEAR DORIS — I've been in training for a nurse since last September. Our days are long and at times (usually once a week) some of us get very depressed. We have to be in at 11 p.m. except for one night a week when we have off until one. We have one weekend off per month.

DORIS CLARE

Last fall my boy friend and I broke off because I thought I was too young to get married. Now I'm beginning to wonder if anything could be much harder than this. When you're married, you're not alone and if anything's hard to take, it's easier when there's two. It's not easy to take care of sick people and study all night. I'm really complaining for all of us.

But now that we're in this, we want to finish it. Do you have any suggestions that might help make this kind of life easier for us, especially if we're boy-friend-less? — NURSIE.

DEAR NURSIE — It's tough going, isn't it? You enter the noble and glamorous profession of nursing with stars in your eyes. Then you are brought down to earth with a thump.

Be reassured. Right now you have hit bottom. The only way you can go is up. Those first few months of heavy study and menial labor will give way to the more exciting phases of patient care before long.

When the patients start knowing and loving you, you'll rise and shine! What's more, you'll be acquiring knowledge which will stand you in good stead for raising a family, or providing the wherewithal to realise your heart's desire whatever that may be.

When the girls get together, plan for fun instead of griping sessions. Therefore not, take a break after hours for a "do" even if it's just coffee and a hand of bridge, or a TV show in the recreation room.

Confidential to LEFT OUT — Thirteen is too young for individual dates with boys. Group get-togethers — yes; solos — no. And the come-home time is a matter for discussion and agreement with parents.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

— BY pegg rogers

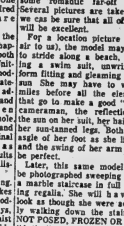
LIGHTS, ACTION AND THEN CAMERA

Fashion photography is a fascinating aspect of fashion reporting and a most important part of the reporter's trade. One good picture is worth a hundred words, or so the writers are told.

Over the past ten years, the most peculiar things have happened in the fashion studios both here in Canada and in the United States. Ten years ago, models were posed, often elaborately, gowns pinned, highlights adjusted by reflecting beams and several pictures were taken from different angles. The whole process was repeated again and again and again. When the final picture was selected from as many as 20 shots, the results could often be stiff and unrealistic.

Today, realism is the thing. Something called "action" takes place. For a photographic model to be a success these days, she must be both a contortionist and an athlete. She must be able to assume the most complicated poses while illustrating the virtues of the fashion she is wearing and she must look as though she is enjoying the whole process.

STUDIO SESSION

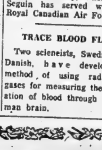


A studio session in 1964 can be a strange mixture of tension and relaxation. The model rushes to change to her "number", she arranges her hair and makeup. When she emerges to the studio, an air of calm takes over — she stops rushing and becomes completely passive. She may be requested to climb halfway up a stepladder, which will not be seen in the final picture. She will be asked to lean sideways at a 45 degree angle while holding out the chiffon skirt of her evening gown. Lights are adjusted, a fan is turned on to flutter her gown.

Then she is told to "take it easy" — meaning hold that pose. After another five minutes of adjusting lights and camera, the photographer indicates that he is ready to shoot. Suddenly, as if by magic, the model becomes animated in a relaxed sort of way. Smiling and confident, she moves her arm just a little, her gown flutters and she looks as though she were in some romantic far-off place. Several pictures are taken and we can be sure that all of them will be excellent.

For a location picture (open air to us), the model may have to stride along a beach, wearing a swim suit, unwrinkled, form fitting and gleaming in the sun. She may have to walk miles before all the elements that go to make a good "shot" cameraman, the reflection of the sun on her suit, her hair and her sun-tanned legs. Both the angle of her foot as she lifts it and the swing of her arm must be perfect.

Later, this same model may be photographed sweeping down a marble staircase in full evening regalia. She will have to look as though she were actually walking down the stairs — NOT POSED, FROZEN OR SET. "Action" must be apparent!



If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Baby-Sitting Business Is Undergoing a Change

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Mention "baby - sitter" in a roomful of parents and there will be no need to worry about conversation.

Everyone will have a gem to brag about or a list of the terrible things suffered at the hands of sitters.

And if anyone ever accumulated a roomful of sitters and brought up the topic of "parents," the same thing would happen.

Since parents and sitters need each other, they usually get along, in a wary sort of way. But some have a long search before they find a perfect match and settle down to true contentment.

The experiences on both sides seem to follow a universally recognizable pattern.

Though parents are always certain it is a sleeping angel they are entrusting to an outsider, the outsider may have her own opinion of the heavenliness of her charge.

Mother is sure her home will be in for an under-the-rug inspection. Sitters say you need only be conscious to notice that some mothers are not the best housekeepers.

Mothers say sitters won't even wash their own cups and saucers. Sitters say some women expect them to do the dinner dishes and clean the kitchen at no extra charge.

RATES VARY

But if the comments are much the same from coast to coast, the same cannot be said of the rates. A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows there are places where you can hire a sitter for as little as 25 cents an hour and others where the charge by adults hits an almost prohibitive level.

There is also evidence that the baby-sitting business is undergoing a change. Teen-agers still get a bumper share of neighborhood jobs but they are under increasing pressure to take training courses. And employment agencies specializing in providing adult sitters are spreading.

One result of the growth of the agencies is that the ground rules for both parents and sitters are becoming more clearly defined. Not that everyone is happy about the situation.

For example, agencies insist on door-to-door transportation home for sitters after certain hours. Some parents feel that a sitter living in the neighborhood doesn't need a ride home. Others say they be unhappy because the sitter lives so far away that it takes an hour to get there.

From the point of view of the sitter, the condition of some fathers after a party makes them feel it would be better if they were sent home in a taxi. That costs more money.

Courses for teen - age sitters are offered by YWCAs, women's clubs, schools, community centres, safety organizations, the Red Cross and others. Often fire departments, medical and police representatives lend a hand. In Red Deer, Alta., the Jaycettes won the 1963 Alberta Safety Council award for women's groups with its course.

A typical course is one planned by the Ontario Safety League. Students take seven classes covering health and character, simple nursing care, emergencies, ages and stages of children and a panel discussion with parents.

Each girl works for a day for woman other than her own mother and is reported on. She writes an exam and is given a wallet card.

A Montreal group gives graduates a baby-sitter's kit bag which includes course information and some toys.

There is no minimum legal age for sitters but the Alberta Safety Council group in Edmonton won't issue a graduation card to a child under 14 and recommends that girls be 12 before taking the course.

Most agencies have a minimum age of 21 to 30 and most of their sitters are older, often married women who have brought up their own families and are occasionally lonesome for children.

100 NAMES

They have no specialized training but are usually chosen on the basis of interviews and character references. If they are mothers, they are usually nurses or teachers, people accustomed to children.

The average agency keeps about 100 sitters on its list. One Toronto agency head says she feels more than that would be too many because she wants to know each one of them.

Most agencies require punctuality and company, no drinking, respectable appearance. They sometimes have a set of rules that may not agree with what parents think.

For example, in Ottawa an agency sitter saved a child from smothering in a plastic mattress cover. She ignored the parents' request to leave the child alone, preferring to follow the agency instructions to check on the child every half hour.

The sitters must be booked during normal daytime office hours in many cases. When a family has found a favorite sitter the agency will usually try to send her each time but won't guarantee it.

MINIMUM CHARGE

Almost all have minimum charges, based on two or three hours. Some charge extra to mind more than three children or children under three months. The price usually goes up after midnight.

In some cities a new class of professional sitter is developing. Some have built a clientele and then leave the agency so that they need no longer hand over a percentage of their fee.

A rule of thumb on rates is that the smaller the community, the lower they are. But it doesn't always work that way.

St. John's, Nfld., for example, while teen-agers charge around 50 to 75 cents an hour, adults may ask $1.50 to $2, the result of a general scarcity of sitters.

Chadlottetown sitters are as inexpensive as any, at 25 cents for teen-agers and 35 for adults. Halifax runs 25 to 35 cents for teens and 50 for grown-ups and Saint John, N.B., ranges between 50 and 75 for both.

Montreal teen-agers get 50 to 60 and adults and agency sitters 60 while the Toronto rate is 50 cents for teens, 60 for adults and 60 to 65 for agencies.

The agency fee in Winnipeg is 35 to 40 cents but carfare and taxi expenses tend to push this higher. This compares with 30 cents for other sitters.

Regina teen-agers get about 35 cents and agencies 50; Edmonton and Calgary run 35 to 50 for teens and 50 for agencies, and Vancouver girls get 25 to 35 an hour against 50 for agency sitters.

Broilers Will Be Economical Food in May

OTTAWA (CP) — Broiler chickens will continue to be economical food buy in Canada this month, says the monthly food bulletin issued Monday by the federal agriculture department.

The bulletin also says that good and choice grades (blue and red brands) of beef still are plentiful throughout the country. Beef prices are expected to remain at present levels during the month.

The bulletin's predictions for other staple foods this month:

Veal: Supplies will be seasonally plentiful for the next few weeks and prices may be slightly lower than last year.

Cheese: Large seasonal gains in cheese production in May will supply the market with the needed variety of cheeses to keep prices stable.

Evaporated milk: Seasonally higher use of cream and ice in May is usually associated with a larger May consumption of evaporated milk. Production of evaporated milk is up and supplies are plentiful.

Eggs: Egg production continues to run about 10 per cent ahead of last year. Prices are expected to remain near present levels.

Turkeys: Turkeys 10 pounds and over remain in short supply and prices will remain high.

Apples: Good quality apples are plentiful. At mid-April, Ontario McIntosh at Toronto were selling at $4.00-$4.75 a bushel.

Potatoes: Maritime potatoes still are plentiful and local potatoes are available in Alberta. Prices are expected to advance with the season.

MARGIE'S FRUITED PLAN

BY MARY MOORE

If you do not own a flan pan do not be discouraged. This colorful dessert looks almost as good with a cake made in layer cake tins.

I bought my flan pans in Camberley in England, but because I know they are not standard equipment in Canadian kitchens I baked half of the batter in one layer cake tin and the other half in a flan pan. As you doubtless know, a flan pan is a layer cake tin with a raised bottom — giving a finished cake, when turned upside down, with a depression in centre to receive some fruit.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chicken Noodle and Mushroom Casserole; Sliced Parsleyed Carrots; Tossed Vegetable Salad; Baked Custard with Cherry Sauce; Tea.

MARJIE'S FRUITED FLAN:

Note: I used canned gooseberries and a few maraschino cherries, but many other fruits are just as good.)

Batter: (This is a one-egg cake) 1-3 cup shortening, ⅔ cup sugar (1 cup less 2 tablespoons), 1 egg, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 vanilla, 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ cup undiluted pak-cup milk.

Cream together shortening and sugar well, then beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt and add these dry ingredients alternately with the pak-cup milk until you have a light airy batter. (If you have two flan pans batter and use them.) Pour batter into two buttered layer cake tins, lined on bottoms with buttered wax paper. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes. Turn out on cake racks, peel off wax paper and cool.

Glaze: Drain juice from one 15-oz. can gooseberries (36% packed in England). Measure juice. Add and soak in it one package plain gelatine for 5 minutes. Add enough boiling water to make total liquid up to 3 cups and stir until dissolved. Stir in ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon almond extract and about 6 drops green food colouring to tint delicately green. Chill until softly set. This is an important step.

Pile drained gooseberries in centre of one layer of cake (or in centre of flan layer), leaving bare a 1" border. Cut 4 maraschino cherries in 3 slices each and arrange slices around edge. Spoon softly set green gelatine mixture carefully over top of depth of about ¼" or ⅜". Chill until set. When ready to serve whip ½ cup heavy cream until stiff and spoon in small mounds around bare sides of cake, letting it peak just a little above edge. (Or you could pipe this on with your icing tube if you could use whipped topping).

½ cockiugLoS_svd.qolio

NOTES:

1) You could use other fruits such as canned Mandarin oranges or pineapple crescents or peaches, sliced. But if you use yellow fruits use yellow food colouring instead of green.

2) Freezer-wrap and freeze remaining layer cake for a future meal.

Beautiful, popular and Christmasy looking so remember this.

Buyers from as far as Japan, the Falkland Islands, South America, Canada, the United States and Europe have gathered for the 11th London Fashion Week previewing ready-to-wear clothes for next fall and winter.

Over 28 London fashion houses mounting the show hope to sell more than £2,000,000 worth of fashion wear in the next five days.

The new Gibson Girl look is personified in black and grey striped Welsh flannel dresses with long tight sleeves and deep V-necks filled in with pin-tucked, buttoned gilets. Frills at the neck, elbow-length sleeves and an outsize "Tom Jones" velvet hair bow complete the picture.

For later in the day, striped flannel is teamed with black broderie anglaise.

VELVET OPULENT

Velvet is a popular material for coats, suits and dresses in flirting jewel colors.

Leather and suede have been given new elegance and lifted out of their sportswear range into evening wear. Geranium calf suede is tailored in a wrap-over coat dress and mink feather is teamed with midnight blue suede in an offbeat suit.

Rough tweeds and mohairs still are favorites for winter coats. Fur is used on cuffs as well as collars, hats are low-slung and narrow.

Knitwear either has a handcrocheted look, as in suits and small casuals, or is in smooth, elegant cashmere and lambswool.

Skirts stay knee length and narrow. There is hardly a gathered skirt or shirtwaister to be seen so far.

Evening dresses have a My Fair Lady look. They are straight skirted and elegant. Some are extremely narrow.

Colors include kingfisher blue, purple, amber, french mustard, walnut brown and two new greens: Rifle green (a soft dark moss) and salad (a gay green). There is also smog gray—a very dark charcoal.

L. Breese regretfully informed them they couldn't qualify. Craig is eight and Marshall seven years old.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: We were invited for a visit last evening at the home of friends. It wasn't a party, just a gathering of three couples for a get-together after dinner. Around ten o'clock, the hostess set out a buffet consisting of a hot casserole and salad, with coffee and cake afterward. Since we did not expect to eat, my husband and I had had a full meal around seven, and were not at all hungry. He helped himself, anyway, but I said I could not eat, and just had coffee. I hope I was not impolite, but I do think the hostess should have mentioned her plans so we would have dined lightly and had some appetite left for her late supper. What do you think?
— Mrs. S. F., Hartford, Conn.

Answer: When a hostess plans to serve food, she should let her guests know, for the reason you gave instead of inviting you for a visit, she should have mentioned that the evening included a late supper. However, even so, it was inconsiderate not to have let her efforts be appreciated. You should have taken a small portion, just out of courtesy.

Question: A friend of mine always makes me nervous when she comes to our house, simply because she dogs my footsteps at every turn. If I go into the kitchen just to empty an ashtray, she trails along, asking if she can help. I try to slip out when she has her back turned, but she always catches up. I appreciate her good intentions but I'd rather do things myself, and someone under foot only makes me feel disorganized. Would it be impolite to say no when she offers to help, or must I put up with unwanted assistance out of courtesy? — Mrs. L. P., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: When a guest offers to help, it's permissable for the hostess to decline with thanks, When someone's persistant, though, rather than hurt her feelings, often it's possible to find something for her to do — like please talk to old Mr. Potts in the corner while you're getting the coffee. At least a request like this makes her feel she's doing something to help, and it does keep her out of the kitchen while you sail through your tasks.

LEARNED FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS — Dolores (Dee) Skrien, wife of Dave Skrien, coach of the British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, learned the fundamentas of football when her husband spread a dozen oranges across the living room floor and explained the different moves. She also attended Lions' sponsored "specator classes" in an attempt to learn more about her husband's work. (CP Photo)

Wife of Football Coach Learned Game Hard Way

VANCOUVER (CP)—A dozen oranges spread across the living room floor by an expert was the way Mrs. David Skrien learned the fundamentals of football.

She says she hasn't finished learning it all yet.

Dolores (Dee) Skrien is the wife of Dave Skrien, coach of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

Her knowledge of her husband's craft was somewhat limited when the Skriens moved here, so she attended the Lions-sponsored "spectator classes," then completed her lessons at home with Dave spreading out the oranges.

Dolores met her husband-to-be while teaching in schools at Pine City, Minn. Dave was a blind date who turned up at her doorstep with his six-foot, 200-pound frame bundled against the Minnesota winter.

He looked "enormous," recalls the petite Mrs. Skrien.

Mrs. Skrien describes herself and her husband as self-disciplinarians.

Dave's job is a year-round one, and often requires his attention seven days a week.

KEEPS CLEAR

Dolores and her three sons see Dave at breakfast, and often that's it for the day during the football season.

Bruce, the youngest son, was born here while Dave was in Edmonton on a football assignment. Mrs. Skrien, having been here only six weeks and knowing no one, called a cab to take her to the hospital. Bruce was born 30 minutes later.

Mrs. Skrien believes in leaving the coaching to her husband. She doesn't travel with the team and goes to games here not with her husband but with friends.

She sits 29 rows above the Lions' bench. She says she has learned to shut her ears to abuse that sometimes is hurled by grandstand quarterbacks.

Being the wife of a football coach "requires a great deal of self-discipline," she says.

There are rewards, too. "My seven years of marriage have been like seven days. I haven't had a chance to catch my breath."

Now there are four great BP gasolines . . . one Regular and three Supers.

Why four? Because it takes exactly four, each with its own scientifically determined octane rating, to satisfy the full range of power requirements of the 148 makes of cars on the road. That's why BP has added two new medium-octane, medium-price Super gasolines between Regular and the top-powered Super.

Perhaps you are one of the 591,000 premium buyers who can make the switch from top-priced fuels to one of BP's new intermediate gasolines. You'll save 2¢, even 4¢ per gallon . . . save enough to buy up to 900 extra miles of driving in a year.

Canadian Delegation Will Argue for Reduction in European Farm Protection

GENEVA (CP) — The Canadian delegation planned to argue strongly in closed ministerial sessions of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade today for a substantial reduction in European farm protection as a necessary part of the Kennedy round negotiations.

The Canadian move was designed as vigorous support for the United States position that barriers erected against farm produce to protect the farmers of the Common Market countries must be included in the tariff bargaining to achieve real reciprocity.

However, Canadian sources stressed that theirs would be a pragmatic approach, rather than inflexible demands for cutting tariff and non-tariff barriers to world trade has strengthened during the past year, despite disagreement over stabilizing prices.

He joined spokesmen for the other major trading nations in urging a cautious but optimistic and determination to make a success of the negotiations.

He said there will be no substantial fully, seeking better terms of access to foreign markets for both its primary and secondary industrial products and in return stands ready to pay for such access by reducing Canadian tariffs on a selective basis.

Meanwhile, the formal opening of the ministerial conference opened up some doubt that the Kennedy round of tariff gaining will begin. Originally it was hoped to write the ground rules for bargaining to begin next fall.

But Jean Rey, the Common Market commissioner, said Monday it would be realistic to use the rest of this year for preparatory work. Bargaining then would begin in early 1965, being completed by the summer.

On the other hand, Christian Herter, the special U.S. trade representative, called for an effort to settle the remaining issues quickly. He said the broad the rules are left open, "the more we risk the success of the entire trade negotiations."

Lake Ontario Down 15 Inches From Last Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Abnormally - low water levels on the Great Lakes and upper St. Lawrence River system have been causing harassment to shipping and concern to waterside industry, but the situation appears to be easing.

Lakes Huron and Michigan have hit an all - time bottom. Levels on the lakes generally are described by one official as at a "once-in-a-lifetime low."

Some larger vessels have been unable to load full cargo in navigating certain channels and ports. Pleasure boating has been hit by stranded docks and navigation obstructions in shallow water.

Fears were expressed for the jobs of up to 1,000 men at the shipyards at Collingwood, Ont., where the water was three feet below normal and launchings could become impossible.

The Niagara River between lakes Ontario and Erie was at its lowest on record, and an Ontario Hydro spokesman said billions of kilowatt hours of electricity could be lost in the Niagara Falls plant. The seaway-hydro installation near Cornwall was operating at two-thirds of normal.

However, an encouraging word came from the United States lakes survey at Detroit, which forecast rises in levels between one and nine inches for this month.

By latest readings, Lake Ontario was down 15 inches from last year, Lakes Huron and Michigan 13, Lake Erie six and Lake Superior two. Lake Ontario was down 27 inches from the previous 10 - year average, Huron and Michigan 24, Erie 13 and Superior three.

Lake Ontario, according to the U.S. survey, was due to go up nine inches in June following an April rise of a foot that put it 14 inches above the all-time low of 1933. A two - inch rise was forecast for Huron and Michigan, one inch for Erie and three inches for Superior.

Erie and Michigan 15 inches above its 1934 record low. Huron still had four inches to go to get that thing, along with Michigan. Superior was 17 inches over.

Meanwhile, there were no reports of water supply or sewage problems on the Canadian shore, though some were reported on the American side.

Experts attributed the situation to a dry fall and to precipitation during the winter. Snow on the Great Lakes drainage basin was generally light.

Accused to Face Charges of Rape, Armed Robbery

SARNIA (CP) — Lawrence Clifford Hand, 29, of Walpole Island, Monday was ordered to trial by judge and jury on charges of rape and armed robbery.

He is charged with the rape of a 15-year-old Port Lambton girl and the robbery of her companion, Arthur Bernard, also of Port Lambton.

Also ordered to trial on the robbery charge is Herbert George, 20, of Kettle Point. Magistrate J. C. Dunlap found no evidence at the preliminary inquiry to implicate a third man, Wayne Fisher, also of Walpole Island and the robbery charge against him was dismissed.

A fourth man charged in the robbery, Ronald Jacques, 19, of Sarnia, was convicted April 27 and sentenced to a year in reformatory.

Mr. Bernard and his companion were attacked in the early hours of Feb. 23 as they sat in a parked car. He was robbed of his car and $140 and the young woman taken to Sarnia Indian Reserve, where she was assaulted before police rescued her.

New Sheriff Of Temiskaming Under Attack

TORONTO (CP) — The new sheriff of the District of Temiskaming owns or controls a company that has lost property for non - payment of taxes and has been sued for non - payment of wages, New Democratic Leader Donald C. MacDonald said Monday night.

Mr. MacDonald read a report in the legislature he had received about Sheriff Robert McArthur during consideration of budget estimates of the Attorney General's department.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said he knew nothing of the report but would investigate.

Mr. MacDonald said he had been told that Mr. McArthur, 67, who took office Jan. 2, owns or controls McArthur Mining and Machinery Company. He said the company had lost property to the town of Cobalt for non - payment of taxes and had been sued in divisional and district courts on several occasions.

One charge, he said, was no payment of wages.

Mr. MacDonald also said the company says Mr. McArthur was also charged with highgrading in 1941 or 1942 but wasn't convicted.

The NDP leader had said earlier Mr. McArthur was recommended for the job as sheriff by the local Progressive Conservative Association.

U. S. May Be Planning Some Action Against Cuba

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Various authoritative hints seem to indicate the U.S. administration is planning some new action in connection with Cuba, perhaps in the form of support for Cuban exiles. These exiles may be planning to resume harassment tactics or make an actual landing on Cuba soil.

The U.S. administration seeks to retain an appearance of tranquillity. And the movement of aircraft and troop movements in southern regions have been denied—just as they were denied prior to the 1961 and 1962 crises. There even were some official statements that Cuba isn't much of a threat after all because the Russians had withdrawn the most powerful of their surface-to-air rockets.

Now the officials have done an about-face, denying the reports widely distributed in the U.S. that any of the Soviet rockets had been withdrawn. An authoritative source, whose reports proved accurate during the 1962 missile crisis, said the rockets in Cuba are of top quality and capable of hitting a high-flying U-2 reconnaissance plane.

CASTRO THREAT

Premier Fidel Castro has threatened to destroy these rockets "immediately" if they continue to fly over Cuba's soil and President Johnson has warned that any Cuban action which would bring serious consequences, presumably U.S. military retaliation. The informant said it was in connection with the president's remarks that U.S. forces in Florida have been strengthened.

But there appears to be more to American planning than the possibility of a plane incident. Cuban exiles who survived the 1961 Bay of Pigs fiasco are reported to be training and recruiting in the Florida area for military forces being trained in remote Central American hideout.

Indications are the exiles may try to begin new harassment forays against Cuba within a month, perhaps through some sort of invasion but more likely through new hit-and-run attacks and the slow process of infiltration. Asked what the U.S. will do about such moves, the informant replied cautiously that it is just possible the U.S. may provide some aid.

Despite the suggestions of Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, that the U.S. is paying too much attention to Cuba, Johnson has been placed in an embarrassing position by a heavy barrage of Republican demands for a final solution to the Cuban issue.

RELUCTANT IN PAST

The presence of large numbers of Russians in Cuba may have been a reason why, in the more recent past the U.S. government displayed extreme reluctance to take any overt military move that could lead to a Cuban-U.S. explosion. Now the Soviet Union is reported to have withdrawn most of its forces.

Moreover, the American informant suggests Castro's economic troubles at home are deepening and the Communist party in Havana seems to have split.

The conditions may be ripe for some new action—for the U.S. may be talking itself into new trouble.

DOUBLE-SIZE CEMENT MIXERS mounted on tractor-trailer chassis were brought in from out of town by Permanent Transit Mix Concrete Ltd. to pour the floor at the Baxter cannery at Bloomfield. The 12-yard capacity trucks made it possible to pour a 300 cubic yard floor in the factory yesterday, and to pour 180 yards of concrete in the warehouse today. The warehouse floor was only half poured today, because the roof is only half finished.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

BUILDING PERMITS

Fifty four building permits have been issued this month by the city building inspector, covering a total of $350,383 worth of construction. Biggest job of the month is a vehicle storage building, being built by Mel Barrigage on Sidney Street, valued at $25,000. The roof went on this building Monday. Another industrial building permit was for a $7,000 warehouse for Wilson Concrete Products. Nine permits covered commercial additions and repairs, valued at $23,785, and 23 permits covered $273,000 worth of residential properties. Twelve permits covered $8,948 worth of garages and carports, (including a Fourcar garage for Tom Young on North Front St.), and eight permits covered $12,150 worth of repairs.

One of the last permits of the month covered a $7,000 swimming pool, to be built at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on North Front St.

CITY WATER LINES

Jim Lightfoot reports work is about to begin on a two-inch water line from the city filter plant, at the south end of Sidney St., across the inlet to the refreshment booth on Zwicky's Island. The pipe will be held down to the bottom of the inlet with concrete weights.

Up on Sidney St., about 2,400 feet of the big water line have been laid, from West Moira St. south to the North-ern Electric plant and in one stretch south of Dundas Street. Work on these two sections will continue next week, and another crew will start tunnelling under the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, just north of the filter plant. There's a lot of work to be done within the plant too, which may be started next week.

TRENTON SEWER AND WATER

Rayner Construction men in Trenton are working on Dufferin St. between Shuter St. and Victoria, and the road is closed from Wragg St. northeast to the catch basin, on McGill St., has just been completed.

Carr's Electric, working south at the other end of Sidney St., are still in the stretch between the two railway underpasses. The road is being graded as the men work south, and is in reasonable condition where they have finished.

On the largest project, along Dundas St., Rayner's men have Dundas St. gravelled from Campbell to Sidney St. and are working on past Sidney St. and down Gilmour Hill. Curbing and sidewalks in the Campbell to Sidney St. section will begin this week.

TRENTON-MUNICIPAL WORK

Trenton Public Works men, working under Gerald Butler, will finish about 2,100 feet of curbing on Byron St. this week, working between Dixon Drive and Birch Street. The project was begun April 13. Another Byron St. project, a sidewalk being built north from Princess St. about 300 feet, will also be finished this week, according to town engineer Eric Aldersey. On Quinte St., a storm sewer will be completed, running west about 200 feet from Stewart St. and two storm sewer lines totalling about 1,200 feet are being installed on Gearin St. and Patrick St. in the west end of the town.

HIGHWAY TWO

Tenders have been called for widening of Highway Two from Trenton town limits east to the air station, and the contract will be awarded June 3. Talk of his project has been floating around for years, but drawings were begun only last spring and finished this winter.

ELMWOOD ACRES

Rollins Construction is adding 25 lots to its 100-lot Elmwood Acres subdivision, in Trenton's east end. Four houses have been started so far and all four have roofs now. Two of them are nearly finished. Bay City Construction put storm and sanitary sewers in last year, and is working on a 1,500 feet of roads and curbing. New roads are North Elm St., off Byron, and a continuation of Nellis Ave.

BAXTER CANNERY

Nearly 100 people watched Monday morning, as eight normal pre-mixe trucks and four double-size (12 cubic-yard capacity) trucks poured 24,000 square feet of floor in Baxter's Canning Factory in Bloomfield. Work started at 7 a.m. and the trucks, with 36 men in addition to the drivers, had the full pour completed by 1 p.m. A crew of 20 finishers worked through the night until Tuesday morning, finishing the job. The pour set a record for speed and quantity in the Quinte district, according to William Tatham, of the Tatham Co., starting this morning, the same crews are working on the larger warehouse floor. This floor, though, will be poured in two sections. Job supervisor, John Tatham, does not want to take a chance on the weather—only half the warehouse roof its watertight now.

The fast work is putting Tatham's back on schedule with the job too — about a week ago of the past two weeks were lost to rain, and things were falling behind. A week had been allowed, though for pouring of the floors, and it looks as if the job might be done in two and a half days.

GOVERNMENT CONSTRUCTION REPORT

Housing construction is up in the Belleville area this year over last year, according to a government report. Under construction on March 31 of 1963 were 99 dwelling units in Belleville and on March 31 of 1964, 117 units were on the go. Forty nine units were completed between January and the end of March of 1963, and 60 during the same period of 1964. Starts are now running ahead of last year, too. Starts in the first three months of 1963 totalled 49 units, and in the same period of 1964, 60 units.

Study Demand For Removal Of Magistrate

TORONTO (CP)—The government is considering the demand that Magistrate Gordon Jermyn of Brockville be removed from the bench, Attorney - General Wishart said Monday.

Mr. Wishart said complaints regarding statements made by the magistrate had just been received by his department. Replying in the legislature to Donald C. MacDonald, the New Democratic Party leader, he said the complaints were under study.

Mr. MacDonald said there has been a growing sense of public indignation in the Brockville-Prescott area over Magistrate Jermyn's statements and rulings.

He quoted from a report in the Brockville Recorder and Times regarding comments said to have been made during the trial of five members of a family charged with assaulting a teacher who had strapped a young girl member of the family.

Referring to the family's action in assaulting the teacher, Magistrate Jermyn was reported as having said: "If I didn't get an explanation from him (the teacher), I probably would have done what they did."

Mr. MacDonald said the magistrate also was quoted as saying: "I give you 2-1 I could walk-into class and keep better order than this man can."

SEND PETITION

The Augusta Township area school board has sent a petition to Mr. Wishart asking that the magistrate be dismissed because of these and other remarks.

"Obviously this person is not suitable to be sitting on the bench," the New Democratic leader said.

Attorney-General Wishart said he has no power directly to remove magistrates from the bench. He could only recommend to the lieutenant-governor in council that an inquiry commission of one or more Supreme Court judges be appointed to study the magistrate's conduct. The government then could take action on their report, Mr. Wishart said.

Greek and Turkish Cypriots Abandoned Posts Near Headquarters of Canadians

NICOSIA (CP) — Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots each abandoned a post Monday near United Nations brigade headquarters established last week by Brig. A. James Tedlie of Montreal.

The brigade headquarters is responsible for the Nicosia area of Cyprus and staff officers—mainly Canadian—have negotiated with both sides to have them abandon strongpoints along the so - called "green" line.

A brigade headquarters spokesman said negotiations to have the Cypriots abandon the posts to United Nations troops are slow and difficult.

"It's a case of assuring the Turkish - Cypriots that the Greek - Cypriots in front of them will abandon a strongpoint and vice - versa," the spokesman said. "And sometimes we get an agreement from both sides to withdraw their men."

Aim of the negotiations is to have the opposing camps on the green line as far apart as possible.

A United Nations spokesman said "this is within the general objective to alleviate tension, when that is possible, wherever it is."

BOTH WITHDRAW

While both sides withdrew along a 150 - yard stretch in Nicosia, the Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots moved closer to one another Monday around the green line at Trahonas, a northern suburb of Nicosia.

Reuter reports that negotiations going on since April 29 have been very limited" the headquarters said. "We have headquarters said. "We'll have to keep on negotiating for a long time."

Canadian officers said the reestablishment of UN posts in villages ended in the mountains in the Kyrenia Pass area Monday, where two "slightly" exchange of fire between Cypriots is the area.

Meanwhile, Capt. Claude Binette of Montreal, a liaison officer with Dr. Fazil Kuchuk, leader of the Turkish Cypriots, escorted a Turkish - Cypriot captain out of Nicosia Monday. The dentist had been unable to get out of the Turkish - Cypriot district of Nicosia for two months. They flew by helicopter to Kiima.

Also aboard the aircraft was the Turkish - Cypriot leader at Paphos, on the southeast coast of Cyprus. He had been in Nicosia Tor talks with Dr. Kuchuk.

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—Denmark has told the United Nations it is prepared to send 980 troops and 40 policemen to Cyprus, the Danish foreign ministry announced Monday night.

Suggestion Will Not Be Adopted

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Wishart indicated Monday the government is likely to adopt a suggestion made by the Ontario Police Commission that radio stations in violation sections be prosecuted for broadcasting regular reports of race results.

Donald C. MacDonald, the New Democratic Party leader, pointed out to the legislature several that the police commission. In its report on organized crime in the province, said radio and TV stations could be prosecuted under Section 177 (1) of the Criminal Code.

"There can be no doubt that such information as race results only to off - track bettors and bookmakers," the report said, and therefore, clearly within the working of the section as intended to assist in bookmaking, pool - selling, betting or wagering.'"

The attorney - general said the opinion of the commission on the Criminal Code would make it "extremely difficult to make a charge stand up against radio or TV stations."

Cuba Will Buy 20 Locomotives From France

PARIS (Reuters) — The French engineering firm of Brissonneau et Lotz announced today it had signed a contract to supply 20 diesel-electric locomotives to Cuba with an option for Cuba to buy 10 more.

The order was worth about $4,000,000.

Sources close to the government said the contract had French government support in the form of a three-year export credit insurance—a system under which the French government guarantees payment by the purchaser.

France, like Britain, has declined to join the U.S. trading boycott of Cuba, despite pressure.

Four days ago a U.S. state department spokesman in Washington disclosed increased U.S. efforts to dissuade NATO countries from trading with Cuba.

According to an official Cuban statement, only one-quarter of the locomotives operating in 1959 are still usable.

Deliveries are to start at the end of this year or early in 1965, a Brissonneau spokesman said.

Last February the Berliet heavy truck firm announced a contract for 500 lorries for Cuba's public works and transport projects. This $7,980,000 deal was signed at the end of the government's export credit insurance.

Cuba signed an agreement with Russia April 22 to purchase 40 locomotives at a cost of $7,332,000. It was reported from Havana.

Under the agreement, signed in Moscow, the first of the locomotives will arrive in Cuba before next Dec. 20. Delivery will be completed by March 1965.

'Astounding' Change Seen In R. C. Church

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. John C. Bennett, president of Union Theological Seminary in New York, said Monday the changes in the Roman Catholic Church in the last 50 years has been "astounding."

Speaking to an interfaith audience at Beth Tzedec Synagogue, the theologian said a decade ago it seemed the Catholic Church was intolerant and did not really accept the principle of religious liberty.

"We knew that in the United States a minority was going on within the Catholic Church. Those who stood for this became conscience stricken and were not on a limb. But today what they stood for has become the dominant mood almost of the Catholic Church."

He said Protestants and, to some extent, Jews had believed the Catholic Church in North America would feel like the Church in Spain if it could.

"However, since Pope John has changed Pope John has gave us a real guarantee of religious liberty which is emerging in the Roman Catholic Church. This is a tremendous thing."

Russian State U. S. 'Playing With Fire'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians accused the United States Monday of "playing with fire" with insistence on reconnaissance flights over Cuba.

A commentator of the Soviet news agency Tass said the issue "in no way facilitates the working of the present in the international climate and the easing of tensions in relations between the West and the East."

Canadian Delegation Will Argue for Reduction in European Farm Protection

GENEVA (CP) — The Canadian delegation planned to argue strongly in closed ministerial sessions of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade today for a substantial reduction in European farm protection as a necessary part of the Kennedy round negotiations.

The Canadian move was designed as vigorous support for the United States position that barriers erected against farm produce to protect the farmers of the Common, Market countries must be included in the tariff bargaining to achieve real reciprocity.

However, Canadian sources stressed that theirs would be a pragmatic approach, rather than inflexible demands for cutting tariff and non-tariff barriers to world trade has strengthened during the past year, despite disagreement over stabilizing prices.

He joined spokesmen for the other major trading nations in urging a cautious but optimistic and determination to make a success of the negotiations.

He said there will be no substantial fully, seeking better terms of access to foreign markets for both its primary and secondary industrial products and in return stands ready to pay for such access by reducing Canadian tariffs on a selective basis.

Meanwhile, the formal opening of the ministerial conference opened up some doubt that the Kennedy round of tariff gaining will begin. Originally it was hoped to write the ground rules for bargaining to begin next fall.

But Jean Rey, the Common Market commissioner, said Monday it would be realistic to use the rest of this year for preparatory work. Bargaining then would begin in early 1965, being completed by the summer.

On the other hand, Christian Herter, the special U.S. trade representative, called for an effort to settle the remaining issues quickly. He said the broad the rules are left open, "the more we risk the success of the entire trade negotiations."

Lake Ontario Down 15 Inches From Last Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Abnormally - low water levels on the Great Lakes and upper St. Lawrence River system have been causing harassment to shipping and concern to waterside industry, but the situation appears to be easing.

Lakes Huron and Michigan have hit an all - time bottom. Levels on the lakes generally are described by one official as at a "once-in-a-lifetime low."

Some larger vessels have been unable to load full cargo in navigating certain channels and ports. Pleasure boating has been hit by stranded docks and navigation obstructions in shallow water.

Fears were expressed for the jobs of up to 1,000 men at the shipyards at Collingwood, Ont., where the water was three feet below normal and launchings could become impossible.

The Niagara River between lakes Ontario and Erie was at its lowest on record, and an Ontario Hydro spokesman said billions of kilowatt hours of electricity could be lost in the Niagara Falls plant. The seaway-hydro installation near Cornwall was operating at two-thirds of normal.

However, an encouraging word came from the United States lakes survey at Detroit, which forecast rises in levels between one and nine inches for this month.

By latest readings, Lake Ontario was down 15 inches from last year, Lakes Huron and Michigan 13, Lake Erie six and Lake Superior two. Lake Ontario was down 27 inches from the previous 10 - year average, Huron and Michigan 24, Erie 13 and Superior three.

Lake Ontario, according to the U.S. survey, was due to go up nine inches in June following an April rise of a foot that put it 14 inches above the all-time low of 1933. A two - inch rise was forecast for Huron and Michigan, one inch for Erie and three inches for Superior.

Erie and Michigan 15 inches above its 1934 record low. Huron still had four inches to go to get that thing, along with Michigan. Superior was 17 inches over.

Meanwhile, there were no reports of water supply or sewage problems on the Canadian shore, though some were reported on the American side.

Experts attributed the situation to a dry fall and to precipitation during the winter. Snow on the Great Lakes drainage basin was generally light.

Accused to Face Charges of Rape, Armed Robbery

SARNIA (CP) — Lawrence Clifford Hand, 29, of Walpole Island, Monday was ordered to trial by judge and jury on charges of rape and armed robbery.

He is charged with the rape of a 15-year-old Port Lambton girl and the robbery of her companion, Arthur Bernard, also of Port Lambton.

Also ordered to trial on the robbery charge is Herbert George, 20, of Kettle Point. Magistrate J. C. Dunlap found no evidence at the preliminary inquiry to implicate a third man, Wayne Fisher, also of Walpole Island and the robbery charge against him was dismissed.

A fourth man charged in the robbery, Ronald Jacques, 19, of Sarnia, was convicted April 27 and sentenced to a year in reformatory.

Mr. Bernard and his companion were attacked in the early hours of Feb. 23 as they sat in a parked car. He was robbed of his car and $140 and the young woman taken to Sarnia Indian Reserve, where she was assaulted before police rescued her.

New Sheriff Of Temiskaming Under Attack

TORONTO (CP) — The new sheriff of the District of Temiskaming owns or controls a company that has lost property for non - payment of taxes and has been sued for non - payment of wages, New Democratic Leader Donald C. MacDonald said Monday night.

Mr. MacDonald read a report in the legislature he had received about Sheriff Robert McArthur during consideration of budget estimates of the Attorney General's department.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said he knew nothing of the report but would investigate.

Mr. MacDonald said he had been told that Mr. McArthur, 67, who took office Jan. 2, owns or controls McArthur Mining and Machinery Company. He said the company had lost property to the town of Cobalt for non - payment of taxes and had been sued in divisional and district courts on several occasions.

One charge, he said, was no payment of wages.

Mr. MacDonald also said the company says Mr. McArthur was also charged with highgrading in 1941 or 1942 but wasn't convicted.

The NDP leader had said earlier Mr. McArthur was recommended for the job as sheriff by the local Progressive Conservative Association.

U. S. May Be Planning Some Action Against Cuba

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Various authoritative hints seem to indicate the U.S. administration is planning some new action in connection with Cuba, perhaps in the form of support for Cuban exiles. These exiles may be planning to resume harassment tactics or make an actual landing on Cuban soil.

The U.S. administration seeks to retain an appearance of tranquillity. And the movement of aircraft and troop movements in southern regions have been denied—just as they were denied prior to the 1961 and 1962 crises. There even were some official statements that Cuba isn't much of a threat after all because the Russians had withdrawn the most powerful of their surface-to-air rockets.

Now the officials have done an about-face, denying the reports widely distributed in the U.S. that any of the Soviet rockets had been withdrawn. An authoritative source, whose reports proved accurate during the 1962 missile crisis, said the rockets in Cuba are of top quality and capable of hitting a high-flying U-2 reconnaissance plane.

CASTRO THREAT

Premier Fidel Castro has threatened to destroy these rockets "immediately" if they continue to fly over Cuba's soil and President Johnson has warned that any Cuban action which would bring serious consequences, presumably U.S. military retaliation. The informant said it was in connection with the president's remarks that U.S. forces in Florida have been strengthened.

But there appears to be more to American planning than the possibility of a plane incident. Cuban exiles who survived the 1961 Bay of Pigs fiasco are reported to be training and recruiting in the Florida area for military forces being trained in remote Central American hideout.

Indications are the exiles may try to begin new harassment forays against Cuba within a month, perhaps through some sort of invasion but more likely through new hit-and-run attacks and the slow process of infiltration. Asked what the U.S. will do about such moves, the informant replied cautiously that it is just possible the U.S. may provide some aid.

Despite the suggestions of Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, that the U.S. is paying too much attention to Cuba, Johnson has been placed in an embarrassing position by a heavy barrage of Republican demands for a final solution to the Cuban issue.

RELUCTANT IN PAST

The presence of large numbers of Russians in Cuba may have been a reason why, in the more recent past the U.S. government displayed extreme reluctance to take any overt military move that could lead to a Cuban-U.S. explosion. Now the Soviet Union is reported to have withdrawn most of its forces.

Moreover, the American informant suggests Castro's economic troubles at home are deepening and the Communist party in Havana seems to have split.

The conditions may be ripe for some new action—for the U.S. may be talking itself into new trouble.

DOUBLE-SIZE CEMENT MIXERS mounted on tractor-trailer chassis were brought in from out of town by Permanent Transit Mix Concrete Ltd. to pour the floor at the Baxter cannery at Bloomfield. The 12-yard capacity trucks made it possible to pour a 300 cubic yard floor in the factory yesterday, and to pour 180 yards of concrete in the warehouse today. The warehouse floor was only half poured today, because the roof is only half finished.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

BUILDING PERMITS

Fifty four building permits have been issued this month by the city building inspector, covering a total of $350,383 worth of construction. Biggest job of the month is a vehicle storage building, being built by Mel Barrigage on Sidney Street, valued at $25,000. The roof went on this building Monday. Another industrial building permit was for a $7,000 warehouse for Wilson Concrete Products. Nine permits covered commercial additions and repairs, valued at $23,785, and 23 permits covered $273,000 worth of residential properties. Twelve permits covered $8,948 worth of garages and carports, (including a Four-car garage for Tom Young on North Front St.), and eight permits covered $12,150 worth of repairs.

One of the last permits of the month covered a $7,000 swimming pool, to be built at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on North Front St.

CITY WATER LINES

Jim Lightfoot reports work is about to begin on a two-inch water line from the city filter plant, at the south end of Sidney St., across the inlet to the refreshment booth on Zwicky's Island. The pipe will be held down to the bottom of the inlet with concrete weights.

Up on Sidney St., about 2,400 feet of the big water line have been laid, from West Moira St. south to the Northern Electric plant and in one stretch south of Dundas Street. Work on these two sections will continue next week, and another crew will start tunnelling under the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, just north of the filter plant. There's a lot of work to be done within the plant too, which may be started next week.

TRENTON SEWER AND WATER

Rayner Construction men in Trenton are working on Dufferin St. between Shuter St. and Victoria, and the road is closed from Wragg St. northeast to the catch basin, on McGill St., has just been completed.

Carr's Electric, working south at the other end of Sidney St., are still in the stretch between the two railway underpasses. The road is being graded as the men work south, and is in reasonable condition where they have finished.

On the largest project, along Dundas St., Rayner's men have Dundas St. gravelled from Campbell to Sidney St. and are working on past Sidney St. and down Gilmour Hill. Curbing and sidewalks in the Campbell to Sidney St. section will begin this week.

TRENTON-MUNICIPAL WORK

Trenton Public Works men, working under Gerald Butler, will finish about 2,100 feet of curbing on Byron St. this week, working between Dixon Drive and Birch Street. The project was begun April 13. Another Byron St. project, a sidewalk being built north from Princess St. about 300 feet, will also be finished this week, according to town engineer Eric Aldersey. On Quinte St., a storm sewer will be completed, running west about 200 feet from Stewart St. and two storm sewer lines totalling about 1,200 feet are being installed on Gearin St. and Patrick St. in the west end of the town.

HIGHWAY TWO

Tenders have been called for widening of Highway Two from Trenton town limits east to the air station, and the contract will be awarded June 3. Talk of his project has been floating around for years, but drawings were begun only last spring and finished this winter.

ELMWOOD ACRES

Rollins Construction is adding 25 lots to its 100-lot Elmwood Acres subdivision, in Trenton's east end. Four houses have been started so far and all four have roofs now. Two of them are nearly finished. Bay City Construction put storm and sanitary sewers in last year, and is working on a 1,500 feet of roads and curbing. New roads are North Elm St., off Byron, and a continuation of Nellis Ave.

BAXTER CANNERY

Nearly 100 people watched Monday morning, as eight normal pre-mixe trucks and four double-size (12 cubic-yard capacity) trucks poured 24,000 square feet of floor in Baxter's Canning Factory in Bloomfield. Work started at 7 a.m. and the trucks, with 36 men in addition to the drivers, had the full pour completed by 1 p.m. A crew of 20 finishers worked through the night until Tuesday morning, finishing the job. The pour set a record for speed and quantity in the Quinte district, according to William Tatham, of the Tatham Co., starting this morning, the same crews are working on the larger warehouse floor. This floor, though, will be poured in two sections. Job supervisor, John Tatham, does not want to take a chance on the weather—only half the warehouse roof its watertight now.

The fast work is putting Tatham's back on schedule with the job too — about a week ago of the past two weeks were lost to rain, and things were falling behind. A week had been allowed, though for pouring of the floors, and it looks as if the job might be done in two and a half days.

GOVERNMENT CONSTRUCTION REPORT

Housing construction is up in the Belleville area this year over last year, according to a government report. Under construction on March 31 of 1963 were 99 dwelling units in Belleville and on March 31 of 1964, 117 units were on the go. Forty nine units were completed between January and the end of March of 1963, and 60 during the same period of 1964. Starts are now running ahead of last year, too. Starts in the first three months of 1963 totalled 49 units, and in the same period of 1964, 60 units.

Cuba Will Buy 20 Locomotives From France

PARIS (Reuters) — The French engineering firm of Brissonneau et Lotz announced today it had signed a contract to supply 20 diesel-electric locomotives to Cuba with an option for Cuba to buy 10 more.

The order was worth about $4,000,000.

Sources close to the government said the contract had French government support in the form of a three-year export credit insurance—a system under which the French government guarantees payment by the purchaser.

France, like Britain, has declined to join the U.S. trading boycott of Cuba, despite pressure.

Four days ago a U.S. state department spokesman in Washington disclosed increased U.S. efforts to dissuade NATO countries from trading with Cuba.

According to an official Cuban statement, only one-quarter of the locomotives operating in 1959 are still usable.

Deliveries are to start at the end of this year or early in 1965, a Brissonneau spokesman said.

Last February the Berliet heavy truck firm announced a contract for 500 lorries for Cuba's public works and transport projects. This $7,980,000 deal was signed at the end of the government's export credit insurance.

Cuba signed an agreement with Russia April 22 to purchase 40 locomotives at a cost of $7,332,000. It was reported from Havana.

Under the agreement, signed in Moscow, the first of the locomotives will arrive in Cuba before next Dec. 20. Delivery will be completed by March 1965.

Seedling Crop Safe From Weather In This Portable 'Greenhouse'

There's little chance those precious flowers or seedling vegetables can come to harm when started in this fir plywood "indoor greenhouse."

Plywood's excellent insulating qualities are utilized in this portable conservatory so flower lovers or commercial gardeners can surely and easily control the atmosphere surrounding their seedlings.

Heat and the all-important light are provided here by fluorescent tube lighting fixtures. Heat is controlled by bleeding warm air out of the greenhouse through partially - opened doors if needed. By simply turning the lights on and off the grower can give his seedlings their required 14 to 19 hour "day." You might even want to buy an automatic timer switch.

Since the greenhouse has its own atmosphere and light, it can be located in any cool room or a corner of the basement. In fact any place that is a fairly constant 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Temperature builds up inside when the lights are on, but the location should be so cool that plants will suffer when the lights are off.

Since fluorescent lights are cooler than incandescent bulbs, the plants are placed six to 12 inches from the light by blocking up their trays. They are located as they grow. An added benefit is that fluorescent lights use less power so are cheaper. If extra heat is needed, you can hang an ordinary bulb or two inside.

The greenhouse illustrated has an upper and lower growth chamber, each completely independent of the other. This particular unit is six feet long (inside measurements) so it will accommodate a standard six-foot fluorescent fixture. It can be built, of course, to employ two, four, six or eight-foot fixtures. These are standard sizes. It could also be a three or four storey affair.

As shown, the greenhouse has two full-length doors on both the upper and the lower growth chambers for easy access to the trays of seedlings. The door are arranged so that they can be left open any amount from a crack to wide in order to control the heat exactly.

As an added convenience the two two-by-fours through the centre of the greenhouse are extended past the end and shaped to handles. This makes it an easy job for two people to move the unit. The corner two-by-fours extend past the bottom and act as small legs so air can circulate around the box.

The trays shown are designed for this model.

All fir plywood used is half-inch. Structural members are two-by-four or two-by-two as indicated.

The indoor greenhouse is as close as you can come to a guaranteed successful tomato crop next spring. Fickle spring weather won't affect it and the neighborhood youngsters can't throw a stone through it.

Montreal-Vancouver Network

Microwave: An Incredible Triumph Is in the Offing

By RUSSELL PEDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A cross - Canada microwave network, fruit of an incredible construction job that started in 1962, is in the final stages of testing.

The $41,000,000 communications link between Montreal and Vancouver — built to carry everything from voice and teletype messages to color television—is to be inaugurated officially Monday, May 11.

It hooks into existing facilities serving Western Ontario, Quebec province and the Atlantic provinces.

Microwaves travel at the speed of light. A signal can be flashed between Montreal and Vancouver, relayed by the 139 transmission towers, in less time than it takes the shutter of a box camera to operate—1-50 of a second.

Engineers won't tolerate any more than five billionths of a watt of unwanted noise over the entire 3,000-mile system, an amount too small to be detected by the human ear.

Initially, the operators—Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telecommunications — plan to use two of eight potential radio channels the system can carry. Each channel can handle 600 simultaneous telephone conversations or one television program.

GLOBAL LINK

Since one channel of four must be kept in reserve in case of trouble, the system at capacity could carry 3,600 voice transmissions or six TV programs.

The network will also serve as Canada's land - link in the Commonwealth communications system, now extending from the United Kingdom to Australia and New Zealand. The present terminus is Sydney, Australia, but an undersea cable through New Guinea and Malaysia to Hong Kong will open in 1966. It will be years before the system completely encircles the globe.

The Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corp. has leased 60 voice circuits—1-10 of the capacity of one radio channel—to link its cables under the Atlantic and Pacific ocean as part of the Commonwealth system.

This microwave network, which was built and will be maintained jointly by CP-CN, is Canada's second between Montreal and Vancouver. The earlier one was completed in 1958 by Trans - Canada Telephone System at a cost of $50,000,000. The transatlantic cable is linked to the microwave network at Montreal. The new CP-CN network ties in with an existing microwave system the railways operate between Montreal and Moncton, N.B., built in two stages in 1954 and 1962.

From Moncton to Halifax and Sydney, N.S., where communications traffic is light, CP-CN lease space on the phone companies' microwave system.

TOUGH BUILDING JOB

The telephone companies' network now carries phone circuits and business communications as well as CBC radio broadcasts and both CBC and CTV television programs.

Construction of the CP-CN network sorely tested the ingenuity of its builders.

Installation crews sheared the peaks off mountains; strung a power line almost entirely by helicopter, literally floated one building on quicksand. Work went on in temperatures as low as -42 below zero.

For defence reasons, the microwave route shuns major cities and existing communications facilities. Spur lines branch off the main trunk to serve larger cities, and smaller ones are linked to it by existing land lines.

The CP-CN network is roughly parallel to the telephone microwave system, following a route generally to the south between Montreal and Fort William and taking a path to the north of the phone system to Vancouver.

Its passage through some isolated areas added to engineers' problems, both in selecting sites for relay towers and getting men and materials there.

MADE OWN SURVEYS

Canadian Pacific Telecommunications, builder of the eastern half of the network from Montreal to Duff, Sask., had to have its own aerial surveys carried out in areas not covered by detailed topographical maps.

R. W. Dobridge, CPT's general radio engineer, was in charge of route selection as well as tower and radio equipment specifications.

"Between Montreal and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., the topographical maps were not bad," he says. "The rest of the way there was hardly a map available."

The towers, spaced 25 to 35 miles apart on the highest available ground, had to be rigid enough to keep transmitting and receiving antennas from vibrating more than one-third of a degree.

Often the difficulty of building an access road forced engineers to settle for a compromise second- or third-best site. Access roads from main highways range in length from several hundred feet to 14 miles.

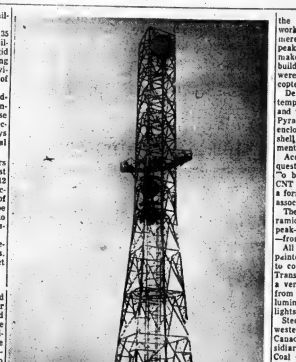
The result was that towers are higher than planned in most cases—average height is 212 feet compared with the anticipated 150—and the diameter of the circular antennas had to be increased to 12 feet from 10 to compensate for loss in transmission quality.

"This meant more wind resistance," Mr. Dobridge says. "We had to go back and get the towers strengthened."

HOLES BLASTED

Construction workers had their share of problems. Near Marathon, Ont., in the rugged country four miles from the shore of Lake Superior, a helicopter planted nine power line poles in holes blasted out of solid rock to bring electricity to the Bamoos microwave tower.

The helicopter picked up the poles at a nearby lake, 1,500 feet below the tower site. It hovered them into position on mountain tops, then strung the 14½-mile power line. Distance between poles ranged from 1,100 to 1,700 feet.



Bamoos, due north of Marathon also presented the problem of a poor access road. Cement for foundations, usually handled in ready-mix form, had to be hauled in by hand and hand-mixed at the site.

At Hazelwood, north of the Lakehead, workmen had to dump a load of ready-mix concrete when, at 35 below zero, the truck got stuck and the load started to freeze in the mixer.

Even these conditions seem tame in comparison with some faced by Canadian National crews in the eastern sector, from Duff to Vancouver.

TOWER ATOP MOUNTAIN — A workman directs a helicopter for a safe drop of the equipment it carries for the construction of a microwave tower atop Pyramid Mountain in the Rockies. The tower is part of the $41,000,000 microwave network from Vancouver to Montreal. The network, built jointly by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National telecommunications, at capacity could carry 3,600 voice transmissions or six TV programs. (CP Photo)

MICROWAVE TOWER — A 130 towers makeup the cross-Canada microwave network from Vancouver to Montreal that will be inaugurated May 11. A microwave signal, travelling at the speed of light, can be flashed between Montreal and Vancouver, relayed by the transmission towers, in less time that it takes the shutter of a box camera to operate at 1-50 of a second. Construction on the network started in 1962 and it will hook into existing facilities serving western Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces. (CP Photo)

To get microwave through the Rockies, towers had to be set atop Pyramid Mountain near Jasper, Alta., and Mount Jarvis near Hope, B.C.

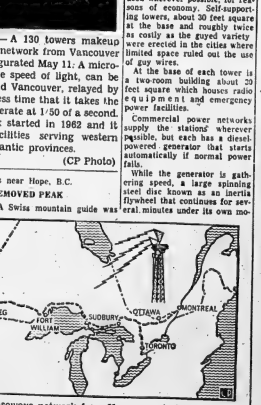
REMOVED PEAK

A Swiss mountain guide was employed as the primary power is cut off carries the electrical load so there is no interruption of power to the microwave equipment. An automatic monitoring device flashes word of the change to maintenance centres in the cities.

Similar automatic devices prevent any break in communications when trouble develops either at unmanned repeater stations or manned terminal points. One device, called a combiner, selects the better of two available channels to carry the traffic.

DELAYS COSTLY

Until the last tower on the main line was installed last October, construction men were under constant pressure and in some cases worked every daylight hour to get the job done on schedule.



Mr. Dobridge said it would have cost CPT $2,385 a day to delay the crews testing radio paths between towers, "so of course, if they needed a bulldozer to get them in to the site, we made sure they got a bulldozer."

RCA Victor Company of Canada won the $15,000,000 contract for microwave equipment, maintained a tight installation schedule. CPT had to erect the 23 towers between Montreal and Sault Ste. Marie in five weeks to stay ahead.

Microwave is being used increasingly to handle similar communications jobs, both in the United States, where American Telephone and Telegraph and Western Union operate comparable networks, and in Europe.

Engineers say underground coaxial cable, used to carry TV network programs in the United States, is good but much more costly. Repeater stations in coaxial cable systems are spaced three to six miles apart depending upon what the cable is intended to do.

However, for almost absolute protection against disruption by a nuclear attack, microwave compares with a new 3,218-mile cable being built across the United States by AT and T. It will cost $200,000,000 and will not only be away from prime target areas but will be buried five feet underground instead of the normal 3½ feet.

IN FINAL TESTING STAGES — A cross-Canada microwave network from Vancouver to Montreal is in the final stages of testing. The $41,000,000 communications link, capable of carrying everything from voice and teletype messages to color television, is to be inaugurated May 11. RAY RAISES ALARM

MARKET DRAYTON, England (CP)—Britain's most modern jail, Stoke Heath in Shropshire, will be equipped with an invisible ray to raise the alarm if a prisoner tries to escape. Stoke Heath, which cost more than $3,000,000, is only the second "secure"—as opposed to "open"—prison to be built in Britain for 50 years.

LONDON (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, in a television broadcast here, mentioned that the lepers of Burundi in Africa didn't have one cover to protect themselves from the night cold. Now Cardinal Leger has some 2,000 blankets — sent to him by concerned people and parishes throughout Quebec. Some individuals contributed as many as 10 blankets.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Superstition is on the wane among present-day athletes, according to some observers, probably because so many of the youngsters coming up have been recruited from colleges and schools. Many, especially ballplayers, however, exposed to influences of the older men soon acquire at least some of the cabalistic beliefs that have gone with the game so long.

For instance, no one is supposed to mention that a certain player is approaching some sort of a record-breaking achievement such as a no-hitter. Red Barber is the only one we know who violated the taboo.

There were many strange superstitions held by various athletes. Stan Musial to break a slump reversed his breakfast, eating the eggs first, then the cereal. Bobo Newson always had another player tie his spikes laces. Al Simmons would take a pre-game shower with his hat on.

Louis Bevilquilla, a southern pitcher, once saw a batter don a pair of women's silk panties. Said it made him hit. The pitcher tried it, won 17 games and was sent to the majors.

Paul Lehner of the Cards developed a Sunday jinx. He could not-hit because he thought it was a bad-luck day. His manager told him of certain "Sunday pills"—harmless things made of flour and sugar. He took them secretly, hit a grand slammer and was never bothered about "Never on Sunday" afterwards.

Clark Griffith while pitching for Chicago had the feeling that horrible luck would come his way if he pitched a shutout. When he appeared headed for the blank he'd beg his team-mates to ease up and let the opposition score a run.

Lefty O'Doul's glove was the key to his hitting ability. At the conclusion of each inning he'd take it off and toss it to the ground with a whirling motion. If, when it landed, the thumb pointed toward right field, he always got a hit next time at bat.

Once Hank Greenberg and Al Lopez used to open a hitting spree they'd continue to eat the same food eaten on the opening day of the streak. Unhappily Lopez ate kippered herring and eggs for 17 consecutive days during a hectic batting rally.

It was an amazed clergyman who was walking with the famous Christy Mathewson when the hurler suddenly exploded, "Quick spit in your hat!" Obeying the clergyman did it and the hurler hurriedly explained that a cross-eyed woman was approaching.

Babe Ruth never failed to kick second base on his way from right field. Ducky Medwick booted third as he trotted in. Former Bosox manager Bill Corrigan selected Pullman car numbers as batting averages. His luck didn't hold. His Sox landed in the cellar three seasons in a row.

Hats on a bed? Max Schmelling attributed his loss to Jack Sharkey when a friend tossed his fedora on a dressing room cot before the fight.

I didn't know whether golfers change but years ago definite hard luck omens on links were robins on course markers; throwing sand from a tee box, entering a tee from behind and walking on the same side with the caddie.

Ace auto racer Peter de Paolo once lost his favorite shoes and promptly started to lose races. He advertised a reward of $5,000 for the booties. They were returned—and he promptly zoomed off to another winning streak.

A lot of oldtime baseball players carried good luck charms. Among them were an old detective badge; a piece of trolley wire; a peach stone; a shred of red ribbon; a horse chestnut; the minute hand of a watch; a slate pencil; a chess rook; a hotel key and a mandolin pick.

Koufax Whiffs 13 In Big Comeback

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax threw 30 strikes. Bob Gibson threw 30 beanballs and one bat.

Koufax won his game, Gibson lost $50.

Moral: Strikes are more effective—and less expensive.

Koufax, making his first start since injuring his arm April 22, pitched Los Angeles Dodgers to a 2-1, 10-inning victory over Chicago Cubs Monday night, allowing only three hits and striking out 13 in an impressive return.

It was the 52nd time in his major league career that Koufax had struck out 10 or more in a game, leaving him only two 10-strikeout performances away from the record of 54 shared by Rube Waddell and Bob Feller.

Gibson, meanwhile, got involved in the first beanball incident of the season and drew an automatic $50 fine along with Philadelphia's Jack Baldschun. The St. Louis righthander also left himself open for further action when he was selected for throwing his bat toward the mound in the fourth inning.

THREW AT BENNETT

Gibson threw two fast balls at the head of Phillies' pitcher Dennis Bennett in the third inning, apparently in retaliation for Bennett's decking the Cardinals' Julian Javier in the second inning. Gibson drew a warning from plate Umpire Harvey —and with it the automatic $50 fine.

Then, in the fourth, with Baldschun on the mound for the Phillies, Gibson was hit in the side by a pitch, and flipped his bat toward the mound. Baldschun immediately drew a warning and the automatic fine while Gibson drew a thumb from Harvey.

Gibson not only lost money but a victory as well. The Cardinals were leading 5-1 and eventually won 9-3. Gibson, however, did not qualify for the triumph because he didn't pitch the required five innings. Roger Craig got the victory.

In other National League action, a fight broke out after Milwaukee Braves had edged the New York Mets 2-1 behind Denny Lemaster's two-hit pitching. William Mays hit home run No. 10 in San Francisco Giants' 3-2, 12 - inning victory over Houston Colts and Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Cincinnati Reds 4-2.

Koufax had a one-hitter going until the eighth when Andre Rodgers tied the score 1-1 with a homer. The Dodgers won in the 10th when Dick Ellsworth, who allowed only eight hits, walked Dick Tracewsky, hit Koufax on the foot with a pitch and then was touched for a single up the middle by Maury Wills.

BOYER LEADS CARDS

Ken Boyer drove in four runs with a triple and two singles and Curt Flood, Carl Warwick and Tim McCarver collected homers in the Cardinals' victory over the Phillies. Warwick hit his homer, a two-run shot, on the first pitch after Gibson's bat-throwing incident.

At Milwaukee, Lemaster gave up a leadoff homer to Charlie Smith in the first inning, then kept the Mets hitless until the ninth when Ron Hunt poked a one-out single. When Frank Thomas grounded out, Hunt raced around third and tried to score on the play. He was doubled up at home, where catcher Ed Bailey held onto the throw despite being knocked down by Hunt.

Bailey started to go after Hunt, but was restrained. However, Rod Kanehl of the Mets, who wasn't in the game, came off the bench and got involved in two short battles. He was jumped on by Len Gabrielson, then tangled with Cuno Oliver before the umpires restored order.

Maye hit his homer with a man on in the first inning for a 2-1 lead, but the Giants were unable to get another run off Ken Johnson and Hal Woodeshick until the 12th when Jay Alou singled and Chuck Hiller doubled. Walt Bond had given the Colts a tie with a sixth inning homer.

Bill Mazeroski and Willie Stargell hit homers, powering the Pirates to their victory over the Reds. Stargell's fifth, in the sixth inning, broke a 2-2 tie. Joe Gibson got the victory with a six-hitter.

DRIVER LOSES ARM

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP)—Auto race Jimmy Maguire of Hasmalien, N.J., and Brighton, Mass., was in fair condition in hospital Monday, his arm amputated almost to the shoulder following a crash Sunday. Maguire was injured in one of three crashes that marred Sunday's 30-lap feature at the U.S. Auto Club's sprint competition at the New Bremen Speedway.

Commercial Loop Tonight's The Night!

The Commercial Softball League closes the book on entries tonight at a meeting called for the City Hotel at eight o'clock.

Six clubs have committed themselves to play this season but tonight is the last chance to make it official. Those expected in are Point Anne, Black Diamond Cheese, City Hotel, Belleville Jaycees, Bartrags Landscapers and Lightfoot Construction.

The loop schedule is slated to open just two weeks from tonight so the executive hopes to wrap up all the loose ends this evening.

Newly-elected president Dave Feeney has requested that all teams have representatives at tonight's meeting.

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Laperriere, who in his first full season in the National Hockey League was picked for the second all-star team, is also the NHL's rookie of the year.

The announcement that the 21 - year - old defenceman for Montreal Canadiens won the Calder Trophy was made by the National Hockey League. He was chosen in a vote among sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities.

Laperriere, a native of Rouyn, Que., got 117 votes and led in both the first- and second-half balloting with 53 and 64 points respectively. Votes were counted on the basis of five points for a first-place choice, three for second and one for third.

The trophy carries with it a $1,000 award, and Laperriere will also pick up $500 for leading the voting in each half.

Other players who figured in the voting, with first and second-half results and total vote, were:

Gary Dornhoefer, Boston Bruins (0-14—14); Bob McCord, Boston (23-8—31); Pit Martin, Detroit Red Wings (9-1—10); Jim Pappin, Toronto Maple Leafs (4-0—4); Phil Esposito, Chicago Black Hawks (0-3—3'; Murray Hall, Chicago (1-0—1); Ed Joyal, Detroit (1-0—1).

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons, within two games of bringing the city its first Allan Cup in 33 years, learned Monday they may have to alter the lineup that has twice overpowered Woodstock Athletics.

When they meet the Eastern champions tonight in the third game of the series, rightwinger Loy Joyal may be out of town on business.

"Well," said coach Gord Simpson, "if I have to replace him I think it will probably be with Jim Irving. But I sure hope I don't have to change anyone."

Irving starred as a junior with Winnipeg Rangers this season, and was brought up by Maroons for the Woodstock series. He is not classed as a pickup because of an affiliation between Maroons and Rangers.

SUMMERS STILL OUT

Danny Summers, 41, the Maroon defenceman who suffered a charleyhorse in Friday's opening game and sat out the second game Sunday, will be out of the lineup again tonight.

Maroons posted 5-0 and 7-1 victories in the first two games. They outskated, outchecked and outplayed the visitors in both games, but Simpson still proferred a cautious attitude toward the Eastern champions.

"Anything can happen in this game," he observed. "They could start playing Allan Cup hockey, we could go into a shell, and before you knew it we'd be in a brand-new series."

CATS SIGN TWO

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger - Cats of the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference Monday announced the signing of fullback Art Baker and Halfback Willie Bethea for the 1964 season. Hamilton acquired both at the start of the 1963 season.

Colavito Wielding Big Bat For A's

Eight Homers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Orlando Pena can leave his bubble gum and crayons at home as long as Rocky Colavito keeps the horns tooling.

The Kansas City hurler, who drew reprimands last week for blowing bubbles while pitching and marking his glove with crayons, beat Los Angeles angels 7-4 Monday night for the Athletics' third straight victory.

Pena didn't have his plaything with him but he had Colavito and that was all he needed. The Rock crashed his seventh and eighth home runs of the year, setting off the complicated system of lights and horns that greets each Athletic homer in Municipal Stadium.

The circuit smash gave Colavito the American League lead. The Athletics have blasted eight homers in three games and 24 in 12 home appearances.

Colavito's first homer, with the bases empty in the fifth, gave Kansas City a 3-2 edge. He also connected in the eighth with Jim Gentile aboard, and Bill Bryan followed with another.

The victory nudged the Athletics within half a game of owner Charles Finley's No. 1 targets, New York Yankees, who, along with Detroit Tigers, were idle.

In other American League games, Chicago White Sox overcame two Bob Allison homers and beat Minnesota Twins 10-5, Leon Wagner clubbed a grand slam homer as Cleveland Indians defeated Boston Red Sox 7-6 and Baltimore Orioles exploded for an eight-run inning on just four hits while walloping Washington Senators 11-4.

The Angels bounced back to tie the Athletics after Colavito's first homer. But Nelson Mathews doubled with one out in the seventh and came home with the go-ahead run when Pena stroked a single.

The eighth-inning homers by Colavito and Bryan iced Pena's third victory in five decisions.

Allison drove in all of Minnesota's runs with his fifth and sixth homers but the White Sox produced a nibbling attack to win it. Three infield hits, a walk, a wild pitch and clutch singles by Al Weis and pitcher Billy Pierce produced a six-run sixth.

Floyd Robinson homered for Chicago's runs.

Wagner snapped a 3-3 tie with his seventh - inning shot off rookie Bill Spanswick. The veteran outfielder singled in another Indian run, hitting his league-leading runs batted in total to 19.

Bob Tillman had a three-run homer for Boston and Tony Conigliaro added his fourth solo shot in the ninth against winner Dick Donovan.

Four walks and a throwing error which produced three unearned runs helped the Orioles pile up eight runs in the sixth inning en route to their victory.

The Senators jumped off to a 4-2 lead but Baltimore got back into the game when Norm Siebern's third hit delivered two runs in the sixth. Sam Bowens doubled in the run and two walks forced in another. Then Don Blasingame threw wildly on Dick Hall's suicide squeeze for two more runs.

Jim King homered for the losers.

Marlies Size Doesn't Bother Oil Kings

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros are reputed to be the biggest junior hockey team ever, but this doesn't seem to bother Edmonton Oil Kings.

The Marlboros, who average 188 pounds a man, dumped Edmonton 5-2 Sunday to take a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven Memorial Cup final, but it wasn't the size of the Marlboros that led them to victory over the defending Dominion Champions.

"We've been outweighed all season in our league back home," said Oil Kings coach Buster Brayshaw following a brisk workout in preparation for tonight's second game. "We play in the Central Alberta circuit which is an intermediate league and the guys there are pretty big.

"No," what beat us was our penalty shots when we should have been shooting. Our guys were always coming up with one goal too many. This surprised me because during the season ours was a shooting club."

USED TO ROUGH GOING

"I don't think the size of my guys bothered them," said Toronto coach Jim Gregory. "Those guys are used to the rough going where they come from."

In sizing up the Edmonton team, Gregory said: "They can and will play better hockey than they showed Sunday. A line we have to watch is Dutch Paul, Glan Sather and Max Mestinsek."

"As far as I'm concerned," said Brayshaw, "Paul is the best hockey player in the West right now. He had something like 75 goals and led our league in scoring."

"But I'll tell you, the key to our club is our defence, although they never gave them play as poorly as they did Sunday."

SCORED 86 GOALS

Soon the talk got around to five-foot, six - inch, 165 - pound centre Fran Huck, an 86-goal scorer with Regina Pats in the Saskatchewan Junior circuit this season. He was picked up by the Oil Kings for this series.

"It won't be too long before you'll be hearing from this kid," said Brayshaw. "I'd like to have him with my team for the next few years. He has two left in junior hockey."

The 18-year-old Huck, who is Montreal Canadiens property, failed to hit the score sheet in Sunday's opener but did rap a few off as well as engineering a couple of rushes up the ice, displaying amazing speed.

The third, fourth and fifth game, if necessary, will be played here Thursday, Saturday and Sunday respectively. If further games are called for, the teams will shift to London, Ont., next week to wind up the series.

Foster Hewitt 'Loses Job'

TORONTO (CP) — Foster Hewitt, known as the "voice of hockey" since the opening of Maple Leaf Gardens in 1931, has lost his job as broadcaster of out-of-town National Hockey League Games.

Walsh Advertising Company, which has bought broadcasting rights to "all away games, announced Monday that Bill Stephenson of Toronto radio station CFRB will do the play-by-play of the out-of-town games over a network of approximately 30 stations across Canada next season.

The agreement does not affect home games, handled by Hewitt over his own Toronto station, CKFH. Hewitt has been broadcasting away games for 12 years.

Dan Poynts, vice - president of Walsh, said Monday Hewitt was offered and turned down the position of executive director of the new setup.

Wanted Girl Softball Players

Okay gals, here's your chance to show the men just how the game of softball should be played.

A Belleville women's team is presently making plans for the 1954 season, and will hold it's initial practise at Queen Mary School on Thursday evening at 6.45.

Word has been passed along that positions on the team are wide open and that new players will be more than welcome to the workouts.

The team expects to play in a league with teams from Trenton, Campbellford and Colbourne.

AHL All Stars
Barons' Harris Tops Poll

CLEVELAND (CP) — Ted Harris, whose rugged defensive play was a big factor in Cleveland Barons' march to the Calder Cup, topped the poll for the American Hockey League's 1953-54, all-star team, the AHL announced Monday.

The 27-year-old Winnipeg-born defenceman received 41 of a possible 45 points in a poll conducted by sports reporters in the nine league cities.

Joining Harris on the first all-star team were goalie Gump Worsley of Quebec Aces, defenceman Al Arbour of Rochester Americans, centre Art Stratton and left-winger Yves Locas of Pittsburgh Hornets and Rochester right-winger Gerry Ehman. First - team players receive a $300 bonus from the AHL.

Locas, the league's leading goal-scorer, was runner-up to Harris with 37 points and Worsley a veteran National Hockey League campaigner with New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens, polled 35.

Pittsburgh, Rochester, Cleveland and Quebec players dominated the selections with only Jim Anderson of Springfield Indians, a second-team choice at left wing, representing the other five teams.

Les Binkley of Cleveland and Pittsburgh's Roger Crozier tied for the second-team goaltending spot. The other second-team nominees, all of whom get $200 bonuses, are defencemen Doug Harvey and Jim Morrison of Quebec, Bronco Horvath of Rochester at centre and playing-coach Fred Glover of Cleveland at right wing.

Radio 'Hassle'

Want Games In Toronto

EDMONTON (CP)—A merry-go-round with real horses, is keeping Edmonton hockey fans from getting radio accounts of how their Oil Kings are making out in the Memorial Cup finals.

Edmonton station CHED wants to carry the Oil Kings' best-of-seven series against Toronto Marlboros and is willing to pay for the privilege.

Maple Leaf Gardens officials say they'll have no its broadcasts free of charge—if the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will schedule the whole series at the Gardens instead of shifting the possible sixth and seventh games to London, Ont.

The CAHA wouldn't object to the latter revenue of an all-Toronto series — if it could be run off without undue delay.

That's where the horses come into it. The world-famed white stallions of Vienna's Spanish Riding School are booked into the Gardens May 12 to 15 Marlboros and Oil Kings can't possibly get in more than five games before they arrive.

The latest word from CAHA President Art Potter Monday night was that he hopes to "work something out." Meanwhile more than 1,000 Edmontonians signed a telegram to Gardens' vice-president Harold Ballard imploring him to reconsider.

MAY FIND ANSWER

After a telephone consultation with John Bassett, chairman of the Gardens, Potter hinted that a solution might be found in working out arrangements for extra expense money to cover an extra three - day lay-over by the Oil Kings in Toronto.

Potter contends that the CAHA rather than the Gardens controls Memorial Cup broadcasting rights. But he conceded it would be difficult to exercise control if the Gardens rink refuses to admit broadcasters to the rink.

Either of the teams remains in a position to settle the dispute by finishing the series before the first horse trots into view.

They take the ice tonight with Marlboros holding a 1-0 lead by virtue of a 5-2 victory last Sunday. An Edmonton sweep or three Toronto wins in the next four games would do it.

TO INVESTIGATE SIGNING

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Jim Trumble of the Montreal Alouettes expressed surprise Monday that fullback Nat Craddock is reported to have signed with Boston Patriots of the American Football League. The Eastern Football Conference Alouettes signed Craddock to a 1964 contract late last season. A weekend report out of Boston said Craddock had signed with the Patriots. Trimble said he would investigate the matter.

Big Fight At Accra May 9

ACCRA (AP) — There is no doubt here that both Sugar Ramos, world featherweight boxing champion, and challenger Floyd Robertson, the Commonwealth title holder, face their toughest assignment in their title fight May 9 at Accra Sports Stadium.

It will be the first world title fight to be staged in Ghana and the second in West Africa, after last August's Dick Tiger-Gene Fullmer fight in Ibadan, Nigeria.

Ghana's government attaches great importance to the fight. It guaranteed $140,000 for promotion in a bid to assure Ghana's position on the world boxing map and to encourage its native challenger.

A crowd of about 45,000 is expected at the bout billed as "the fight of the century." Seat prices range from about 70 cents to $30.

Ramos's purse will be about $70,000 and Robertson's about $42,000—both tax free.

Ghanaians from the remotest areas of the 92,000-square-mile country are expected to flock to the capital and join European, British and American fans at ringside. Arrangements have been made for special buses, planes and trains to handle the influx.

Ramos turned professional in October, 1957, and has had 44 pro bouts.

He became Commonwealth champion in 1960 by beating Percy Lewis. He has staged two successful defences since then — both against other Ghanaian fighters.

He defeated Love Allotey early in 1962 and downed Joe Titteh in his second defence last year.

Sport Snapshots

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP)—When Tobin Rote and Toronto Argonauts severed relations after the 1962 football season, they didn't exactly part friends.

He had come to them three years earlier, an established quarterback of the first rank, the hero of Detroit Lions' underdog triumph over Cleveland Browns in the 1957 National Football League final and a star with Green Bay Packers for years before that.

Rote began the leading Argos to the Eastern Football Conference title. But the honeymoon ended abruptly three weeks later when Ottawa Rough Riders, with Rote sitting on the sidelines, pulled the venerable sleeper play out of the mothballs for a key touchdown in the eastern final that cost Toronto a bid for the Grey Cup.

Argos were third the following year but Rote appeared the wolves by passing the Riders into oblivion in the semi-final and almost stealing the final from Hamilton before the Tiger-Cats survived a desperate last-minute punt exchange and went on to win in overtime.

Then Argos finished last in 1962 and the egg hit the fan. Rote, who was playing out his option, happily departed to San Diego Chargers of the American Football League. He had led EFC passers for the second time in three seasons but as far as his critics were concerned he was a three-time loser.

So when Rote hit print last year with some uncomplimentary remarks about the Toronto management and coaching staff, his adversaries kissed him off as a disgruntled, over-the-hill quarterback reduced to a diet of sour grapes.

Against this background, some recent Rote quotes make interesting reading:

"The Chargers of last year had more punch, more speed, more fine players and more guys up front who wanted to knock down somebody than any team I ever played with."

Suffering from bursitis and torn ligaments in his elbow, Rote had piloted the Chargers to the AFL title. He had been voted the league's most valuable player, topped the passers with a 59.4 per cent completion average and presumably was feeling better.

From the depths of another last-place finish, Rote's old antagonists stopped devouring the current Argonaut quarterbacks long enough to mutter that it only goes to show the calibre of the AFL when a 36-year-old has-been can look that good.

Maybe so. But a faintly disloyal thought occurred to some of the television witnesses. San Diego's triumph that Jackie Parker or Sandy Stephens might have looked a good deal better with a couple of offensive backs like Paul Lowe and Keith Lincoln to take some of the pressure off the passing attack.

And perhaps a little more solidity on the offensive line would have reduced the number of occasions when Toronto quarterbacks had to run for their lives.

And just possibly Toronto might be interested in a pass receiver like Lance Alworth if he were available.

Meanwhile, Rote is doing weight - lifting exercises to strengthen his arm for another season with the Chargers.

Would he ever consider coming back to Toronto? he was asked.

"Hell, no."

Leafs Win Nine In Twelve

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Atlanta Crackers couldn't be blamed if they found themselves looking forward to their first road trip today.

The best thing that happened to the Crackers during the 13-game home stand that opened their International League season was the rain that washed out four of them.

A stoical corporal's guard of 798 customers was present Monday night as the Crackers ratcheted Ted Sadowski to a two-run lead against Toronto Maple Leafs but eventually saw him take his fourth defeat of the year, 5-3.

The victory, Toronto's ninth in 12 starts, left the Leafs half a game behind Syracuse Chiefs, who hammered Columbus Jets 9-1 for their eighth win in nine tries. Richmond Virginians edged Rochester Red Wings 4-3 in 11 innings and Buffalo Bisons shaded Jacksonville Suns by the same score in the other games played.

BOXER RECOVERS

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexican boxer Aaron Nucasmendi, in a coma since being knocked out last Saturday night, regained consciousness Monday and announced he will not fight again, "I was saved this time and it's no little again," the younger pronounced him out of danger.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

IMPROVE YOUR CHANCES FOR SINKING PUTTS

Don't let the diagrams for today's article scare you. I'm not presenting an exercise in advanced geometry. However, I will show you how to increase the size of your putting target. We've all heard the saying, "Never up, never in." Someone usually says it after you fall short on a putt. These diagrams will help me show why I disagree with this philosophy.

In Fig. 1, we see the chance a player has when he bangs away at the hole. Only when the ball squarely hits the back of the cup will it drop. In effect this player has reduced his hole from one of 4.25" in diameter to one no wider than the ball itself, or 1.68".

In #2 we see the target for a golfer who hits his putts just the correct speed to reach the center of the hole. Since putts that trickle down the sides of the hole will drop if over one-half the ball hangs over the lip, it becomes apparent that the target is no longer merely 4.25 inches wide but rather about 5.75". In addition, the Correct putting speed does widen your margin for error.

Timmis played football in Hamilton from 1924 to 1938 after stints with Regina and Ottawa teams. He later coached Hamilton Wildcats to the Grey Cup in 1943.

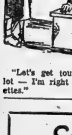
Pretty Sisters Win Laurels Around World

Among the many brilliant performers to be seen featured in the fast-moving two-hour program of the International Hippodrome Circus, the European style circus that has been made famous through television, are the petite and lovely La Fontaine Sisters, who perform daring balancing feats on high unsupported ladders.

The circus comes to the Belleville Memorial Arena on Friday, May 8, and Saturday, May 9, to present four performances under the sponsorship of the Belleville Youth Centre. Performances will start promptly at 4.30 and 8.00 Friday, and at 2 p.m. and 8 Saturday.



The La Fontaine Sisters have created a series of routines with sensational balancing feats that astounded and thrilled audiences in night clubs, theatres and circuses around the world.

During the last two years they were in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, Brazil and Buenos Aires, Argentina and with the Ringling Circus in 1961. They were immediately contracted by circus impresarios for the Santiago, Chile, national holiday festivals and the Lima, Peru, national festival; after which they were brought back to Chile for a return engagement at the national festival by popular demand. The Circo Sud-Americano contracted the girls for the Plaza Congreso in downtown Buenos Aires for the recent winter season and now they will tour the United States and Canada with the International Hippodrome Circus.

MANY ATTRACTIONS

Other outstanding attractions in the performance are: The Riding Remos, bareback stars; Freddie and Ortans, amazing head-to-head balancers; The Belindos, incomparable trampoline somersaulting marvels; The La Mars, two young Australians in fun with plates and stairs; Francisco et Cie, funny men from France; The Hippodrome performing elephants; Allen's trained black bear and Stripes, the football zebra; Miss Kitty, prima ballerina of the air; Miss Dualne, foot juggling wizard; Kay and Kay, Danish exponents of equilibrium, and many others, including Aldo Christelly, amazing Doberman Pinschers.

A European innovation being introduced to America in the program is the Hippodrome Riding School staged by the Riding Remos. The public is invited to try bareback riding with two pretty equestriennes acting as instructors — it's a hilarious, hair-raising interlude for everyone.

'Jest a Second'

"Let's get tough with this lot — I'm right out of cigarettes."

THREE SISTERS FROM FRANCE STARRED WITH CIRCUS HERE — The La Fontaine Sisters, dainty Parisian maids, are billed as the world's greatest and most daring high aerial thrillers. They are featured with the International Hippodrome Circus which comes to the Belleville Memorial Arena on Friday, May 8th, and Saturday, May 9th, under the sponsorship of the Belleville Youth Centre. Performances will start promptly at 4:30 and 8 Friday and at 2 and 8 on Saturday.

Ernest Borgnine Will Wed Ethel Merman Three Days After Securing His Divorce

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ernest Borgnine, who has never seen Ethel Merman on stage, believes in love at first sight.

And Miss Merman, who has never seen the movie Marty, also believes in love at first sight.

That, says the skipper of the TV show Mchale's Navy, is why the two will be wed June 26. That's three days after he picks up his final divorce decree from Tahitian actress Nancy Jurado.

"We really didn't have a romance," says Ernie. "We both happened to be at a Hollywood party one night and started talking.

"Then, a few nights later, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shribman, the hosts of the party, asked if I would mind escorting Miss Merman to a dinner party. I jumped at the chance.

"We talked and she told me that she was leaving the next day for New York. I asked if I could drive her to the airport. As she got on the plane, we hugged and kissed goodbye. And then I said, I'd like to come back to New York and see her. She said, 'fine.'

"I went back, met her son and then I said: 'You know I'll be a free man on June 23. Nothing would make me happier than if you would become Mrs. Ernest Borgnine on June 24.' Even I was surprised I said it."

She said: 'I thought you would never ask.' Gosh, I had only about three dates with her.

"I was a two-time loser and Ethel said she had been married three times and had given up all hope of ever getting married again. So had I. But both of us now are firm believers in love at first sight. It hit us the first time we talked.

"We would have gotten married the 24th but there's a three-day wait before the license and getting married out here."

Borgnine gives a rare private image of the famed Broadway star.

"Everybody thinks she is loud and brash," says Ernie. "She's just the opposite. She's soft, gentle and shy. And you know me, I'm 'Marty'.

"I think that's why we hit it off so well."

Ethel says: "For the first time in my life I feel protected. I have a feeling of security. I've never been in love—really in love—before."

FOR HERSELF

Says Ernie: "She knows that I really love her for herself, not her money, not her fame, nothing but herself. Hell, the only time I heard her sing was once when she sang her night club songs to me.

"She's fabulous!"

Ernie is on his way to becoming one of the world's richest sailors. After 10 years in the U.S Navy as an enlisted man, he's finally hit big money as a lieutenant-commander with his TV series.

McHale's Navy currently is being filmed as a movie, too.

"As an enlisted man I was a pauper," says Borgnine. "As an officer, I'm becoming a millionaire."

TITLE CHANGES

NBC-TV, which changed the title of Dennis Weaver's Kentucky Kid series to Kentucky, now has decided that Kentucky Jones is even better.

20,000 Acres Of Bulb Fields Start to Bloom

HILLEGOM (AP)—Holland's 20,000 acres of bulb fields, including tulips, crocus, narcissus and hyacinths, have emerged from winter ready for a record spring.

The first bulbs were imported 400 years ago from Turkey. By the early 1600s the bulb trade was flourishing.

Old and sometimes gloomy estates dot the area, bearing witness to its early prosperity. One fairy princess among them, Keukenhof, is the showcase of the 1,000 licensed bulb growers and exporters.

They have tailored Keukenhof with a spring dress of more than 1,500 varieties of tulips, dotted with beds of the other bulbous flowers.

More than 700,000 persons come to visit the flowering fields during the eight - week bloom period each year.

Since 1947, when Keukenhof was opened, Dutch bulb exports have doubled to 68,000 tons. Miles of color film taken here have been sent to 117 countries which have bought $75,000,000 worth of Dutch bulbs.

Nearly one-third of the export bulbs go to West Germany. Other leading buyers are Britain, the United States, Sweden and France.

Inspectors are stationed in The Netherlands by two countries—Canada and the United States—to watch for infected or otherwise unacceptable bulbs. But the Dutch maintain their own strict supervision on exports. Government inspectors don't hesitate to condemn an entire stock if only one infected bulb is found.

HALIFAX (CP) — According to figures given at an advertising seminar here, the average Halifax family spends $666 and nually for food. It also spends $68 for women's clothing, $34 for men's clothing, $84 for furniture, $32 for shoes, $74 for building materials and $24 for jewelry.

Michael Parks, After 10 Yrs., Making Good in Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The thing about interviewing Michael Parks is that you're not sure whether he's going to answer you or slug you.

That's the impression he gives at first, anyway. Later you realize he is an earnest young man who might have something to say.

Who is Michael Parks? It's not an outlandish question. But if the combined forces of MCA and Universal have their way, the question will be superfluous 12 months hence.

Michael Parks by his own description is "a 10-year overnight success." His looks and talent have convinced the Universal city moguls to give him an all-out push to stardom. He has just finished two starring roles: Daffey and Bus Riley's Back in Town. He's Bus Riley in the latter, playing opposite Ann-Margret and Janet Margolin (David and Lisa) in a William Inge script.

Mike was born in Corona, Calif., 28 years ago, one of five children of a truck driver. He left home at 15 and did everything from picking peas to upholstering caskets, managing to put in three years of college as well.

"Hungry? Sure I've been hungry." he says. "I've gone three days without a meal, but that was when I was a kid. If you really want it, you can make money somehow, even if it's washing dishes. Which I did."

He managed to pick up seven years of stage experience in theatres from Long Beach to Sacramento.

NOT CASTING TYPE

"These casting guys don't even know those theatres exist," says Mike. "They have better actors than these Sunset Boulevard characters with the fancy haircuts, tight pants, straight noses and capped teeth. They're the ones that the casting people look at."

He speaks from bitter experience. For many months his agent tried to peddle him to the studios with no takers. Parks didn't fit the leading man formula. His hair is blonde and wild; his wide-jawed face is freckled. His teeth are all his own.

Parks managed to land some television roles, but nothing really sparkled until he did a part on "Gunsmoke" this season. Some important studio people championed his cause. The result: the two starring features and the star-making campaign.

His feelings about the fuss that's being made over him? They are mixed.

"I like doing features," he remarked. "I like the attention you can give to a role. It's like doing a play. Across a television show is like doing a scene. It's over so fast."

His ambition soars high. "I'd like to do a play in New York, and Inge says he wants to write for me," he says. "I'd like to do a play in London. I'd like to have a repertory company, not only for stage but films, too."

It sounds visionary, but Michael Parks might do all this and more. The next 12 months will tell.

CBS Will Have 32 New Programs During Summer

By CYNTHIS LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Outer Limits is an early evening show apparently designed to deliciously scare people — too old for Godzilla but too unsophisticated for Twilight Zone.

There obviously is a big audience for this nonsense—monsters from outer space and mad scientists with time machines—because ABC has renewed it for another season.

This sort of stuff was Grade D movie fodder before the Second World War so maybe ABC needs a time tilting machine of its own.

The odds — for the next seven days of television — are just about even that any evening network program will be a re-run. There will be 42 repeats; 45 new shows.

Best bet for the viewer in search of fresh episodes in CBS, which will show 32 new programs and only 10 re-runs.

By summer, viewers will have available only a handful of new programs. Ed Sullivan, for one, will show only two repeats.

The Danny Kaye Show will be replaced in early July by a variety - type show starring Rudy Vallee and featuring young performers — Forever — CBS's Sunday night Bonanza will be new episodes of a summer series made five years ago.

NBC, whose summer schedule contains not a single new entertainment program, will replace That Was The Week That Was in July with On Parade, a series of variety shows shown originally to Canadian viewers.

ABC's Lawrence Welk show and Hollywood Palace will continue with fresh material.

Joey Bishop, with television wife Abby Dalton and child, will be marching to CBS in the fall. In a deal wrapped up last week-end the Bishop situation comedy currently on NBC, will move into the CBS Sunday night lineup—the half-hour period in which Martha Raye and William Bendix were expected to co-star.

Radar System Taken Out Of Cuba

WASHGTON HS (AP) — The Soviet Union has removed from Cuba a highly sophisticated new radar system that probably added to the effectiveness of Fidel Castro's anti-aircraft missiles, it was learned Monday night.

The radar system — which qualified sources said had not been seen anywhere else but Cuba — was withdrawn about two or three months ago. It was said to have been less susceptible to jamming, capable of faster target tracking, and probably was for use against low-flying planes.

Withdrawal of this system returns the efficiency of the Cuban radar—so vital to the performance of the anti - aircraft missiles—to the level of what it was at the time of the Cuban missile crisis in the fall of 1962, it was reported.

Gallery of Modern Art Will Display Artists and Movements of Last 200 Yrs.

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YORK (CP) — A 10-storey building is a dwarf by Manhattan standards. But as a conversation piece, an odd-dimensioned structure of that height is just about the biggest thing in town these days.

This 10-storey building is the home of New York's newest museum, the Gallery of Modern Art, including the Huntington Hartford Collection, which opened late in March.

It is an areaded and screened white-and-green marble edifice constructed on a tiny island on the south edge of Columbus Circle where Broadway and 59th Street intersect at the southwest corner of Central Park.

It stands out like a small white palace against a background of drab skyscrapers and it overshadows a conglomeration of lawns, fences and pavements that surround a Christopher Columbus statue and marks up an involved traffic circle where a stranger can easily become lost among the taxicabs.

IT'S UNUSUAL

Its architecture is neither traditional nor ultra - modern, but it can be said safely that it is unusual.

The same generality, while surely an inadequate description can be applied to the man who had the gallery built at an estimated cost of between $7,000,000 and $9,000,000.

He is G. Huntington Hartford II, 53, heir to the A. and P. food chain fortunes and described as one of the world's richest men.

He also is described as one who cares little for pretension or artificiality and cares less intensive to display artists and movements of the last 200 years which, while of high quality, have been ignored by other New York museums for years as unfashionable.

One example of this was the gallery's initial visiting exhibition—a rare collection of more than 300 works of Russian-born Pavel Tchelitchew, who died in 1959. It was the first major museum showing of Tchelitchew's works here since 1942—and it attracted visitors, paying 75 cents each, at the rate of 1,000 an hour during the first several days.

Huntington Hartford says the gallery's purpose is "to show a different aesthetic point of view from the vulgar commercialism on the one hand and the 'ivory tower' intellectualism on the other" which he says have prevailed in the U.S. and especially in New York City for nearly 30 years.

RETAIN REALISM

Paintings sculpture and occasionally graphic arts, photography and architecture will be shown in art—ts to reflect progressive ... of contemporary life. ... ere will be no loss of "the visual communication with visual reality which is so often ignored in the art of our time."

The new museum was designed by architect Edward Durell Stone, who built it of poured concrete and sheathed it in white marble with touches of gold.

The only interruptions in the exterior surface are arched openings to eighth and ninth floor balconies overlooking Central Park, and hundreds of circular openings along the edges of the walls. The latter give an appearance of perforated borders and provide for windows in the unusable corners of the exhibit areas inside.

The 158-foot-high structure is set on an island that measures about 61 feet by 76 feet by 75 feet by 97 feet. This tiny, odd-shaped lot, along with city building codes that demand fire stairs, public stairs and elevators, meant the building would be largely filled by its service core.

SPACE WELL USED

Stone made the best of the space. He put most galleries at the front of the building, placed smaller exhibit rooms around the service core and widened the stairway landings to give high-ceilinged galleries at half-way levels.

In one of these Huntington Hartford has his prize pieces—two huge paintings by Salvador Dali. His collection forms a permanent exhibit on the fourth and fifth floors.

The visiting exhibits are displayed on the second and third floors. An espresso lounge is on the eighth floor, a restaurant on the ninth and administration and storage space on the sixth and seventh. The basement contains a 154-seat auditorium for concerts, lectures and film shows.

Huntington Hartford says he expects every style of work will be displayed, "with no holds barred except one—a standard of high quality which will be vigorously maintained."

"If many museums of our day take pride in being experimental workshops, the Gallery of Modern Art will pride itself on the exhibition of finished products."

Carl J. Weinhardt, Jr., 36, Indianapolis-born former director of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts was employed as director of the new gallery here.

He says no crusade is intended. The aim is more to make art available than to popularize it.

LATEST IN NEW YORK — The newest and most talked-about museum in New York City is the "Gallery of Modern Art, including the Huntington Hartford Collection." A 10-storey structure on the southern edge of Columbus Circle in midtown Manhattan, it was built by millionaire Huntington Hartford as a showplace for his own art collection and for visiting exhibits of quality works from the last 200 years. It's been dubbed by some as the "gallery of unfashionable art" because of Huntington Hartford's taste for realism and his dislike of abstract works that have been in vogue lately. (CP Photo)

Tweed

TWEED — A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Guy Hughes on Tuesday evening to honor Miss Sharon Quinn, a bride-to-be of this Saturday.

Miss Cathy McDonald of Toronto spent the weekend at her home here.

Mr. Wayne Latta and young son, Paul, of Toronto, spent the weekend at his parents' home. His mother, Mrs. Cyril Latta, returned home with him after spending the past two weeks in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wood and Mrs. Harry Austin are in Toronto this week.

Robert Thurston, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thurston, entertained a number of his young friends on the occasion of his birthday.

Mr. S. J. Anderson and sons Jim and Robert, of Sarnia, spent the weekend with friends in Sulphide and Tweed.

The Misses Linda Sedore and Marjorie Palmateer, commercial students at Tweed High School, have joined the Bank of Montreal staffs in Toronto.

Mrs. Ken Belch left Toronto by jet last week for Winnipeg. She will also visit her mother in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Mr. Norris Embury is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Members of the Kiwanis Club were out last Sunday moving 25 trees and planting them at Victoria Cemetery. It is the start of a major project to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Kiwanis Club.

Tweed High School students will hold their first school track and field day this Friday, to continue all day ending with the presentation of ribbons, followed by a dance in the evening.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mahoney in the sudden death of their two-month-old son, Jonathan David, who died April 28th.

A team of bowlers from Tweed took part Sunday, April 19th, at Peterborough in a Knights of Columbus district bowling tournament. Twenty-one teams from Oshawa, Whitby, Peterborough and area, took part with 125 bowlers attending. Cartha Cassidy of Tweed won the trophy for the high triple of the day with 791. The Tweed team was third in final standing and received a cash prize. Bowling for Tweed team were Cartha Cassidy, Doug Rupert, Simon Meraw, Charlie Dion and Mac Cassidy.

Mrs. Ernest Heidman who has been a patient in Belleville hospital for the past five weeks was able to return home last weekend.

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Paul of Napanee, formerly of Tweed, were in town on Saturday.

Garden Notes

Propping and Pinching Plants

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The perennials and self-seeded annuals are up and beginning to branch out into healthy tufts of foliage. Before they begin to lean, sprawl, droop or sag off in the wind give them supports and pinch them back.

Short pieces of twigs, the ones you pruned from your shrubs are just right for supports. Sharpen the thick end and push it into the soil around and between your plants. The growing plants will grow up through them, twine around them or lean on them and so stay in an upright position.

Your border will look a bit untidy for a short time until the foliage covers the bare twigs but this will not take long. Spring growth is rapid and lush.

Privet, willow, forsythia and Chinese elm twigs are quite apt to take root. Use dead twigs or ones that will not root readily.

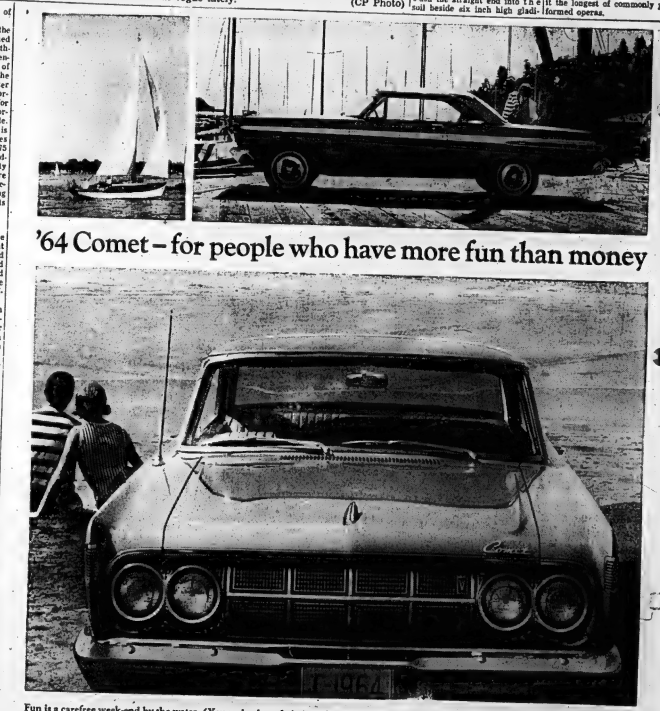
GOOD PROPS

Coat hangers make good props. Unwind the hanger and straighten it. Bend eight inches down at each end and form the centre section into a half round. Use two of these to circle a big lusty plant such as a peony.

For gladiolus, which have a bad habit of leaning with the wind make wire supports. Straighten coat hangers, this will give you 45 inches of wire. Cut in half and wrap 14 inches around a broom handle to make a loose spiral. Bend the tip in to prevent it catching clothing. Push the straight end into the soil beside six inch high gladiolus plants. Gently work the foliage into the spiral and the plant will continue to grow up through the wire, and will stand tall all summer.

Use the whole length of wire to make longer supports with larger spirals for large and growing plants such as the peonies. Use two or three supports if there are several spires to the clump.

BUSHY PLANTS



Many plants should be pinched rather than allowed to grow tall. This will give you a bushy plant with more bloom. Nip out the growing centre of the plant as it reaches six or eight inches high. Repeat when the side shoots have grown two to four inches. Keep on pinching until just before the buds set. With chrysanthemums this will be July first to the fifteenth.

If you have a large bed of mums and they get ahead of you nip off six or eight inches with the garden shears. From some of these cuttings in June or July increase your stock.

For compact plants with plenty of blooms pinch the following plants: snapdragon, hardy aster (perennial) baby's breath, buttons, begonia, marigold, rudbeckia, nicotiana (flowering tobacco), salpiglossis, shasta daisy, stokesia.

LONGEST OPERA

Richard Wagner's Parsival lasts four hours 40 minutes in a normal performance, making it the longest of commonly performed operas.

'64 Comet – for people who have more fun money

Fun is a carefree week-end by the water. (You arrive in style in your beautiful Comet—relaxed, refreshed, ready to join in the fun.)

Fun is a wind at your back, open water ahead and a bright, cloud-flecked sky above. (There's mighty smooth sailing in a Comet, too. Steady, obediently responsive to the 'helm'.)

Fun is admiring the sleek lines of a taut, trim craft. (The crisp, clean styling of the rakish Comet presents an ever-present invitation to adventure. Just cast off and cruise.)

Fun is sitting in quiet contemplation, with the surf swishing in and out on the sands. (And Comet doesn't interrupt your reverie when you leave. You're carried away smoothly, silently in gentle Comet comfort.)

REVIVED by fresh water flowing down from Lake on the Mountain, U.S., raised lake trout swim about in tanks at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station. The fish will be released, at several spots in the lake, after they have become acclimatized to local water.

PLASTIC BAGS partly filled with water and inflated with oxygen kept trout alive on a plane ride from Charlevoix, Mich., to Glenora. In the picture, biologist Jack Christie looks up from checking one bag. The beer box beside him does not indicate a wild time at the Glenora hatchery — the bag was packed with ice in the carton, for the trip.

100,000 Lake Trout Will Be Dumped Into Lake Ontario

PICTON (Staff)—If the lake trout fishing in Lake Ontario does not improve in the next few years, it will not be the fault of the Federal Government.

Last year they dumped 100,000 lake trout into the deep hole adjacent to Main Duck Island, and again this year, the "Operation Transplant" is once again in full swing, with another 100,000.

On Monday about noon, a giant PBY or Canso flying boat landed just beside the Glenora Ferry and the task of transferring 160 boxes, each containing 100 lake trout was started. Five more trips will be made.

The fish, weighing about 20 to the pound were picked up at the Charlevoix Fish Hatchery in Northern Michigan about 8.30 a.m. and under the supervision of W. J. Christie, the biologist at the Glenora Hatchery, were then flown here, where they were given a chance to get used to the water, before being transported to the part of Lake Ontario, where they will make their new home.

"We fish are packed in air-tight plastic bags, from which all air is removed, and replaced with oxygen, under pressure. This sort of stuns the fish, and keeps the water cool. The ice in which they are packed keeps the water at about 34 degrees.

PLACED IN TANKS

On arrival at the Glenora plant, the bags are placed in tanks of running water, and left there until the temperature inside the bag begins to get close to the 53 degree water from Lake on the Mountain, which feeds the hatchery.

The fish are then released, and they get their little snouts out of the water, seemingly gasping for air. In about 30 seconds, they are completely revived, and start swimming like mad along the huge tanks.

Strangely enough, the mortality rate on these transfers is so minute as to be not noticed.

The 100,000 lake trout that were transplanted last year are, according to officials, now about ten inches long and there has been no noticeable deaths in these fish." The returns are very promising," said Mr. Christie.

This transplanting will be the last, making a total of 200,000 lake trout that have been transferred from the far northern part of Michigan to warmer climate in Southern Ontario.

Grant to Taylor Blasted by His Worship

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor Harvey J. McFarland verbally blasted the priorities of the Provincial government in giving a grant of $40,000 to E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist. Mayor McFarland spoke at the council meeting Monday night.

According to an article in a Toronto paper, the government established a grant totalling $70,000 to encourage and help in the breeding of race horses and of this amount E. P. Taylor will receive the $40,000.

"When a small industry needs help is getting started he cannot get a dime out of the government," said the Mayor.

"But let a multi-millionaire come along and he gets a $40,000 grant, just like that," he added.

The Mayor referred to the Picton Pick Freeze that started up and has had trouble getting financial backing from either government.

"This is not the only case, there are many hundreds of small people trying to get a start on their own, and yet this man, who does not even live in Canada, can dip his fingers in and get that kind of money", he continued.

"E. P. Taylor lives in Nassau and no doubt he pays plenty of taxes in Canada, but he takes his money down there where it is safe from taxes, I imagine, it's sickening to think of that man, sitting down there in a million-dollar home, with a large yacht anchored at his front door, and you and I and other taxpayers have to give him $40,000. The Mayor went on.

"I am happy to see that at least one politician has the courage of his own convictions. Ken Bryden, New Democrat for Woodbine riding has gone a long way in my estimation for bringing this to light, this is our money they are handing out, and yet he is one of the wealthiest men in Canada today. I think he is quite capable of financing himself without our help," the Mayor concluded.

STORE BODIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bodies of at least four city residents are being stored at funeral homes pending settlement of a strike by the city's 1,500 civic outside workers. Grave diggers at the city - owned Mountain View Cemetery were among the workers who went on strike April 23 to back up wage demands after union and city negotiations broke down.

Off-Street Parking Gives Town Council a Headache

PICTON (Staff. — In a council meeting that lasted only two hours, members of council waded through a considerable amount of business in a hurry. The air conditioning units installed last year, have not as yet been connected, and the council chamber was like an oven. Shirt sleeves were the order of the day.

Chairman of Finance James Bird was given sick leave for June, July and August.

Deputy-Reeve Don Thompson reported on the parking problem. "I am having headaches. I cannot seem to get together with some of the merchants. They all want off street parking but when it comes to the point, where the town will have to have some of their property, the price goes up to a point where we simply cannot pay it," he said.

"I would like to have a meeting with all the merchants at one time and see if we cannot get this thing off the ground, if they will co-operate, we can get this thing done," he concluded.

Councillor Charles Barber, invited the Deputy-Reeve to attend the next meeting of the Picton Businessmen's Association but oddly enough, all the merchants are not members, but an effort will be made to get them all out for one meeting.

Lieut.-Col. William Mulherin of Camp Picton asked council, on behalf of McGinnis Bus Lines, to establish a "no parking bus loading zone" adjacent to the Regent Theatre and the Library.

The letter from the Commanding Officer stated that the bus company wishes to start a three-day weekly service from the PMQ at Camp Picton to downtown. The service would run Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The matter was referred to the parking and traffic committee for study.

BUILDING PERMITS UP

Building permits for April ran into a total of $432,417. This amount includes the $301,717 addition to the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, and $33,000 for the new Free Methodist Church.

Reeve Barney Hepburn, chairman of Streets and Sewers, told council that the proposed extension of services to East Bridge Street, would cost about $70,000. He said he would present plans and complete costs at next council meeting, at which time the council could decide if they wanted to proceed.

The controversial question of the Picton fire truck attending a fire outside the town limits came up again at last night's council.

The question was put by Councillor Randolph Clapp after the local mill had gone to the Co-Op to help fight a bad fire out there.

It turned out that no one gave permission for the equipment to leave the town, Fire Chief Nelson Bell taking it on himself to attend, after being requested by Mr. Mullins of the Co-Op. The fire chief told Mr. Mullins he would be charged for the call and council was told that the bill was $237.40.

HAD TO WAIT CLAIM

Mr. Hepburn objected to this, as the last time the same building took fire, the bill was about the same, and they had to wait a long time before Hallowell Township would pay it.

Councillor Clapp, said "The Hallowell ratepayers who live just outside of town probably do not know that they have no fire protection from us here in Picton. There is no agreement between Hallowell and Picton, and it seems to me that Hallowell could care less, but if some house or property close to town should be destroyed, they would blame us, and we are not to blame. They should get after their own council to get something done about an agreement, or some day, someone is going to face a heavy fire loss, and they can blame only their own township council," he concluded.

Reeve Hepburn said, "If we had not responded to that alarm we would have been severely criticized, but Hallowell should be told that if this last bill is not paid in 30 days our fire truck will not leave the town limits, no matter where the fire is in the township."

Town Solicitor Reg. Nourse suggested that this bill be sent to the Co-op as they ordered the call, but that an agreement should be reached with Hallowell as soon as possible.

Home Builder Shapes Community

The house builder is an important person in the community. He determines to some extent how the city will grow and what it will look like. You cannot have an attractive community without good builders. A conscientious builder takes as much pride in the houses he builds as will the owners of these homes. That defects should sometimes develop in a house after the owners have moved in should not necessarily be held against the builder. The flawless house is still waiting to be built. House builders are practical businessmen who know that a satisfied home owner is their best advertisement. There are reputable builders in most communities. If you are in doubt consult your banker or other business man of good standing. A builder, like any other merchant can be judged by his product. Looking over the houses put up by various builders is still the best method of comparing the workmanship as well as the styling of homes constructed by different builders. The occupants of newly built homes are another reliable source of information when shopping around for a builder.

Great Cultural Issues Debated With Gusto

B and B Commission Holds Kingston Meeting

By RONALD LEBEL

KINGSTON (CP)—The great cultural issues of Confederation were debated with gusto by 450 persons from all walks of life here Tuesday night in an historic hall that was built to house Parliament but never did.

Five members of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism heard a wide spectrum of views in the one time capital of the united province of Canada.

Some speakers called for constitutional amendments to extend bilingualism to all areas of the country where both major language groups are represented, but one participant suggested annexation of English-speaking Canada to the United States.

C. J. Vincent of Kingston said amid applause and hisses: "If Quebec wants to withdraw, it should be free to do so."

The rest of Canada already is part of the U.S. in cultural and economic terms, so political union would not be a great step, he said.

BUILDING NEVER USED

The meeting was held in the Kingston city hall, built in 1843-44 as the first parliament of Canada at the urging of Premier Sir John A. Macdonald. The capital of Upper and Lower Canada was moved to Montreal, however, and pre-Confederation legislators consistently refused to meet in the local building.

Ronald MacFarlane, a lawyer from nearby Gananoque, called for a constitutional amendment that would give the federal government special powers to operate French - language schools outside Quebec and English-language schools in Quebec.

The only alternative to nationwide bilingualism was a crazy quilt of reserves with only one official language.

Some participants felt separate school systems would insure religious rather than lessen division in Canada.

"How can we expect Canadian unity," asked A. F. Tresenza, "when five-year-old children separate into different schools and are taught different religions, histories, languages and prejudices?"

ALREADY DIVIDED

Prof. Glen Shortliffe of Queen's University replied that Canada was already divided by their school system along religious lines.

Most Protestant French-speaking participants said most Canadians would like to see school systems divided along religious lines instead to protect minorities better. Religious instruction should not be permitted before or after regular school hours.

Ed Swain, a Kingston lawyer, said the report in January of 10,000 Quebec Jaycees from the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce was a severe blow to French-English relations. Quebec and Canada were in reaction among English-speaking Canadians as Quebec moved ahead.

British Troops Fight Way Out Of Desert Trap

Paratroopers Dislodge Arab Rebels From Hills

THUMAIR (AP) — British paratroopers broke out of a desert village in the South Arabian Federation Tuesday night after being pinned down for 12 hours by Bedouin rebels. Two Britons and at least six tribesmen were killed.

The British struck at nightfall and seized hills where Bedouins armed with rifles, machine guns and mortars had been sniping at them all day under the broiling 110-degree sun.

Ten other members of the 120-man British company were wounded in the fierce fighting with the tribesmen, known as the Red Wolves of Radfan. The casualties were flown to the British Middle East base at Aden, 50 miles to the south.

The paratroopers are part of a British force trying to clear about 600 rebels from the road between Aden and Dhala, 60 miles to the north. Britain has about 2,000 men battling dissident tribes in the Federation of British - protected sheikhdoms stretching across the southern end of the Arabian Peninsula.

REPORT INFILTRATORS

The British have accused neighboring Yemen and the United Arab Republic of supplying modern weapons to the rebels. There were unconfirmed reports that Yemen was trying to infiltrate 300 soldiers to help the Bedouins. A U.N. radio broadcast urged the Arabs in the federation's army not to fight their rebel brethren.

The British offensive began Monday night when 800 men of the 45th Royal Marine Regiment marched five miles through rebel territory and occupied two key mountains. The paratroopers, trying to take the rebels from the rear, took up positions on another escarpment deeper in rebel territory.

Moving toward the mud-walled village at dawn, the paratroopers were met by heavy machine-gun fire. The British charged with fixed bayonets and took the village after bloody hand-to-hand fighting.

The Bedouins fled into the hills and poured fire on the village where the British scattered them at sunset.

2 Cypriots Wounded By Shots

By CLARE McDERMOTT

NICOSIA (Reuters)—Two Cypriots were shot and wounded this morning in a new flare-up which brought renewed tension in Nicosia, Famagusta and the Kyrenia Mountain area.

A UN spokesman reported that a 50-year-old Greek-Cypriot was shot and wounded while riding a bicycle in the northern Nicosia suburb of Trakhonas, near Porkehop Hill.

The spokesman said Greek-Cypriots in the area threatened to open fire with machine guns on Turkish-Cypriots across the "green line" dividing the two communities but had been dissuaded "for the time being," by the Canadian regimental commander.

In Famagusta, a UN spokesman reported that a Greek-Cypriot policeman shot and seriously wounded a Turkish-Cypriot.

DISREGARDED ORDER

The spokesman said the Turkish-Cypriot refused an order to stop his car outside a police station and knocked down a Greek-Cypriot policeman.

The policeman suffered fire and wounded the driver, the spokesman said.

SHEPHERD KILLED

NICOSIA (CP)—Sgt. Jacques Bourchard of Montreal led a seven - man Canadian patrol Tuesday to recover the body of a Greek-Cypriot shepherd, the only victim in a day of sporadic shooting between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots on Cyprus.

The 30-year-old shepherd was shot through the head near Dhiorios village in the foothills of the besieged Kyrenia Mountains. He was still alive when the Canadians found him several hours later, but died shortly afterwards.

The incident aroused a sharp exchange of fire between the warring factions which ended when the Canadians arranged another ceasefire.

Free World Trade Gets Green Light

By CARL HARTMAN

GENEVA (AP) — The drive that President Kennedy started to free world trade got a green light today from the chief negotiators at the 75-nation Kennedy Round talks.

The world's trading giants, the United States, Britain and the European Common Market, agreed to negotiate on the basis of a 50 per cent, across-the-board reduction in tariffs. But that is only a goal and the final cuts won't average that much.

When negotiations are concluded, in 1965 or 1966, the result should be more business for all and a brake on rising prices. This is the purpose of the Kennedy Round of trade negotiations, which the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade opened in Geneva this week.

Even some Communist countries will go along in this attempt to improve trade. Czechoslovakia already is a member of GATT and Poland is working hard for greater participation.

FRANCE DUBIOUS

U.S. officials were pleased to pin down the 50 per cent figure, even as only a basis for work. President Charles de Gaulle's government, fearful of tougher foreign competition for France's growing industry, had opposed setting this reduction, the maximum allowed by U.S. law as the official aim of the talks.

U.S. tariffs, though halved twice over the last 30 years, still are in many cases much higher than the tariffs of other countries.

A rule is to be worked out that will cut these higher U.S. tariffs by the full 50 per cent and reduce the corresponding European tariffs by a lower margin, perhaps 25 per cent.

Each country involved also will submit a list of exceptions for items which must be dealt with separately. A deadline of Sept. 30 was set for these lists.

That is when the tough bargaining will start. There will be even greater delays in dealing with the matters that make the Kennedy Round the greatest exercise of its kind held, since GATT began tariff-cutting negotiations in 1948.

GRAIN ISSUE STALLED

For the first time farm products as well as manufactured goods are to be included. Grains are the first order of business, but little can be done now because West Germany is holding up an agreement on a unified grain price for all six members of the Common Market.

This delay may last until after the West German elections in the fall of 1965.

Both the U.S. and Canada regard European farm protectionism as high, and they want Minister To Head Dept.

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts announced Tuesday that Education Minister Davis is capable of heading the new department of university affairs as well as his own department.

He was replying in the legislature to a suggestion by Leslie Troy (L—Nipissing) that Mr. Davis had been handed the responsibility because of the meagre reinforcements in the Conservative back benches.

The premier said he assured the opposition member the new department would not interfere with university autonomy in the province.

It would disabuse anyone's mind of the idea that secretly we want to control the universities while publicly we don't," said the premier during a debate on department estimates.

Robert Nixon (L—Brant) and Donald C. MacDonald (NDP—York South) suggested as an alternative an independent university grants committee to distribute government funds to institutions of higher learning.

Mr. Nixon said it would be an infringement on university jurisdiction if the minister of the new department had sole control over which universities would receive government loans for construction purposes.

HITS WIRE-TAPPING

In another matter, John White (PC—London South) said wire-tapping and "bugging" of private conversations is prevalent in his own community and probably throughout the province.

He said auto dealers in London and the Bell Telephone Company use concealed microphones —the dealers to listen in on private conversations among customers in special cubicles and the telephone company for listening to employees handling complaints and other company business.

Mr. MacDonald said he learned from a "unimpeachable source" that Canadians are being sent out of the country to take courses in wire-tapping.

Mr. Wishart said he knows of no police wire-tapping going on in Ontario and he did not think governments should have the right to tap wires to obtain confidential information.

On auto dealers, Mr. Wishart told the legislature's legal bills committee there is no reason to extend to new car dealers the new measures to supervise and control used car dealers and salesmen.

In answer to Vernon Singer (L — Toronto Downsview), he said there have been no complaints about new car dealers like those which prompted action in the used car field.

Barry Goldwater Picks up Indiana's Convention Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again U.S. voters have proved how much they like a famous name—and George C. Wallace, Alabama's states' rights governor, has proved he can stir up problems for Democrats even while losing.

Seven widely scattered presidential preference primaries were held Tuesday in which:

—Robert Taft Jr. and former football coach Bud Wilkinson scored landslide victories;

—Attorney John Glenn ran well in a race from which he had withdrawn;

—Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona picked up Indiana's 32 convention votes in his chase after the Republican presidential nomination;

—Wallace lost to President Johnson's man in Indiana, Governor Matthew E. Welsh, but with around 30 per cent of the votes he claimed victory.

It was a big primary day, and often a thoroughly confusing one.

In Indiana, for example, Goldwater had been expected to breeze in, with Harold Stassen supplying minimum opposition.

But the former governor of Minnesota picked up around a quarter of the votes cast, his finest showing in years.

And in Ohio Representative Robert Taft Jr. made his first move toward taking over the Senate seat held by his late father and won the Republican nomination with a knockout victory over State Secretary Ted Brown.

But Democrat Senator Stephen M. Young, 75, found the voters like John H. Glenn Jr. even though a bathroom fall had taken him out of the race. Glenn's name stayed on the ballot, and about one third of the Democrats voted for him anyway.

Elsewhere in the U.S. there were these developments:

Oklahoma—Former coach Bud Wilkinson was an easy winner in his try for the Republican senatorial nomination. His opponent was to be decided in a runoff between the incumbent Senator J. Howard Edmondson and State Senator Fred Harris.

Alabama—Wallace's slate of unpledged electors won by a top-sided margin over a pro-Johnson ticket. Once more Alabama Democrats are in full revolt against the national party.

In Macon County, Ala., scene of racial unrest, three out of four Negroes seeking office appeared to have overturn Democratic nomination.

Motions Defeated Easily

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Two non-confidence motions that could have sunk the minority Liberal government were defeated easily by a water-weary Commons Tuesday night after a two-day debate on high water, low water, polluted water and no water.

At issue was a Conservative non-confidence motion that criticized the government for its alleged failure to establish a national policy on water resources and a Creditiste amendment calling on the government to step up activities under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act.

The Creditiste amendment, moved Monday by Gilles Grégoire, Lapointe, was supported only by members of that party. It was crushed 210 to 12 by the combined forces of all other parties.

A few minutes later the main motion, moved by former resources minister Walter Dinsdale, went down to defeat by the same margin, 210 to 78.

They were the eighth and ninth non-confidence motions of the current session.

PROBLEM URGENT

Taking centre stage throughout most of the debate was the dwindling water line of the Great Lakes — a problem all members said is urgent.

Resources Minister Laing assured the House Tuesday that the government is fully aware of the serious situation on the lakes "and any of those mandate things to improve the situation which are possible at this time will be done by us from time to time in full co-operation with the Americans."

Several weeks ago Mr. Laing said one immediate course of action would be to pray for rain

"There are many people across Canada today," said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, "who are beginning to believe that prayer for a change of government might bring a change in attitude towards this problem."

Mr. Laing said there is another serious water problem—this time involving too much water—in British Columbia.

"I do not want to be an alarmist, but those of us who are members from the province of British Columbia will admit right now that in the next few weeks we are going to go through very trying times in that province."

Writes Her Tax Cheque On Panties

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — A Mount Allison University student has written her tax cheque on a pair of panties—and sent them along to the finance minister.

Those gentlemen gulped, then sent the novel cheque to a bank for payment. The gentlemen at the bank gulped, then honored the payment. Officials did not identify the lady.

Russia Building Seven to 10 Nuclear-Powered Subs a Yr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia now may be building atomic-powered submarines at a rate of seven to 10 a year, U.S. sources estimate.

This would about match the American production schedule.

Available records show that in the last full year the United States constructed nine nuclear-engined submarines either Polaris or attack ships.

This was below the planned average of one submarine a month. That plan was upset by new and tighter construction safety requirements, ordered after the loss of the Thresher a year ago.

Another factor to be considered is that the U.S. program carries construction through only about another two or three years, when building of 41 Polaris and 64 attack submarines will have been completed and the last of them put into fitting-out yards for final work.

On the other hand, Russia has given no indication of a termination date for her atomic submarine program.

As the Russians have progressed into the atomic submarine field, they appear to have eased off on some of the supersecrecy which surrounded their effort at the outset of the attempt to catch up or surpass the United States.

From time to time, Soviet nuclear-powered submarines now are seen surfaced, whereas before they probably operated close to home or in Arctic waters immediately north of the Russian homeland. Those reported as sighted up to now have been in the eastern Atlantic region.

The British publication, Jane's Fighting Ships, states in its latest edition that the Soviet Union has 45 (by the latter half of this year) 26 atomic-powered submarines in operation. At that time, the United States had about 30 in commission.

The U.S. Navy currently has 18 attack-type ships and 19 Polaris ships in commission, with 13 of the latter deployed on station in the eastern Atlantic.

Former Auschwitz Doctor Wins Damages From Uris - - Half-Penny

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. Wladislaw Dering, a former prison camp doctor at Auschwitz who brought a libel action against the author and British publishers of the book Exodus was awarded a half-penny damages in the High Court here today.

Today's Chuckle

No wonder so many people get lost in thought. It's completely unfamiliar to them.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Today should be slightly warmer than Tuesday with precipitation confined to the area from Lake Superior westward.

The decision came on the 18th day of the Exodus case, in which Dering was suing Leon Uris and his London publishers for a co-operation in reference to him in the novel.

The paragraph charged Dering with performing 17,000 surgical experiments on Auschwitz prisoners without anaesthetics.

Uris and the publishers admitted the paragraph was defamatory but contended that it was true in substance and fact, subject to certain qualifications.

Dering now has a London practice.

The judge in the case, Sir Frederick Lawton, said Tuesday that doctors who did experimental operations at Auschwitz, a Nazi death camp in Poland, must either have been Nazis or favored inmates.

U.S. Historian Claims Britain, Not Hitler, Made War Inevitable

DUESSELDORF (Reuters) — Controversial U.S. historian David L. Hoggan has repeated here his claim that it was not Hitler but British which unleashed the Second World War.

Hoggan, who interprets the events leading to the Second World War in his book The Enforced War, arrived in the West German city Sunday to receive two prizes for his work as a historical researcher.

He spoke Tuesday night at a debate sponsored by a student organization of the Duesseldorf Medical Academy.

The organizers, however, had kept the time and place of the meeting secret to avoid incidents after warnings demonstrators might use force against the American professor.

Hoggan maintained it was an established fact that Poland had broken off the Danzig Corridor negotiations with Germany after Britain had given the Poles a "blank check" in its military guarantees.

A West German historian of Polish descent, office for foreign policy in Bonn, also opposed Hoggan in the debate Tuesday night, and both shared blame in the start of the war because of its German-Soviet alliance.

He also blamed Poland for "arrogance," Britain and France for appeasement and Italy because of its steel treaty with Hitler.

But none of this altered the fact that Hitler bore the main responsibility for the war, he added.

Regiment Is Rounding Out Special Ceremonial Drill

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is rounding out special training for the color-presentation ceremonial scheduled for Sunday, May 17th.

The new color will be presented to the regiment by the Hon. Earle Rowe, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario at the Fair Grounds in the afternoon.

Special ceremonial drill will be used for the occasion with the exception of returning to the armories after the presentation.

The drill differs from regular drill in that the regiment is formed up in "guards" two deep.

There will be four guards each consisting of four officers, four senior NCO's and sixty other ranks. These with color parties, band, guides etc. will give the regiment a parade strength of 352 all ranks.

The four guards will be under the command of Major W. O. Cochrane, Major A. W. Cunningham, Major W. D. Hobson and Major C. E. Bristol.

Sub units of the regiment participating are A Co., Trenton; B. Co., Madoc; 5 Platoon, B. Co., Norwood; C. Co., Port Hope; 7 Platoon, C. Co., Millbrook; D. Co., Picton and Bdy Coy., HQ Co. and BHQ of Belleville.

A full dress rehearsal of the ceremonial, which will mark the presentation of the colors and the freedom of the city by Mayor Jack Ellis is scheduled for the Fair Grounds at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, May 17th.

A second rehearsal is slated for 12.30 p.m. the same day.

The regiment will report to the Fair Grounds at 8.45 a.m. May 17th. Church services will be held at 11 o'clock.

WILL BE INSPECTED

Following lunch at 1.15 p.m. the regiment will be inspected by commanding officer Lieut. Col. J. B. Black and afterwards march to the parade ground.

Lieut-Governor Rowe and his retinue will arrive at the Fair Grounds at 2 p.m. He will inspect the regiment drawn up in parade formation.

The "old color" will be marched off and the new color consecrated.

The Lieutenant-Governor will formally present the new color at 3.40 p.m. He will take the salute in a post-presentation march-past.

Mayor Ellis will present the freedom of the city to the regiment at approximately 3.05 p.m. The parchment scroll will be accepted by Lieut. Col. Black.

Exercising its new "freedom" the regiment will parade through the city via Catherine, Coleman, Moira, Upper Bridge and Front and Bridge Streets to the armories for dismissal.

Other ranks of the regiment will be served a buffet supper while special receptions are scheduled for the officers and sergeants' messes.

30 Uranium Workers Laid Off at Bancroft

Following sharply the announcement on Monday by the Dominion Government that Canada would cease to stockpile uranium, 30 uranium workers at Bancroft were laid off on Tuesday.

The laid off workers were all employees of Motel Mines Ltd (Faraday Mines) the one remaining uranium mine still in operation in the Bancroft area.

As result of the government announcement the mines will cease operations on June 30th when present contracts are completed. The closing will mean that about 300 men will be out of work.

Mine officials say that miners will have little difficulty in obtaining work, but municipal officials say closing of the area's main industry will have a serious economic effect.

PURCHASED HOMES

Fifty percent of the mine workers came from other mining centres. They are almost all married with families and have purchased homes in the Bancroft area and have mortgages still to pay off.

Mine officials claim closing of the main industry will not only effect the miner but business will also suffer. Property will lose value and taxes will increase, they claim.

Bancroft municipal officials fought a loosing battle to have the life of the Faraday Mines extended and Monday's announcement from Ottawa came as a big disappointment.

Reeve Michael McAlpine of Bancroft, when asked what effect the mine closing would have on his municipality, said "in a word, disastrous."

Tenders for New Liquor Store Called May 15

Tenders for the construction of the new Belleville liquor store on Station Street have been called with a due date of May 15th.

Architects for the new building, Watson and Wiegand of Belleville, said a late autumn completion date for the new structure was anticipated.

The new liquor store, of one-storey construction, faced with brick and glass will be situated on the south side of the 90-foot site facing Station Street. The building will be electrically heated with full air conditioning, and will have a mural of local interest decorating the interior.

Entry to the paved corner parking lot will be from an intersecting side street.

And quite appropriately, specifications for the sodded grass of the landscaped lot, call for a 95 per cent mixture of the best Fescues — with 5 per cent rye (grain.)

Horse Guards Plan Reunion

Canada's oldest and senior militia unit, the Governor General's Horse Guards, marks the 30th anniversary of its entry into action in World War II with a 3-day "Home Coming" weekend on May 22, 23 and 24.

At midnight, on May 11-12, 1944, the peaceful air of Southern Italy was shattered by the bold-thundered roar of 2600 6-pdr guns, launching the great spring offensive, which was to drive towards Rome up the Valley of the Liri.

The Canadian Corps was charged with the task of breaching the Hitler Line, the enemy's second line of defence and of driving its forces out up the valley. On the morning of May 23, the First Division began its attack, and, on the following morning, the Fifth Division passed through their breach in the line.

Thus, on May 24, 1944 the Governor General's Horse Guards and their tanks, went into action, for the first time as a complete unit.

To commemorate and celebrate the twentieth anniversary of these events, The Regiment is conducting a "Home Coming" Reunion at the Queen Elizabeth Building, Exhibition Park, Toronto on May 22, 23 and 24.

Attendance At Museum At High Mark

This is the first year that the Hastings County Museum has been open during the winter months and museum officials are very pleased with the public response.

According to Chief Curator Mrs. J. Sargent, more than 1,200 visitors have visited the museum since the start of the year. Through courtesy of the Edward Regimental Museum, the Belleville Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, Mr. Jerry Jenkinson and Mr. T. G. Wrightmeyer, to mention only a few of the contributors.

This past weekend marked the end of the military display and museum personnel are now arranging a very special display on the early development of the Belleville area as seen through maps and pictures. This promises to be an excellent display as many of the pictures have never been displayed before.

The museum is open every Saturday and Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 and the official opening of this new exhibit is tentatively scheduled for May 16, 1964.

Kiwanis Peanut Blitz to Assist Service Work

Today begins the annual peanut drive sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. Chairman of the blitz, Ken Pinder, and his committee have been working for some time making preparations for the drive and at yesterday's Kiwanis luncheon asked every member to get out and do their share.

Maps have been prepared for the city, divided into thirty-four territories. Beginning this evening Kiwanians will be knocking on doors selling peanuts and peanut butter. Proceeds of the blitz go toward the underprivilged children's fund, the club's major project.

Shortly after the dinner meeting got under way, as members were sitting down to eat, four unexpected guests arrived at the centre for lunch, Kiwanians Earl Pinder, Donald J. Keel, Roy Dulmage and Bill Stewart, dressed in peanut costumes. The foursome sang a song about peanuts to the tune of the Spiricom commercial. They then left the meeting, climbed back into their contrivable automobile and buzzed the city before returning to the Centre.

While the peanut people toured the city in the warm summer air, those who remained at the Kiwanis Centre were given an interesting talk on the power squadron by Commodore of the Quinte Bay Power Squadron, Kiwanian Don Hickson.

Mr. Hickson told members of the organization of the power squadron, which began some time ago, and explained that one was to help boats in distress. Today power squadron members still help boats in distress, but they have a knowledge of their equipment and boating and are not likely to find themselves in trouble.

WATER SAFETY TAUGHT

Mr. Hickson said although this is an appropriate time to be talking about water safety, he pointed out that the squadron was connected directly to water safety as the power squadron members are on the water.

Courses begin in the fall and continue throughout the winter months. Members are given examinations on what they have been told and an average of 80 per cent or more must be obtained to qualify as a power squadron member.

The speaker said that members are taught water safety, how to read and chart maps, how to use distress signals and in general rules of the water as applied to rules of the road. He said anyone who can drive a car should find no difficulty in operating a power boat as both have many rules in common. While the steering wheel is located on the lefthand side of an automobile, it is situated on the righthand side on a boat.

Mr. Hickson said that where there are signs on the highways to guide motorists, there are buoys in the water to guide yachtsmen. He said that members must be able to read a chart and tell exactly where the buoys is and what it is there for.

He went on to say that the speed limit within a harbour is four miles per hour and said the reason for this is that considerable damage is caused to still craft as the result of a large wake left by a mobile boat.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Clarence Pumfrey and thanked on behalf of the members by Kiwanian Bob Hendry. Mr. Hickson has addressed the club on previous occasions.

Major C. H. Bowerman Commanding Training Company proposed the toast to the Regiment. In his response Mrs. Ken Willcocks reminded his listeners of the wartime exploits of the "Hasty Pees" and the battle honors which will be emblazoned on the new colors being presented to the Regiment on May 17. Company Sergeant Major Norma Carswell reminisced about his recollection of those events.

Institutes Will Hold Workshop

To assist the curators of the Women's Institutes Tweedmuir history books, the Hastings County Historical Society is holding a workshop at the Museum this Saturday.

The purpose of the workshop is to make known to the curators the nature of historical research materials available in the Belleville area. These curators are responsible for compiling histories of their communities.

The day's program begins at 10 a.m. and will include visits to the Hastings County Registry Office and the Corby Public Library. Also a panel of museum representatives and W.I. research curators will answer questions.

Headquarters for the workshop will be the Hastings County Museum which is planning the workshop as a public service to the local Women's Institutes.

According to historical society president, Gerald Boyce, it is the museum's way of saying "Thank You to the Women's Institutes for their support in establishing and operating the Hastings County Museum. The Historical Society is happy to count among its members many of the Belleville district's Women's Institutes.

In order that the Museum may know the approximate number of people coming to the workshop, interested W.I. curators have been asked to contact either Mrs. J. Sargent or Mrs. G. E. Boyce as soon as possible.

The idea of a museum workshop for these curators is a new idea for this area and it is felt that it will promote even better Tweedsmuir Histories.

Diver Examines Underpinnings Of Town Bridge

TRENTON — A diver from the Department of Transport examined the town bridge yesterday afternoon, making a routine check for any damage which might have been done to the underpinnings of the bridge by the winter ice.

WANTS DEBENTURE UPPED

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has asked town council to increase a $90,000 debenture issue by $10,000 in order to carry out its program of extending works this year. Included, is the construction of a new garage, to house trucks and store material, at a cost of $28,000; the installation of six-inch, 12-inch and 16-inch water mains on various streets in town and the installation of new hydrants at various locations throughout the town.

45 CALLS IN MONTH

The Trenton Fire Department answered 45 calls in April. Five of these were to Murray Township and one to Amelias burg Township. A Mutual Aid call to the village of Smithfield was answered.

Ten Boy Scouts from Second and Sixth Trenton troops were tried out for their Fireman's Badge and Air Cadets from Squadron No. 173 were given a talk on the activities of the department.

A talk on fire prevention in the home was given to 30 members of the Peter's Parent Teachers' Association.

A second motion, to replace the program of curbing 1,675 feet of Henry Street, with the curbing of 800 feet on Byron, from Birch St. to Jackson St.; 264 feet of Joseph St., between Victoria Ave., down the hill to Queen St. and around 600 feet of College St. from Byron St. to Ontario St., the results were the same in the polled vote.

Councillor Todd said he was anxious to see the curbing continued on Byron St. and Councillor Burtt said while they were at it, they might as well curb the Joseph St. hill, running in front of his property, and which gives rise to water "pouring" off the hill onto the adjoining properties.

Perhaps one of the basic principles of the success of the Bata enterprises is the widespread education program that was born with the foundation of the first European company and has been expanding since. Listed among the most important are such courses and tours as the one now meeting in Batawa.

No member of the Bata organization anywhere gets beyond training and learning.

The visitors were officially welcomed to the Canadian company and the village of Batawa by Mr. K. R. Vytopil, vice-president and Managing Director of the Canadian operations.

Batawa Will Be Scene of Conference

TRENTON — The world wide aspect of the Bata organization is again portrayed this week when representatives from seventeen different countries assemble for a four-day conference. Also in attendance will be representatives from Bata Limited in Toronto, including Dr. C. K. Hert, president of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada Limited and Regional Director for Canada, U.S.A., Australia, New Zealand and Mexico; Mr. Thomas J. Bata, head of the worldwide Bata organization and Mr. F. V. Maltby, head of the Technical Division and studies in productivity; Mr. P. E. Cowell, head of the commercial section and leader of Normantour 1964.

An equal number of Canadian staff members and department heads will meet with visitors in a tightly knit program of seminars, lectures, presentation displays and factory and departmental tours to give the visitors a look at Canadian methods of manufacture in a practical way. While Canadian methods are being outlined for the visitors the Batawa Community Centre has been transformed into a miniature trade fair. Each delegate to the course has brought with him sufficient material of the shoe industry in his homeland to make a very impressive display of footwear products from far away exotic places which, in many cases, have reached a new high in industrial development.

Museum Has Sales Catalogue

One of the main functions of the Hastings County Historical Society and its museum is the publication of articles and small pamphlets on the history of this area.

Since the museum's beginning three years ago, several pamphlets have been produced and the Museum now has printed, a four-page catalogue listing the books and other materials on local history available from the museum.

The catalogue was prepared at the request of the Ontario Department of Education so that teachers in this area might be aware of the Society's work.

However, extra copies are available to either by writing to the Hastings County Museum, 240 Church Street, Belleville, or by visiting the museum during its open hours (every Saturday and Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m.)

The catalogue was prepared by Hastings County Historical Society president Gerald Boyce and lists more than 50 items available from the County Museum. One of the most recent works included is Mr. William Mcdonald's History of Railways in Central Ontario, which book let deals with the Grand Trunk R-l-way and also the Central Ontario Railway (Belleville's own railway).

City Firemen Busy After Supper Hour

City firemen were kept busy following the supper hour last night. The first of several calls began at 6.20 p.m. when a transformer burnt out in a television at the home of Rita Harrington, 197 James Street. There was no damage.

At 7.45 p.m. a 1953 sedan delivery truck owned by E. H. Vanner of 35 Burton Street was a near loss when it caught fire. The vehicle was pulled out of the garage where it had been parked in order to prevent the building from catching fire.

Then at 9.56 the department received a call to Rossmore. The marsh in and along the shores of the Bay of Quinte was ablaze. Firemen brought the fire under control and returned to the fire hall. Shortly before 11.30 the sky looked like a huge orange ball as sparks fanned by an easterly wind brought the fire back to life. This time the entire marsh caught fire and the department was re-called to the scene.

Flames licked their way along the Rossmore shore and while firemen concentrated their efforts here, the fire made its way around a cove to the south and over to the east shore at Massassaga where a school, a church and several homes near the water's edge were endangered.

A pumper was sent to this point where firemen and local residents beat the flames with brooms and shovels.

In the meantime traffic had piled up along both shoulders of No. 14 highway from the bay bridge to the Massassaga turn, a distance of about half a mile.

Firemen eventually brought the fire to an end along the shore while patches of marsh continued to burn further out in the water.

To end the evenings activities firemen were called out later to the home of Mrs. E. Smith at 39 Harriet Street to attend an overheated oil burner.

It was a flaming night!

Human Wall Rings Tree But Reprieve Short-Lived When It Proves Diseased

TRENTON — A determined 75-year-old Trenton woman, an adamant group of neighbors and a 100-year-old diseased elm tree, located on this town's Henry Street, frustrated Trenton council's plans for street curbs yesterday.

Council plans called for removal of the old elm to allow for construction of street curbing, but Mrs. Jean James and a group of neighbors formed a human wall and prevented workmen from cutting it.

In the face of the opposition council relented and said the tree could remain.

But tree experts said the old elm was diseased and would have to come down anyway.

So last night council called its second special meeting of the day, reversed its earlier decision, and ordered the tree cut.

The tree is scheduled to come down today.

At yesterday's earlier special meeting council heard a plea from Eben James that his mother, Mrs. Jean James, felt the tree to be "a part of her life," and that she felt she "couldn't exist without it."

Council voted to shift curbing operations from Henry St. to Byron St., Joseph St. and College St., thereby eliminating the necessity of cutting down the Elm tree on Henry St., across from the home of Mrs. James.

REVERSE DECISION

At last night's hastily called meeting, unattended by Mayor James MacDonald and members of the press, councillors reversed the decision made earlier in the day and voted to have the tree cut down. Mayor MacDonald was at the annual Sea Cadet inspection. Reporters were not notified of last night's "panic" meeting.

The tree, a good 10 or 12 feet across, stands on the town's road allowance and curbs cannot be installed around it. Council was told by Mr. James that there is a photograph of the tree in existence which was taken in 1880 and that the tree was as big then as it is now.

Davey Tree Experts, arriving in town to cut down the tree yesterday, were forced to suspend operations after the mayor received a message from Mr. James and one other Trenton resident. Neighbors of Mrs. James were said to have also raised objections to the removal of the tree, in sympathy with Mrs. James' feelings. The Davey Tree men say the tree is diseased.

At yesterday's hurriedly called first council meeting, Councillor Joseph Gould said he had voted to have the tree removed in the first place and still felt it a good idea. He said there were 27 other trees in the block and four of these were in the immediate vicinity of the tree in question.

FEARS PRECEDENT

"Are we setting a precedent?" asked Councillor Ross Burtt, "Should we try to do the best for everybody or to please two or three people?"

"Where it affects an older person's health, I think we should take a second look," said Major James MacDonald.

"I voted to have the tree cut down but I'd hate to have anything happen to someone because of a tree," was Councillor C. V. Graham's comment.

"I don't think this is the proper way to enact legislation" insisted Councillor Gould.

"If we leave the tree where it is, I vote we drop curbing on Henry Street altogether and complete the curbs on Bryon Street," said Councillor Edward Todd, adding, "We can return to Henry Street when the jangling is over."

"I agree," said Councillor Duncan McDonald.

Councillor Gerald Weaver, chief proponent of curbing Henry Street when the curb program was discussed, was not at yesterday afternoon's meeting. However, he did attend the meeting at night.

On a polled vote at the first meeting on the motion to proceed with curbing on Henry Street, which would involve cutting down the tree, Councillors Gould, McDonald, Burtt, and Todd voted "nay" and Councillor Graham "yea".

Why This Prohibition?

French biochemist Gaston Naessens has come to Canada at the request of Montreal restaurateur Rene Guynemer, who wants him to use his Anablast vaccine on leukemia victim Rene Guynemer jr., aged 3½.

Naessens' vaccine is ineffective according to the Paris Academy of Medicine and other authorities in Europe.

Still, Guynemer was hoping against hope it might cure his son. That hope has now been killed—the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons has refused to allow the use of Anablast in the province.

The Quebec College does well to protect the public against quacks—but if Naessens is a quack he is a queer kind. He has offered to treat the Guynemer boy free of charge and he travelled to Montreal at his own expense. It is evident that he believes in his vaccine. There seems every reason to conclude that his faith in the serum is misplaced. Still, it is somewhat difficult for the average layman to follow the reasoning of Dr. Jean-Baptiste Jobin, president of the Quebec College, when he says he would oppose use of the medicine as a last chance hope, if the father insisted. What harm could this do, provided safeguards were taken to make certain that Naessens did not profit in any way, even by having his out-of-pocket expenses paid by the family? This would hardly encourage quackery. It might be argued that it would expose the family to the cruelty of a false hope —but if they have acquired any faith in the worthless vaccine would this false hope be any worse to endure than the agony of being denied the right to put the vaccine to the test?

And we ought to remember that, even if we do not believe in Naessens, there is considerable evidence that we do not know everything about the healing powers of faith. Little Rene Guynemer may be too young to draw on this reservoir, but do we know so much about cancer that we can be certain that, in an older person, the faith in a serum might not, once in a thousand, and or in ten thousand times, start some gland functioning in a mysterious manner? The recession of some cancers is a medically attested fact and there is more than a little evidence that some of those who have been spared in what appears a miraculous fashion have had faith that the miracle would be forthcoming.

The tremendous strides in humbug knowledge in recent years should serve to convince us that we still know relatively little about many processes which man centuries hence, when his knowledge is greater, may regard as natural.

A Sign of Uncertainty

Because radio waves know no national boundaries, they are a constant source of annoyance—indeed danger—to party leaders in communist countries. The reason for this, of course, lies in the fact that through the medium of radio, the people have access to news and ideas other than those which the state apparatus specifically approves.

In an effort to combat the infiltration of free thought and free expression via free-world radio, most communist countries have gone to great effort and expense to erect jamming stations. For technical reasons, completely effective jamming is very difficult to achieve. And if it is not 100% effective, the act of "jamming" serves to focus attention on the very broadcast it is supposed to mask.

For this reason most communist countries, including even the Soviet Union, have been easing up in their efforts to jam free-world radio transmissions in recent years. But Walter Ulbricht's tottering regime in East Germany has not dared to follow suit.

According to a recent issue of a U.S. news magazine, East Germany party bosses are trying to follow-up their infamous Berlin Wall with a wall of radio silence. East Germany, the magazine reports, now has an estimated 450 radio jamming stations in operation and is building more.

This is but another indication of the uncertainty which party leaders themselves must feel about the loyalty of the masses to the communist regime.

I should like to hear preached from every clergyman's pulpit, and taught from every schoolmaster's desk, the sanctity of historic buildings and beautiful scenery, and a reverence for nature and wild life—In other words a proper love of one's country.—English writer James Lees-Milne.

'Leftist' Tag Deceiving

The New Republic

With distressing near-unanimity, the press and television following the Brazilian coup described President Goulart as a "leftist."

The description is not inaccurate; it merely fails to tell the story.

Goulart by all accounts is a feckless man to whom elementary economics may become a stubborn mystery and whose polite promises to do something effective about his chronic runaway inflation, after which he did nothing whatever, almost drove Washington mad.

Nevertheless it is not for this that the armed forces of Brazil rose against him.

The military and the upper classes of Brazil have considered only two principles: 1. that those demanded that the inflation which is so good for profits should not be halted; and they have adamantly refused to consider any serious land or other reforms.

Goulart was really worst along with them as regards the inflation. His crime was to seek the support of the masses of the peasants; that votes should be given to the voteless, and by taking of public lands for landless. This caused a number of leftwing parties to rally to him including Castro and Communists despite current squabbles in their own ranks.

But the real problem for Washington is not Goulart; it is the evident fact that the biggest, richest and most advanced country in Latin America will be on the edge of revolution and civil war as long as the reforms that Goulart talked about are not carried out. And the chances of their being seriously attempted by the current coalition of anti-Goulart forces do not appear very bright.

It is said that these elements include well - intentioned liberals as well as orthodox conservatives and reactionary rightists. If so, their evidently fear of what Goulart was guilty to do next ought to be at least matched by their determination that as much real be applied to the task of reforms as to trying to oust Goulart.

As a small measure, they might insist that the rich actually pay taxes; and might even agree to some industries being nationalized.

Of course, if they do display such determination, they had better be prepared to be branded as "leftist" by the bolder-plat parts of the American press and by some boilerplate minds in the State Department, as well as by most of the better - heeled Brazilians in and out of uniform.

American opinion tends to criticize Latin American governments for lagging behind with reforms until there seems to be an immediate danger that reforms may actually be instituted, at which point everyone takes fright, dives under the bed, and from this safe but ignoble retreat shouts "leftist!" This must stop.

The only question left in Latin America is whether reforms such as the state taking over unused farmlands and distributing them among starving peasants, are going to be achieved peacefully or lost in a welter of violence or chaos. The longer the reforms are put off, the more likely it is to be the latter.

Fake Fags Are Stylish

Brantford Expositor

Some New Yorkers are experimenting with the smoking habit by puffing a fake cigarette called a cigareen. The plastic - made fake-looks-and-tastes-like substitute has a menthol container inside that according to its sponsors, satisfies the urge to smoke or at least cuts it down.

Not only does the adult peddler taste good, they claim, but it also has an appeal for women by leaving the breath "lasting fresh and cool." Fresh menthol cartridges can be inserted as required. A new importer says that the cigareen owes its success to the feeling of security. It imparts the resemblance to the real McCoy, unlike the smoky cigarettes consumed by children, also makes it socially acceptable.

The fake fag has been selling for years in Europe, but until the U.S. government report on smoking a few weeks ago, it had a limited American market. Whether it can cure the nicotine habit for the confirmed tobacco addict remains to be seen, but at least it gives him something to sink his teeth into.

Tourist Trade Shows Surplus

London Free Press

Reversing the tourist trade deficit last year to the tune of $13,000,000 was a remarkable achievement for Canada, when it is considered that the population of the United States is ten times larger than our own. American visitors, numbering almost 32,000,000 spent $512,000,000 visiting their northern neighbor and added to that from other countries left $53,000,000 behind them here. Only three years ago, our deficit was more than $200,000,000.

There are many reasons for Canada's first favorable tourist trade balance in thirteen years. Increased and particular gave Americans a tangible reason for coming here. Reduction of duty - free allowances were able to claim in customs exemptions resulted in declarations of $12,000,000 compared to $46,700,000 in the previous year.

But most of the credit must go to an imaginative and aggressive, advertising campaign by federal and provincial governments. It is almost impossible to pick up an American magazine that does not carry Canadian tourist promotion, most of it colorfully illustrated and well written. The nine provinces, Quebec and Ontario have been active in this field and they have reaped a rich harvest of tourist dollars.

It will surprise most Canadians to learn that the Canadian Government Travel Bureau received last year 1,200,000 inquiries, or three times as many as any other country's tourist bureau. This testifies to the glowing power of Ottawa's promotion.

We do have a vacation product to sell in this country; it was bought to the tune of $46,700,000 last year. This is the invasion of American capital that no one deplores and it reminds us again that our scenic beauty spots are still our best sales friends and customers.

The new pulpit matches the other pulpit furniture and completes the program begun several years ago by the club. Also included in the morning program was the annual reception service when 26 new members were received into the church by the minister, Rev. J. A. Dilts.

The Kinsmen Club "Monte Carlo" carnival concluded a four-night performance at the Armouries on Saturday night when a capacity crowd was present. Friday night was the biggest night's program was the appearance of the Grand family of Belleville, whose dancing and song acts were highly appreciated. Miss Ethel Smith, another of Belleville's talented radio artists delighted the large crowd with several vocal numbers, while Jack Booth of Toronto, gave a clever and interesting display of his aptitude in sketching with pencil and crayons.

All Questions in Molner's Column Are from Readers

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are all questions in your column really sent by people asking advice. My question was not answered. Anyway I can't quarrel with you that removal of the prostate gland does not interfere with sexual activity because in my case it has been otherwise. Although I am 57 I feel wonderful and my doctor tells me I am in excellent condition. — J. R. S.

Yes, all questions are from readers, but that doesn't mean I can use all the letters that are sent to me. I am sorry that I provide what people want to know, not what I might think they ought to want to know.

I shorten many letters. Sometimes I combine two or even more of them in order to include different phases of questions about some topic, and I sometimes (and always upon request) change the initials for the sake of anonymity.

Most certainly I give preference in topics which are raised in numerous letters. In your case with yours — so, Mr. J. R. S., I suppose that other readers, seeing your initials, will say, "Why didn't Dr. Molner use my letter instead of the one signed J. R. S.?"

My answer, however, remains the same as my above operations. They do not destroy sexuality.

You must, however, keep two or three other thoughts in mind. First, potency dwindles as we grow older, and it does so faster in some individuals than in others. That isn't the fault of the surgery.

Second, psychological attitudes affect potency more than any other physical activity. In this regard, the vast majority of doctors have had the experience of having a man say he is "not all his vigor" when there is no real physical reason for this, by far the most successful "treatment" is to persuade the man to stop worrying — especially to stop worrying about impotency. If possible, take a vacation go on a trip, spend a little time relaxing and just having fun. This generally works, to the patient's surprise. It usually fails if the man seeks what the idea explains that he's "too busy" to take time off from his business, etc.)

True, at the time of the operation there is bound to be some soreness, a sfter effect of surgery, but it is going to interfere only to a slight degree if any afterward, unless the patient wants it to cause trouble after he has recovered from his operation.

Whether the man is young or old occasionally such operations are recorded early in which potency is essentially the same afterward as it was before if it isn't much afterward. It's usually because it wasn't much before either. This depends also on his knowledge. A physician can tell all the men who have had this operation. In casual conversation, the subject is usually one of commiserating with another with the same problem. Those who have lost their vigor, seldom talk about it.

Dear Dr. Molner: My baby is 6 months and then 5 to 7 days before her period she is very bad weak, has nausea and headaches, and is irritable. She is 5 years, however — Mrs. D. C.

These are among the unpleasant symptoms which I lump together under the general term "discomfort." You might to be able to help your daughter by reading my booklet, "Relief for Menstrual Blues." You can get a copy by sending 25 cents in coin and a long self-addressed unstamped envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Peaceful Co-existence Loose Slogan

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Boris Guldenwassersky, the angry man of the Russian Communist Party, last week bitterly attacked the foreign policies of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

He accused Khrushchev of being "soft" on capitalism. He hinted it "cowardly" for Russia to have backed down in the Cuban crisis. He decried "peaceful co-existence" as a "lose" slogan.

Boris belongs to the extreme left wing of the Communist Party. He looks upon Khrushchev's premiership as a "betrayal" of the glorious ideals of the Russian Revolution. He brushes flames from his nostrils every time the "American imperialists" are mentioned.

Boris would very much like to be premier himself. Then he could show those American devils how a red-blooded Red would behave. He would give Russian field commanders the right to send off a hydrogen bomb if they felt the battle justified. He would return the missile bases to Cuba.

On the domestic front, Boris would do away with every modification of Communism in the last 40 years, and return to pure Marxist-Leninism. He assails the fact that there has been a "creeping capitalism" in Russia, and that some degree of private initiative has been restored.

There are quite a few Russians who believe as Boris does. They are realists and resentful under Khrushchev's leadership. Stalin was their true hero: pitiless and uncompromising doctrinaire, who would rather have plunged the world in war than retract one jot or tittle of his revolutionary dogma.

Boris realizes that it's tough, and thinks tough. He calls himself a "Soviet realist," and believes that what the Americans will understand and respect is power. He does not see that there are other approaches, shades: everything is black or white; nothing ever changes, either under the only answer is disagreement; and it is better to pull the whole world into the pit of oblivion than to accept one article of conviction.

He looks upon Khrushchev as a flabby weakling, and considers his regime almost "traitorous" to the doctrine of 100-percent Communism. And God help us all if Boris and his friends ever get control of the bomb. Does he remind you of anyone on this side of the curtain, comrades?

Burn Mortgage, Unveil Plaques At Banquet

A notable and historic event took place at the Columbus Hall on Tuesday evening, when the mortgage for the renovation of the building started in 1955 was officially burned and two plaques were unveiled to the memory of the late Frank G. Cushing and the late Terry V. Scanlon, for meritorious service to the Knights of Columbus.

The Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus, Jack Lumsden, was chairman of the function. A turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served to the large assembly, the dinner being prepared and served by Mrs. Lawrence Burke and her efficient committee of helpers.

Present were many members of the families of the two members being honored. Frank Domenico, president of the Columbus Club Incorporated, outlined the history of the building from the time of purchase and also told of the many renovations, which have been made since that time. The mortgage taken in 1955 was for the completion of the beautiful auditorium that is connected with the building and under the careful guidance of the directors the total amount has now been paid and the hall is free of debt.

Past president of the Columbus Club, George F. O'Brien, had the honor to unveil the plaques in memory of departed brothers. In each case, Mr. O'Brien detailed their fine qualities as members and citizens and their contribution to the good of the order.

After the tables were cleared the assembly enjoyed dancing till a late hour to the music of Jack Kane and his orchestra.

Mail Carriers, Blind Have Way Paid on Buses

At a regularly constituted meeting of the Belleville Transit Commission on Tuesday, it was felt that the public should be informed of the policy of the Commission with regards to the following. The Belleville Transit Commission is under contract with the Post Office whereby the fare of each mail carrier, using the buses to get to and from their routes, are paid by the Federal Government at the same rate as adult fares, while the blind of the city ride the buses on presentation of passes issued by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The Transit Commission is reimbursed by the City of Belleville for this service.

Make New Programs Out of Old Ingredients Anglican Women Told

By GLADYS WARD

Over 300 women registered at St. Thomas' Anglican Church on Tuesday morning for the 67th annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Canada, Diocese of Ontario. Registrations were in charge of Mrs. B. Feather.

The morning session was opened with Holy Communion with the celebrant the Right Reverend K. C. Evans, M.A., Ph.D., D.C.L., D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. He was assisted by other members of the clergy, Rev. R. G. Fleming, rector of Christ Church; Rev. J. A. Dunlop, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill; and Ven. A. S. McConnell, rector of St. Thomas' Church.

In his address Bishop Evans considered it was a good thing to look back to a previous Anglican Congress and see what progress had been made. The speaker quoted the words of Kathleen Bliss, a delegate from England who said "although titanic forces of evil were in the world, we can still see Christ crowned with honor and glory."

"We must consider the whole and total world situation, and in this world we must find our task."

"Man has been blessed by God in being given dominion over the universe. It is inevitable in the acknowledgement of Christ that we accept the Christian view of the divine will of God. Even in this chaotic world we can see the figure of Christ crowned, and we need to preserve this image. This indicates our task.

"The church's work is basically to hold this image before the people as the church's power and guide."

Following his address, the Bishop conferred Life Membership on four members of the Auxiliaries, Mrs. J. Wood, Lansdowne; Mrs. Harry Smith, Belleville; Mrs. E. L. Cook, Barrie; Barrie; and Miss Elfreda Elliott, Brockville.

Four bouquets of white flowers were placed at the front of the church in loving memory of those whose names were on the Memorial Roll.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Women's Guild provided a luncheon for the delegates and visitors, and an excellent meal was enjoyed.

Greetings were brought to the luncheon meeting by Mayor Jack Ellis who assured the out-of-town visitors of courtesy parking privileges.

Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell, president of the Ontario Diocesan Board introduced Bishop Evans who spoke briefly of his happiness in seeing the Women's Auxiliary together as a family, and assured the new president of their affectionate support. The Bishop paid tribute to the work and service of the retiring officers.

PRESENTS CORSAGES

Archdeacon A. S. McConnell presented corsages to Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell and to the two special speakers, Dominion president Mrs. [illegible] Robertson, and Mrs. H. E. Taylor of Punnichy, Sask., in appreciation of their services.

Mrs. H. Smith, president of St. Thomas' W.A. expressed the thanks of those present to the ladies of St. Andrew's Guild for the luncheon.

A display of Pakistan embroideries was shown at St. Thomas' Parish hall. Dresser sets, table cloths, and aprons made of fine organdy and appliqued were beautifully done. These were hand made by the village women of Pakistan, and the sale of the embroideries is sponsored by the W.A. of the Anglican Church.

A display of literature was arranged by Mrs. J. Wood of Lansdowne, with a wide range of subject matter, both sacred and secular, many of them dealing with social problems, including the problems of old age and of youth.

The Juniors of the Diocese and the Dorcas Society of St. Thomas' displayed dolls, cradles, appliqued quilts, stuffed animals and knitted things, clothing and many other articles. A hospital bale was on view prepared by the afternoon and evening branches of the W.A. This was to be sent to the Arctic, and many of the other things would go to the Indian schools, and to the McKay school in Manitoba.

A flower arrangements at the speaker's table for the afternoon session was the gift of Miss E. Van Strsubenzee, of Kingston, who has continued to remember the annual meeting in this manner for many years although she has been unable to attend because of age.

AFTERNOON SESSION

With Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell presiding, the meeting was opened with prayers by Mrs. S. G. Jackson, and an address of welcome by Mrs. H. Smith who trusted that the meetings would be inspiring and that they would be blessed by the Holy Spirit. Mrs. H. Countryman of Prescott replied.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. Platt, read greetings and messages from places at the Atlantic coast, to the Pacific and the Arctic.

President Mrs. Mitchell noted that the past year had been a busy one with work shops held in most Deaneries, and an educational program planned that would include the whole family. The president felt that the time would be coming for the unification of all Anglican women.

"The reports from the Anglican Congress of 1963 were alarming and inspiring," Mrs Mitchell said. "The laity is 99 percent of the church, and should be interested in the whole mission of the church.

"Our concern should be with what is happening in our own neighborhood and in our far places of the earth. Each one has a ministry in the church of God. We must have an understanding of the rights of others."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Robertson of Kitchener, Dominion president, was the principal speaker for the afternoon and told her listeners that they should work for the commonly accepted goal, that of taking Intelligencer outside the church. In the field of education she urged the women to continue to give leadership and to give youth the kind of guidance they needed. The women of the church should put youth at the top of their list in missions, Mrs. Robertson said.

"Foremost in your responsibility is the area of prayer," said the speaker. "It is more important than financial assistance. The whole church will benefit from around the world church mission of the church year. Think of finances in terms of people and the young people you are going to help.

"Social work is a matter of attitude. There is a whole new field of caring for the aged, the needy, the mentally ill, and the criminal offender. They need your compassion and understanding.

"I hope we will always have unity but not uniformity in our work. Woman power is changing rapidly, with over two million women employed in Ontario alone. Not only are young women working but older women, after their families have grown up.

"We need to get new horizons and experiment with making new programs out of old ingredients. We must train our young people to be responsible laymen. We must have fresh united power and make the change victoriously."

It was announced that the Thank offering amounted to $3,289.69.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting by the W.A. of Christ Church and St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill.

Archdeacon A. S. McConnell presided at the evening session of the W.A. annual meeting at St. Thomas' Church and introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. H. E. Taylor of Punnichy, Sask., who is editor of the church paper, Living Message.

INDIAN MISSION

Mrs. Taylor graphically described the situation of the Indians in the Diocese of Qu'Appelle which was not a happy one, although great progress is being made. Instead of being in the vanguard off mission work this outpost had become the garbage pail of the work. Mrs. Taylor and her husband had been given the mountain ous task of bringing it back. Now the Indian people have been integrated and have become a part of the congregation with the mission abolished.

Progress is being made with the church assisting in matters of education, religion and social work.

"The Living Message," said Mrs. Taylor, "is trying to express the aims and ideals of the Women's Auxiliaries. The contents will be expanded to include all Anglican women.

"The wind of change are sweeping across the world. Our first priority is to take Christ into every thought and action. We should try to build up the devotional part of our meetings. We are giving much of our time and talents in the work of the church but we need to take a good look at what we are expending of this energy on. The aim of the Anglican woman is to be a witness for Christ. We need individual faith and a personal knowledge of Christ, and this should be our first aim, then the rest will fall into its proper perspective.

Appreciation was expressed to the speaker by Mrs. George Davies of Prescott.

The pianist for the sessions was Mrs. Francis Moore.

Women Live In Tree Tops In Cambodia

MONTREAL (CP) — In the jungles of Cambodia, five Canadians—four of them women—lived in tree houses while helping build a medical unit.

To remote Malay villages where there are no roads, Canadian medical personnel travelled by riverboat to serve the sick.

These are some of the conditions described by Alexandrina McDougall of Montreal, president of the international Alliance of Hospital Auxiliaries, who returned from a tour of Southeast Asia earlier this year.

The Canadian doctors, nurses and technicians are members of international MEDICO teams. MEDICO, a non-governmental organization for setting up hospitals and clinics in underdeveloped countries, was founded by the late Dr. Thomas Dooley, a young American who became famous for his medical work in Southeast Asia.

After Dr. Dooley's death in 1961, MEDICO was affiliated with CARE, founded 17 years ago in the United States to send medical supplies, food and clothing to the world's needy.

Mrs. McDougall says Canadians make up one-quarter of all MEDICO personnel.

She says the International Alliance of Hospital Auxiliaries wants to establish an all-Canadian medical unit in Malaysia for a year and has launched a national fund-raising program to finance the plan.

SHIFT INTO SUMMER

It is going to be a colorful, comfortable summer, according to Canadas sportswear manufacturers. After shopping the market carefully, I find that most of these talented gentlemen agree that the shift will continue to sell at all price levels. The parallel shift and the "A" line silhouette are included in all ranges and so far, sales are reported to be more or less evenly split between the two styles.

It is agreed that white — plain or trimmed with one or more colors, is the No. 1 seller in the higher prices, followed closely by pink, blue, yellow, turquoise and green follow in that order. White usually comes into its own when the warm weather arrives, but this year it has led the parade ever since the first cruise-wear shipments were made last November. Reorders have leaned heavily to white since then. I asked if there was any other reason for this besides Paris' endorsement of white. The considered opinion in sportswear circles is that we the public, now accept the fact that man-made fabrics in white, really wash well and retain their pristine appearance through at least two season's wear. Therefore, we buy white with no mental reservations.

Bathing suits have taken on a two-piece look this year with many printed blouson tops matched to slim trunks. The tops have built-up straps — again the look of the "thirties". There are, of course many real two - piece suits around also, but even here the shoulderlines are styled like leotards with wide covering straps.

TUNIC TOPS

The shift look is seen in tunic tops, to be worn over slims or over bathing suits. These tops can stop at mid-thigh or just above the knee. The latter are specially kind to the less than perfect figure when worn with slims. Another good cover - up is the culotte - skirt worn with knee-length shorts. These skirts are split up the sides.

Shifts are being sold literally everywhere this season. They are prominent in dress departments, in sportswear, in the housedress sections and in the lingerie groups in all large stores. This means, of course, that they have a wide price difference. Adequate shifts for warm days at home can be had for under $5, while others are some, magnificently designed and hand details of binding and embroidery available for ten times this amount.

Whatever price is paid, this relaxed line looks well with the semi-relaxed silhouette. It is casual when accessorized with correctly casual shoes and bag, when these are kept to an absolute minimum. This is one style which looks well with no shoes!

Delta Male Chorus Gives Sacred Concert

By A. H.

A sacred song service of singular beauty and spiritual inspiration was presented Sunday evening at the Alliance Tabernacle by the 15-voice male chorus of Delta Tabernacle, Hamilton, Ontario, under the direction of Mr. Jack Patterson, with Mr. Wilber Leonard, Alliance Church organist, at the piano for the introductions.

The group of 13 young men, all of whom, save one, are married with families, are members of the Delta Tabernacle, during the presentation, gave brief testimonies, telling of what Christ means to them. They also introduced themselves, mentioning their families and their various occupations.

The selections presented were beautiful in word and composition. Among the numbers were hymns, choruses, and musical numbers, pleasingly rendered in lovely harmony and unison, including "Rise Up My Love, My Fair One"; "Magnify Jesus," and the spiritual, "Lord, I Want To Be a Christian"; and the soul-searching, "With Eternities Values in View," and "When the World's On Fire."

Mr. Patterson favored with a fine violin solo, "Channels Only, Blessed Master."

Following a brief word by the Pastor, the Rev. Sackville Palmer, on his finding Christ as his Savior during World War II, in Italy, the Delta choir closed with the soulful hymn, "Now the Day is Over."

The Experts Say
Gems: All That Glitters Not Always So Genuine

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—Beware the jewelry bargain. Things are not always what they seem in the world of gems.

Even a jeweller can be fooled, says Jonathon Fraleigh. Toronto gem expert.

"By and large jewellers are honorable people, but the industry does have its 'operators' as every industry has."

Sometimes outright fakes are sold as real gems. Diamonds, Emeralds and other stones can be artificially manufactured. Cultured pearls can be made to look better than they are. And real gems can be doctored to increase their apparent value in ways which get past the people who buy and sell them.

Doublets and triplets are imitations which are not wholly imitations," Mr. Fraleigh says.

"The former is a combination —one part real, the other phoney—cemented together to look like a single stone. The upper half, known as the crown, is real stone and the lower part, the base, is usually a paste of similar or darker color.

"This way the color of the doublet is deepened, the total weight is increased and the upper part most exposed to wear is hard because it is the natural stone. When mounted in jewelry the joining line of the two sections is hidden and is therefore far from obvious."

Jade can be "improved" by heating it and dipping it in green dye to deepen the color and make it appear more valuable.

Mr. Fraleigh says shoppers on vacation trips are particularly prone to getting stung picking up gems as local bargains.

"I would advise anyone who is not familiar with gem stones to deal only in reliable establishments and, if they suspect any problems as to value, to have them checked by a gemologist."

When you do buy, he says, choose deeply colored stones free from obvious internal flaws. If you are buying a diamond, which most people do at some time or another, look for a good cut and a clear, white stone.

Any jewelry valuable enough to be insured should be reappraised and reinsured every five or 10 years, Mr. Fraleigh says, mentioning a case where a diamong ring originally worth $125 was lost and the insurance was not enough to replace it because the equivalent ring had risen in price to $190.

MONEY IN THE ATTIC

"The value of precious stones has almost doubled in 10 years," he adds.

Mr. Fraleigh said people do find unexpected treasure at home sometimes, perhaps in grandmother's jewel case.

"I have looked through many boxes of so-called junk and found gold of antique value and gem stones of rare vintage. You never know what you are going to find."

His most startling find was a ruby worth about $4,000, but that was an exception. In most cases old pieces turned up were worth $20 to $40.

"If you have any jewelry you are interested in or curious about, take it to a jeweller. If he is not sure of its value, ask him to send it on to a gemmologist."

Club Activities
NEIGHBORS' AID

2ND THURLOW — Mrs. A. Greatrix was hostess for the April meeting of the Neighbors' Aid which was held last Wednesday afternoon. During the afternoon the ladies worked on a quilt for Mrs. H. Thomson.

Later in the afternoon Mrs. S. Ray called the meeting to order for a short business period and extended a welcome to the 24 members and three visitors present.

Mrs. E. Grills read the correspondence and Mrs. A. Mitchell gave the financial report. It was decided that Mrs. Gerald Stratton will convene the next euchre, with Mrs. A. Mitchell and. Mrs. O. Stratton to convene the last euchre for the season the latter part of May. Mrs. M. Mitchell will be hostess for the Aid meeting for the month of May.

Mrs. Robert Atkins gave a detailed report of the findings of the committee in regards to the cost of the kitchen or kitchenette and a new oil burner and other details. A decision on this was postponed until further study has been made.

Lunch was served by Mesdames M. Dent, O. Stratton, T. Wever and K. Sager.

CARD PARTY

Mrs. A. Greatrix and Mrs. W. Lazarink convened the Neighbors' Aid card party last Friday night with 13 tables in play. Prizes were won as follows: ladies, Mrs. C. Hall, Mrs. S. Ray and consolation Mrs. E. Lazer; men's, Mrs. Ruth Dafoe (playing as man) Mr. George Little and consolation S. Ray; lucky draw, Mrs. Robert Way. Lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS
BY PATRICIA LEWIS

PREPARE FOR THE GALA EVENING

If you really want to enjoy that rare night out, then be prepared for it.

A seemingly ill - mannered guest — the type who takes umbrage at an innocent remark or the one who sulks quietly in the corner by herself — may just be tired and a victim of her own poor planning.

To have a thoroughly carefree night out, one really has to start early in the day to get ready for it, especially when there are small children in the family. When you look your best, you naturally set your best, so a relaxing facial after lunch is the first step in putting your best foot forward.

Make sure your party finery is laid out early in the afternoon and check buttons and catches so there's no last minute stitching to do. While the children nap, take a long, refreshing sudsing in the tub, preferably with a dash of oil thrown in to make it doubly luxurious.

Instead of rushing around fixing chops for the children's dinner and undoing the good of bath and facial, why not take advantage of frozen foods that just have to be popped in the oven for heating?

EARLY PREPARATION

Some mothers, to whom a night out is an infrequent event, consider it worth the extra dollar or so to have the sitter come in early and take care of feeding the children for them. If nighties and bedtime books are laid out early in the day, the sitter can take over this detail, as well, leaving mother more time to fuss with her hair and make-up so both are letter-perfect.

To be able to enjoy the evening with a free mind, make sure to write down on the pad next to the phone the telephone number at which you may be reached during the evening. Also, make sure to leave the number of a nearby neighbor who can be reached quickly in an emergency. Be sure to check with her in advance, so she'll know she's to be your stand-by that evening.

With all details neatly tied down, you're then able to relax and completely enjoy the company of others. It's easy to be gay and conversational when you're relaxed and look it. And, while you may never go down in history as the life of the party, at least friends will admit that you contributed handsomely to the sparkle.

SWITCHED TO CORDITE

Until the Boer War, gunpowder remained the sole ammunition of armies, which then began replacing it with cordite, a smokeless explosive.

Mother's Helper

IT'S a good idea to keep on hand a secret supply of unusual surprises to use when your family seems a bit on the too-serious or tense side. One of them might be some Chinese fortune cookies to put at each place at the dinner table. You can buy these at any Chinese restaurant, and food markets sell them by the box

Bringing Up Baby
HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GEARER, MOTHER OF 5

Most toddlers go through a stage of saying "no" to everything whether they mean it or not.

Ways to cut down a determined one's "no's":

- Have you ever thought your toddler may be learning to be negative through too many "no's" from you? Your "no's" will be more effective, less likely to be imitated, if used only when necessary.
- "No's" are best ignored when the reasons behind them are not serious.
- When you must restrict, diplomacy, diversion and direction work more wonders than threats.

Accentuate goodness to cut down negatives at mealtimes. How? Offer foods with colours and flavours that sing. Like Gerber Junior Foods, prepared and seasoned with an eye to enjoyment. Then you might try a selling job, by telling Junior how good the food is. A taste or two, accompanied with an "um-mm" from you, is most convincing.

If you curb frowns at dawdling and cultivate smiles when your toddler does eat well, you're on your way to establishing good eating habits.

Gerber offers wonderful variety... over 40 Junior Foods, cooked with special care to preserve the utmost in nutritive values . . . the ultimate in flavour-appeal.

Safety measures. Of course, all of us know the basic safety precautions for bite-of-size foods for toddlers. Things that may slip your mind: (1) A forgotten tablespoon. (2) A cleaning compound not returned to an out-of-reach haven. (3) A medicine bottle left on a reachable sink.

DUNDAS ST. W. (HWY No. 2) Formerly known as the TRENT ROAD BELLEVILLE ACRES OF FREE LIGHTED PARKING

Air Traffic Controller In Montreal Is Woman

MONTREAL (CP) — Nicole Viau, 25, holds down a job where one mistake would be glaringly, perhaps tragically, evident.

Miss Viau is one of Canada's five women air traffic controllers employed by the transport department. Two others are in Montreal, one is in Toronto and another in Vancouver.

Eight hours a day Nicole sits in the control tower of Montreal International Airport, one of Canada's busiest, helping ensure that the daily average of about 500 landings and takeoffs are made without mishap.

It's a job of constant pressures, dictated by the volume of air traffic, though sometimes relieved by the weather.

"If you wake up and see the sun you know you're going to work hard that day," Miss Viau says. "If it's raining, you smile."

However, bad weather doesn't reduce air traffic as much as it used to. Improved approach aids and increasing use of radar have changed that.

MOVES ABOUT

There are four different positions in the glassed-in tower with its panoramic view of the airways and runways. Nicole spends time in each.

In one she's an air controller, handling all traffic in the air, the arrivals and departures and giving instructions to pilots.

The second is a clerical position, usually filled by an assistant controller unless the tower is short - staffed. In this she keeps a log of traffic.

In the third she is in contact with radio-equipped vehicles on the ground. "If they're not controlled, you might have a plane landing on one of them."

The fourth position is clearance delivery. "You make sure the pilot has instructions right. "Everyone prefers the air controller spot because this is the most important one.

"You couldn't work eight hours on that post, especially on busy days."

Miss Viau has worked for the transport department for seven years. She started as an assistant controller and after four years applied to become a controller.

She admits she wasn't motivated by an interest in aviation. "I went for a civil service job, saw an opening for assistant controller and applied. With the work, I became interested."

DOGS HAULED WOOD

ST. ANNE'S, N.B. (CP) — John Hachey of St. Anne's has one of the few dog teams in New Brunswick. His team of eight mongrels, hitched tandem fashion to a light horse sled, helped him haul 100 cords of pulpwood from the woods here during the winter.

Elegant French Beef Stew

by Mary Moore

Serve this to six people for Sunday dinner if you are eager to promote your cooking reputation.

It is a stew with a rich, red hue and flavor plus. To enhance the homey atmosphere of this guest dinner I took a round loaf of fresh rye bread to the table and sliced it right there. We were excited because it was a final hockey playoff night and we had a big date with the television set. So with great abandon I'd cut and stab a slice with the point of my knife and pass it to their outstretched hands.

BEEF STEW BORDELAISE

2 lbs. boneless stewing beef (I used shin beef at 69c per lb.)
1 tablespoon butter or margarine,
½ large Spanish onion cut into bite-size pieces,
1 clove garlic, finely chopped,
½ teaspoon salt,
⅛ teaspoon pepper,
1 can undiluted tomato soup,
¾ cup water,
1½ cups canned tomatoes,
½ teaspoon thyme,
½ cup catsup,
4 medium potatoes, quartered,
3 large outside stalks celery, cut in 1" pieces,
6 slender new carrots, each cut into 3 pieces crosswise,
½ lb. fresh green beans, cut into 1½" pieces,
½ cup sherry or red table wine.

(Note: If wine is not used substitute with ¼ cup lemon juice and ¼ cup water.)

Cut the beef into bite-size pieces. In a large pot (or pressure cooker) brown it well in the butter or margarine on all sides, then add the onion, garlic, salt, pepper, soup, water, tomatoes, thyme and catsup and simmer, covered, for 2½ hours or until meat is nearly tender. (Or if in pressure cooker, cook 40 minutes at 10 lbs. pressure). Remove cover and place all of the vegetables on top. (Do not stir them in.) Pour sherry or red wine over, cover, and simmer 20 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender.

To serve, lift out potato quarters and form a border with them around edge of large deep preheated platter. Carefully pour stew in centre.

I did not provide any other vegetable because the stew contained so many, but you could serve fresh asparagus with this or as a separate course.

You do need bread with this meal, though. Do as I did and serve fresh homemade rye bread or crusty French bread or hard rolls. The rich gravy left on your plate demands mopping up tactics.

Those in the Know Still Use One's Christian Name

DEAR DORIS — A group of our women friends whom we have liked quite well have gotten into the irritating (to us) ways of never addressing one by name. Instead they use such endearing phrases as "dumb fool," "old timer," "- - - witch," which seems to be prevalent in our casual society.

We might add, these aren't teen-agers, but adults! In our homes we don't even allow our children to do this. (Some of these names wouldn't get into print, believe it or not!)

Although this is all trivial, are we dense, or is one permitted the privilege today of being called by one's Christian name? — BIG FAT SQUARE.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR SQUARE — It is still good manners to address one's friends by name. I don't go for these casual insults either.

• • • •

DEAR DORIS — I am very conscious of my thighs. I am not fat but my thighs are much too big; also the calves of my legs. I have tried to do exercises, but if they don't seem any smaller in a week I get disgusted and give up.

Please tell me how to solve this problem, because bathing suit time is getting closer. — VERY CONSCIOUS.

DEAR VERY CONSCIOUS — Look, if they got noticeably smaller in one week it would mean you were starving yourself. Which is no way to take off weight!

When you change the contour of the human frame, you do it with due regard for well-being of said frame and the person inside. Pounds come off gradually, one or two a week. If you start now you could be down eight or ten pounds by bathing suit time.

I am sending you exercises ("Be Figure Perfect") and reducing menu ideas ("Low Calorie Menus and Diets"). Weigh in and measure up once a week. Have a little faith and patience. (These leaflets are available to readers for ten cents, apiece, and a stamped envelope.)

• • •

Confidential to TROUBLED WINN. — What you did was understandable. There is no reason why you should not be completely open and above board about your age now, in applying for work. Clear the record. People will do everything they can to help you.

DEAR DORIS — I am now 15 and have never been allowed to go out with a boy or sit with one in movies. I also am never allowed to have a crowd with a boy I like come to the house.

My parents do not understand, or don't I understand? I think the reason is because they don't trust me since there has been considerable trouble in our family. What should I do? Am I asking too much to go out once or twice a month with the crowd? — TROUBLED, W.P.

DEAR TROUBLED, W.P. — At 15, many parents encourage mixing with the crowd, reserving solo dates for 16 or older.

Try showing you are becoming trustworthy by "being faithful in small things" — such as keeping a tidy room, taking your turn at the dishes, doing homework. You'll know what you are slipping up on.

And if you think I am trustworthy, write again, sending your right name this time, along with a stamped envelope, for the names of some dandy little paperbacks which discuss dating and some of the problems which face teen-agers.

Confidential to CAGED ANIMAL — Would the homemaker who came from Germany to Canada, some years ago, who is now on a farm and describing herself as a Caged Animal, please write in again, giving name and address? I have a letter from a reader with similar background who feels she could help.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have a small problem and you are the only one I know that can help me.

I am getting married soon and I have just finished addressing my invitations. My problem is, do I send invitations to my attendants? I have asked a few people and they don't know. — BRIDE-TO-BE.

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE — Yes. Everyone you want present should have formal evidence of this in print.

• • •

Confidential to LOST — As far as I am concerned, you are still lost. If you want a reply to your letter, please write again enclosing your right name and address on a stamped envelope.

• • •

(Don't just muddle along. Doris can give you a new slant on your dilemma.)

Variation of Old-Style Midwife Delivers Babies

BALTIMORE (AP)—A modern variation of the old-style midwife is delivering about 10 per cent of the babies in Baltimore city hospitals.

The nurse-midwife is a specialist and replaces doctors in operating rooms during routine deliveries.

The nurses have been trained in obstetrics at the Johns Hopkins medical school and take care of one of every 10 expectant mothers from pre natal treatment to the six week's check-up after delivery.

Patients with possible complications, or those who develop complications, are turned over to a staff physician. A staff doctor also doublechecks each nurse-midwife's patient at the first examination.

The nurse's work is the first American study of the practicality and safety of using nurses, instead of doctors, for routine hospital deliveries.

The three nurse - midwives now working at city hospitals are graduate nurses and have just completed the Johns Hopkins course in nurse-midwifery.

DO FINE JOB

Dr. D. Frank Kaltreider, the hospital's chief obstetrician, says the nurses "have done just about a perfect job in spotting complications."

Johns Hopkins trains four out of the 35 nurse-midwives turned out annually by American institutions that now teach graduate nurses to handle normal pregnancies and deliveries.

Dr. J. C. Barnes, Johns Hopkins obstetrician - in - chief, said the nurse-midwife could solve a possible critical shortage of obstetricians and general practitioners who deliver most of the babies today.

No statistical results of the city hospitals' study are completed, but Dr. Barnes said "obviously there has been no jeopardy to anyone's health or we would have stopped the study at once."

The nurse-midwife is trained only to work under supervision in a hospital or an obstetrician's office.

"She does not represent a retreat from quality care, but a retention of quality and addition of trained minds," Dr. Barnes said.

Russia Rejected 2 Peace Offers Before War's End

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia rejected two separate German peace bids a week before the war with Nazi Germany ended in 1945, according to a Soviet Army marshal's memoirs.

Marshal Vasily Chuisov, who took part in the victorious Russian assault on Berlin, said Dr. Josef Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister, sent a peace emissary to see him on the night of April 30, 1945.

The German negotiator, a General Krebs, brought the Russians news that Hitler had committed suicide that afternoon.

Chuikov, now a Russian deputy defence minister, disclosed the peace offer in the current issue of the magazine Ogonyok.

In an article he said he rejected the offer and told the German general that peace was possible only on the basis of Germany's unconditional surrender.

Chuikov said he "explained to Krebs that we could conduct negotiations only on the basis of total capitulation to the allies, to the U.S.S.R., the U.S.A., and Britain, and that on this question we were united."

Krebs then asked for a temporary cease-fire to discuss the Russian demands. He said this would enable the new German government to discuss the situation and the conclusion of a mutually profitable peace treaty.

Chuikov said Krebs left May 3 after protracted negotiations —they became "more and more boring." Chuikov recalled—and was followed next day by new emissaries from the German propaganda ministry.

The new group announced that Goebbels had committed suicide the previous day and that Krebs had shot himself. They also made a peace offer and again it was rejected, Chuikov said.

FIVE DIE IN FLAMES

LAGRANGE, Ind. (AP)—Five persons died in the flaming wreckage of their automobile when it was rammed from the rear after stopping on the Indiana Toll Highway Tuesday night. Police said the victims were trapped in the car. The driver of the other car was not seriously injured.

man in Quebec? We hear about young extremists, student demonstrations in Quebec, flag burnings, but we never hear the voice of moderation."

Many speakers said public school curricula and textbooks should be "Canadianized" to promote better knowledge and understanding between the two main language groups.

The meeting, for the first time in 12 similar gatherings held across Canada by the royal commission, opened with the singing of God Save the Queen, and O Canada, in French.

Wallace Robb recited a bilingual poem singing the phrase of Lake Archambault in the Laurentians, where he spent summers in his youth. He said he graduated from high school in nearby Brockville "saturated with hate" for French-Canadians and Roman Catholics but overcame his hatred when he lived in Montreal.

CHINA WAIVES INTEREST

COLOMBO (AP)—Communist China has waived interest on its loans to Ceylon, a reliable source reported Wednesday. Under a rubber-for-rice trade pact, China loaned Ceylon $10,000,000 at 2½ per cent interest for the purchase of textiles and other goods.

had been covered by 75 feet of snow and in parts of the Columbia River watershed there was 40 per cent more snow than usual.

"We are hopeful that we can get by and I think possibly we will. . . ."

The minister said the Liberal government has been "extremely active" in the field of water resources since it assumed power a year ago. It was working with the provinces toward a five-year program for collecting information on water resources. Pollution will be a main topic when the ministers of resources hold their next meeting.

Unless governments act now, said Mr. Diefenbaker, "within a period of three or four decades our country will be a potential dust bowl."

Unless something is done fast, said P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East), tourist operators around the Great Lakes will lose millions of dollars because of low water. "I am wondering whether the government has not some responsibility to those people. . . ."

The Commons ended its Tuesday night sitting with a quick change of pace—letting fly at the income tax collector.

Creditiste Leader Caouette raised the subject during a grievance period when he advocated a 10-per-cent deduction from net income for charitable donations without receipts.

He blasted the national revenue department for the "arbitrary manner" in which it decides what receipts it will accept or reject, and said clergymen in Quebec should eject tax inspectors from their premises.

Louis - Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette - l'Assomption - Montcalm) supported Mr. Caouette's suggestion for a 10-per-cent deduction. He said there could be a $300 maximum.

In another grievance debate, Immigration Minister Tremblay said an intelligent immigration policy could raise the level of economic activity in Canada and thus reduce the country's unemployment. The shortage of skilled workers in some areas could be met by a selective immigration policy. This would raise the level of economic activity which in turn would create job opportunities for less-skilled workers.

When the House opened, Prime Minister Pearson said the government expects a constitutional amendment to be passed in time for Parliament to proceed before its summer recess with a Canada Pension Plan which includes survivor benefits.

these tariffs and non-tariff barriers wrapped into the Europeans' negotiating parcel.

This issue alone conceivably could settle the Kennedy Round. The U.S. insists that European industrial and agricultural trade barriers be negotiated at the same time. In effect it has said that without agriculture, there will be no deal.

Canada takes the same line and there was no indication that it would be softened in either the ministerial resolution at this meeting or in the behind-the-scenes attempts to keep up the momentum of the talks.

Of all Canada's trade with the Common Market — that is France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxemburg—about 40 per cent is in agriculture, mainly Canadian wheat. However, this area accounts for less than 10 per cent of all Canadian trade which is over $13,000,000,000 a year.

SAILOR FOUND SHOT

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)— An American sailor was found shot to death Wednesday aboard the U.S. destroyer Gridley, docked here on a goodwill visit. An investigation was underway to determine whether the death was accidental or a suicide.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1964

EARLY QUINTE ARCHITECTURE and buildings is the theme of the new display being prepared at the Hastings County Museum, on Church Street. One of the main attractions is a collection of hand-made water powered woodworking machinery, dating back to the 1860's. The machines were obtained from Ivan Flindall's woodworking shop in Smithfield, along with some of the shop's original account books. In the picture, Mrs. Lennie Williamson and Roger Greig, both of Belleville, inspect a foot-operated mortising tool.

Ont. C of C Promises Full Support for Changes to Preserve Canadian Unity

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as taking a giant step toward full agreement with Quebec's current drive for more autonomy and recognition as a partner in Canada's unity.

At this three-day annual meeting ended Tuesday the chamber:

—Promised full support for any constitutional, economic and social changes that may be needed to preserve the "paramount goal" of Canadian unity;

—Called for the Ontario government to adopt a policy that will lead to the teaching of oral French in all elementary schools in the province; and —Passed up a chance to slap provincial governments on the wrist for erecting so-called trade barriers, a charge many Ontario business men have levelled at the Quebec government in particular.

The chamber's action was praised by Maurice LaBelle, president of Quebec's Chamber de Commerce, as proving there now is a better understanding of Quebec's needs and wishes.

The two chambers have held two joint meetings of their boards of directors during the last year—the first such meetings in their history—and the Ontario chamber's meeting ended with Mr. LaBelle inviting it to hold its annual meeting in Quebec soon.

PLEDGES SUPPORT

The resolution on national unity promised to "support whatever measures changing times and national circumstances may prescribe for the continuation of this great union."

It was passed unanimously despite an argument from some delegates that a similar resolution offered earlier should be sent back to the chamber's directors for study and presentation at the next annual meeting on grounds it was liable to be misinterpreted and could be stronger.

Other delegates said, however, that the problem was so urgent the chamber had to take a stand at once.

Earlier in its sessions the chamber was told by W. R. C. Burgoyne, outgoing president and publisher of the St. Catharines Standard, that closer co-operation with the Quebec chamber was the most important development during the last year.

ADDRESSED BY HEES

George Hees, former minister of trade and commerce and now president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, told the meeting's closing banquet businessmen should do more to promote their own businesses.

Mr. Hees told the delegates he would like to see Canadian companies turning out "very brief, pungent" advertisements or pamphlets telling the public what they have done, are doing and will do.

E. W. McGibbon, newly elected president, said the outlook for Canadian business this year is for a continuing improvement with some possibility that the rate of expansion may not be so rapid in the latter part of the year.

He predicted that prices could rise, credit could become a little tighter and there could be some shrinkage in Canada's foreign exchange reserves.

The chamber endorsed provincial call for removal of tolls on the Welland Canal.

A delegation from Welland said the recent reimposition of tolls on the canal is a serious matter that has brought protests from other provinces as well as businesses that ship by the canal.

The canal had been toll-free but charges were reimposed starting with the current shipping season.

Roy and Priscilla Cadwell, directors of the Madoc Art Centre prior to returning to Canada on May 1st, held an exhibition of paintings at their winter home in Florida, 1109 North Betty Lane, Clearwater. Among those who attended were several Canadians vacationing in Florida. Priscilla Cadwell, assistant director, shown above, has exhibited her water colors of Canada, Florida, and Mexico. The purpose of the exhibition was to provide for the establishment of an American student's scholarship fund at the Centre. Sufficient money was raised to set up the fund for this year.

Must Lick Transportation Problem Before Fair Opens

MONTREAL (CP)—In Montreal, one of the world's great transportation centres, transportation remains one of the main problems to be licked before the 1967 world's fair.

As things stand now, getting to the twin-island site on the St. Lawrence River is an extremely tough proposition for any group larger than the usual Sunday-afternoon crowd.

However, planners say a subway line under the river, some super-highways, another bridge or two and a monorail system are all that are needed to solve the problem of access to the fair grounds and circulation around their 600 acres.

As a matter of fact, all these things are planned in time for the fair. But, with opening day April 28, 1967, barely 1,000 days away, most of them are scarcely off the drawing boards.

Tenders for the first section of the three-mile subway line under the river linking downtown Montreal with the fair grounds and the south shore will be called next week.

Nobody is sure how many people will come to the fair. Estimates have ranged between 20,000,000 and 50,000,000. But everybody is sure most of them will have to come from the U.S. if the fair is to succeed.

ISLAND EXPANDED

To provide sufficient acreage for the fair, the city has been expanding St. Helen's Island and filling in river shallows between it and the south shore to create Ile Notre Dame.

The city hopes to complete the upstream end of St. Helen's, the part most urgently needed for bridge and subway construction and installation of utilities, by July 1.

It hopes to complete Notre Dame by September and the downstream end of St. Helen's by October.

Sites are supposed to be allocated to participating nations by Oct. 31.

Eight nations have so far announced their intention to participate, of which one, West Germany, has said it will do so on a lavish scale. The others are Belgium, The Netherlands, France, Britain, Austria, India and Morocco.

[illegible] Commissioner-General Pierre Dupuy is also trying to enlist the support of Russia and the Scandinavian countries for a joint Arctic pavilion with Canada.

MONTREAL (CP)—The four Scandinavian countries are considering joint participation in Montreal's 1967 world's fair because of the "very expensive" cost factors, Finland's ambassador to Canada said Tuesday.

Following a meeting with fair officials and a look at the exposition site, K. Torsten Tikanvaara told reporters Finland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark are "positively considering" cooperative participation. He estimated it would cost each country $1,000,000.

Doctor Has Not Seen Cousin for Several Years

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Dr. André Couture, whose cousin is said to be the man who used his name in working as an intern at an Ontario hospital, said Tuesday he has not seen his cousin for several years.

"It is 16 or 17 years since I saw him the last time, but I know he never studied medicine," said the doctor of his first cousin.

Paul Couture, also a first cousin of Dr. Couture, has said the man who worked as an intern in Burlington, Ont.—and since has been labelled an impostor—is his brother Adrien.

Of a statement by Dr. J. C. Dawson, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, that the signatures of the two "Dr. Coutures" were so alike they could hardly be told apart, Dr. Couture said it is possible his cousin forged his signature.

Dr. Couture has practised here for eight years. He says he is not qualified to practise in Ontario.

The Dr. Couture who worked at Burlington's Joseph Brant Memorial Hospital left the Ottawa Valley community of Cowansville Saturday, promising to return to Burlington to [illegible] his disputed credentials. He has not been seen since.

39 Face Trial In Suburban Call Girl Ring

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—Housewives, bartenders and restaurateurs are among 39 persons indicted on charges of heading part of a Long Island call girl ring that recruited suburban wives and mothers as prostitutes.

Also indicted Tuesday by a Nassau County grand jury was a former county policeman and the reputed madam of the $200,000-a-year ring, Mrs. Concetta Mcallister, 35, divorced mother of three, of Hicksville.

She also was accused of grand larceny for taking $6,253 in welfare payments while earning nearly $30,000 from prostitution.

The sex-in-suburbia scandal broke last February with the arrest of 13 women. District Attorney Will Cahn called them "typical housewives who live in split level houses in suburbia."

He said in some cases husbands knew of their wives' "pin-money" jobs and in at least one instance the husband babysat with the children while his wife sold her favors.

Cahn said other "housewife-prostitutes" were granted immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony. The grand jury heard 400 witnesses.

The 181-count indictments also charged 10 corporations, including Van Anthony's Restaurant in Roslyn Heights, the Tivoli Motel and the adjacent Accent Lounge on the Jericho Turnpike and the Raceway Motel and the Gan Wah Chinese restaurant in Westbury. All are near Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, an area in which the ring allegedly centres its operations.

John Beck, 39, of Wantagh, who resigned from the Nassau County police force when the first arrests were made, was charged with aiding prostitutes to solicit business. He also was charged with neglect of police duty.

Also indicted was Mrs. McAllister's brother, Frank Pizzo, 34, of East Meadow, N.Y., on two counts of aiding prostitution and one count of statutory rape.

One man, whom police had called a "prospective defendant" who co-operated in the investigation, was found burned to death in his parked automobile Feb. 11. He was Edmond (Teddy) Nugent, 49, part-owner of the Jericho Lounge. Autopsy rules the death accidental.

Bible, Gandhi and Lincoln Guide Posts for Premier

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The gentle African who becomes the Commonwealth's youngest prime minister when Northern Rhodesia gains independence in October does so with confidence than many of his admirers that ably will go with him.

Kenneth David Kaunda, 38, now in London for a conference to help iron out details, prefers to be disheartened by sceptics who suggest Northern Rhodesia would do better to wait and have ensnarled other emerging African nations.

"I am confident," is his stock answer to suggestions his country also would be forced into isolationism, or that his party's strength is sapped by internal struggles or end up, as Ghana has, with a one-party government.

His words have an ominously familiar ring but British officials who are genuinely fond of this charming, soft-spoken leader do not doubt his sincerity.

They worry over his ability to restrain those of his lieutenants who are known to be somewhat hot-headed. Less amenable to gradual change, and whose main criticism of Kaunda is that he is "too soft" say words to persuade them and I do not know how much longer I can hold them back."

But he did hold them back, and independence comes quietly to his country following the collapse of the Central African Federation that had bound together Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

With Nyasaland also gaining independence under an African government, only Southern Rhodesia is left with a white minority clinging to power and demanding independence on their own terms.

The situation is alive with potential danger but Kaunda, since arriving in London, has

A TESTED ART

But restraining others is an art at which Kaunda has already been tested and proved.

"The mood to fight is on my people," he said more than a dozen times in reiterated his promises that political opponents will not be out-lawed, that outside capital will be safe from confiscation and that he wants for his 2,300,000 people only the dignity and opportunity they did not get under the rule of the 75,000 whites.

ONCE JAILED

He himself spent two years in jail for political activities.

When he was eight his father, an ordained minister, died and Kaunda went to work to pay his school fees.

This instilled in him a firm personal code and a depth of purpose that he may need to call upon after independence comes Oct. 24.

For Kaunda is a rather unlikely African leader. The great influences in his life, he says, were the Bible, Gandhi and Abraham Lincoln.

Unlike most African leaders, he does not seek to rouse his people to fervor with passionate nationalistic speeches. His strength is that the mass of his followers trust him.

A WALL OF FLAME marched across the swamp area east of Rossmore last night, burning off more than 100 acres and threatening several houses, a church and a school. The picture was taken from a road east of the main blaze, a creek between the camera and the fire reflects firelight.

Pampered Pigs Are Produced For Big Feasts

TIPTON, Calif. (AP) — Rancher Bill Silveira produces pampered pigs for luau feasts in Hawaii for island tourists.

In their spic and span pens, the pigs grew neurotic to the point of becoming stomach ulcer victims until he figured out a way to ease their frustrations, Silveira explained Tuesday.

"Nature designed the pig to root for his own living," Silveira told the Council of California Growers.

"When you keep him on washed-down concrete, where he gets only his food, he can become frustrated into an ulcer case."

The therapy Silveira devised was hanging chunks of wood on chains from the overhead beams of his pens.

The pigs bite and chew on the wood. They jostle and fight each other for the chance, and they happily work off their tensions.

Silveira markets up to 1,000 lean-fleshed 90 - pound luau pigs in Hawaii each year.

Rossmore Swamp Catches Fire And Flames Seen for Miles

Go to a swamp some evening — some evening when it's on fire. From a distance, it looks vague and impressive. Maybe like an angel's eye view of hell.

But don't stay on the road, hundreds of yards from the flames. Go up close for a good look. There's only a fence and a pasture between you and the swamp, cross both. Then go a little way into the swamp. Now stand still and use your eyes and your ears.

It's different in here. The cat-tails are high enough that you can't see the flames directly. There's a dull red glow in the sky though, reflected from clouds of smoke above you. The flames are still 100 yards or more away, you can hardly hear the crackle.

Listen. The loudest sound is traffic on the highway behind you. People who saw the glow in the sky and have come down to watch the show. A truck roars by, a big one, headed for Picton. A car door slams, someone has stepped outside for a better look. Now the traffic noises — there are other, more important sounds in the air.

Frogs and insects are chirping behind you. A bird calls, off to one side. . . Something rustles at your feet. The swamp at night is alive, as a city is alive at mid-day. More birds call, and there's an urgency in the calls. A breeze stirs the cat-tails. You notice some birds silhouetted against the red smoke.

Birds are fluttering around now, some of them quite close. They won't notice you if you stand still, and they won't care if you do move. They've got other problems. A sudden gust of wind has driven the flames to less than fifty yards away and half-built nests are being burned. To the birds, those nests were homes.

There's a steady rustle in the cat-tails now, small animals are fleeing the flames. Some of them won't make it. Tough, but that's life. The crackle is louder now, as loud as the traffic noises behind you. You smell some smoke—not much—and ashes are falling nearby.

The birds are getting more and more excited, flying in circles above their nesting sites, calling in the night. Ignore them, there's nothing you can do to help. One bird is confused, it flies low over the flames, passes through a rising cloud of sparks, and falls. There's a flurry of rustling in the cat-tails; it doesn't last long.

CAN FEEL HEAT

Now a cloud of birds bursts from directly in front of you. The flames are close enough now you can easily feel the heat. The birds have given up hope and they fly about in confusion, like a swarm of gnats. They don't even see the brushes you with its wing as it passes. Then the birds fly off, perhaps to nest again.

The flames are still advancing and everything still alive in front of you is running, jumping or flying for its life. Time for you to leave, too.

Just a few steps to the edge of the swamp, then re-cross the pasture and the fence. Climb into your car and drive off to find a restaurant and a cup of coffee. After the coffee, drive home—it wasn't your home that burned.

Go to a swamp some evening—some evening when it's on fire. Then you will be able to appreciate what happened near Rossmore last night.

Adjourn Probe Of Prairie Farm Assistance

REGINA (CP)—A judicial inquiry into alleged irregularities in operations of the Prairie Farm Assistance Administration has been adjourned.

Adjournment Monday followed testimony by former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton that he left a PFAA investigation of the irregularities in the hands of his former executive assistant.

Judge Harold Pope of Moose Jaw adjourned the three-month inquiry after the testimony and summation by counsel.

The inquiry investigated allegations that some farmers who received PFAA cheques in the Swift Current, Sask., area last spring did not deserve them.

It also examined the dismissal last August of George Walker, former PFAA supervisor at Swift Current.

BY END OF MONTH

It is expected the judge's report will be turned over to the federal government about the end of the month.

Mr. Hamilton, former minister in the Diefenbaker Progressive Conservative government, said he left in the hands of his former executive assistant, Roy Faibish, and others, the matter of a PFAA investigation into the alleged irregularities.

"There was some question in my mind that some inspectors were not measuring granaries properly in the Swift Current area."

PFAA inspectors may determine the amount of wheat—including old wheat from previous crops—in a farmer's granary to decide whether he is eligible for PFAA assistance. PFAA cheques are given farmers who have suffered crop failures in a given crop year.

Mr. Hamilton said he agreed with a suggestion from PFAA Director Howard Riddell last year that a PFAA investigation should have been held.

Time Office In Moscow Ordered Closed

MOSCO W(AP) — The Soviet Union accused Time magazine Monday of publishing slanderous articles about this country and ordered its office in Moscow to close.

Richard M. Clurman, chief of Time - Life News Service, sent a message from New York to Premier Khrushchev asking permission to come to Moscow to try to have the order rescinded.

Time's correspondent here, Israel Shenker, was told to leave the Soviet Union "as soon as possible," an official of the foreign ministry press department said.

The official, Leonid Zamyatin, read a statement to Shenker saying "the editorial board of Time magazine is striving to poison the atmosphere in relations between the USSR and the U.S.A., to fan the cold war."

The statement said Time had been warned on March 8, "in connection with publication of a slanderous article," that its office might be closed.

"Despite the warning," the statement went on, "Time magazine on April 24 came out with a new vicious anti - Soviet article containing slander against the Soviet Union." On that date Time published a cover drawing of Lenin and an article on world communism.

Salesman Keeps Beard And His Job

PETERBOROUGH, Eng. (and (AP) — Ivor Lewis, fired from his job as a clothing salesman for refusing to shave off his beard, was back at work today triumphantly bearded.

The 30-year-old salesman had told his story to the newspapers. Monday he and his branch manager, John Bowyer, were summoned to company headquarters in Leeds.

"The directors inspected the beard and considered it not too exaggerated, and said they had no objection to Mr. Lewis continuing," Bowyer reported.

Lewis' beard comes down both sides of his face to an impish point beneath his chin.

Orioles' Bunker Wins 2-1

Rookie, 19, Hurls Brilliant One-Hitter

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Wally Bunker nooded his okay to eager Baltimore Scouts last summer and signed a $70,000 bonus contract with the Orioles he probably never dreamed he'd be deceived into stardom.

But that's just what happened to the 19-year-old pitching prodigy Tuesday when manager Hank Bauer sent him out to the mound against Washington Senators.

The youngster hadn't worked since the Orioles' final exhibition game and Bauer told him he'd go just four or five innings against the Senators. After five innings Bunker had allowed just one hit and Bauer was as far away from the bullpen phone as a manager could be.

Four innings later Bunker had his first major league victory 2-1 on a brilliant one-hitter and Bauer had another starter for his pitching intuition.

Chuck Hinton managed Washington's only hit off the young right-hander in the fourth inning when the Senators scored their run.

Walks to Ed Brinkman and Jim King sandwiched ground Hinton's single throughout box had loaded the bases. Bill Skowron forced King at second, barely beating the relay as Brinkman crossed with the run.

Senator pitcher Dick Donovan made the run stand up through six innings but ran into trouble in the sixth when he scored their run.

Bunker was unruffled by Hinton's hit. He said the Senator outfielder hit a low fastball. The youngster threw just 99 pitches, most of them fastballs and sinkers.

Bauer expects to give the rookie his next start Sunday or Monday.

Whitey Ford was coasting with a 2-0 lead through seven innings when Dick McAuliffe's eighth-inning homer closed the gap for Detroit. Four straight hits put the Tigers on top in the ninth and knocked out Ford.

But New York rallied to tie it in their half and then won it in the 10th on Tony Kubek's triple and a single by Bobby Richardson.

It was the first extra-inning victory for Yogi Berra's club after four losses.

Joe Adcock slammed two home runs and Bobby Knoop hit one as the Angels topped Kansas City. It snapped the Kansas City winning streak at three. Dean Chance saved it for Barry Latman who won his first game for Los Angeles.

Eddie Bressoud stretched his hitting streak to 16 straight games in Boston's victory over Cleveland. The Indians made it easy for the Red Sox, committing five errors, three of them by Woodie Held.

Dave Morehead picked up the victory with a five-hitter, fanning 10.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

George Barr, the famous National League umpire, who addressed the Rotary Club here Monday, is a rarity of his breed. He is the only arbiter who openly admitted he made a mistake,—baseball-wise, that is.

He drew upon nineteen years of colorful experience with the senior baseball circuit, in an address that sparkled with humor, anecdote and witticism with freckles of philosophy and niblets of advice.

The veteran arbiter who has travelled half-way around the world visiting Uncle Sam's armed forces in baseball capacity is in Canada conducting umpires' clinics under the sponsorship of the O'Keefe-Brewery. He is owner and operator of the well known George Barr Umpire School of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

He didn't bat an eye when Rotary pianist Phil Huddleston played the famous umpires' greeting "Three Blind Mice."

He merely smiled and said, "I get a monthly pension cheque of $240 from the National League... I drive a 1964 Cadillac, will get a new one in 1966. I own a lovely home and have a few dollars in the bank."

"Do you know who paid for all this? You guys, you and you and you who boo'd me."

He has 600 autographed baseballs, some bearing the signatures of President Eisenhower, General MacArthur, Moe West, Amelia Airhart, Princess Grace of "Monco," of Monaco and many other notables.

He said that 98 per cent of umpires' "calls" are correct. "And these are pure decisions. The difference between a judge and an umpire," he quipped, "is that a judge can take three weeks to make up his mind, then call in three colleagues. The difference between a doctor and an umpire is that the doctor has the undertaker to take care of his mistakes."

But there was a ring of pride in his voice when he told the clubmen that never in the history of baseball has a player gone directly from the major leagues to the penitentiary.

"And never in the history of baseball," he added, "has an umpire been known to go crooked."

One of his most treasured possessions (and several Rotarians viewed it later) is a copy of Mickey Mantle's first pro baseball contract. The Mick was signed by the Joplin Baseball Club for a monthly salary of $225 with no bonus. He was later sold for $500. Mick was 18 at the time and was signed as a shortstop.

He is the proud owner of the only watch ever presented to an umpire by a commissioner. The late Kenesaw Landis gave him the engraved timepiece following his work in the 1937 world series.

"Like most professionals," he said, "umpires are made, few are born. The player has the spectacular job —he does it competently or well enough to impress the spectator. How many people remember anything about the umpire except the one he missed."

"I missed once," he recalled. "I called a strike on a batter and saw the next pitch coming the same way. I yelled strike two a second before the guy blasted it out of the park."

Twenty-six of the graduates of the Barr School are now working in the major leagues. Mr. Barr has written a successful book on umpiring.

In defence of his beloved baseball he said it was the only game in the world where a man can relax and blow off steam. Mild-mannered fellows who say meekly "Yes dear" to his wife, will become a roaring lion in a ball-park if he doesn't like the umpire's decisions.

He is a director of the Babe Ruth League for youngsters from 13 to 16. "It's the greatest game in the world for the young fellows," he said, and as he told me in a post-meeting interview, "I would rather see the young fellows stealing bases than purses."

He is the only male member of the United States Women's Business and Professional Club.

"And that reminds me of another mistake I almost made," he said. "I had a speaking engagement with a woman's club to be followed by an address at a stag party. I took the stag party notes to the women's meeting, but caught myself in time."

LEAGUE EXPANDS

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Eastern Hockey League's most recent entry, day to take in New York City and Jacksonville, Fla., as new members for the 1964-65 season. If both teams are added it will make the Eastern League an 11-team circuit.

LISBON ADVANCES

MADRID (AP)—Sporting of Lisbon beat Olympique Lyonnais 1-0 Tuesday and advanced to the final of the European Cup of Cup Winners soccer tournament. Sporting will meet MTK of Budapest in the final in Brussels May 13.

Will Appeal To Public

Olympics Body Asks $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Olympic Association, which is responsible for getting teams to the winter and summer Olympics and Pan-American Games, Tuesday appealed to the general public for financial support.

It needs a minimum of $100,000.

"We need that money to send our team to the Games at Tokyo next October and provide funds for the administration of the association over the next three years," COA president Jim Worrall of Toronto told a press conference.

"This is a national case and it deserves the support of Canadians all over the country.

"Directors and officers of the association are all volunteers. They receive no salaries and, generally, they pay their own expenses to meetings."

Canada is sending 103 athletes and 17 team officials to Tokyo next Oct. 1 and cost of this, including transportation, expenses in Japan and team uniforms, amount to $155,000 "We have $80,000 in the kitty, but we'd like to be able to budget for $25,000 for administration expenses for the next four years."

Canada will compete in 14 sports at Tokoy—track and field, boxing, canoeing, equestrian, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, rowing, shooting, swimming and diving, weightlifting, wrestling, yachting and judo.

GETS GOVERNMENT AID

Worrall said the COA receives most of its funds from the federal, provincial, municipal and local governments, industry and large cities. Now, for the first time, it is making a determined effort to solicit money from the man on the street.

The federal government donated $186,000 to cover expenses of sending a team to the Pan-American games in Brazil in 1963, the Winter Olympics in Innsbruck in January and to Tokyo in the fall. Cost of sending a team to Brazil was $136,000 and to Austria was $57,000.

In addition, provincial quotas were set in 1962 to obtain money mainly from governments, industry and cities to help cover costs of sending teams to the 1963 Pan-Am games and 1964 Olympics.

Here is the list with money so far received in parenthesis: British Columbia: $23,000 ($23,000); Alberta: $12,000 ($500); Saskatchewan: $6,000 ($300); Manitoba: $6,200 ($700); Ontario: $47,000 ($39,000); Quebec: $38,000 ($20,000); Nova Scotia: $5,500 ($2,600); New Brunswick: $3,600 ($975); Prince Edward Island: $600 ($65); Newfound land $1,000 ($'00).

Lead Allan Cup Finals 3-0

Maroons Shut Out Woodstock 5-0

By BOB PARKINS

WINNIPEG (CP)—A sterling performance by goaltender Don Collins Tuesday cancelled Woodstock Athletics' best effort in three games as Winnipeg Maroons blanked the eastern champions 5-0 to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup Final.

Collins came up with 35 saves to leave his teammates needing only a victory in Thursday's fourth game to bring the city its first senior hockey crown since 1931.

But in blanking Woodstock for the second time in the series, Maroons had to fight past a solid checking effort that had the host club generally outplayed during the first two periods.

The loss left the Athletics wondering what they have to do to dent Maroons' armour. In 180 minutes of hockey, they have scored only one goal.

"We didn't get any breaks around their net," complained Woodstock playing-coach Ted Power. "We outshot them 35-25, but couldn't get a goal.

"What else can we do?"

PRAISES GOALIE

Winnipeg coach Gord Simpson credited Collins as the major shareholder in the shutout, and described the Athletics' game as "more like the team I expected to come out of the East."

"Let's face it—they outplayed us through all of the first period, and had us running a lot more later. This was the big one for them . . . I'm afraid our guys were a little too impatient after those first two games, and Woodstock was really up for it."

The Maroons had humiliated the eastern champions with 5-0 and 7-1 victories in the first games of the series.

In their third win, they got two goals each from Al Johnson and Ross Parke, and a single from Elliott Chorley as they took period leads of 1-0 and 3-0.

In the first period, Winnipeg's second shot on goaltender Ron Salter produced what proved the winner. But Woodstock skated their hosts dizzy through the first 20 minutes and forced Collins to make 14 stops.

SURVIVED PENALTIES

The Athletics were most impressive in a first-period penalty-killing role, denying Maroons for five minutes and 42 seconds while they took five minutes and 24 seconds to get played two men short.

In the second period, Woodstock resorted to heavy body work in their attempt to derail the Maroons, but still came out trailing 3-0. With both teams feeling the effects of the jerring checking, play slowed in the third period.

The Maroons scored their fifth goal with seven seconds remaining, while Woodstock was pressing to avert the stigma of another shutout.

Salter, who repeatedly baffled the free-skating Maroons in the first two games, was again brilliant in defeat. Most of the 22 shots he stopped were picked off en route to an open corner.

"To Be Or Not To Be?"

One last effort will be made to salvage the Belleville and District Softball League at a meeting at Club Canara tonight at 7.00 p.m.

The meeting will be the sixth of the season to date — and about four of them have been of the "do-or-die" variety. However, the general feeling is that tonight must tell the tale, one way or the other.

Trudeau Motors and Belleville Juniors are most definite. They have indicated that their clubs will be kept together even if the league does not operate, entering OASA playdowns in August.

It's a different story with the other possible entries. Trenton will operate if the team can find enough players to form a team. Tweed is also a question mark. The Tweed representative indicated at the last meeting that townbanks would be "in" with four clubs but likely "out" with only three entries.

"I had start, good ending" is true, the Belleville and District Softball League should be in for its best season in years!

Commercial Loop Seven Teams Form Circuit

Seven teams filed entry at the Commercial Softball League's entry deadline meeting last night and brought opinions of "our best season in years" from members of the league executive.

Participating in the loop this season will be Point Anne Cementmen, City Hotel, Barriage Landscapers, Black Diamond Cheese, Belvedere Hotel and the Ter-Hsar Danbers.

Belvedere Hotel" and Ter-Hsar were new entries last night who just got in under the wire. One proposed entry, the Belleville Jaycees, dropped out at the last minute. A club spokesman said the withdrawal came when it was apparent "we would not be able to field a competitive team." Earlier in the season the loop had expected to operate with only four or five clubs but interest picked up quickly, leading to the seven-team grouping.

Arrangements have been completed for the league's opening game, to be played at Prince Charles School on Tuesday, May 19. Lightfoot Construction will play host to City Hotel in the opener. Game time is 6.45.

The league will play a 24-game schedule.

Point Anne will play home games in the Cementmen's village while Belleville teams have secured the Alemite Field, Prince Charles School and Zwick's land for home games.

A complete schedule is expected within a week.

Ontario Baseball Figure Dies

GALT (CP)—Robert (Bush) McWhirter, colorful figure in Ontario baseball for more than a quarter of a century who died of a heart attack Sunday, was buried Tuesday.

McWhirter, a catcher, played amateur baseball in Toronto before turning professional with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in 1909. A sore arm developed at training camp the following year ended his pro career.

In 1922 he moved to Galt where he led Terriers to two successive intercounty and Ontario senior titles as a manager.

He started the 1926 season with Preston but switched to Guelph in mid-season and won another provincial senior title.

In 1931 he won the senior title with Galt and in 1932 the Ontario junior championship with Galt. He also managed clubs at Southampton and Kitchener.

In 1947, he was honored by Galt fans at a Bush McWhirter Night. He put himself as a pinchhitter during the game and cracked out a single.

Kings Give Marlies Run For Money

Lose 3-2 Decision

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Depending on whose view you take, Edmonton Oil Kings either haven't hit their stride yet, or haven't the bench strength to keep pace with Toronto Marlboros.

The defending Memorial Cup champion Oil Kings gave the Marlboros a run for their money Tuesday before bowing 3-2 as Toronto took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Toronto coach Jim Gregory said in the dressing room after the game that the Oil Kings still haven't played to their full capabilities.

"I think it will take until tomorrow until their team is accustomed to Toronto," Gregory said. "The three-hour difference in time can have a big effect on them."

Across the hall, Edmonton coach Buster Brayshaw had a different outlook on the situation.

"I'm trying to play everybody to keep them going, but I just don't have the bench strength," he said. "I lost two good players before the series and I wasn't able to replace them."

CAME FROM BEHIND

The Marlboros had to come from behind for the win, overcoming a 1-0 first period deficit when Oil Kings started the game off if they were ready to run the Toronto club out of the rink.

Pete Stemkowski paced the Marlboros attack with a pair of goals with Mike Walton adding the other. Reg Taschuk, who fired both Edmonton goals in the opener, won 3-2 by Toronto, and Ron Boehm scored for the losers.

The player drawing most of the cheers from a small crowd of 2,200 was Fran Huck, an 80-goal centre for Regina Pats in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League this season. Although Huck failed to hit the scoring column he was a standout.

"The kid has a lot of guts," said Gregory about the five-foot, six-inch, 155-pound Huck. "Usually when a small guy takes a lot of whacks he stops, but this kid comes right back at you."

Huck skated in on Toronto goalie Gary Smith twice, only to have his efforts smothered—either by Smith or by inaccurate shooting.

SCORES ON PENALTY

The Kings were quick to take advantage of a charging penalty to Toronto's Andre Champagne 53 seconds after the game got under way.

Taschuk stole the puck from Rod Seiling 28 seconds later and went in to score.

The Oil Kings resumed their pressure skating in the early moments of the second period but Toronto finally hit the scoresheet at the 6:34 mark. Stemkowski poked the puck loose from Edmonton goalie Russ Kirk's pads from a scramble in front of the net.

Walton put the Marlboros ahead early in the third period when he tipped in a loose puck at the 2:19 mark. Less than two minutes later Stemkowski fired what proved to be the winning goal when he scored on a pass from Wayne Carleton.

Boehm, a pickup from Estevan Bruins, gave the Oil Kings supporters some hope when he knocked in his own rebound at 13:36. The Alberta team waited for an extra attacker with less than a minute remaining but failed to even the score Toronto's Barry Watson had a clear shot at the open net but the puck bounced off the post.

Despite some heavy checking, especially in the first and third periods, referee Frank Daignault called only seven penalties, with the Marlboros taking four.

U. S. Olympics Turn To Banks

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Olympic Committee abandoned the tin cup and turned to the country's banks Tuesday in a fund-raising campaign to finance its intense athletic tug-of-war with the Soviet Union.

"Beat the Russians!" was the dominant theme as Olympic officials and bankers gathered to announce plans for supplementing the Olympic coffers with an appeal to the man and woman with the checking account.

It's hoped that between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 can be collected with the co-operation of the country's 15,000 commercial banks.

The idea, in essence, is this: The bank, in sending out its monthly statements, includes in the envelope and a card asking for an Olympic contribution. The person responding gets a car sticker, a plaque or an Olympic record book, depending on whether the contribution is $1, $10 or $25 and over.

Every commercial bank in the country will be asked to join the campaign, aimed at financing the U.S. effort in the games this year at Tokyo. The committee has $1,400,000 and needs about $1,000,000 more.

Halter Fines Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Commissioner G. Sydney Halter of the Canadian Football League announced today that Winnipeg Blue Bombers have been fined $500 for violation of Western Football Conference equalization draft rules.

Halter said the fine was levied because the Bombers violated the "strictly confidential classification" that had been attached to the list of unprotected non-import players in the draft.

British Columbia Lions had filed an official protest with Halter, claiming that the Bombers violated the rules when they got in touch with a player on B.C.'s unprotected list. The Lions said the Bombers also told the player the names on the B.C. list.

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University has introduced an evening course called "Peace: The Control of National Power" Devoted to problems of peace and war, the Monday night discussions are conducted by Montreal radio commentator Leslie Roberts.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

SETTING UP IN SAND

The wise golfer realizes that the success or failure of a sand shot is determined largely by the manner in which he sets up to the ball. In the illustrations, I show the proper address position for the normal explosion shot from sand.

You will note that my feet are positioned in an open stance with the left foot pulled back farther than the right from the ball. This open stance-pre-turns my whole body to the left so that it will turn readily in this direction on the downswing. Without this pre-turning it would be too easy to lose balance in the uneasy sandy footing.

You will note too that I have held back the clubface. This increases the club's loft so that I get the necessary height on the shot. With the blade held back there also is less chance that it will cut too deeply into the sand and thus lose momentum.

NEW! JUST PUBLISHED! "HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR PUTTING"! Here is Arnold Palmer's illustrated guide to putting stance, grip, line-up, stroke! Send 20¢ and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Arnold Palmer, c/o this newspaper.

Legless Man Thinks Old Friend Right

VANCOUVER (CP) — Legless Carl Anderson thinks perhaps his old friend Magistrate Les Bewley was right when he said Anderson should be picked up and put in a garbage can.

"Mr. Bewley is right," said the man who lost both legs below the knees in a 1953 plane crash near Uranium City, Sask.

"Sometimes I think I am no better than rubbish."

Anderson, who walks on two rubber boots attached to the stumps of his legs, was interviewed Sunday as he sat in the sun on the steps of a skid-road mission only a short time after he finished a one-day jail term for drunkenness.

Magistrate Bewley told him Saturday:

"You are becoming a nuisance. In the past year you have had eight drunk convictions.

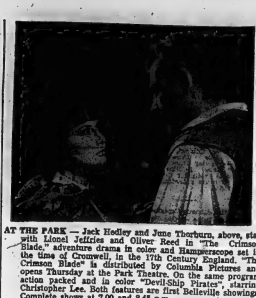
"You always smell like you are drunk."

The magistrate sentenced Anderson, 73, to a day and warned him that a longer term could follow the next conviction. He had hesitated to send him to the Oakalla provincial prison where he would be "trampled in the rush."

Mr. Bewley said in an interview later:

"Carl and I are old friends and we have spoken home truths to each other for a good number of years.

"Because of his condition, Carl has a better reason than most people for getting drunk, but he has proved a nuisance to persons on the street."



The magistrate said that in his court remarks he meant that instead of continually arresting Anderson it might be better to remove him bodily "to a place where he could sober up."

AT THE PARK — Jack Hedley and June Thorburn, above, star with Lionel Jeffries and Oliver Reed in "The Crimson Blade," adventure drama in color and Panamorscope set in the time of Cromwell, in the 17th Century England. "The Crimson Blade" is distributed by Columbia Pictures and opens Thursday at the Park Theatre. On the same program action packed and in color "Devil-Ship Pirates", starring Christopher Lee. Both features are first Belleville showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Jack Lemmon gleefully interviewed when Carol Lynley and Dean Jones try an experiment in pre-marital "platonic togetherness," in Columbia Pictures' "Under the Yum Yum Tree." Lemmon, with his own plans for Carol, stars in the Frederick Brisson production; other co-stars include Edie Adams, Imogene Coca and Paul Lynde. Film, in color, is based on the Broadway stage success and opens tonight (Buck Night) at the Belleville Drive-in theatre. 2nd feature also in color is "The Warrior Empress" and features Kerwin Mathews and Tina Louise.

Television Weather Show Unnecessarily Dragged Out

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It may be that one requirement for the job of television weather girl—in addition to wearing a different dress on every show—is that she be cheerful and think of rain only as a dreary time when it's almost impossible to fling a tent.

Or perhaps city television stations think the only people who watch weather news are apartment dwellers planning a picnic in the park.

Even when we are threatened by drought, when lawns are a crisp beige because we're not allowed to sprinkle and authorities are urging us to go easy on dwindling water supplies, the weather girls (or boys) invariably assumed mournful expressions as they announce that rain is in store.

The weather show, incidentally, has been developed into a curious institution. All that viewers really want to know is what to expect in the immediate future. That information can be passed along, and usually is on radio, in a few sentences.

SUPPORTED BY PROPS

But television believes it must be visual. So the weather girls and boys are equipped with maps, chalk, pointers, cartoons, moving arrows and illustrations of rain, snow, sun, clouds and even hurricanes.

Television also is a commercial medium. That's why the weather show is dragged out to a length that will support two or three messages from the sponsor. This is accomplished by describing the highs, lows, troughs, pressure systems and rain or snow patterns. Then, at the end, are the words we've been waiting for—whether to plan on rubbers or sunshades the next day.

Jack Benny soon will leave CBS for NBC, but fans still will be able to see him at the same number on the dials. Re-runs will be broadcast by CBS late on Sunday afternoons next fall. His new program will be seen on NBC Friday evenings.

CBS, in addition, will give us a double dose of The Andy Griffith Show next season. Andy will be visible in reruns on the network daily at 11 a.m. This is a rather unusual move because a popular prime time evening show usually has a season or so of once-a-week reruns before it goes into the daily schedules.

Old Overalls In Paint Pot Win Him Prize

OMAHA (AP)—Who threw the overalls in Milton Wolsky's paint jar?

Wolsky did, of course. And now he's won an art show with them.

The Omaha artist used parts of the overalls in a composition he calls Omaha—6964. The work won the top $400 purchase award today in the Governor's Invitation Art Show.

He also used a patch from a plaid shirt and a belt buckle as centres of interest in the creation which he calls " very personal thing."

"There's really not much I can say about it that makes sense."

Wolsky recalled he bought the overalls in New York 15 years ago "so I could paint there and look like an artist." When they wore out "rather than destroy them, I thought I'd enshrine them."

Songs Are His Business And Mr. Ring Has Plenty

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is Hollywood Boulevard—

Looking for a copy of a song you've loved years ago? Chances are you could find it at Ring's sheet music store on Cherkoee Avenue just around the corner from the Boulevard.

For 30 years the shop has been operated by Stanley Ring, a man who is short of stature and long of memory. Necessarily so, in order to find songs from among the 450,000 titles he stocks.

"How many songs do I know? Goodness, I have no way to figure," he says. "But I can find most requests, once I get the title straight. Trouble is, people give me the wrong titles.

"I've had entertainers ask for titles that didn't sound right to me. 'But I ought to know—I sang that song for 20 years in vaudeville,' they'll say. 'Let me think about it,' I say, and in a couple of days it comes to me, the real title."

The narrow store seems Dickensian with its dim lights, wainscoted walls and carton upon carton of sheet music packed in every corner. Ring, 64, fits the picture, for he is cheery-eyed, with cheeks that puff up when he smiles and spectacles that keep sliding down his nose.

IN VAUDEVILLE

Born in San Francisco, he spent years in vaudeville with comedy sketches. When vaudeville died, he opened a sheet music store in Los Angeles and it did well until a fire consumed his total assets.

He wanted to open a shop in Hollywood, but his fire insurance agent had skipped. Although he had no knowledge of horses, Ring placed $2 bets on longshots with bookies and by the end of 30 days he had made $400, enough to start the Hollywood store.

"This place has turned a profit from the day I opened on Nov. 15, 1943," said Ring. The reason appears to be that his collection of old sheet music is unique.

Ring doesn't stock a song until it has earned the veneration of age. Some of his opera scores date to the late 19th century. Cost of a sheet can run from $2 to $5.

Does he indulge his own taste for music?

He smiled and pointed to the radio which played softly in the store. It was tuned, as always, to hide, the conversation station.

MILLIONS MOVE

FLUORIDATION SURVEY

HALIFAX (CP)—Dr. W. Gordon Dawson, head of the Nova Scotia health department's dental division, says the first comprehensive survey of the effects of fluoridation in the province's drinking water won't be completed until the program has been in operation for 15 years—1972. The survey will include children who will have had nothing but fluoridated water all their lives.

Sherry Picks Giants, Phils

Dodgers 'Don't Have Bats'

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Sherry, pitching hero of Los Angeles Dodgers' 1959 world series triumph, who was sold to Detroit last month, said Tuesday he didn't believe his old club could repeat as National League champions.

"I don't see how they can win again," said the 28-year-old relief ace. "They simply don't have the bats to do it."

"I know it was the pitching, rather than the hitting that won for us last year," he added. "But this year they've got even less hitting. You can't win without runs.

"I'm still rooting for them. I'd like to see those guys win. Heck, there are no hard feelings because they traded me."

Sherry pitched San Francisco and Philadelphia to battle it out for the pennant. He felt Milwaukee, too, had a "pretty good shot at it."

If Sherry is unhappy about his transfer to the Tigers, his work has given no indication of it.

He's been credited with two victories and he's saved a third in five appearances.

Giants Defeat Colts 2-1

Cards Nip Phils; Spahn Tosses Shutout 63

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"We couldn't want him much better," said St. Louis manager Johnny Keane. "It means awful lot to us to have him back."

Keane was talking about pitcher Ray Washburn, 25, who made his first start Tuesday night since returning from the minors and scattered seven Philadelphia hits before needing ninth-inning relief help in the Cardinals' 3-1 victory over the Phillies.

Washburn has been brought along slowly by Keane, who feels the young right-hander figures heavily in the Cardinals' National League pennant chances. A healthy Washburn would give St. Louis a starting staff that also includes Ernie Broglio, Bob Gibson, Curt Simmons and Roger Craig.

Washburn was pitching spectacularly last season—he was 6-0 at one point—but ran into trouble when he got involved in a couple of late-inning no-hit bids. According to pitching coach Howie Pollet "That's where we think he hurt himself."

The diagnosis on Washburn showed a muscle tear in his shoulder.

The Cardinals weren't taking any chances this year and Washburn was sent to Jacksonville of the International League to strengthen his arm.

"We took it easy with him," explained Keane. Apparently Keane's patience is going to be rewarded.

TAYLOR FINISHES

Washburn had a two-hit shutout for six innings but seemed to tire in the eighth when Tony Gonzalez singled, Ron Taylor came on in the ninth to finish up.

At San Francisco, meanwhile, Giants' manager Al Dark took an extra precaution with Willie Mays, pulling him out of the lineup because of the cold weather and letting the Alou brothers, Matty and Jesus, lead the way to a 3-1 decision over Houston Colts.

Elsewhere in the National League, Milwaukee Braves' Warren Spahn stopped New York Mets 4-0 with a four-hitter for the 63rd shutout of his career and Frank Robinson hit two homers in Cincinnati Reds' 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates. Los Angeles Dodgers and Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

The Cardinals jumped on Philadelphia starter Jim Bunning for four hits and both their runs in the fifth inning. Johnny Lewis' leadoff double and a single by Phil Gagliano produced one run. Singles by Curt Flood and Bill White then brought in the clincher. The loss was the fourth straight for the Phillies.

Wire Dark protecting Mays' pulled leg muscle in the cold weather, Matty Alou played centre field and came up with three hits. His brother, Jesus collected two. Together they produced the decisive run in the fifth when Jesus singled, stole second and scored on Matty's single. Jack Sanford was the winner with Bob Shaw's relief help.

At Cincinnati, Robinson also singled and scored a run in the seventh inning. Gene Freese said Don Clendenon hit homers for the Pirates in support of Vern Law, who wound up the loser.

Tebbetts Says He's Not Through

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Birdie Tebbetts, of Cleveland Indians, in hospital here five weeks after suffering a heart attack, is confident that he can rejoin the American League baseball leaders before the summer is over.

Tebbetts, stricken April 1, will leave hospital today for Rochester, Minn., where he will undergo a complete physical examination at the Mayo Clinic before going to his Florida home for a long rest.

Tebbetts, speaking at a press conference Tuesday, said: "I've been reading in the papers that I'm through for—the season. I don't believe it.

"I intend to do all the doctors want me to do—I'm not foolish enough not to follow their orders—but I do not believe that I am through for the year. I feel fine. I am coming along well and making a normal recovery.

"If the ball club keeps going well. I'll probably rejoin the Indians as a coach to George Strickland (acting manager).

PACKERS TRADE RINGO

GREENBAY, Wis. (AP)—Green Bay Packers traded veteran offensive centre Jim Ringo and reserve fullback Earl Gros to Philadelphia Eagles Tuesday for linebacker Leroy Caffey and the Eagles' No. 1 choice in the National Football League draft next December. Ringo, 32, has been an all-NFL selection as a blocking centre for the last seven years.

HARTACK HURT

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Hartack, who won the Kentucky Derby on Northern Dancer at Churchill Downs Saturday, suffered an injury to his left foot at Aqueduct Tuesday when his mount, Gee Judge, fell during the parade to the post for the second race. Hartack's foot was caught in the stirrup as the horse went down. He remounted and finished fifth in the race. He rode in the third race, then cancelled the rest of his mounts for the day.

Deceased Has No Further Need for Eye Glasses

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I just returned from the funeral of a good friend. While we were sitting waiting for the minister I heard a woman say to her husband, "If I die before you do, Clarence, please remember I don't want glasses on my face when I am laid out. Glasses look foolish on a person whose eyes are closed."

The gentleman who was being buried had worn glasses for over 40 years. His son put them on because he wanted his father to look as natural as possible. People who have always worn glasses just don't look right without them.

I mentioned this to a few people and they all agreed with me. Now I'd like to hear your views. — NO NAME PLEASE.

DEAR NO — The idea behind putting a corpse on display is to suggest that he is only sleeping. Since it is unlikely that the man slept with his glasses on, they should be left off for the funeral.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am very much in love with my fiance. He is in love with my best friend. This is not imagination — it is a fact. We've discussed it in detail and he refuses to deny or admit it. He also refuses to break our engagement because he says I will be a better wife for him and a better mother for his children.

When we are alone or with others I couldn't ask for a sweeter guy. But when this girl is present it becomes painfully apparent that they have eyes only for each other.

She is much prettier and livelier than I am and it isn't hard to see why he is in love with her. Yet he refuses to break off our engagement and marry her.

I plan to go ahead with the marriage, knowing all this, simply because I don't have the will power to give him up. Help, please. — A LEMMING?

DEAR LEMMING — You are determined to ignore your head and listen to your heart. Your fiance has chosen to ignore his heart and listen to his head.

If you marry him — and I am reasonably sure you will — you'll be making a dreadful mistake. A lifetime is too long to live feeling you were the second choice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 16-year-old daughter, Mary, is a fair student. Last fall she began to date a boy 17. Rex has his own car so he drives Mary to school every morning. After school he drives her home. But he doesn't just drop her off. He comes in and they have a snack and listen to records, dance, play ping-pong in the basement or just talk. If my wife doesn't invite him to stay for dinner he leaves.

One hour later the phone rings. It's Rex calling Mary. They talk endlessly. Of course they are together every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday night.

I've told my wife these kids are too chummy. What do you say? — OUTSHOUTED.

DEAR OUT — I say Mary and Rex are seeing entirely too much of each other. Where do you think all this togetherness is going to lead?

If Rex wants to drive Mary to and from school, O.K. But after school visiting should be stopped. Friday and Saturday night dates are all right, but no dating should be permitted on Sunday night.

Doesn't Rex have any interest in sports? What about Mary? No girl friends, no club activities? These two kids are stunting each other's growth. It's up to you, as parents, to call a halt.

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

RED SHIELD

The month of May has been named Salvation Army Red Shield Month, and at Picton the Canadian Guards are co-operating in the drive. Pictured above, left to right, are Mrs. G. Hawley, Capt. G. Clark, Lieut. Len Pearo, Lieut.-Col. William Muhern, Mrs. Pearo and Jesse Mason, chairman of the drive.

Scouting activities

The Annual Father and Son Banquet for the Cubs and Scouts of 3rd Belleville was held recently in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy. Approximately two hundred, including Cubs, Scouts, fathers and guests sat down to dinner at tables decked out in splendid decorations fitting the occasion. The meal was prepared and served by the Ladies Auxiliary under the direction of their President, Mrs. J. Farrell, and the banquet convenor, Mrs. J. W. Wright. Grace was said by Rev. Father Boyle. The hot meal consisting of roast turkey, dressing, vegetables and all the trimmings was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The chairman of the program, Mr. Gerald Cooper, introduced the head table, Rev. Father Boyle; Sister Mary Andrew, Principal of St. Michael's Academy; Sister Mary Rose, Principal of St. Michael's Junior School; Mr. Gordon Cooney of the Holy Name Society, sponsoring body for 3rd Belleville; Mr. Archie Lewis, President of the local Association; Mr. Wm. Jarvis, District Commissioner; Mrs. Jos. Farrell, President of the Ladies Auxiliary; Dr. Robt. Allore, retiring Group Leader and 3 sons, Michael (Scout), Robbie (Cub) and Brian (Cub); Mr. Don Finkle, Group Committee Chairman and 2 sons, Peter (Cub) and David (Cub).

Rev. Father Boyle addressed the gathering with a spiritual message followed by talks by Mr. Lewis and Mr. Jarvah.

The appreciation of all present was expressed to the Ladies Auxiliary at this time for the fine dinner arrangements.

The Leader of 3rd Belleville Scout Troup and Cub Pack were then introduced and received an ovation from all. They were as follows: Scout Master: Mr. Jim Hopper; Asst. Scout Leaders: Mr. Mike Lamoreux, Mr. Robt. Carey, Mr. Jerry Cature; Cub Master, A Pack: Mr. Gord Power; Asst. Leader: Mr. Larry Daipee; Cub Master, B Pack: Mr. Wm. Barrett; Asst. Leaders: Mr. Wm. Heinze, Mr. Terry Flynn.

TALK BY COL. DUFFY

The speaker of the evening was Lt. Col. Angus Duffy (retired). His talk to the boys described the importance in life of cheerfulness, Courage and Loyalty. Col. Duffy pointed out to the boys that no one is born with Courage, we must work at it and practice it. Col. Duffy said that in the front lines of Italy during the War, when he served as a Regimental Sgt-Major with the famous Hastey-Pees. It was loyalty that enabled them to advance and win against heavy odds, Loyalty to their fellow soldiers, to their Officers, and mainly Loyalty to their Country.

Col. Duffy's talk was received with rapt attention by the boys.

He was introduced by Group Chairman, Don Finkle and thanked by Mr. Terry McCabe of the Group Committee.

Two presentations were made to retiring Group Committee Chairman, Dr. R. Allore, in appreciation for his years of hard work and strong leadership on behalf of 3rd Belleville. Mrs. Jos Farrell made the presentation from the Ladies Auxiliary, a beautiful pair of matching bookends; and Mr. Gordon Power, Cub Master, presented a plaque suitably enscribed for the occasion on behalf of the Leaders and Group Members.

Cubs Peter Gaffney and Chris Hatton were asked to stand and received applause for their achievements. Peter and Chris have now earned all the 14 badges, highest achievement possible for a Cub.

Leaping Wolf badges were presented in the following new Scouts, Chris Cature, Michael Allore, Danny Gilhooley, Ron Doyle and Frederick Andolek.

The Scouts and Cubs then formed a large circle and brought the Meeting to a close with a Salute to the Flag and the Cub Prayer recited by all.

PUMP WATER — Amish Mennonite children pump water at their one-room school in Oxford County, about 15 miles southeast of Woodstock. The sect, composed of about 30 families, has been a source of contention among some residents in the area, who feel they have lowered the value of the farming areas. However, some local merchants are almost enthusiastic in the support of the Mennonites. They operate the old school without hydro and most of the children work on the farm when they are 12. The boys never go to a barber.

Amish Mennonites Said Poor Farmers by a Former Reeve

NORWICH, Ont. (CP)—Eight years ago a group of Amish Mennonites arrived in western Ontario from Ohio.

They bought farms for cash and promptly set about removing every modern convenience.

Electric wires were ripped out. Bathrooms were replaced by outside privies. Modern furnaces were tossed out.

They disposed of all powered farm equipment, preferring to do their work with horses.

The actions were typical of the Amish, most conservative of Mennonites, who live by the conviction that Christians should not conform to materialistic standards of the modern world.

But in an age when conformity is often the price of acceptance, they are almost inevitably an object of contention.

Residents of this rich farming area 15 miles southeast of Woodstock are divided in their feelings about the 30-odd families.

BUY STALE BREAD

"These people do not contribute anything to our community," . . . Steve Lealis Force of Norwich. "They buy stale bread so as to save money. Every purchase made here is of little consequence.

"They have taken some of our finest farms and have cut their value by $10,000 by destroying the modern features. They do not raise good stock. They allow the land to deteriorate simply because they lack the equipment to operate their farms properly."

David Chambers, a former reeve of Norwich township, says:

"They have set the area back 50 years. Their youngsters are not allowed to get a proper education. They are poor farmers. I hope we can restrict the flow of the group into this area."

Accustomed to such criticism, the Amish rarely allow themselves the luxury of replying. But they have their defenders.

Says lumber dealer Harry Howard:

"They are as honest as the day is long. I believe they are really happy and quite content. They go out of their way to be good neighbors."

GIVE BLOOD

Others relate how, as a group, the Amish regularly give blood at the donor's clinic here and even plead to be permitted to pay for the bus that brings them to town, a service provided free by the Lions Club.

They have been known to arrive unasked at the scene of a fire on another farm and help the farmer rebuild the destroyed building.

The men have long beards and long, flowing hair. They dress in crude denim clothing without zippers or metal fasteners and wear large black hats. The women are almost completely covered with plain, dark clothing and wear aprons and black bonnets when they come to town.

The sect operates an old school, without hydro, and the children go until they reach Grade 8. It has hired a qualified teacher.

It has a bishop who performs marriages and burials. The town doctor is consulted when anyone becomes ill and women have their children in a local nursing home.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Scoutmaster William Geen and six members of Thomasburg Boy Scout troop attended a swim meet at Albert College, Belleville, on April 25. The Marmora group placed first in the events with Boys and Tweed coming second and third. Thomasburg and Sulphide tied for fourth place.

At the convention of the Ontario Federation of Labor C.L.C. which was held recently in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal, Quebec, Mr. William Geen and Mr. Ivor Dell, over 1,500 delegates were in attendance from all over Canada.

FAMILY NIGHT

After the regular meeting of Crescent Rebekah Lodge, Thomasburg, held on Monday, the members entertained their families and the members of Thomasburg I.O.O.F. Lodge and their families.

Mr. Guy Bradshaw of Stirling showed a number of interesting pictures of his recent travels in both western and eastern Canada. On his trip he was accompanied by Mrs. Bradshaw and the Rev. Thomas Dodds and Mrs. Dodds.

Mrs. Willard McTaggart dressed in an old fashioned costume, gave a humorous reading.

Dainty refreshments were served by the members of the lodge and a social hour was enjoyed.

Several ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. W. H. Elliott on Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday to work on a quilt which the U.C.W. has on order for sale. On Wednesday a pot-luck dinner was served. Another quilting will take place at the home of Mrs. Harold E. Morton.

France's National Lottery Gives Big Prize to Winner

PARIS (Reuters) — Every Thursday millions of Frenchmen eagerly scan their morning papers in search of a dream—the "gros lot" (first prize)—in the national lottery.

Simultaneously, officials at the finance ministry are totalling the receipts of the weekly draw, which makes a big enough annual profit to pay for about 3½ per cent of all government expenditure.

The "gros lot," worth 1,000,000 francs (about $200,000) is a dream which comes true for few.

But for the state, which runs it, this country-wide weekly gamble is a sure bet, bringing in more than 3,000,000 francs every Wednesday night.

For each draw, 600,000 tickets are issued. They cost 26 francs (about $5) each and are worth a total of 15,600,000 francs.

Few people buy a whole ticket. Most buy a modest tenth of a ticket, entitling them to 1-10th of any prize the ticket wins.

Usually, the full issue of tickets is not sold, and the weekly turnover is in the region of 10,000,000 francs.

SPECIAL DRAWS

Sixty per cent of the cash paid in is plowed back into the lottery as prize money. Running costs account for about seven per cent of the total collected. The rest is profit to the state.

In addition to the weekly draw, special draws are held on certain holidays and feast days, including Christmas, Saint Valentine's Day, Mothers' Day, Easter.

There were 10 special draws last year. Tickets for these are more expensive, and the prizes are correspondingly bigger. They also boost lottery income, and profits, enormously.

Annual income from the lottery is about 20,000,000,000 francs and profits amount to about one-third of that sum.

The principle of a national lottery in France dates back to 1836. During the intervening 400 years, the lottery has been stopped several times, but has always returned.

The present series has been running for more than 30 years.

Fraud, officials say, is virtually non-existent, and the tickets are almost impossible to forge.

MARRYING YOUNGER

In 1962 about 60 per cent of U.K. women aged 20 to 24 were married, compared to only 25 per cent in 1931.

Inauguration of Air Route Symbolizes Maturing Entente Between Pakistan and China

KARACHI (CP)—The inauguration of the Karachi-Canton-Shanghai air route April 29 symbolizes the maturing entente between Pakistan and China.

Except for the less dramatic (and less remunerative) Rangoon - Kunming route already operated by Burmese Airways, Pakistan is the first country allowed to run a regular air service to and from China.

There are other plums, political and economic, in this red and green basket.

China has suddenly emerged as the biggest buyer of Pakistan cotton. Up to March 31, China had bought 302,815 bales of cotton from Pakistan, about 50 per cent of its yearly import needs. Last year China took a relatively meagre 76,323 bales.

In return, such Chinese products as thermos flasks, stationery, dyes and chemicals are finding their way into Pakistan markets.

There is a possibility of revival of the ancient silk route, touching Sinkiang in China and Srinagar in Kashmir.

In the mountain-laced valley of Hunza, Pakistan's most northern strip bordering China, the people are hopefully looking to a trade revival after years in which business was first restricted and later entirely cut off as a result of Communist supremacy in China.

DEFINE BORDER

The Pakistan - China border, more than 300 miles long, is currently being demarcated. Known for its eerie desolation, it straddles an area that is inhospitable to all except the Pamir eagles, the Marco Polo sheep and the snow leopard.

Survey teams have braved chilly winds and glaciers to hurry the job along. The border pact was signed in March, 1962. Boundary markers may go up by this July.

There have been occasions when surveyors appointed by the two countries have stuck doggedly to their viewpoints. But wireless messages to Peking and Rawalpindi produced compromises, a reflection of the stake-up good will between the two capitals.

"Actual control" is usually the basis for deciding where the demarcation line should go. It roughly follows the water divide of the Indus and Tarim river systems and, according to all accounts, the route has been favorable to Pakistan.

Relations between the two countries have developed quickly during the last two years, and a February visit by Premier Chou En-lai not only showed that China has built up a tremendously friendly image on the popular level, it also resulted in a personal understanding with President Ayub Khan.

—Pakistan now is committed to a more positively friendly attitude toward China, if not a wholly pro-Peking line.

—She will firmly and unequivocally support China's admission to the UN.

—American influence in Pakistan has declined and this country has almost reached the stage of formulating and pursuing an independent foreign policy.

—China has given a little more positive support on Kashmir, the border territory that has been disputed between India and Pakistan for 16 years.

—Peking has also made it known she would like to open up a new line of communications with the United States via Pakistan.

WEST DISPLEASED

Naturally, India and the Western powers look askance at this developing entente which now has acquired a momentum of its own. But friendship between China and Pakistan may, to some extent, be held inevitable.

Pakistan is surrounded by countries (India, Afghanistan and the Soviet Union) with whom her relations have been in constant tension. Fear of India and the dispute over Kashmir have always motivated Pakistan's foreign policy.

The border state is largely Moslem and this predominantly Moslem nation resents New Delhi's action in incorporating into the Indian republic the section of Kashmir she occupies.

There is a basic ambivalence in Pakistan's foreign policy. She remains a member of the Western - sponsored Central Treaty Organization and Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and depends on Western economic and military aid of about $400,000,000 a year.

But Pakistan's attitude toward the West has cooled in proportion to increased Western support of India.

And the fact remains that, ideological differences notwithstanding, China has never done anything that might directly or indirectly harm Pakistan's interests.

'BASED ON FACTS'

Even when China's relations with the Soviet Union and India were at their best, Peking pursued an independent line on Kashmir. Unlike Moscow, she recognized the existence of a dispute in Kashmir and advocated direct negotiations between India and Pakistan to settle it.

What explains China's correct posture toward Pakistan over the years? Was it good diplomacy? Did China foresee from the beginning that she would quarrel with India? These are possibilities.

Or it could be true, as Chinese Premier Chou En-lai said in the course of a private conversation during his visit here in February:

Our policy has always been based on facts, not on likes or dislikes. If we supported you on Kashmir it was because it was in accordance with the facts of the situation."

There is no doubt, though, that the Sino-Indian border clashes of 1962 gave rise to a sequence of events that has brought about a change in Pakistan-China relations.

As the West increased military aid to India, misgivings in Pakistan grew. The hardware could be used against China—or Pakistan. India's smaller neighbors, rightly or wrongly, have always been afraid of Indian chauvinism and China appears on the scene as a balancing factor.

Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto said in Parliament last year:

"Any attack by India on Pakistan would involve the territorial integrity and security of the greatest Asian power (China)."

This was perhaps an exaggeration but it does give a clue to the new alignments.

Mr. Burney, a Pakistani journalist, is editor and publisher of Outlook, a weekly opinion journal published in Karachi.

Can You Remember?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Memory is the passport back to a land that never changes—the past.

It is refreshing to the spirit to drink again from the fountain by remembering when—

You could tell Joe College by his coonskin coat and mandolin.

Every girl wanted to be the first in her crowd to learn to dance the fox trot.

Security to a man was a big gold railroad watch and a thick gold chain. He would almost rather starve than pawn them.

Love was so blind that a fellow could spend an evening looking at pictures of his best girl's relatives in her family photo album—and still decide he wanted to go ahead and marry her.

The druggist had more patients than the doctor, because all he charged for was the patent medicine he sold you. Some medical firms paid him 10 per cent extra for pushing their products, and for some reason he seemed to sell more of them than any other brand.

Before going to church on Sunday it was customary for a fellow to stop off at the neighborhood barber shop for a shoe shine—and to hear the sports there brag about all the ballsh things they'd done on Saturday night.

A man could achieve social status of a kind by learning to roll a cigarette with one hand—an old cowboy trick.

In a large family every child had his own special place under the dinner table to park his chewing gum.

People wondered what the country was coming to when it was reported that Rin-Tin-Tin, the popular film star, was being paid more than the president of the United States.

The height of devility in grammar school was to steal a kiss from a squealing girl in the cloakroom after class.

It was the ambition of every lad under 16 to sneak into a burlesque show and find out what women were really like.

Those were the days. Remember?

PILOT DIES

BREMERHAVEN (CP - AP) An American pilot died in the wreckage of his jet aircraft Sunday after he apparently stayed aboard to steer it away from a crowd of spectators at an Armed Forces Day exhibition near this West German city. Maj. Thomas Eugene Prifill of Toledo, Ohio, crashed as hundreds of horrified spectators watched. They said it appeared he deliberately refrained from bailing out.

Income Tax Explained

Aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews have all presented a problem to taxpayers. A married taxpayer cannot claim them under the above designation. In some circumstances, as outlined below, a claim would be in order.

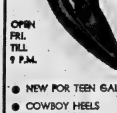
If an aunt and uncle raised the taxpayer as a child he could claim, not as an aunt and uncle but as foster parents. If the taxpayer has taken in an orphaned niece or nephew, he could claim them as adopted children. Adoption means either in law or in fact.

A single taxpayer who is maintaining a home and supporting therein an aunt or uncle he is allowed the equivalent to married status ($1,000) on them, providing their income is less than $550. The same will apply in regard to a niece or nephew.

The main point to remember is that a married taxpayer has no claim for an aunt, uncle, niece or nephew, but if the taxpayer is single, legally separated divorced, widowed or a widower, and supports such a person in his home, the equivalent to married would be allowed.

In making the claim for equivalent to married, all details asked for on the return must be given. It would also help if a note was attached to the return giving full information as to the circumstances. In such cases, the home in which he supports such a dependent must be a self-contained dwelling.

Merely giving their keep in a boarding or rooming house is not sufficient to warrant any claim at all. It is married status ($1,000) or nothing at all.



For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question: I supported my aunt and uncle in 1962 and, was allowed $1,000 on her, as I was single. I got married in January of 1963. Can I still claim my aunt?

Answer: No. There is no claim at all as you got the $1,000 on your wife.

COINS CONFUSE

PARIS (AP)—France went from big to smaller 50-centime pieces (about 10 cents) and everyone appeared to be confusing the new coins with 20-centime pieces (about four cents). So, Finance Minister Valery Giscard announced, the ministry is thinking about issuing another 50-centime piece, presumably big as the original that was replaced.

Cybernetics Spearhead Of Unmarked Revolution That Is Changing World

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Get out your dictionary and look up the word cybernetics. Mark it well. It is the spearhead of an unmarked revolution that is changing the world.

One consequence may be that Western strategists will start to worry about the "computer gap" the way they used to worry about the "missile gap."

For computers—high speed electronic computers—are the tools of the new, unnoticed science named cybernetics. Usually called automation in Britain, this is the science of control and communication, heralding the push-button era par excellence.

If cybernetics—from a Greek word meaning to govern—is carried to its logical conclusion, foreign policy and the cold war will one day be reduced to a duel between master computers, into which will be fed all known facts about the world's strategic, political and economic situation.

And finally, in the utopian view, all world tensions will dissolve because both sides will know what the other is doing, and there will no longer be any need for secrecy or hostility.

REFUGEE'S BOOK

Too good to be true? Probably. But that's one possibility that can be read between the lines, though not stated in exactly those terms, in a new book by George Palocsi — Horvath, former Hungarian scientist who fled his native country in the 1956 revolution.

In his diffuse but closely-argued thesis, The Facts Rebel, Palocsi-Horvath is principally concerned to show the subtle ways in which cybernetics, catalyst of what he calls the second industrial revolution, is changing both the Soviet Union and the Western world.

"Marxism-Leninism is giving way to cybernetics," says the author. "This means that the very essence of the Soviet system is changing.

"This development is comparable in importance to that of the Protestant Reformation in the history of Europe and the world . . . The Communist reformation changes the creed itself, relegates the remnants of Marxism to ceremonial political functions and attacks . . . the dictatorship of Communist dogma over contemporary reality."

Palocsi-Horvath describes in detail the complex process by which the "dictatorship of reality" is prevailing in the Soviet Union, elevating Nikita Khrushchev into the "Martin Luther of communism" and making Russia's intellectual isolation from reality a thing of the past.

SCIENCE TO FORE

The essence of the Communist reformation, he says, is the primacy accorded to science and economics over ideology and politics.

"In officially elevating cybernetics to an all - important super-science, the Soviet leaders started a process of normalization and de - politicization. The mental climate . . . is turning toward a genuine appraisal. This climate is favorable to rethinking, to a new look at old ideas, to a revaluation of hitherto sacred Communist principles, to the experimentation with new hypotheses and new methods."

In his detailed argument, the author stresses the pace of change. Over the last two decades, transformations have taken place in many important fields that equal or surpass all previous changes "in the whole of recorded history before 1940." One pertinent example involves Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway.

The first British computer sent to Canada in 1951 to handle seaway calculations was "exceedingly primitive and slow." Yet it was able to do what human calculators would have taken 20 years to accomplish, and in that time the physical characteristics of the region, the flow of traffic, and so on would have rendered the human calculations largely obsolete.

Today, the new computers are 5,000 times as fast as the original seaway computer.

NEW VALUES

In discussing the impact of cybernetics on the Western world, Palocsi-Horvath places great stress on education and looks forward to the day when the dominant part of society will be the "quality population," a new class with a new set of values.

"It will be up to this quality population to ensure that the great technological and other changes should lead to more and not less democracy, to a more and not less humane society."

The book made its appearance in Britain almost at the same time as that of the death in Sweden of the "father of cybernetics," Professor Norbert Wiener, a polyglot genius who lectured in French in Paris, in Spanish in Mexico, in German in Berlin and in Chinese in Peking.

Writing in the Paris newspaper L'Express, Albert Dorcroce says it is not impossible that one day Prof. Wiener's prestige may be as great as that of Einstein.

"Yesterday, the scientific world denied the theories of Prof. Wiener. Today . . . it is just starting to discover them."

FIND ANCIENT CITY

TOKYO (AP)—A lost city 2,000 years old has been uncovered by archeologists in northeast China near a Liaoning province village, the New China News Agency reports. It said although its existence was recorded in Han Dynasty history, the city's location had remained a mystery for 1,000 years.

Schwenkfelder Community In U.S. Now Numbers 2,500

PENNSBURG, Pa. (AP)—In the 1720s the remaining members—fewer than 200—of a religious group known as the Schwenkfelders fled to Pennsylvania from Germany, looking for religious freedom.

Today they number about 2,500, living mainly in southeastern Pennsylvania. This small, quiet country town is their headquarters.

The once distinctive dress—similar to the Amish and Mennonites—is no more. They are readily accepted in the community.

The church describes itself as a Protestant, evangelical, ecumenical denomination.

Schwenkfelder churches — there are five of them with nine ministers—teach the right, privilege and obligation of individual conscience in all matters of faith and work. The emphasis is on the spirit rather than the letter.

Children are dedicated to God rather than baptized. Those for Baptism comes after catechetical instruction, usually in the mid teens. The Lord's Supper is observed regularly with open communion.

The group is the spiritual descendant of a Silesian nobleman, Caspar Schwenkfeld von Ossig, who was a contemporary of Martin Luther and John Calvin. Schwenkfeld (1489-1561) did not seek a following formulated no creed and did not attempt to organize a church based on his beliefs.

SECRET MEETINGS

Schwenkfeld sought a reformation of life; liberty of religious belief—a fellowship of all believers, and one united, Christian Church, the ecumenical church.

Co-believers numbered many thousands by the middle of the century.

They promoted their beliefs in secret meetings using Schwenkfeld's literature for the conduct of worship services in South Germany and Silesia.

Established churches were unable to absorb them as an unchurched heritical people and this resulted in the issuance of a royal decree in 1719 by Charles VI, creating a Jesuit mission to convert them to the Roman Catholic faith.

Fines, imprisonments and other persecutions imposed because unbearable by 1731. They fled to Saxony as a temporary refuge and eventually to Pennsylvania.

Indian Chief's Discovery

An Artistic Style So Old It's New

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four-legged killer whales . . . blue-masked bears . . . multi-colored cranes with faces on their breasts . . . fur-skinned two-headed women with eyes on their knees.

Dali on his latest kick? Picasso gone wild? Modern nightmares on a coffee house wall?

No. Pictures so old they are new. So traditional they are historic.

They are the work of Ozistalis, an Indian chief who is probably the oldest, most prolific and (he feels) luckiest newly discovered artist in Canada.

Certainly he's the Greatest—that being the English translation of Ozistalis.

Not long ago the chief was earning $1 a letter painting names on fishing boats. Now silk-screen prints of his paintings are being distributed through an organization set up by a group of Vancouver businessmen. The project represents a $16,000, three-year investment.

Ozistalis's sometimes lively, sometimes extremely colorful portrayals of West Coast Indian legends went on sale for the first time here in April.

DISCOVERED IN '61

They were some of about 600 the chief—his English name is Henry Speck—has painted at his home at Alert Bay, 350 miles north of Vancouver, since he was discovered by a Hungarian art dealer in 1961.

Gyula Mayer recognized Ozistalis's talent and also realized there was a growing recognition and market for primitive North American art.

The 55-year-old chief of the Kwakiutl Indian nation was commissioned to paint as he saw fit. He was paid about $25 for each picture by B.C. Indian Designs Ltd., a firm created to handle the pictures. He'll also get royalties on sales. The Indian affairs branch in Ottawa gave its blessings.

Of the paintings Ozistalis produced, 80 or so were selected for reproduction. These will go on sale across the country. The originals will not be sold.

Jack Bardol, president of the firm handling distribution, says there are plans to make other uses of the designs.

The chief is a craftsman in an art that dates back centuries. Audrey Hawthorn, curator of the museum of anthropology at the University of British Columbia, says his work is a true example of the ancient art.

The paintings depict characters in Kwakiutl mythology such as the killer whale, raven, crane, dancing bears, thunderbird, octopus and Tsonoqua, a people that can have two heads.

Ozistalis uses only colors available to his forebears — black, white, yellow, red, green, brown and blue.

"They seemed to like my art," he said at a preview attended by Forestry Minister Sauve and Jack Davis, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson.

"My work has been very good ever since I started. Art is my special gift. My great - grandfather was also an artist. I now am 55 years old. I have six boys and five girls. Every one of my boys is a good artist. Also my girls are very smart. I have a tribe of my own. I have 25 grandchildren which makes me real happy. I thank the good Lord for His goodness."

Prime Minister Nehru Intends To Resume Post

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Prime Minister Nehru has given the country a clear indication that he has recovered from his recent illness and intends to resume full political and administrative control of Indian affairs.

He has firmly rejected pressure from his party that he appoint a deputy prime minister to assist him in formulating national policy.

The decision has come as a disappointment to many of his party members. The press is frankly critical of Nehru's rejection of a proposal which many leading newspapers have been advocating to enable him to conserve his energies.

Nehru's sudden illness last January found the government and the ruling party in a difficult predicament.

Many vital state decisions were held up because none of his cabinet colleagues was willing to formulate high policy in his absence. After some weeks, the prime minister delegated some of his key responsibilities to three men—Home Minister Nanda, Finance Minister Krishnamachari and Lalbahadur Shastri, minister without portfolio.

This triumvirate has been administering the world's most populous democracy for nearly four months. Even though it is handing back its powers to Nehru, it is unlikely that he will be able to resume the old tempo of his public life.

IRE RAISED

Some leading Indian commentators are angry with Nehru for—as one of them puts it—"not profiting from the lessons of his recent illness."

Another indication that Nehru is regaining his strength is the departure of his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, on a foreign tour. She has been at his side constantly since early January.

Mrs. Gandhi's announcement before leaving New Delhi that she had no desire to succeed her father as prime minister has been welcomed by political circles and the press as proof of the vitality of Indian democracy. There was talk soon after Nehru fell ill that his daughter might be asked to join the cabinet as foreign minister, and later, when the time came, become prime minister.

Shastri now is seen as the likeliest successor to Nehru.

Ed Begley in Accepting Oscar Thanked His Agent

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Life didn't exactly begin at 62 for big Ed Begley—but it brightened considerably.

For it was at that age last year that he finally reached the Olympus of the theatrical profession. He won an Academy Award for his role as a southern politico in the film version of the Tennessee Williams play, Sweet Bird of Youth.

Somewhat dazed, clutching the Oscar excitedly, Ed Begley did an unusual thing. In a brief acceptance speech he thanked—of all people—the agent who had obtained the role for him.

The gesture was typical of Begley, one of the kindest and best-liked performers in show business.

"Gratitude means a very great deal to me," he said at lunch the other day in a booming voice that made waiters snap to attention 20 feet away. They turned, stared, then smiled at Begley, a seamy-faced, craggy - featured man who looks like a gentle grizzly bear.

"I have been helped by so many people along the way. They say someone has to give you that first chance. Well, a lot of people gave me first chances."

INHERITED TRAIT

Begley feels he inherited his acting ambitions from his father, a Kerry County Irishman who migrated to Hartford, Conn., and became a hod carrier.

"My father could mimic any dialect and knew hundreds of songs and stories. He loved to entertain people—for the fun he got out of it."

Ed quit school in the fifth grade. Starting at the age of 11, he made a series of runaway trips from home. He worked for carnivals, fairs, and small circuses. They gave him a rough but educational experience of life.

"I don't know why I made so much misery for my parents," Ed remarked. "They were kind to me and I had a good home, and I liked to come back to it.

"I think I just wanted adventure. For as long as I can remember, I wanted to be an actor. But, you know, I can't tell just where or when I really became one. It just happened."

ONCE MILKMAN

Over the years he earned his way as a brush salesman, a milkman, served in the U.S. Navy, became a door - to - door broadcaster.

Radio proved his first big stepping stone to fame. During the 1930s and erly 1940s he appeared on more than 12,000s programs. He was the original Charlie Chan. He was the voice of Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was doctor, detective, gangster — anything the program required.

In 1947 he went to hollywood and acted in 21 pictures in four years. He also has starred in a half-dozen Broadway hits, 75 or more television shows, and made several phonograph albums.

Last year Ed married Helen Jordan, a secretary 20 years his junior. He calls her Mama now because she's expecting a baby—and he's happy about that, too.

Nehru Denies Hindu Girls Sold in Slavery

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The Indian government and Hindu organizations in Calcutta are at loggerheads over reports of the alleged kidnapping of Hindu girls in Pakistan and their sale to slave markets in the Middle East.

Prime Minister Nehru told Parliament the reports, investigated by the Indian deputy high commissioner and other Indian diplomats in eastern Pakistan, were unfounded. He said some Arab countries had taken strong exception to the allegations and denied Hindu girls had been sold in the Middle East.

Opposition Hindu parties in Calcutta challenged the government and said they were ready to produce documentary proof of the charges. They claimed the government was "leaning over backwards to mollify the Arab countries."

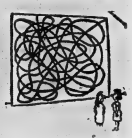
A leading Calcutta daily, the Amrita Bazar Patrika, published an interview with an Indian doctor who claimed to have talked to a Hindu woman allegedly kidnapped from her home in Dacca, Pakistan, and sold to a slave gang in Baghdad, Iraq.

The doctor said many more Hindu women were held in harems of Iraq and other Middle East countries.

OPINION AROUSED

Persistent reports in the Indian press about the kidnapping of Hindu girls in Pakistan during recent religious riots have inflamed Hindu opinion in India. Ruling Congress party leaders have launched a campaign to stop the spread of what Indian Home Minister Gulzarilal Nanda calls "religious hysteria."

The All-India Women's Conference, the country's leading women's organization has asked permission from the Pakistan government to send social workers to investigate the condition of Hindu women in eastern Pakistan.



An official of the organization said the government's denial of the reports should be accepted as representing the correct position. However, she said that according to reports reaching the organization "at least 3,000 Hindu and an equal number of Christian women in east Pakistan are in dire distress."

The official said the organization also would be prepared to investigate the truth of Pakistani allegations that Muslim women in Calcutta were molested during recent anti-Muslim riots in that city.

Molasses Puncheon, Moonshine Still Disappear in Newfoundland

By JAMES HUSSEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

BURIN, Nfld. (CP) — Sometimes overlooked among the changes that have occurred since Newfoundland became a province 15 years ago is the disappearance of the molasses puncheon and moonshine still.

Once common in hundreds of outports, they have fallen victim to economic progress — more money in circulation and new liquor laws that make beer available in almost every community.

When Newfoundland schooners carried cargoes of salt cod to the West Indies, they often came back with holds full of 100-gallon molasses puncheons.

In those days the sweet, sticky treacle sold for much less than sugar and had many uses.

"Have a cup of lassy tea" was once a hospitable gesture in an outport home. "Lassy buns" were a favorite of the fisherman when he went to the fishing grounds or into the woods in winter. They are a sort of cookie containing generous flavoring of molasses and man-sized shares of pork or fat drippings and are still made in many homes.

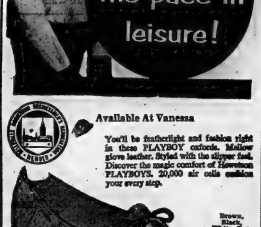
Both the product and the container had their uses. The puncheon, when empty, served as a container for soaking and washing fish—cod, as a water barrel, or even to carry a person short distances by water if a boat was not immediately available.

SOLD IN CANS

Famous was a resident of Kirby's Cove, a small settlement on the Burin Peninsula, who cut a shift single-handed in puncheon of molasses from dory to wharf.

The best-known molasses was a variety called blackstrap. It was used not only to replace sugar and as a substitute for milk in tea but as an ingredient in home brew, a concoction that had a powerful kick and was especially plentiful around Christmas.

Today, the store owner who once sold bulk molasses by the gallon passes it over the counter in one- or two-pound cans with fancy labels. George A. Bartlett Ltd., general merchants in Burin who once sold thousands of gallons of the all most - black treacle annually, say they haven't imported two puncheons of Blackstrap in 10 years.



As for the moonshine stills, they weren't widely used along the south coast. Residents could smuggle in supplies of cheap liquor from the nearby French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon.

But on the east and north coasts the manufacture of home brew and moonshine was one of the biggest headaches for police officers stationed in outport communities. Money was scarce and people operated the stills and sold the home-made hooch at low prices.

Nowadays it's much easier to have brewery beer delivered by the case.

Enter NDP's Lewis

The Brilliance of a 26-Year-Old Sparks Queen's Park Excitement

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP)—The second session of the 27th Ontario legislature was only in its fifth day late in January when young Stephen Lewis, a freshman New Democratic Party member, was given the opportunity to speak.

"I rise with considerable enthusiasm to speak on this resolution . . ." said Mr. Lewis, the first new opposition member to make his maiden speech.

Since then, the enthusiasm displayed by the 26 - year - old Toronto socialist for speaking in the legislature has been overshadowed only by his oratorical brilliance. Premier John Robarts himself has praised Mr. Lewis's rhetoric.

During debate on the government's so-called "police state' legislation which would have given extreme powers to the Ontario Police Commission to jail reluctant witnesses, Stephen Lewis said:

"I am a new member of this House, Mr. Speaker. I am a young member of this House. I have sat here now for almost 10 weeks.

"I have no particular illusions about the absolute virtue of the parliamentary system, and I have no particular illusions about the absolute principles in which the honorable member latterly referred.

"But I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that I would not have believed it possible for a government to introduce such a bill into this legislature on a Friday and then for a government to defend such a bill in this legislature on a Monday."

'EVEN SADDER'

When a Conservative interjected that the bill had, in fact, been introduced on Thursday, Mr. Lewis retorted:

"My, indeed, Mr. Speaker, I made the slip and said Friday instead of Thursday and the honorable gentleman rise to it, then it is an even sadder comment that the extra 24 hours should not have brought them to their collective democratic senses."

Mr. Lewis, a former university history lecturer in Ghana, speaks without a prepared text, interspersing his remarks with historical notes and substantiating them with statistical data.

His primary purpose on the New Democratic benches is to serve his party's health and welfare critic. But he does not restrict his addresses to these social issues.

For instance, in the budget debate he chose as his topic the distribution of hate literature in his riding of Scarborough West. Referring to the spread of neo-Nazi propaganda, he said:

"Because, on a particular day, 11, 1937, the son of David Lewis, vice-chairman of the New Democratic Party, he entered politics in 1963.

(CP Photo)

YOUNGEST MEMBER—Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party member for Scarborough West, is the youngest member of the Ontario Legislature. A former university lecturer in Ghana, his primary purpose on the New Democratic benches is to serve as his party's health and welfare critic. Born Nov. 11, 1937, the son of David Lewis, vice-chairman of the New Democratic Party, he entered politics in 1963.

(CP Photo)

"But now, it is much more truculent, open, brutal and crude."

'TRUE OBSCENITY'

Displaying a sheaf of pamphlets attacking Jews and Negroes, he continued:

"There is something profoundly wrong with a society where the definition of immorality is primarily sexual in content. We prosecute with some relish the Fanny Hills and the Lady Chatterleys Lovers, and note, at times with relish, certain untoward contacts of visiting dignitaries.

"But the true moral degradation of the society, the true obscenity, the deplorable depths to which human minds are capable of plunging, somehow escape the public discussion, the public notice, and the legal justification."

In the same address, he said:

"I agree with the honorable prime minister of Ontario that we deal with a perverted, lunatic fringe. . . . But this kind of microcosm of malice feeds on itself and multiplies, and what is anti-semitic today becomes anti-Negro tomorrow and anti-Catholic the next day and anti - christianity in the total thereafter."

SOMETHING NEW

It was following his maiden speech, on a resolution criticizing the government's medical care scheme, that Mr. Lewis was praised by Premier Robarts for "his obvious debating ability."

"I can see that something new has been added to this legislature," said the Progressive Conservative premier.

In his maiden speech Mr. Lewis declared in part:

"I hope that some of us in this House do not accept the government's athletic approach to medicare, which is essentially to begin with homeostasis, to move into the air on pole-vaults hovering perilously in the stratosphere, and then to descend to the earth in the form of a basketball.

"I suggest that this standing on the head of the medicare issue is precisely what is at fault."

Born Nov. 11, 1937, the son of David Lewis, vice-chairman of the New Democratic Party, Stephen Lewis entered politics in 1963, seizing Scarborough West for the NDP in the provincial election of Sept. 25.

YOUNGEST MEMBER

A graduate of the University of Toronto in modern history, he worked briefly in England for the Socialist International—a sort of clearing house for world socialist movements—before going for Africa.

He taught history at the University of Ghana in Accra for almost a month in 1960, then travelled across Nigeria, Kenya and Uganda, returning to Canada in 1961.

As a member of the Ontario legislature — its youngest — his main concern has been with the health services provided by Ontario. Most of his speeches in the house are used to present evidence to document his cases. At times, however, he calls upon sarcasm to make his point.

During consideration of the 1964-65 estimates of the department of health, presented to the legislature by Health Minister Dymond, Mr. Lewis said:

"Mr. chairman, we have had a healthful fracas described in the honorable minister's estimates. The sun never sets on the honorable minister's empire.

"Criticisms are inventions of the mind rather than a reality of the eye, and those who shout 'crisis' indulge, apparently, in whimpering cries of self-delusion.

"But frankly, Mr. chairman, it simply will not wash. I submit that the department of health of this government is in a transparent state of disarray, and I shall attempt to document that. . . ."

STILL ACTIVE — Gladys Porter, the first woman to win a seat in the Nova Scotia house, remains active in politics as she approaches her 80th birthday, Aug. 4. The widow of newspaperman H. Wyman Porter, she still does her own housework and cooking.

Mrs. Gladys Porter First Woman Ever to Win Seat in N.S. Legislature

By DON ANGUS

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP)—In a province where politics has been traditionally a male preserve, Gladys Porter is the sort of person who might be expected to break the men's monopoly on the legislature.

"I'm tough," says the first woman ever to win a seat in the Nova Scotia House, a statement her adversaries and colleagues wouldn't care to dispute.

Her toughness isn't so much in the sense of political pugnacity, although she is a formidable political foe, but in her tenacity and vigor.

For as Mrs. Porter approaches her 70th birthday, Aug. 4, she shows no signs of slackening the energetic pace that has carried her from one success to another in politics.

When the legislature is sitting in Halifax, Mrs. Porter is up before 7:30 a.m., has breakfast and sets out for one of the committee meetings of the House. She attends the afternoon session of the legislature itself and at night may attend a ward caucus or appear at a women's club meeting.

"Usually I don't get home before midnight," she says.

FAMILY IN POLITICS

At home in the Annapolis Valley town, the white-haired widow of newspaper man H. Wyman Porter still does her own housework and cooking — she was once a home economics instructor at Kentville Technical School — and serves as chairman of more than a dozen charitable groups.

She never forgets that she's an elected representative, however, and she always seems able to find time to talk to her constituents.

A prepossessing woman, Mrs. Porter seemed destined for a political career by family background as well as personality.

Her father, the late Wallace A. Richardson, was the first mayor of Sydney, N.S., and was re - elected six times. Her mother was an active community worker, her brother a member of Parliament and her uncle a member of the legislature.

A native of Sydney, the former Gladys Richardson was educated at Sydney Academy and Empire Business College. She served as town councillor here for three years and in 1946 was elected mayor, a post she held for 1 1years with one interruption.

An admirer of Robert Stanfield, she accepted the Progressive Conservative nomination when Kings County party workers approached her in 1960.

When the Conservatives won and Mr. Stanfield became premier, she became the first woman ever to sit in the legislature.

MAIDEN SPEECH

When Mrs. Porter delivered her maiden speech Feb. 9, 1961, she mentioned that it was satisfying to know that women are able to take part in government.

But she was soon on to such subjects as hospital insurance and the condition of the apple market.

It was a reflection of the fact that, while she is a champion of her sex, she is more concerned with matters of substance.

"As I see it," she said after her election, "the world of today is neither a man's or a woman's world. We have to live together, plan together and work together without distinction of sex if we are going to make a better world."

Nor does she object to be congratulated for maintaining a home by herself—her daughter, Mrs. Edward LeBlanc, lives in St. Stephen, N.B. — and carrying on a political career at the same time.

"For a woman to hold public office and at the same time successfully fulfill her domestic responsibilities should be no more unusual than for a man to find time to conduct his business interests efficiently and also play a part in public affairs."

PREDICTS CHANGES

HAMILTON (CP)—Dr. Stuart M. Jamieson, professor of economics at the University of British Columbia, predicted Saturday that today's high school graduates may change occupations three times during their working careers. This occupation change is one of several drastic effects on society resulting from the cybernetics revolution, he told a conference on cybernation—changing automation systems involving electronic brains with speed and accuracy no human can match.

Sandford Fleming Went to Governor's Dinner Party In Red Flannel Shirt

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—This is the story of a man who went to church and to a colonial governor's dinner party in a red flannel shirt, and about the bush-whacker he hired whose brother became a governor-general of Canada.

It was at a time when the idea of a single nation stretching from sea to sea across the north of North America seemed outlandish to most people. But both men played a part in founding and developing Canada as it is today.

It was just 100 years ago this month that the man in the red flannel shirt was busily engaged in surveying routes in the Gaspe region and what now is northern New Brunswick, seeking a route for a railroad.

Sandford Fleming—later Sir Sandford—was seeking to join the settled parts of Upper and Lower Canada with New Brunswick and the Maritime provinces. The gap to be filled was between Truro, N.S., and Riviere-du-Loup, on the south shore of the lower St. Lawrence.

His work, being paid for by the government of Canada East and West, was being pressed ahead despite the fact earlier suggestions that the Atlantic provinces might join with Canada in Confederation had fallen in disillusionment.

WENT TO CHURCH

In April, 1864, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick were thinking of their own union—and none too enthusiastically, at that.

Riviere-du-Loup was then the eastern terminus of the railway in Quebec, then known as Canada East. Fleming worked from there east to the Baie de Chaleur, and then south to the settled parts of New Brunswick.

But before setting out through the bush by snowshoe, carrying their provisions on their backs or by dogsled, Fleming and his associates went to the Anglican church in Riviere-du-Loup.

The rector, surprised and no little pleased at the sudden addition to his Sunday morning flock, called the churchwardens together and suggested it would be a good time to take up a collection.

Fleming recorded in his diary, however, that after a whispered consultation and a close look at the railway engineering party in their obviously seedy clothes, the decision was made that a collection that particular morning probably wouldn't be worthwhile.

PROPOSED VISIT

After inspecting the route to the Baie de Chaleur and considering the geographical location in North America, Fleming wrote a report suggesting a major deep-sea port there, and sea-rail links with Newfoundland. He foresaw daily steamer service along this route serving the whole of North America and Liverpool.

When he arrived at Fredericton, Fleming was invited to dine with the governor, Arthur Hamilton Gordon, one of the strong advocates of Maritime union. Sandford Fleming begged off because of the rough clothes he wore—a grey homespun suit and the red flannel shirt. But the governor insisted.

"You can imagine the sensation I made when I entered the drawing room at Government House, filled with ladies in wonderful toilets and officers in full dress uniform," Fleming said years later.

While in Fredericton discussing his railway plans with the colonial premier—later one of the Fathers of Confederation, Sir Leonard Tilley — Fleming was approached by a young man who sought to join the survey party.

HIRED PEER

The young man introduced himself as Lord Haddo. Fleming at first dismissed him, saying it was too arduous an undertaking for a young dandy tagging along.

Lord Haddo, however, proved he had at least come from a lumberman's camp where he had been earning $14 a month and his board, and could work as an axeman "as well as any other fellow."

So Fleming hired him. A few months later, however, Fleming met young Haddo in Halifax, heading for Scotland. The young lord reported that his father—the Earl of Aberdeen—had died and that he was returning home to claim the title and estates.

The young Earl later was lost at sea with the crew of a whaling ship bound for the South Seas. His younger brother became Earl of Aberdeen—and governor-general of Canada in 1893.

PROPOSES COMMISSION

TORONTO (CP) — A permanent commission on continuing education, including representatives from the provincial government, universities and other related agencies, was proposed Sunday by D. McCormack Smyth, dean of Atkinson College, York University, Toronto.

He told the convention of the Workers' Educational Association the commission's task would be to awaken the public to a need for continuing education, to raise money for it and to organize and co-operate.

New Postmaster-General Puts Service on Firm Basis

VANCOUVER (CP)—If there was one blind spot in Jack Nicholson's grasp of government last Jan. 20 it was the post office department.

That was the day Prime Minister Pearson made him postmaster-general.

"I've never even been a stamp collector," he admitted during a rare trip back to his Vancouver Centre constituency. "I went into it cold."

He could have handled most questions about munitions and supply, defence production, national revenue, trade and commerce, justice, forestry, natural resources and agriculture. He has worked with all these departments during more than 30 years in business and government.

The decision to move him from the forestry portfolio to the post office was generally interpreted as a decision to utilize this business experience in what is largely a business branch of government.

BOSS OF POLYMER

Mr. Nicholson has served as executive vice-president of the Crown agency, Polymer Corporation, and as head of the huge public utility, Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company in Brazil.

As postmaster-general, he is the chief executive officer of a coast-to-coast operation employing 48,000 people in 10,000 to 12,000 individual post offices in revenue.

His instructions, he says, are to "follow business rules" rather than political rules in a job wide open to suspicion of patronage.

He says the post office is basically a service industry, by nature decentralized and labor-intensive, charged with the goal of breaking even on operations.

Yet the post office has traditionally lost money—$6,000,000 last year without accounting for $20,000,000 in rental charges on post offices built, managed and serviced by the department of public works.

The new minister says the department must eliminate the deficit through application of budget control systems and other business tactics, making each class of mail pay its way.

RATES TO RISE

Legislation was in the works when he took over the job to increase the rate for general printed matter from two cents to three for the first two ounces.

And Mr. Nicholson has introduced a bill to increase the letter rate for local delivery from four to five cents.

The department also is examining airmail charges, mailing rates between Canada and other countries and free distribution of such "periodicals" as commercial letters distributed by business concerns.

The trend to automation will continue, he says.

"In Winnipeg, we have a new machine, the SEPARCAN, which sorts mail electronically by the color of the stamp. No human hand touches it."

But deficit or not, the new postmaster-general is impressed with what he's found in this world of red trucks and sorting baskets.

"I don't think any country in the world has a more efficient postal service. Since it has such a good record, to improve it is a real challenge."

American Working Girls Going to Town in Big Way

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

American working girls are going to town in a big way . . . around 1800 one out of five employed women earned her pay on a farm or ranch . . . today only one out of 40 does.

If you want your dog to behave well, you must set him a good example. . . . It has been found that dogs reflect the personalities of their owners. . . . Cats, on the other hand, are more independent-minded and generally lead their lives according to their own sense of discipline.

Fire is man's most warming friend—and still one of his most expensive foes. . . . Annual U.S. property losses from fire have exceeded $1,000,000,000 for the last seven years. . . . The toll in 1963 was $1,400,000,000.

Isn't science wonderful? . . . In ancient Greece Aristotle once counted the teeth of his housekeeper and those of a male servant . . . he found the woman had four fewer teeth. . . . So for hundreds of years it was taken for granted that men had four more teeth than women.

CAN'T CHANGE MIND

Quotable notables: "A fanatic is someone who can't change his mind and won't change the subject." — Winston Churchill. (Incidentally George Santayana once described fanaticism as "redoubling your effort when you have forgotten your aim.")

Prosperity note: Japan is building a new $26,000,000 Imperial Palace. . . . It will have an underground garage for 150 cars, a dining room that will seat 500 persons and a front garden that will accommodate 18,000 persons for afternoon tea.

Folklore: To cure a sore throat, tie around your neck at bedtime a stocking you have worn during the day. . . . If you trim your fingernails on Friday, you won't have a toothache for a week. . . . Wearing a silver ring will help protect you from fits.

Wisecrack of the week: Actor Oscar Homolka points out that "with the cost of weddings what they are, a father doesn't that lose a daughter—he gains a finance company."

TOPS PEAK TRAVEL

AOSTA, Italy (AP)—The St. Bernard Tunnel, first highway route under the Alps, handled 42 000 vehicles in its first month of operation. An average 1,400 cars a day moved between Italy and Switzerland via the tunnel since the opening March 19. Last summer's peak season average over the St. Bernard Pass was 855 vehicles.

Small-Boat Fisherman Getting Ready for Season

By JAMES H. MURRAY
Canadian Press Correspondent

BURIN, Nfld. (CP)—In tiny coves and big harbors up and down the Newfoundland coast the smell of tar, pitch, paint and oakum is in the air.

It's that time of year again for small-boat fishermen, time to get the fishing boats ready for another season of activity in waters that have been described as the best inshore fishing grounds in the world.

From Nipper's Harbour in the north to St. Mary's and Mortier in the south the inshore fishermen are busy with handsaws, hammers, hatchets and caulking irons.

Paint, pitch, tar, varnish, rope and other necessities once supplied on credit are bought by most fishermen for cash now. Thousands of dollars are spent on new engines and other equipment.

Actually the inshore fisher has already started. The lobster fishery begins about April 20 and some fishermen operate during the winter on parts of the southwest coast catching cod.

Handlines, trawl lines and cod nets are used when conditions are favorable in the spring. But the big production season begins when the trap voyages gets under way in June.

CAPLIN ARE COMING

During the few weeks it lasts, fortune fisherman can make a full year's income under the right conditions. The main part of the voyage really hits high gear when capelin are coming to land to spawn and the hungry cod are in hot pursuit.

It is just such circumstances that inspired the old Newfoundland saying—"The fish are eating the rocks."

In the last few years there has been an increase in the number of inshore fishermen and small boats. Last season, a federal fisheries department report says, there were 232 more fishermen than in 1962 for a total of 20,150.

Of these, 13,546 were inshore fishermen compared with 13,181 in 1962. The number of small boats rose to 10,770 from 10,102. The inshore fishermen caught 448,000,000 pounds of cod and as usual the trap fishery accounted for the bulk of the landings.

With many filleting and freezing plants now able to take the fish from the inshore fishermen at various points along the coast, men can concentrate on catching instead of having to take time out to salt and dry their catch.

12 Million Bees Jobless At Guelph Research Unit

GUELPH (CP)—Mice and a complicated $6,000 machine that analyzes their breath are the chief components of a cancer research project being carried out at the Ontario Agricultural College here.

And 12,000,000 bees a year are unemployed because their former contribution to the project is now being produced synthetically.

Royal jelly, that staple in the arsenal of the fast-buck operator who has promoted it as everything from an aphrodisiac to a complexion cream, was until recently an important factor in the research.

Royal jelly is the secretion of worker bees, the sole nutrient of larvae that develop into queen bees.

Professor Gordon F. Townsend, head of OAC's agriculture department, who kept bees as a childhood hobby and used them to finance his chemistry studies, started a chemical analysis of royal jelly years ago while working at the Banting Institute in Toronto.

He was able to extract a fatty acid substance from the royal jelly that would destroy cancer cells, but while the cancer-destroying properties of the compound — called 10-hydroxy-decenoic — were sick owl-edged, it was discovered that injection into a cancer-infected mouse brought no results.

This is where the breathalyzer came into the picture.

ADD TRACER

By adding a radioactive tracer to the substance, it was found the rodent breathed off the compound as fast as it entered the body. No trace of it remained in less than an hour.

Researchers changed the chemical structure of the compound by replacing a carbon atom, producing a synthetic compound called ethyl beryllyoxyacetate, produced without the royal jelly that was the basis of its predecessor.

Hence the vast supply of bees formerly kept are no longer needed.

The synthetic showed some improvement in that it stayed longer in the mouse's system but still not long enough. About 75 per cent is lost in six hours. Researchers hope that still further changes in the compound will retain the selectivity of the original in destroying cancer cells without affecting normal cells, and result in better retention and assimilation by the body.

Hundreds of black and white mice are being used. Mice are given four different types of cancer. Some are left untreated as a control group. Others receive the compound in a variety of ways—orally, intravenously and subcutaneously.

All the mice given cancer die of it eventually, says Prof. Townsend, but delaying the cancer's progress by any one method or compound is significant.

And if a substance effective on mice is developed, it will still have to be proven effective on a wide range of animals before it would even be tried on a human.

'This Was Burlesque' One Of Longest Running Hits in N. Y. Started With $16,000

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — The genteel striptease during that chapely shoulders of Ann Corio shrugged eloquently.

"I knew it had to be this way or not at all," she remarked with soft satisfaction of a woman who has emphatically proved her point.

"I hate to think what someone else might have done."

Miss Corio, a practitioner of the ecdysiastic art form's halcyon era, is the star, guiding power, chief censor and vigilant champion of "This Was Burlesque, one of New York's longest running hit shows.

With $16,000 of capital, some home-made costumes salvaged from stage curtains, and a cooperatively silent partner, Miss Corio launched the nostalgic, mildly raffish revue at the Casino East Theatre on March 8, 1963. It hasn't stopped since, through several editions.

"What we did was bring burlesque back to respectability," says the star. "We haven't had to use a single gimmick to keep going—and you'd be surprised at the number of women in the audience. Parents bring their teen-agers along, because they want them to see a great old entertainment form before it vanishes forever."

There have been more than 600 party groups, and one admirer has seen the show 113 times.

FEARS FINAL CLOSE

Miss Corio is haunted by the notion that "when we close, it will be the end of burlesque." She fervently wishes that some foundation would pay the cost of recording it all on film for the endowment of future generations.

"Burlesque was America's contribution to the art of entertainment, and it wasn't what a lot of people today think of it as. Comedy was the big thing and the flash girls were just a small part of it."

She has nothing but scorn for the vestiges of so-called burlesque which linger on in a dozen or so cities.

"The girls were strippers then —they call themselves exotics now," she declares. "There was a lot more animation then—it's all become a lot more aggressive today and the girls who work the circuit couldn't care less."

The emphasis is on comics in the Casino East Show, dispensing a variety of tattered and rustic mirth.

"We keep the pace furious," Miss Corio asserts. "I have three strippers, but the longest spot any one of them gets is seven minutes. The audience comes for the comics.

"I've got my own dressing room equipped with a loudspeaker to keep tabs on what goes on on stage. The people that come to this show will freeze instantly at anything suggestive—then it takes a half-hour to get them back."

Two of the comics, Steve Mills and Mack Dennison—the animated repositories of several hundred ancient routines—have been with the show all the way. With them now is Harry Conley. Miss Corio on one occasion bought back a performer's contract when he couldn't adjust to respectability.

"It takes a week also to teach the girls the way things should be done. There's a long list of strippers who would like to come in, but they don't know the way we did things when burlesque was really burlesque."

Since the show opened, several rival ventures have opened and speedily vanished. This Miss Corio takes as a tribute to her own precise, possibly sentimental resuscitation of the way things were, when she Gypsy Rose Lee, Georgia Southern, Margie Hart were eye-stoppers; Red Skelton, Bert Lahr and Bobby Clark were top bananas.

A critic once described Miss Corio as "a grave, ritualistic performer," and her own part in the show adheres to that determined decorum. A highlight skit, Cleopotrast, stha Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. As the fabled Nile queen, Miss Corio, still graceful and handsome, demurely cavorts in flesh-colored leotards.

The show, she expects, will continue in New York through the two seasons of the world's fair. After that, "we may accept a lot of the bids we've had to tour, and perhaps even go to London."

COAL PRODUCTION UP — Employment in Canada's coal industry dropped to a monthly average of 9,588 during 1963, down from 9,750 in 1962. Production was up slightly, totalling 10,547,187 tons in 1963 against 10,264,769 in 1962. (CP Newsmap)

How to Make Your Million

OSHAWA (CP)—It may take money to make money but the principal ingredient of success is hard work.

Take the case of Anthony Esposito, Canadian-born son of an Italian laborer who has seen his borrowed $1,000 stake grow into a $1,500,000 business in 13 years.

Working alone at first with only a panel truck, he opened a business from the kitchen of his home selling pastry, soft drinks, candy and cigarettes to factory and construction workers in the Oshawa area. He now heads a company with more than 100 employees and 53 vehicles.

The third of six children and the eldest boy, he has lived all his 44 years in Oshawa. His parents came to Canada from Italy in 1910.

Tony, as he likes to be called, left school in the eighth grade and was successively clerk in a fruit store and laborer in an automotive parts plant until a stint in the Canadian Army overseas ending in 1960.

Tony borrowed $1,000 and went into partnership with a fellow in a restaurant. This fellow had a panel truck.

"After six months in this business, I could see no future in this partnership, so I told him there is not enough in this for both of us. He asked me if I wanted the restaurant or the truck. So I took the truck."

Tony worked long hours frequently getting no more than four or five hours sleep a night. He moved from his kitchen into an old carpentry shop behind his house as the business grew he added lines — sandwiches, coffee meat pies, hot dogs— and expanded his floor space.

Last January, Mayor Lyman Gilford presided at the formal opening of a new building covering 10,000 feet of floor space and incorporating the most modern equipment.

Gross take in those early days was $400 to $500 weekly.

"I could see things developing," Tony says, "and I brought my brother Sam into the business in 1962 and later asked my brother Rocco to join us."

Tony is president, Sam vice-president and public relations director and Rocco secretary-treasurer and production manager.

The company services Oshawa and the neighboring towns of Bowmanville, Whitby and Ajax and has a partnership in a similar company in Peterborough.

The Awe of Shakespeare

A Reputation Enduring on Simple Merits

By ALFRED B. HARRAGE (AP Copyright, 1964)

Why is it that plays of a writer born four centuries ago are acted all over the world, read and more often edited, reprinted, translated and even read than those of any other writer, living or dead?

It must be Shakespeare's writing that accounts for his success, not the stale "mysteries" about his life nor their semi-fresh "solutions." A reputation can be so awesome that it paralyzes our minds. We forget that it rests upon the conspicuous presence of merits of a simple kind. There comes a time when it seems simple-minded even to mention these merits, in fact almost disrespectful.

People have always been fond of stories, and Shakespeare offers good ones. Others have offered stories as good (or even the same ones), and some have been more prolific, but no other writer in history has offered so many good stories of so many different kinds. Shakespeare tapped the well-springs in epic verse, prose fiction and ancient and modern history, so that there is scarcely a plot or situation which does not appear in one guise or another in his plays.

Whatever else it may be, Hamlet is a grand union of ghost and detective story. Othello does almost all that can be done with a story of villainous intrigue. No story of crime and punishment could be more gripping than Macbeth.

Shakespeare knew gold when he saw it, and knew how to refine it. Of the many stories in Plutarch's Lives the best are the ones he chose to adapt, especially the one of the assassination of Caesar at his peak of glory, and the one of the fatal lure of Cleopatra as a threat to the Roman Empire.

Among fictions he instinctively chose the most durable. In spite of its apparent modernity, making it adaptable in New York's upper West Side, the basic situation of Romeo and Juliet had been invented a thousand years before Shakespeare was born.

Most of his stories have the root-strength of a parable or folk tale banned by their grace and ingenuity. For instance, the Beatrice-Benedick story of the reluctant lovers, in Much Ado about Nothing, which Shakespeare himself invented, is a clever and humane variation upon the fable of the fox and the grapes. And the story of that bestially prince, who loafs in taverns with the sleazy but comical Falstaff, until just the right moment for him to emerge in splendor to save his father and his country, is really two tales in one—that of Prince Hal of England and that of the Ugly Duckling. It pleases us now as it comforted us in childhood when we hoped that we, too might turn out to be swans.

And just as they have always been fond of stories, people have always been interested in people. The many who more briskly about in Shakespeare's plays have the rare trait of seeming both strange and familiar. They are the uncommon symbols of common experience so that they both excite us and serve as reference points in our awareness of actual people—including ourselves.

Romeo and Shylock are his champion misers. A person who has never read anything, let alone Shakespeare, may still see a young lover as a Romeo. Testifying before a congressional investigating committee on the loan rackets of Cosa Nostra, a singing hoodlum (not conspicuously cultured) has referred to himself as a Shylock with a heart of gold. Every newly-married man now is a Benedick, every penny aid boss a Polonius, every bone too-bright constable a Dogberry, and so it goes.

Even when their names have not passed into common use, Shakespeare's characters have assumed symbolic identities larger than literary life, from the "puckish" Puck to the bunchback Richard. Consider this small sampling, both in its diversity and in the way its members serve as touchstones to our shared ideals and antipathies: Juliet, Rosalind, Portia, Cordelia, Miranda, Audrey, Kate the Shrew —Falstaff, Brutus, Antony, Iago, Caliban, Macbeth. Even the unlikely last, tough killer with a tender conscience, expands out of his play to codify our personal experience—he is ourselves in our dreams of horror.

Of course it is all done with mirrors—mirrors in the form of words, as only a poet can use words. Although the poetry is literally untranslatable, it seems to inspire the translators so that millions in various lands now are wondering if he can possibly sound as good in English as he does in German, Russian, Urdu, Azerbaijani, and more than a hundred other tongues.

Shakespeare used a higher percentage of concrete one-syllable words than any great writer has done since. But the imaginative richness of his language makes it hard for some readers, especially the young. Later in life these blame their troubles upon fiendish conspiracy of scholars and teachers whom it is the fashion to kick at random.

But without the scholars, who have saved it from being eroded away by theatrics adaptation we would not have this language at all. As for the teachers, they do the best they can. They say of the position of that stout band of brothers who used to teach Greek, proudly affirming that although their students did not learn Greek, they gained a firm conviction that there was such a language.

Shakespeare must be discovered slowly and by oneself. The simplest and best of his merits, the one which finally breaks all language-barriers at home and abroad, is his quite wonderful decency.

There is a natural human goodness radiating from Shakespeare's works—goodness of a precious kind, because it combines firmness of moral texture with a spirit of love and kindness. Qualities we too often associate only with amiable soft - headedness are dignified in Shakespeare by intellectual subtlety and great artistry. This great artist was also a wise and just and merciful man. He faced reality, yet remained an idealist. He saw all of man's infirmities, but retained his respect for man. He was compassionate and hopeful, and his honest but tender vision stands as a beacon for humanity.

SCENE OF RICH MINERAL STRIKE — This is the site of the rich mineral strike reported near Timmins, Ont., by Texas Gulf Sulphur Company. Announcement of the find resulted in record-breaking trading in penny mining stocks on the Toronto Stock Exchange and a claims staking rush in the area. Circled are three drilling rigs attempting to determine limits of the find, estimated officially at a "conservative 25,000,000 tons" of zinc, copper and silver. (CP Photo)

HOW BIG IS NEW ORE BODY? — A drilling rig works on the site of a major zinc-copper-silver find in Northern Ontario's Kidd Township. Texas Gulf Sulphur Company which made the find announced the ore body at about 25,000,000 tons but there have been persistent rumors it is larger. Several rigs are at work trying to determine its exact size. (CP Photo)

TENT HOUSES MODERN PROSPECTORS — A row of tents forms the exploration centre on the site of a major mineral strike near Timmins, Ont. Valve Care Is Good Investment

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

No part of your car engine works harder than the valves, nor under more difficult conditions. They function with incredible precision while defying intense heat, explosive pressures, sludge, carbon, varnish, dirt. Yet, they will operate efficiently for many thousands of miles without any great degree of maintenance attention. Engine oil of good quality, frequent oil and filter changes are the principal prescriptions. Running a solvent through the engine occasionally further helps to keep them gum-free.

Valve-ailments may make themselves known via noise or a drop-off in performance... or in extreme cases a virtual engine collapse. Sticky, burnt or worn valves, weak springs and late timing are the more common troubles. At the 23,000-mile mark — sometimes sooner — a carbon removal and valve regrinding job represents a good investment.

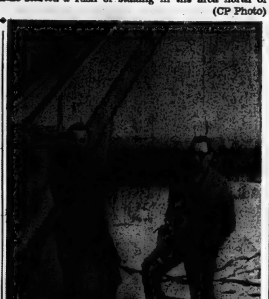
From N. T.: "When I first attempt to start, there's often a strange buzzing noise — sometimes almost — before the starter actually turns over."

Sounds much like a binding starter drive shaft. Dirt or gum accumulation is often responsible for this.

G. C. writes: "From the rear of our car comes a noise which increases with speed. My best describe as a clapping, or perhaps clopping is the right word."

Check for an out-of-round tire or a high spot on a tire tread — a loose spare, tool or jack in the trunk.

M. P. asks: "After 3 weeks new spark plugs in my car look more like 3 years old, with black carbon coating the firing ends. Why?"



Hotter plugs may be needed — carburetor adjustment may be too rich — or the engine may be running too cold for some reason.

From H. L.: "If an occasional miss is due to point adjustment, is it because they are set too wide or too close?"

Just when the miss occurs will decide that. If the gap is too narrow, idle and low-speed miss results ... if too wide, it happens at high speeds.

PRIVATELY EMPLOYED

About four-fifths of Britain's working force of nearly 26,000,000 are employed by private industry.

For May 7

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Proceed with confidence. Conflicts easily resolved. Real substance is on "your side." Cycle moving up. Fine for making adjustments, getting house in order. Take deep breath — and go!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Plenty of activity — numerous contradictions indicated. In long run, pay heed to "inner" counsel. Don't permit outsiders to influence your own judgment. Make final decisions alone.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): There appear to be "islands" of opportunity. You must pick and choose with care. Otherwise, you'll get wet! Key is added responsibility. This pays dividends. Avoid being a clock watcher.

Cancer (June 21 to July 23): Surprises come in connection with friends. May involve correspondence or travel. Call received for advice, aid. Give your best. Realize you now are planting seeds for future.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): Investigate various opportunities. Be willing to make concessions, basic changes. Includes change of attitude. Financial question best settled by compromise. Important to maintain good will.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): Communication may appear difficult. Key is being determined, persistent. Intuitive intellect provides valuable clue. Don't expect instantaneous results. But do realize you are "getting through."

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Be considerate of fellow workers, those who serve you. Girl properly presented today could cement relationship. Display wonderful sense of diplomacy, justice. Give and you will also receive.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Guard against actions based only on impulse. Apply fine powers of reasoning. Find out the why of events. Get facts in order. Scrutinize reports, including those appearing in your paper.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Changes indicated in domestic situation. Make them pleasant ones by being reasonable. Obtain hint from Libra message. Those in authority not certain of actions. Stress diplomacy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Confusion exists in high places. Ride with the tide. Don't attempt to force issues. Be patient. Gather facts. Make decisions based on logic. Some facts yet to be gathered. Dig deep!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Keep careful eye on possessions. Carelessness can now result in loss. You are able to perceive what public desires. Follow through on hunches. In personal life, loved one needs your encouragement.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Pull exists in two directions. Best course is to stay with course granting greatest independence. Pay no heed to "far-fetched" tales. What you seek can now be achieved . . . with added effort.

If today is your birthday . . . you are wise beyond your years. You are attracted to metaphysics, philosophy and history.

General Tendencies: International forces make "moves." Much speculation but little evidence of what actually is taking place.

"How can you expect a person to see a dinky little sign like that when she's going 60 miles an hour?"

British Troops Perched On Top Of Arabian Peak

Marines, Paratroopers Outsmart Red Wolves

By DENNIS NEELD

CAPBADGA PEAK (AP) — British marines and paratroopers fought to the top of this 5 000-foot peak of black volcanic rock Wednesday and now dominate the mountainous refuge of the Bedouin rebels in the South Arabian Federation.

The tribesmen, the Red Wolves of Radfan, can move out of their rocky lairs only at night.

"It now can be said the consolidation phase has been reached," declared Britain's Middle East commander-in-chief, Lt.-Gen. Sir Charles Harington.

"The military threat has by no means been eliminated but our forces now are well placed to deal swiftly with any trouble."

BACKED BY YEMEN

With the backing of the anti-British revolutionary regime in Ye-men to the north, the Red Wolves are fighting the Federation of South Arabia, a cluster of weak sheikdoms along the southern coast of the Arabian Peninsula. Britain has sent reinforcements to help the federation's small army.

Capbadge Peak was captured without a fight by troops of the 45th Royal Marine Commando.

They made a five - mile night march through the Radfan mountains and took the rebels by surprise.

At the fool of the peak lies the little village of El Naqil, a collection of bottle mud houses, where paratroopers Tuesday fought a bloody battle and were pinned down for 12 hours.

Two paratroopers, one an officer, were killed and 10 soldiers were wounded. At least 13 rebels died and many were wounded.

ADEN (Reuters)—More British soldiers landed here early today to reinforce troops fighting a rebel tribesman in the rugged Radfan Mountains 60 miles north of here.

Two Royal Air Force transport planes flew in with headquarters staff of the 24th Infantry Brigade Group to join others who arrived Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, British army commandos and paratroopers were consolidating positions captured in fierce fighting against the "Red Wolves" of Radfan Tuesday, a Middle East command spokesman said.

On Wednesday the men got a well-earned breather after capturing a strategic peak, the spokesman said.

"While the chastened dissidents have been licking their wounds, our men have been regrouping and adjusting their positions to take full advantage of the high dominating peaks they have won," he said.

INFLICT CASUALTIES

There was sporadic gunfire since the battle directed at a few tribesmen who had moved to fresh caves and positions. One body of tribesmen suffered seven casualties, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said that throughout the operation helicopters from Khormaksar Base in Aden performed feats of airmanship often under heavy fire.

They have been carrying out extraordinary supply missions to the troops, either landing on tiny plateaus high in the hills or hovering over narrow crags to drop loads slung from the fuselage, he said.

There are no roads in the area and the troops can only be supplied by camel or helicopter; or by local Arab tribesmen loyal to the south Arabian federal government.

Two British soldiers were killed and several injured in Tuesday's fighting.

Say Most School and Ad Dollars Wasted, Seek to Produce Perfect Environments

TORONTO (CP)—A research project under way at the University of Toronto may find a method of producing a future free of large - scale manufacturing and social mistakes.

Director of the project is Dr. Marshall McLuhan, an international authority in communications and recently appointed a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada.

Working with him are an architect, a psychiatrist, a mechanical engineer, a political scientist, and industrial engineer, an English professor, a psychologist and an anthropologist.

At a press conference Wednesday, Dr. McLuhan suggested a major problem is that people keep doing things in ways that have worked in the past without knowing why they really worked.

As a result, most of the $10,000,000,000 North Americans spend on advertising and the $16,000,000,000 they spend on education annually goes down the drain.

The experts feel much of this waste could be avoided through new methods of communication.

When the group discovers how different segments of the population react to different communications media, the intelligence quotient of illiterates can be raised, Dr. McLuhan said. Perfect environments can be planned.

Dr. McLuhan said the centre would have been established at any time, but the advent of television has spurred the need for it to a degree never before encountered.

He said television is responsible for separatism: Through television French-speaking Canadians see themselves and Canada differently than when radio or print were the prime means of communications.

The centre's tests will begin in earnest in the fall. At that time 100 Canadians, picked at random, will undergo tests. The group will be divided into three age groups, those in their 20s, 30s and 40s.

With this cross-section the centre hopes to discover how different age groups react to different methods of communication.

We are aware that TV has had a tremendous impact on society, the researchers predict that computers will be the next major force in society.

Dr. McLuhan said: "The computer could well hold the key that will unlock the whole communications secret. With the computer it is possible to preexperience any design before it leaves the drawing board.

"The designer merely programs the computer with all the elements of his design. The computer has stored the information on past performances of various designs and it produces a final total of all the experiences triggered by all the elements of the new design."

Working by this method products can be designed which the designer knows will be accepted by the market be is servicing.

Agency Representatives Hear Brantford Expert

More co - operation among welfare agencies and greater co-operation of services is vitally necessary if time and money spent in welfare activities is to be used to greatest advantage.

This was the story told last night at the Hotel Quinte as representatives of local welfare, medical, members of city council and others were addressed by Bert Beaumont, executive director of the Community Welfare Council of Brantford and Brant County.

"Co-operation, co-ordination and teamwork — is the answer," he said.

Last night's meeting was called by a special committee set up earlier this year to investigate the possibility of forming a community welfare council in Belleville with the view of solving the planning council experiments and to bring about co-ordination among the various welfare services.

WILL PROBE FURTHER

Today Ald. Don Williams, chairman of the mayor's special committee, said that his committee would be continued to further investigate the welfare council idea.

A meeting will be called for Tuesday night, to discuss conformation of a larger committee and also to decide whether an assessment of all the social welfare agencies in the city should or could be made.

Ald. Williams said the larger committee would look further into details and possibly decide whether or not a community welfare council should be formed in Belleville.

LOOKED ON AS MODEL

Formed back in 1953, the community welfare council in Brantford is looked upon as a model in all Canada.

In Brantford as in many other centres in the province, before the formation of the community welfare council, there was much overlapping of welfare services and the people were getting tired of the multiplicity of individual appeals.

"We even had three different organizations doing the same work of unmarried mothers," Mr. Beaumont said.

Also 14 different social or welfare agencies had major campaigns planned for the same month and it seemed people were tag days almost every week.

Through the community welfare council over-lapping of social services has been largely

Order Raises Sparks

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — A government announcement that members of the armed forces wishing to appear before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism must do so in camera raised sparks Thursday in the Commons.

"They are being treated as second-class citizens," snapped T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party after associate Defence Minister Cardin outlined the government's position.

The noisy exchange stemmed from an army order Tuesday to Kingston advising servicemen they could attend a session of the royal commission there but could not give evidence.

Mr. Cardin said defence regulations not only forbid service personnel from making statements on matters of military significance but also on matters that are controversial and of a political nature.

Arranging private hearings "is perhaps the best way of giving full freedom to the armed forces an opportunity to speak freely to the commission," said Mr. Cardin.

Heavy Exchange of Fire Fails to Cause Casualties

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—Cyprus was quiet today following overnight battles in the capital's communally mixed northern and eastern suburbs.

A United Nations spokesman said no casualties were reported, although heavy exchanges of firing in the suburbs lasted until 3 a.m.

Firing broke out late Wednesday night between Greek-Cypriot and Turkish-Cypriot positions in Yashomtsa, a mixed suburb of Nicosia where a 65-year-old Greek - Cypriot was wounded in a shooting incident earlier.

A Canadian UN military source said it appeared both sides were aiming at searchlights beamed on opposing positions.

A UN spokesman reported that a 25-year-old Turkish-Cypriot died in the British military base hospital of Dhekelia, was shot by a Greek-Cypriot policemen in the coast port town of Famagusta when he refused to stop his car and knocked the policeman down.

Shooting occurred along the length of the key Kyrenia-Nicosia road and on various parts of the Kyrenia Mountain range.

Canadian and British UN troops came under fire in three different places.

Minister Strongly Opposes Sterilization of Defectives

WINDSOR (CP) — Welfare Minister Louis Cecile told the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies Wednesday he strongly opposes the idea of sterilization of mental defectives.

Mr Cecile, here to open the CAS conference, was commenting on Mr. Essex County CAS-sponsored resolution which calls for a study of sterilization of mental defectives with a view to making it legal in Ontario.

The resolution says mental defectives appear to be passed on from generation to generation and the majority of mental defectives become a public charge incapable of giving adequate care to their children.

The resolution asks that the Ontario CAS undertake a study of legislation existing in other provinces and countries which permit the sterilization of mental defectives and that the results of the study together with recommendations be reported to the 1965 conference of the association.

Mr. Cecile said if the resolution is passed and reaches the legislature, he will have noth-

Living Costs At Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher prices for food and clothing helped boost Canada's cost of living to a record level at April 1. The consumer price index moved to 135 from 134.6 at March 1.

The bureau of statistics reported today that prices rose during March on a wide range of food items, adult clothing, housing and other components that make up the index.

The index—yardstick of urban living costs—based on 1949 prices equalling 100. At April 1 it was 2.7 points above the index for the corresponding date in 1963—a 12-month rise in two per cent.

Its rise during March followed an increase in industrial wages during February. The index of estimated 100 representative salaries at March 1 — latest available—was 199.5, compared with 195.3 month earlier and 193 a year earlier.

This index, based on 1949 levels equalling 100, represents an average of total wages paid by firms employing more than 15 persons in a wide range of industries.

Five of the seven components in the consumer price index were higher during March—food, housing, clothing, health and personal care, tobacco and alcohol. Declines showed in transportation and the reading-recreation segments.

Will Close House On Friday

TORONTO (CP)—Barring unforeseen developments, the third-longest session of the legislature in Ontario's history will be prorogued Friday by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe.

The house went into an unusual morning sitting today in a bid to clean up most of its work by tonight, leaving only the formalities of third readings and prorogation for Friday.

The night sitting tonight will be the fourth in a row for the 107 members of the 106-seat house. On Wednesday the legislature adjourned at 11:47 p.m. —its latest night of the session.

If the members do get away Friday, they will have sat for 63 days—70 days, actually, if 63 day devoted to committee meetings is included.

The longest session was in 1922. That lasted 81 days. The following year the house sat for

U.S. to 'Insist' Allies Join Cuban Boycott

Longer, Larger Cars Coming U.S. Auto Firms Plan Big Model Change

DETROIT (AP)—Small cars are showing up in the veil of secrecy behind which the U.S. auto industry hides its forthcoming 1965 car line.

With sales still running strong and the industry due to build its 6,000,000th car on the 1964 model run Thursday, it is not surprising that U.S. motorists are concerned about the future.

Activity in more than 125 tool and die shops in the Detroit area reflects the fact that the auto industry will be making the most extensive changes in its car line in over a decade. Some estimates are that $1,200,000,000 will be spent in tooling, dies and other aspects of the 1965 model changeover.

Basically, the industry seems to be basing its future on a belief that the U.S. buying public wants longer, larger and more powerful cars.

American Motors, chief advocate of the compacts, still feels there is a vast U.S. market for compacts and they will continue to play a big role in AMC's 1965 plans.

In brief, these seem to be the major changes coming in the '65s:

1. Larger, more powerful engines.

2. More use of disk brakes, in place of the present conventional drum brakes.

3. Squarish front ends and more use of fast backs. These represent an unbroken curved line from the top of the car to the rear bumper.

4. More use of low - profile tires.

The first of the '65s are expected to roll off the assembly line by Aug. 15. This is earlier than usual, but the new line-up try will be locked in negotiations with the United Auto Workers which covers contracts of the Big Three, Ford, Chrysler and General Motors, due to end Sept. 1.

From technical publications, union sources, tool and die makers and other sources, these bits were pieced together about some of the new cars to be:

General Motors

Cadillac will drop its traditional tail fins after 16 years. Some of the intermediate Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Buick wheelbases probably will be increased slightly and will the Buick Wildcat. GM will make more use of slanted roofs. It will make major revisions in its Corvair line and will offer a sporty Corvair GT model to compete with Ford's flashy new Mustang. GM's power plants will be bigger.

Ford

The Mustang, currently the fair-haired boy of the Ford line, will be unchanged in '65 except that a fastback model will be added. It will put heavy emphasis on engine improvements, including addition of two new six-cylinder jobs. Mercury will get a larger body. New headlights and a fancier front grille will mark several Ford products. More widespread use of the low profile tire will be made.

Chrysler

Chrysler, which since 1956 has used the push-button automatic transmission, will drop this in '65 in favor of the more conventional gear shift lever on the steering column. One Chrysler

Uncle Sam Puts Dent In Wrinkle Erasures

NEW YORK (AP)—A new wrinkle has developed in the wrinkle-removing business.

But the U.S. government has stepped in, and unless things are smoothed out, a potential $100,000,000 market may be in jeopardy.

Ten weeks ago, Helene Curtis Industries Inc. pioneered a lotion which may, for a few hours, restore youthful smoothness to faces.

Sales sky - rocketed, and other cosmetic firms — Coty, Hazel Bishop, Revlon-quickly prepared their own versions.

Then last week the U.S. Food and Drug Administration seized a batch of Helene Curtis product, Magic Secret, in Baltimore, claiming it is a drug instead of a cosmetic and should have had drug clearance. The agency raised no question of health, nor did it ban further sales.

But announcement of the seizure dropped Helene Curtis stock by $3 to $18.75 (its 1964 low) on the New York Stock Exchange that day and, said some New York retailers, sales slumped.

Makers of these lotions contend that they are not in fact drugs. They describe the chief ingredient as a protein extracted from cow's blood that acts only on the surface of the skin. The lotions therefore differ, they say, from the steroid-hormone creams previously marketed, which are long-term treatments affecting the skin's tissues or retaining capacity of skin cells.

Helene Curtis, in its ads, says the FDA "is not very keen" giving the impression that we could turn a prune into a plum permanently. . . . Of course it won't remove (wrinkles) permanently. We never said it would."

Before the legal questions are resolved, however, the consuming public may reconsider the more crucial judgment: Whether it likes the stuff.

Co-operation Needed To Save Time And Money

Twin 'Idiot Geniuses' Baffle Psychiatrists

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Twin "idiot geniuses," if you will, they can neither add nor subtract but who can say instantly the years any given date will fall on a Sunday, were examined today by the American Psychiatric Association Convention.

The psychiatrist who reported their case said these walking computers insofar as dates are concerned.

They can recall almost any day in their memory and accurately whether it was cloudy, sunny or rainy, it was reported.

One of the unidentified 34-year - old identical twins, Charles, is accurate only for this century. The other, George, can project his mental calculations centuries before and centuries beyond so-called perpetual calendars, charts which automatically calculate dates over 200 to 400 years.

George can instantly name Feb. 15, 2002, as a Friday, or Aug. 28, 1981, as a Saturday. His range is at least 2,000 years.

Neither can add, subtract, multiply nor divide, but weirdly enough can tell you when some famous man in history was born and how old he would be if alive today.

Retarded from birth, the brothers have been in institutions since the age of 8. Both have rocking and swaying movements, and frequently go up to people sniffing like puppies. Each can pick out his own slippers by smell alone.

Dr. William A. Horwitz of New York City, who reported the case, said neither he nor the brothers has a good explanation for their strange skill.

Make Offers In Secret Sept. 10

By DON HANRIGHT

GENEVA (CP)—Canada has plunged into the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting with the world's major trading nations by agreeing to join them in a scheduled Sept. 10 secret display of initial offers to begin hard bargaining.

However, Canada's special position—as importer of food and raw materials but a heavy importer of manufactured goods —was singled out Wednesday by the 60-nation ministerial conference of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The GATT communique, a product of midnight manoeuvres between the Americans and Europeans, established as "a working hypothesis" an across-the-board cut of 50 per cent in the tariffs of the major industrialized nations.

They agreed to file their exceptions to this on Sept. 10. Then will arrive the great crunch, determining the actual amount of reductions. They will likely be less than the 50 per cent—perhaps much less—envisaged by the late president Kennedy.

Left unresolved by the GATT sessions which ended here Wednesday were the crucial issues —both bearing on the depth of the cuts—of whether European agricultural protectionism will be lowered and the potential unfairness of equal cuts in unequal American-European tariff levels.

SEEK CUTS

These so-called "linear" cuts are being sought only by the United States, Japan and the two big trade blocs—the European Common Market and the European Free Trade Association.

The communique agreed that "Canada falls in the category of countries with a special economic or trade structure such

44 Killed, Airliner Crashes In California

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Forty-four persons were killed today in the crash of a Pacific Airlines plane in foothill country 40 miles east of San Francisco.

A Pacific Airlines spokesman said the plane carried 44 passengers, a crew of three and a Federal Aviation Agency observer.

The twin-engined turbine-propeller Fairchild F-27 was Flight 773 It originated in Reno.

Sheriff's Sgt. Louis Skuse reported from the crash scene on a ranch 10 miles east of Concord that there were no survivors.

George M. Galvin, assistant to the airlines president, said Capt. Ernest Clark was the pilot. The first officer was E. Andreas and the stewardess Margie Schafer.

Rasmussen said he saw the plane coming in and that it "flattened, there was a puff of smoke and it crashed a mile from my ranch."

The air controller's office at Oakland International Airport said the plane abruptly disappeared from its radar scope.

Sheriff's officers closed off the area where wreckage was scattered widely.

The wreckage did not burn.

Crown Lands Along Lakes Not for Sale for One Year

TORONTO (CP)—The relative scarcity of Crown land on the Great Lakes has prompted the government to freeze the sale of "publicly owned" acreage along the lakes for about a year.

This came to light in the legislature Wednesday night when Kelso Roberts, minister of lands and forests, asked by Hollis Sargent (L — Grey North) whether the sale of Crown land on Georgian Bay had been frozen.

Mr. Roberts agreed it had been, and later concurred with Robert Boyer (PC — Muskoka) that in fact no Crown land was being sold anywhere along the shores of the Great Lakes.

In an interview later, Frank MacDougall, deputy minister of lands and forests, said lakeshore and ocean land in North America is becoming extremely scarce.

The department made the decision about six months ago to temporarily freeze the sale of Crown land, Mr. MacDonald said. No formal government order was needed to enforce this policy.

The deputy minister anticipated that the freeze would continue for about another six months.

DON'T WANT BLOCK

The sale of Great Lakes waterfront land was halted primarily so the government could ensure that mounting private ownership would not block public access to the lakes.

The government wants to seek out areas for public parks, marinas, and beaches and other recreational areas along the Great Lakes, Mr. MacDougall said.

He indicated that even when the freeze was lifted, some Crown land would be regarded as untouchable.

About one - third of the Ontario shorelines of the Great Lakes remains Crown land, Mr. MacDougall said. The value of this could be placed at $40,000,000.

Along Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, nearly all lake frontage was privately - owned, he said. To a lesser extent this was true for Lake Huron - and Georgian Bay.

May Expropriate 900,000 Acres Of Railway Land

TORONTO (CP)—Lands and Forests Minister Roberts indicated Wednesday the government is considering the expropriation of 900,000 acres of land belonging to the Algoma Central Railway north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Roberts expressed disappointment the railway is charging $2.25 for fishing or hunting licences on its territory, given the company by the Crown in the late 1800s as inducement to build a railway.

The company returned 300,000 acres of its original 1,700,000 acres to the Crown in 1940 in lieu of taxes of $2,250,000 built up over a 15-year period.

The lands and forests minister said that in 1963, Algoma Central issued 2,000 licences at $2.25 each. The government, he said, has been trying to get the company to halt the practice.

However, Algoma Central asked for compensation of $100,000 over a five-year period to forego licensing, Mr. Roberts said. He found this completely unreasonable.

"The acquisition of these lands at a fair figure for the province is under considera-tion," Mr. Roberts said.

Missing Man Found Dead Near Eldorado

MADOC (Special) — A four-day search ended here at dawn for a missing Belleville man ended in tragic afternoon with the discovery of his body by a Provincial Police officer.

Police say Edward Harper (Ted) Broad apparently died from a gunshot wound. The 60-year-old city truck driver went missing from his home last Saturday and was traced to the Eldorado area north of here.

Search parties had combed the area since that time seeking for traces of the missing man.

Mr. Broad had frequently hunted in the area and borrowed a dog and shotgun from a relative to whose home he had gone after taking a taxi from Belleville. The relatives became alarmed and feared an accident when the dog returned home later alone.

Born at Thomasburg, he was the son of Mrs. Mary Holmes Broad and the late Harper Broad. He had lived in Belleville most of his life and in the past 14 months had been employed as a truck driver at Foley Foundry.

He had a service record that spanned the duration of World War II. He joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in 1939 and served with the unit in Britain until his discharge in 1945.

He was a member of the Tabernacle United Church.

He is survived by his wife, Bessie May Dafoe; a daughter, Mrs. Arnold (Gloria) Mitts, Corbyville; a brother, Albert, of Belleville; two sisters, Mrs. Frank (Pearl) Whiten, Brockville, and Mrs. James (Phyllis) Critch, Trenton, Ont., and a granddaughter, Kimberley Mary Rita.
